GRASS ROOTS OPINION

MOUND, Minn., Minnetonka Pilot: "An attitude change must be affected among our teenagers if we are to increase the supply of scientific minds. They must be made to see the necessity of doing more than meeting just the minimum requirements both in high school and college. This is a job which falls squarely to the teacher, the counselor and the parent — By allowing, and sometimes inadvertently encouraging, youngsters to take the course of least resistance, we not only defeat our purposes but could possibly crush our own society."

BEEVILLE, Tex., Bee-Picayune: "Yes, the power of tax is the power to destroy and when America reaches the point where it is taxed to the limit and we can no longer tax ourselves for emergency; when we have reached the point where we destroy private business with excessive taxes; when we can no longer raise funds because we have been taxed more than our ability to pay, then we will be destroyed as a nation."

Teamwork - When The Chips Are Down

Few business in America are more competitive than that of processing and delivering milk, and certainly no other takes its responsibility to the public more seriously. Thus, through the years the milkman has evolved an unwritten code even than that of the US Post Office. "The mail must go through," but milk, pure, pasteurized, uncontaminated — must go through first.

When disaster strikes, competition gives way to cooperation. When Hurricanes Connie and Diane ravaged wide sections of Pennsylvania and New England in August, and rampaging floods destroyed homes and factories and isolated whole towns, milk plants were flooded too, pure water supplies and electric power cut off. Yet, with amazingly little delay, the desperately needed milk got through.

Milk plants that remained operative worked around the clock to make their facilities available to others. A dairy plant at Bethlehem, Pa., bottled the milk for an Easton competitor, and a flooded dairy in Stroudsburg received similar aid from a plant in Allentown.

Next came the heroic task of the roulemen in getting the precious milk to the disaster victims. In Hartford, a driver started on his four mile route at 10 a. m. and finished at 7:30 p. m. A gorge fifty feet wide and forty feet deep cut off the north side of Unionville from the rest of the town, but the milk man, who somehow found a route into the town, sent 20 cases over the north side via breeches-buoy. Many drivers carried extra loads of safe water in jugs and cases of bread into stranded communities. Another driver commandeered a caterpillar road grader to get the milk where his truck couldn't go. Reports of such incidents are endless.

Getting the milk into the dairies from the country was equally challenging and made possible only by the milk drivers' intimate knowledge of the back roads. In Connecticut, milk originating at New York and Vermont points 300 miles or more from Hartford, reached many dairies before local supplies found ways of getting thru. And milk tank trucks did double duty in bringing pure water to such contamination areas as Waterbury and Torrington. Where there were not enough tankers to meet the need, 40 gallon milk cans were pressed into water supply service.

But in these areas, as elsewhere in past emergencies, the dairymen who shared their plants, their milk supply and their heroic work forces, return to their time honored tooth and nail competition as community services are restored. This is not only the traditional American way, but it may be that it takes such competition to develop the ingenuity, determination and devotion to duty that disasters call for.

DISCRIMINATORY TAXES

The 84th Congress will be urged to repeal all the special taxes on transportation services — both freight and passenger, when it reconvenes in January.

The motivating organization behind this drive is the National Conference for Repeal of Taxes on Transportation. Its membership includes representatives of all the Commercial transportation enterprises, railroad, airlines, trucks, waterways, buses, pipelines and the merchant marine, and in addition, spokesmen for manufacturing, coal mining, the travel agents, hotels, unions and others.

The Conference certainly has a strong case. The special taxes on transportation were strictly a World War II measure. Their main purpose was to discourage traffic and travel during that period. It was generally believed at the time that the taxes would be repealed once the war emergency ended. Certainly, remedial action is overdue.

No sound argument for maintaining these taxes can be presented. They are purely discriminatory — a variety of class tax. They undoubtedly discourage traffic and are thus a drag on the economy. Their repeal would result in more business, and in more employment, more purchasing and more spending by our vast transportation industry as a whole. It would also increase government's revenue from the income tax. Everyone in the country would benefit one way or another.

Area Papers Scooped Again

By BILL ELDER Wichita Falls, Texas

The news reporting agencies in some parts of the country have a worrisome habit of being left at the post when the facts are down.

Sometimes it's banks and missing (oops, pardon, that just slipped out), sometimes it's pianos in taverns. At any rate, the noses for news in certain sections are notorious for going blind, deaf, and dumb on occasions.

For example, not long ago a well known newspaper close enough to be called a neighbor devoted three columns above the fold on its front page to the views of an area law enforcement officer on pianos in taverns. And three columns and a picture on page one is a scoop. Sometimes you could carry stone tablets on a mule and take first prize for news distribution around here.

What that gentleman apparently thinks of taverns containing pianos shouldn't happen to a dog. It's a tilt between pianos and jukeboxes and with this glad-hander, who is said to dislike pianos and Okies with the same ardor, on the jukebox team don't be surprised to see a jukebox instead of piano in church next Sunday.

Some people remain in the dark as to what the dislikes of pianos in taverns has to do with the dislike of Okies but most of them want to go on record as saying the Okies are okay. They will go to bat for them any time. True enough, they don't come across the river to vote but they represent a large percentage of the trade area of this country and the banks accept their money as readily as the jukeboxes swallow up servicemen's quarters. Merchants have grown to like the patronage of the Okies and hope they keep it up.

After stirring up more trouble than they bargained for, this lawman, in true political style, bowed out like a Japanese house boy saying he didn't do nothin' to nobody and he didn't mean it anyhow. Well, so much for him. That's his story and he's stuck with it come high water or election time.

But left noiding the sack in a vacuum of silence, as usual, is the newswise. With a mystery more mysterious than Pandora's box looking them square in the eye they shunned the whole thing like it was unclean.

An trifle unclean it may be, innocent though it appears.

By a pure coincidence these coin operated music boxes whose cause is championed by the law man are owned by one of the councilmen in the very same city where this lad headquarters his posse. In addition to being the cleanest and most sin-free form of entertainment for the suds-sippers this chain of squawkboxes is also famous for its lack of competition. By an even purer coincidence there is no city tax on the machinery. In other cities, Dallas, Houston, etc, the tax on coin operated culture spreaders would knock the lining right out of your pockets, but it's all free in that haven from ivory ticklers. Outside of ordinary property and income tax there seems to be enough silver left over to make some parties allergic to any other form of music.

Probably the thing that makes it most untouchable for the negligent newspapers is the goobon of goblins tipped over by the posse when it challenged the last establishment and broke the camel's back. It's pretty routine to browbeat a run of the mill bock vendor, that's been standard practice since the repeal. If enough people watch him ninety percent of the time, he'll get the wrong names on his petition sooner or later. However, under this last stray the posse discovered, a former representative another councilman who owns no racketbox to his name and who believes there is no law against pianos, and a prominent business man.

If those ingredients wouldn't turn an ad salesman chartrouse, what would?

When you really get into it it gets more complicated than gambling for money with crossword puzzles. So perhaps it's best to be content with that kind of puzzle for now and wait for the paper down south to solve the real mysteries.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Raney of Uvalde, Texas, are the proud parents of a 9 lb. baby girl born Tuesday night. Mrs. Raney will be remembered as Miss Mary Ruth Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gray of Burk Burnett.

Mrs. Bill Crosley was program leader for the day. Mrs. R. C. Tevis spoke on All America to Combat Communism. She emphasized the need for American people to be educated to the facts of Communism and how we could combat it. The nine million people who are now Communists control one-fourth of the world's surface. Mrs. W. R. Milam's subject was Lest We Forget which means lest we forget the forgotten men in the veterans' hospitals. She told of the appalling number of men in these hospitals who never have a visitor, whether their relatives live 40 or 400 miles away. This fact tends to make them feel lonely and despondent and makes a recovery slower and sometimes to them, unnecessary. So every visitor is a welcome guest in any VA hospital.

Mrs. J. D. Majors won the door prize.

Each member quoted a scripture verse for the roll call. Mrs. Carswell brought a beautiful devotional service from Luke 10: 38-42, Martha's hand but Mary's heart. Joy must have filled the hearts of both Martha and Mary that day as they looked out of the window and saw Jesus, their beloved friend, making His solitary way down the road toward their Bethany home; Joy, yes, but there must have been a different expression of joy in each heart. Martha's heart must have filled with joy because Christ's presence gave her an opportunity to serve his Physical needs; Mary's heart must have filled with joy because Christ's presence gave her an opportunity to have Christ serve her spiritual needs.

Mrs. Vann led the prayer. Mary Jo Scruggs sang Beautiful Garden of Prayer. Mrs. Kindel closed the meeting with prayer.

DALLAS CHURCH SETTING FOR PARKS-HILL WEDDING RITES

Wedding vows were solemnized Oct. 22 in Dallas' Highland Baptist Church for Miss Betty Jane Hill of that city, formerly of Burkburnett, and James Edward Parks, also of Dallas. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jane Kinney Hill of Dallas and Alvin Hill of Burkburnett. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Parks of Rosebud, Texas.

Dr. Charles P. Pitts, pastor of the church, performed the morning ceremony for which Wanell O'Barr of Dallas and Charles Sego of Brownwood, Texas, were soloist and organist, respectively.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a light rose gown of peau de soie. The tightly moulded bodice was fashioned with a decollete square neckline, and her bracelet-length sleeves were complemented by short pale pink kid gloves. The fitted bodice extended to the bride's hips and was accented by a flared waltz-length skirt enhanced by unsurpassed pleats in the back forming a soft bustle. She wore a matching hat and carried a Bible topped with a cascade of pink sweetheart roses.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Robert L. Allen of Dallas. Her waltz-length gown of teal blue taffeta was designed with a deep V neckline and bouffant skirt. She wore a champagne colored hat and carried a cascade of yellow roses.

F. Donald Baca of Tulsa, Oklahoma, served as best man, while James M. Farabee and Ralph E. Burt, both of Dallas, were ushers.

Candles were lighted by Clyde H. Clark and Jack R. Renz, both of Dallas.

Safe Driving Day Thursday, Dec. 1st

December 1st has been designated as S-D Day (Safe Driving Day), nationally, by President Eisenhower in an effort to increase public awareness of the possibility of making reductions in traffic accidents.

In support of the program, Gov. Shivers has issued a similar state-wide proclamation and has called upon the citizens of Texas to join in a cooperative effort for greater traffic safety both on December 1st and throughout each day of the year. Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, joined in the Governor's appeal and emphasized that S-D Day, of itself, is not an end, but a means to an end.

"If every individual motorist and pedestrian in Texas will drive and walk with strict obedience to the traffic laws on December 1st," Garrison said, "we will be assured of a death free accident-free period in so far as traffic is concerned. "And," he added, "if we can do it on this specific day, we will have proven that it can be done during the other 364 days of the year. S-D Day is not an end, but a means to an end of the death and destruction on our streets and highways."

The special emphasis program aimed at marking a 24-hour period without traffic accidents will begin on November 20 and culminate in S-D Day on Dec. 1.

Wilbarger-Wichita Soil Conservation District News

Joe Cunningham of Wichita Falls and owner of a 875 acre ranch 3 miles west of Iowa Park has been selected as the Farmer or Rancher doing the best job of Wildlife Conservation in the Wilbarger-Wichita Soil Conservation District. The supervisors are sending his accomplishments to the Frank M. Wood Wildlife Awards program sponsored by Mr. Wood in Co-operation with soil conservation districts.

Wildlife conservation has been had by sound land use and range management, according to district supervisors. A system of mesquite control by dozing and chemical control has provided large amounts of woody cover. Range and control of grazing has provided large amounts of grass cover. Use of manure and grass seed on diversions, and dams have provided cover and feed for game.

There are eight farm ponds on the ranch, six of which have been stocked with fish. A cultivated field between pastures provide a border of feed and additional cover.

Quail have been harvested in quantities that left eight birds per covey.

Cunningham's program can be summed up as having sound land use and good range management that with stocking of farm ponds provided a balance in nature between native plants and wildlife.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Broyles and Barney left Monday night for Iuka, Miss., where they will attend funeral services for their little grandson, Thomas Richard Broyles, age 6 months. The baby is the son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Billy Wayne Broyles of Moses Lake, Washington.

Texas State Dept. Of Health

Emphasizing the urgent need for parental supervision of all phases of child health, Dr. Henry A. Holle, Commissioner of Health said today. Much of the impaired eyesight of advanced years could be prevented if sufficient interest in early life were applied and a temporary correction by means of glasses made when required.

Parents should be watchful for conditions in the child such as frowning, squinting, persistent headache, eyeache and watery eyes. If the youngster reads too closely or too far away from the face, that situation may also be significant of trouble.

No child fancies wearing glasses. Nevertheless, it is the obligation of those responsible for the future of young folks to have their eyes examined by a reputable specialist if any doubt arises that normal vision does not exist. It is much better for a child to wear glasses for a few years during early school life than to have permanently defective vision in later life.

Dr. Holle said neglect of the eyes of a child is a condition of health, any acute condition of a child's eyes calls for immediate treatment by a person that specializes in diseases of the eyes. According to the Commissioner eyes by no means is limited to children. Many older persons, some thru vanity, indifference or carelessness fail to give proper attention to the care of their eyes. Penalties, he warned, are bound to occur for such inexcusable negligence.

The eyes of the young, middle aged and older persons represent perhaps one of the most priceless of bodily possessions, the commissioner asserted. To take care of them promptly and properly is a responsibility that should never be sidestepped.

Veterans Information Center

Q—I am planning to go to school this fall under the Korean GI Bill. If I get a part-time job to supplement my GI training pay, will my monthly allowance be cut?

A—No. Outside earnings have no bearing whatsoever on your GI education allowance. Veterans in school will receive the full rate of allowance regardless of how much they earn. In fact they need not even report earnings to the VA.

Q—I want to apply for disability compensation, but I do not live near enough to a VA office to pick up the right form. Could I apply by a letter to the VA?

A—Yes. Your letter will be considered an "informal application" if you specifically mention the benefit you are applying for. VA will send you a formal application to be filled out. So long as you return it within one year, the effective date of your application will be the date of your letter, rather than the date of the form itself.

Q—in my GI insurance policy, I have specified that payments be made to my beneficiary in monthly installments. If she wants, would she have the right to ask VA for a lump sum payment?

A—No. A beneficiary does not have the right to elect lump sum payment, if the veteran has specified payments on the installment plan.

Q—if a Korean veteran uses his GI training benefit, would he still be entitled to use his GI loan benefit?

A—Yes. Use of one benefit does not deny a veteran his right to use the other.

Traffic Problem

By R. D. Laney
The fact that the cause of about 80 percent of the accidents through speeding, it is understood why automobile manufacturers continue and continue to make cars capable of 100 miles per hour, since the maximum speed permitted in most states is 55, and in some 50 miles per hour. Putting the horsepower they put in the hands of a young man, who seems to be normal and not expect to drive at terrific speeds like putting candy in a little tot and expect him to eat it.
Car builders are aware of the importance of highway accident and they should be given recognition for improvements in braking, in wind stream, in body strength, in more recent innovations in steering wheels, safety door latches and even for the cushioned instrument panels and seat belts. But at the same time automotive industry persists in basing much of its sales appeal on power for speed. Automobile men will tell you earnestly that the continual increase in engine power is intended to achieve greater economy and safety, "to get you out of a tight spot going up a hill." But can the industry insure that drivers will use this great power only for such purposes?

It was noted in a recent announcement that the automobile manufacturers say the only change to amount to anything in the 1956 models will be increased horsepower. For what? What do phrases in advertising copy such as these mean to the average car purchaser, "sets the pace in power, rocket, freedom, power-flite, new sizzler, hottest thing in new cars this year, instant, surging, passing power, take any car in its class to the cleaners in a flying mile run."
The only excuse I have ever seen coming from the automobile makers themselves for the high-speed capabilities of their products is that the power is there, if and when you need it. Many of us have had several years of driving experience, and the majority of us are convinced that if one drives sanely and observes the legal speed limits, highway signs and traffic signals which far too many drivers totally ignore, the times when he would need that "added power" would be few and far between.
Of course ambulances, fire engines and police cars need greater speed, but they always give ample warning and can claim the right-a-way. Laws set sensible speed limits, drivers break these laws habitually and get by with it, cars are built to enable drivers to do this, and dealers profit by sales talk which stresses the charms of great speed and power. And the public listens to reports of carnage on the highways, ever increasing like the speed of cars and the efficiency of fuels, and the public either forgets or helplessly wrings its hands. I suppose it would be silly of me to think there could be laws, and law enforcement, to limit the speed capacity of cars? To think those who wish to travel so fast could either go by air or take to the race tracks?

The tendency today is for the motorists, or members of his family, when arrested for excessive speeding, to laugh, it off, and joke about it with his friend. With such an attitude on the part of so many drivers, it is hard to see any hope of cutting down the holiday and weekend carnage. Everyone in our government has expressed great concern about this matter of death on the highways, but apparently little can be done about it as long as the car makers keep on building cars to go double the speed limits set by the states.
At the closing session of its annual meeting the American Automobile Association called on manufacturers for curb on power and speed and to devote more thought and emphasis on protecting the driver against his mistakes. It emphasized that the most common of these mistakes is using power under a modern car's hood to produce 80 mile an hour speeds where 60 would meet travel needs and approach, at least, the dictates of safety.
Probably not the most conservative of us would care to drive today some of those cars of older vintage and tender memories. But the appeals on which they were sold, "dependable," "gets you there, brings you back," sound pretty good against the voice of the morning newscaster reporting the toll of a long weekend holiday.

High School News

The Burk Burnett Study club presented the high school with a very nice Westinghouse Hot plate to be used in the concession stand by the various classes and clubs in the high school during the football season. The high school greatly appreciates the interest and concern shown. The gift was presented to Mr. Davis by Mrs. Neva Zimmerman in the absence of Mrs. Bennie Dodson, president of the Burk Burnett Study club.

Grade School News

Our enrollment is still near the 650 mark, and we have many fine students from practically every state in the union, Alaska, Philippines, Guam, Germany, Hawaii, Okinawa, Japan, England and the Azores Islands. As you may well guess these students are members of families of the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Sheppard Field. These children have brought with them many rich experiences from these many lands and have done a lot in making History and Geography living to all members of the group with whom they are working. We are very proud that so many of these children are with us and to let us share the many experiences that they have had in their travel. We feel that we are most fortunate and proud that these, students are with us.

Won't you help us some this week and meet every boy and girl in our town, whose parents are connected with Sheppard Air Force Base, with a tremendous smile and a great "Howdy" in ways that demonstrates Texas Spirit back in Grandpa's day. It would be a wonderful spirit that could get to be contagious even with all of our military personnel. How about letting us all try it this Veterans Day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Yeilush of Dallas visited in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hayworth, this week.

Preaching service at 11 A. M. The pastor has just returned from a revival meeting in Fort Worth, and will be in his own pulpit Sunday. The moving message will be "I Can". We believe this Bible message can be of real profit to any Christian—and others—if you will come and hear it carefully and prayerfully. Give it a try for your own life.

Night services begin at 7:15. Turn your TV set off—gather up the family and have a special prayer for the services and for the preacher—go by and invite a neighbor—and gather in at Calvary Baptist to sing praises of thanksgiving to our great God and Saviour, and hear the pastor preach on this subject, "Are You Cursed Or Redeemed?" Welcome all.
