Say Thanks To Courteous Drivers

The safe driver is courteous. He gives the other fellow the benefit of the doubt and always is prepared to yield the right of way to prevent accidents. But courteous makes still another demand on motorists—that is, always be ready to recognize and acknowledge the courteous acts of others in traffic.

Now an attempt is being made to establish a universal symbol for such acknowledgment, which, through publicity and popular acceptance, is hoped will become as generally and enthusiastically used as was the "V for Victory" sign originated by England's Prime Minister Winston Churchill during World War II.

The symbol, a curved right hand raised cheerfully toward the forehead, is being promoted as the "C for Courtesy" sign.

You may desire to use it to say "thank you" to other courteous drivers and pedestrians you meet on the nation's streets and highways.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

COLFAX, CALIF., Record: "There are many, who constantly resolve to improve their minds by reading intelligently written books, in the hope that they will become better equipped to understand the many issues that crowd upon them as they try to keep pace with this modern world— The Bible has long been recognized as pre-eminent in the field of improving human beings. It might be a good idea, then, for all of us to give a little more diligent study to the great truths that are set out in the Book of Books."

MOUND, Minn., Minnetonka Pilot: "The United States, down to the tiniest hamlet, is in the process of finding itself astride a gigantic threshold, one foot planted in the old system of free enterprise and the other about to sink in the mire of socialism."

VERSAILLES, Ky., Woodford Sun: "As we read on and on about union demands for 'fringe' benefits, paid vacations, shorter work weeks, guaranteed annual wages, in short more and more for less and less, it is downright refreshing to be reassured now and then that the rank and file of American workers are truly interested in their jobs."

TALLASSEE, Ala., Tribune: "There's one thing for sure, we are well versed in the 'give and take' field — take from taxpayers and give to the world."

CLEAN ENOUGH TO EAT OFF OF

If Grandma were around these days, we think she'd snort at the idea of having to invent to atom bomb in order to find out something she knew all the time.

But that's Modern Science for you. It takes nothing for granted. It's investigating old-wives tales now, and we expect a Mother Goose probe any day when we may learn why Higgledy-Piggledy laid eggs only for gentlemen.

The latest triumph of Mind over Matter provides incontrovertible proof that the easiest dish (or eating or cooking surface) to wash is glass. Or, more scientifically stated, this is the material "to which the lowest residual numbers of organisms adhere after cleaning."

How do they know? They counted the "organisms". How? That's where the atom bomb comes in. Dr. Gerald M. Ridenour and E. H. Armbruster of the University of Michigan School of Health, propagated five different kinds of bacteria in a solution containing radioactive phosphorus, which is one of these isotopes they sweep up in the atom bomb factories. Next, a 16 square inch area of each test was coated with a uniform concentration of the radioactive bacteria. The plates were then measured for radioactivity, washed and measured again.

Thus, we may now state, on the authority of the National Sanitation Foundation, who conducted the tests, that glass is the cleanest thing there is. Washed in hot water containing detergent, the glass plates came out 99 percent clean of bacteria. It was also found that hot water with detergent, washes dishes better than cold water (60 deg.) without detergent.

Compared with glass, that proverbial hound's tooth just isn't in it.

SURPLUS HONORS

Included in about 10 million dollars worth of surplus material auctioned off by the Air Force the other day was an estimated 57 tons of medals. The sellers thought the medals were brass, but the buyers being in the metal business bid so quickly for this junk that, after the sale was over, the Air Force decided to re-examine the decorations before making delivery. It seems they were silver.

Fortunately a thoughtful Congress years ago passed a couple of laws that protect the services, and Government offices in general against such little slips. One says any contract may be terminated for the good of the Government. Another says the Government can't sell gold or silver as surplus, no matter what.

But there's still no law to restrain eager-beaver Government purchasers from buying 57 tons more medals than are likely to be needed. Thus, since they can't get rid of them, the Air Force will no doubt be issuing them out, and you can expect to see some stoop-shouldered pilots.

Burk Girls Attend Miracle Camp

Judith Ann Hofacket, Pat Kay Inlow, Julia Ann Henry, Jonelle and Gayle Sanders, Myrna Hoffman and Mrs. O. E. Melton have returned from Camp Miracle near Ringgold, La., after spending from Monday until Sunday noon there. Mr. and Mrs. Winford Henry of Burkburnett and Mr. Elie Lam of Wichita Falls took the group to La. and also went back to bring them home when it was over.

Mrs. Melton was counselor from the Wichita Falls area for this first week and reported that it was the most wonderful week she had ever spent. There were about 165 boys and girls coming from Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas.

The daily schedule for the week was reveille at 6:45 a. m. morning watch at 7:30, breakfast '315, classes from 9:30 - 11:15, morning rally 11:30, dinner at 12:30, rest period from 1:15-2:30.

The week of camp is the final award offered to every young person who memorized 250 verses of scripture. Its main object is to challenge the youth to memorize and to study God's word. It is interdenominational. Fun, fellowship and recreation are certainly not lacking at BMA camps. Recreation includes swimming, boating, fishing, horse back riding, soft ball, bad minton, volley ball, table tennis and other sports. Excellent food is served family style and plenty of it.

Billie Sanders left on Monday to go with the 14 thru 17 years of age groups and will return home Sunday evening.

Misses Judy and Jenagail Silkwood of Abilene, Texas, spent two weeks with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Scott, here recently. Mr. and Mrs. Silkwood were vacationing in New York and other points of interest.

Mrs. Virgil Brookshear is visiting her mother who is in the Baylor hospital in Dallas this week.

VETERANS Administration Questions and Answers

Q—May I take my dental internship training under the Korean GI Bill? If so, what rate of GI allowance will I be paid—the rate for on-the-job-trainees or the rate for students at school?

A—You may take a dental internship course under the Korean GI Bill, provided it has been accredited and approved by the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association, and provided it leads to a certificate by a Dental Specialty Board. Your GI allowance will be the rate to full-time classroom students.

Q—I am an Army officer, and I am being retired for a disability. If I choose to receive retirement pay rather than VA disability compensation, would I still be eligible to take vocational training under Public Law 16?

A—Yes. If you meet all the other eligibility requirements of the law, you may be permitted to train under Public Law 16. While in training, you will receive a VA subsistence allowance in addition to your Army retirement.

Q—I have been granted a waiver on my World War II GI term insurance policy because of total disability. While the waiver is in effect, could I convert my term insurance to a permanent plan?

A—Yes. You may convert to Ordinary Life, 20-Payment Life or 30 payment Life. You may not convert an endowment plan, however, while you are totally disabled.

Q—If the widow of a serviceman killed in Korea remarries, does she have to give up the monthly indemnity payments she has been receiving?

A—No. The legal widow at the time of the serviceman's death has entitlement to the indemnity. Her remarriage does not bar her continued entitlement.

Farm Safety A Must for Today, Tomorrow and Every Day of Year

The number of fatal accidents to farmworkers is greater than in other occupations in the nation. Last year 3,800 rural residents of the nation died from accidents and another 320,000 suffered injuries many of which were disabling.

Accidents affecting farm people and including fire and motor vehicle property damage cost approximately $1 billion annually. Reducing this terrific toll is primarily the responsibility of rural residents and will require individual as well as cooperative effort.

During Safety Week a 4-H Demonstration Team will appear before a local service organization and present a program on Farm and Home Safety. In addition to this demonstration a series of 16 colored slides showing common farm hazards will be shown. The slides were taken in connection with a safety survey held in the fall by the Friberg 4-H Boys Club. Also, during the week, special emphasis will be given to clean-up campaigns on the various farms in the county. Reflective safety material will also be put on farm machinery for safety purposes.

Here are some suggestions for making life in the country safer and more pleasant, since 700 of the fatal farm accidents involved tractors, they say operate them carefully. Keep all machines in top shape and all guards and safety devices in place. Don't smoke around the barn or refuel the tractor when it is hot. Treat gasoline and kerosene with respect. Be a safe driver and check the car and truck at regular intervals. Take no chances with farm animals for they, without warning, may become killers. Have a place for everything on the farm and in the home and keep it in place. Prevent falls. Read labels and follow safety instructions given on machines, insecticides and the many other items on the farm. When swimming or boating, obey water safety rules and remember when accidents happen, seconds count. Apply first aid at once. Developing a common-sense attitude toward farm safety is of prime importance in cutting the accident toll. It is not enough to practice safety for one week each year. It must become a daily habit.

"will it pay to remove Cow X without replacing her?" and "If cow X is removed, when is the best time?" The feed supply—labor force, barn space and other particular circumstances on the individual farm should also be considered for culling.

Since late 1952, milk supplies have been in excess of demand and in order to balance the two, production must be cut or consumption raised or some of both. Lower prices should encourage consumption; however they also call for more efficient production, and culling is a good adjuster.

Tips On Watering Grass and Shrubs

The roots of all plants, trees, flowers, shrubs and grasses, go where they can get water.

That fact should be the basis for all watering during these days of high temperatures and shortages, according to Dr. Martine Emert, associate professor of geography at TCU and nationally known expert on conservation.

As much as 75 percent of the water being used, and paid for by some people is being entirely wasted these days. Dr. Emert believes.

"Since roots will seek water, she points out, "those of plants and lawns that are sprinkled often and watered lightly turn back toward the surface. They can be scalded and killed by the hot sun and must be watered more frequently.

Those plants that receive deep watering sink their roots far into the soil where they are protected from the sun and heat. They require much less water to live, Dr. Emert said.

Frequently, 60 percent of the water used is lost before it ever has a chance to help. Sprays and sprinklers that throw water into the hot air, especially in fine streams, result in a very high percentage of evaporation.

either before it hits the ground or as it lies thinly scattered on the surface.

This method is extremely wasteful, said Dr. Emert whose course in conservation of natural resources at TCU is very popular. A major portion of water so applied might as well be poured down a drain, it just evaporates.

She recommends the use of "soakers," either canvas or plastic but turned toward the ground, not into the air as sprays. The finer the spray in the hot air the greater the evaporation.

Dr. Emert, who practices what she preaches at her home at 2940 Ryan Ave, here, also called attention to the fact that lawn mowers should be set high as possible these days and that all cuttings should be left on the lawn.

The higher the grass the more it shades the vital roots, she points out. When cuttings are left on the lawn, they act as a mulch around roots and help save water.

Working with experts of the US Soil Conservation Service, notably Arthur H. Courtade who teaches a course in practical grassland management at TCU, Dr. Emert listed the following suggestions:

1. Water deep (at least two hours) with a soaker or other device which puts the water directly on the ground once a week.
2. Divide the lawn into sections, treating one or more thoroughly on permissible watering days. Don't try to do them all the same day.
3. Older trees and shrubs (four year or more) can get by with one watering a month if it is properly done.
4. Always water in the coolest part of the day. Slow soakings at night are most effective.
5. Set lawn mower blades as high as possible; leave all cuttings where they fall.

News From The Congress

By FRANK IKARD

There is action taken in Congress on many bills that we never hear very much about in the paper. It seems as though most of the comments on Congressional action are made concerning taxes, defense, agriculture, or foreign affairs. Some of the things that have been done in other fields so far during this session deals with the matter of governmental reorganization. Several changes have been made by the President under the provisions of the Reorganization Act of 1949 which permit him to submit to the Congress certain organizational changes within the Executive Branch which, if not objected to within a specific time, automatically becomes law.

First of these recommendations to take effect was the creation of a new department of Government called, Health Education and Welfare, headed by a secretary who is a member of the President's cabinet. This Department replaced the old Federal Security Agency and became effective April 11, 1953.

In June of last year the Department of Agriculture was reorganized in an effort to simplify the operations of the Department.

On June 30 of 1953 the Department of Defense was reorganized. The purpose of this reorganization was to improve the machinery of military planning for our National security by strengthening the civilian control over the military. This plan provided for six new assistant secretaries of Defense, bringing the total assistant secretaries to eleven. At this time there is a bill pending which would create six more additional secretaries two for each of the three services.

Last August the Foreign Operations Administration was set up. This Administration has control over many programs which were previously spread thru several agencies of the Government. This new Administration is set up by a Director, Deputy Director, and six assistants.

The Congress also extended the President's authority to fix allocations and priorities for defense materials and to grant defense loans and subsidies. Another important item in conjunction with our National defense has been the approval of the Military Public Works Program which deals with our bases both over seas and in this country.

The emergency authority for the Civil Defense Administration which would have expired the last day of June of this year was repealed, and the National Civil Defense set-up was strengthened by allowing the District of Columbia to enter into civil defense contracts.

In action that was not considered of the word, "under God," in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The Congress also established an Air Force Academy which has been located near Colorado Springs. The first class of this Academy is to enter in July of 1955.

A new Federal Aid Highway Program was adopted which authorized a total of almost a Billion Dollars for highway construction during 1956 and 57.

These are just a few of the things that I thought might be of interest that have been considered by the Congress that have not all made headlines. Of course, there have been many more which there is not room to mention here.

Visitors from home this week were Mr. Tom Carver and Mr. W. H. Wright of Vernon.

Movie Stars Lana Turner, Pier Angeli And Carlos Thompson Featured in "Flame and The Flesh" at the Palace

The story of a girl who has had to struggle thru Europe's difficult post-war years and who uses her striking beauty to get what she wants from men, offers Lana Turner an outstanding dramatic role in "Flame and The Flesh," M-G-M picture showing at the Palace Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Pier Angeli and the talented young screen newcomer Carlos Thompson co-star in this compelling tale of love and disillusionment, filmed in Technicolor by Director Richard Brooks in Italy, against background of Naples and the picturesque resort towns of Positano and Amalfi.

Miss Turner is cast as Madeline, who meets the gentle young musician, Ciccio, in Naples and tricks him into letting her live in the apartment he shares with his friend, Nino, a carefree cafe singer. An inevitable triangle situation results with Ciccio, coming to adore the seductive Madeline, who is able to twist him around her little finger, but with Madeline intent on breaking down the reserve of the more worldly-wise Nino who is engaged to Lisa, the daughter of his employer.

In scenes of vibrant emotional intensity Madeline succeeds in making the young cafe singer forget everything and everyone except herself and the pair run off to Positano on the eve of his wedding to Lisa. Their idyll is a brief one, for Madeline cannot resist the flattering attentions of other men and in the end, knows she cannot make Carlos happy, she sends him back to a forgiving Lisa.

Lana Turner offers an incisive and emotionally taut performance in the role of Madeline, a girl who lies, connives and cheats but, who, product of years of poverty and loneliness, reveals a unique strength and courage in her desperate attempt at self preservation. It is one of her finest characterizations.

Pier Angeli contributes a performance of contrasting shade as the girl of sheltered upbringing who offers an unswerving devotion to the man who has asked her to be his wife and then deserts her. Carlos Thompson plays this Lothario with an infectious charm which makes his easy conquests understandable. Also beguiling is his singing voice heard in a number of lyrical Neapolitan songs thru out the picture.

Bonar Colleano wins sympathy as the shy and trusting Ciccio, who falls head over heels in love with Madeline and there are excellent supporting performances on the part of Rosalie Crutchely as a woman who has lost her hold on Nino, and Charles Goldner as Mondari, the Amalfi cafe owner whom Madeline rejects in the story's final episodes.

There are several ways of analysing "Flame and The Flesh" You can see it as a tempestuous love story, as a new version of the eternal triangle, or as the story of a girl who cannot face the ordinary conventions of life. Whichever way you see it, this Joe Pasternak production makes for absorbing dramatic fare.

By the time a man can afford to lose a golf ball, he can not hit it that far.

Quality Eggs Can Be Marketed During Summer

The egg is a perishable product. It cannot stand treatment nor maintain the high quality and grade it possessed when laid if given improper care. Frequent gathering and rapid cooling are two practices which will pay off says B. T. Haws, County agent.

Gather eggs at least three and preferably five times a day. If they are left in the poultry house all day their quality is affected. The temperature of an egg when laid is above 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and if the quality is to be maintained, rapid and thorough cooling is a must, says the County Agent. Eggs only three days old held at a temperature of 99 plus degrees will drop to B grade; held at 77 degrees F. they will hold up for about eight days; at 45 degrees F. they will hold their quality for 65 days while at 37 degrees F. they are still A quality eggs after 100 days.

Humidity in the egg holding room is of equal importance with temperature, quality drops with the humidity and Haws points out that the ideal situation for holding is a temperature around 55 degrees F. and humidity at about 80 percent. Eggs, after they have been cooled, should not be placed in warm cases. Precool the cases and always case the eggs with the little end down. Then take them to market at least twice each week.

Dirty eggs are penalized. It's up to the flock owner to provide surroundings which make clean egg production possible. A nest for each four to five hens of community nests containing plenty of clean, absorbent material such as straw, peanut hulls or shaving is a must. The floor of the laying house should be kept dry and the house well ventilated. If the eggs must be cleaned an abrasive such as emery cloth of a buffer should be used and only the soiled spot removed. Giving the egg proper environment is good management and will pay off at the market.

Calvary Baptist is a Bible Baptist church, doing business according to the direction laid down in the Word of God, and not conforming to the standards of men. We are independent as far as any kind of organization between the churches is concerned, having fellowships with other churches altogether on a voluntary basis. We have no grievances with others, nor do we seek a fuss with anybody; but we do have some convictions on these matters, and if there is a one of you who would like to discuss these things in a christian way for information, we would be happy to do so at your request. We believe the way of God is important.

We have our share of careless and indifferent church members, too. Burk Area Tanks Stocked With Fish Twelve new tanks in the Burkburnett area were stocked with fish a short time ago and most of them have had one application of fertilizer. (Incidentally, it's about time for the second application of fertilizer).

Other people desiring fish for stocking farm tanks should contact the local Soil Conservation Service Office.

The above tanks vary in depth from fifteen to twenty ft. and are pretty dangerous places to swim, as the sides of the bowl are steep. Beginning swimmers should not be allowed to swim in tanks without adult supervision.

This is Farm Security week. Every farm owner or operator should be alert to the many hazards that daily take lives on the farm.

A pond of not more than one acre can provide all the fish the average family can use. New ponds are better than old ones—you can start them right, according to LLOYD LADD, Soil Conservationist of Burkburnett.

Research and practical experience have shown that bass and bluegill bream can be managed most effectively in farm or ranch ponds. Sometimes channel cats can be added.

It requires three to four lbs. of bluegills to grow a bass to one pound size—and another 3 or 4 pounds to keep the bass there. Bluegills are used because they provide bass food heavily and continuously under suitable conditions. Bass are used because they keep the bluegills spawning by constantly reducing their numbers, thus making ample supplies of food available for those that are left. Both species require abundant food to successfully reproduce.

Well fed bluegills spawn every month of the summer and produce 2,000 to 20,000 young females. Bass spawn only once, generally early in the summer, and produce 2,000 to 10,000 or more young per female.

Once a pond is in balance with bass and bluegills, it will normally stay that way regardless of the amount of fishing. With little or no fishing, however, individual weights of the fish will remain relatively static.

Unfertilizer ponds will support 25 to 200 pounds of fish

VACATION FUN!

This young vacationer wears a cotton pedal pusher suit just like the big girls wear. Her navy cotton pants are cuffed in red and white stripes to match the double breasted jacket in the ensemble by Barbara Joan Togs. Her mother likes the outfit, too, for it is made of no-iron cotton with a rough and tumble finish that takes hard wear.

Achieving Segregation

R. D. LANEY

Supreme Court's decision will never remove the segregation. It will never solve the problems of integration. It will never equalize the status of the masses, the Supreme Court's decision is the narrowest of the narrow. It will cast the die which will rise to a high status if the necessary adjustments are to be made.

The Southern states are already overstaffed and under staffed. It appears that the minute small percentage of Negro children are admitted into schools, a similar number of children will be forced into Negro schools staffed by Negro teachers. The social problems posed by such a situation cannot be ignored.

Our constitution begins with the premise that "all men are created equal." However, merely going thru the process of human birth does not make a man equal of ever other man. He must demonstrate that equality, regardless of his color. There are sorry specimens of manhood and womanhood in every race because they have not used to good advantage the abilities inherent within them.

The efforts that the white people of the south have expended to get the Negro to attend school, to keep them in school until they become 16 years of age, to take advantage of the opportunities available to them, defy description. It seems ironical that we are fighting so hard to give them things that so few of them seem to want. But there are many fine leaders and individuals among the Negroes today who will bend every effort towards the further enlightenment of their people concerning their responsibilities in this new freedom.

In the debate that has followed the Supreme Court decision abolishing race as a basis for segregation in public school it is being recalled that until five years ago, Texas permitted similar segregation of pupils of Latin American descent. But on June 15, 1948, Federal District Judge Ben H. Rice, Jr., declared such separation was contrary to the 14th Amendment.

In the case of the Supreme Court decision ordering an end to segregation of Negro children, school officials have been hopeful that a reasonable period of grace will be allowed to make the changeover when the high court hands down its final decree after hearings in the fall on the amount of time thought to be necessary to comply with the law.

While some authorities suggest that the experience of Texas in intergrading Latin American and Anglo-American pupils might provide a practical basis for mixing pupils of white and Negro races, there is a wide difference. Texas has never had the universal segregation of Mexican-Americans that has been practiced against the Negroes, not only in public schools but also in all forms of community daily life. Only in certain communities has there been such strong sentiment against Latin Americans.

Southerners are inclined to regard the Negro as being childish, irresponsible, because so many of them act like children. When the Negroes as a race demonstrate intelligence, honesty, dependability, self control, morality, tempered with ambition and zeal, their equality will shine forth like a beacon light undisputed, unquenchable. Once expressed, nothing can deny that equality nor destroy it. But until the race as a whole demonstrates their equality, until they demonstrate the qualities which are an inherent part of every man because they have but one creator, all the Supreme Court decisions in the world's history cannot bring it about.

Burk Burnett FFA Boys Attend State Convention

The State of Texas Future Farmers of America held their annual convention at the Plaza Hotel in San Antonio, Texas.

Attending from Burk Burnett were Paul Wolf, voting delegate, Alden Smith, public speaker, Joe Musgraves, Dwayne Knight, Kenneth Byars, Leslie Kaspar and Bryan Farris, Vocational Agriculture Teacher.

The Burk Burnett FFA Chapter's voting delegate, Paul Wolf with the aid of the other boys, helped to make decisions on interesting issues which will effect all the Vocational Agriculture boys in the state of Texas. The revised state constitution was sent back to a committee of state advisory officials, state office FFA boys, and the state staff. Also in the business session they voted to purchase the national FFA magazine for each boy in the state of Texas and have it mailed to him.

The contest divisions were very close with good competition in each section. Alden Smith of Burk Burnett was a fourth high in the state FFA Public speaking contest. His topic for the speech was SURVIVAL OR NOT. He was presented a metal award for his high placing in the state contest.

The convention closed with the installation of state FFA officers for the coming year 1954-55.
