A Worthwhile Resolution

This resolution was passed at the recent national convention of The American Legion:

WHEREAS, The American Legion has long been vociferous and militant foe of international communism, and has fought continuously to alert the American people to the dangers inherent in this godless and atheistic philosophy, and

WHEREAS, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, under the leadership of its Director, J. Edgar Hoover, has been in the forefront of the fight to prevent this foreign ideology from taking root in the American way of life, and Mr. Hoover has continuously warned the American people as to the dangers of apathy in this fight; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that The American Legion . . . commend J. Edgar Hoover for his great service to the American people in writing "Masters of Deceit" which simply and succinctly exposed the fallacies of communism and will go far toward alerting the American people to its inherent dangers, dubious manipulations and lulling tactics; be it further

RESOLVED, that all Legionnaires and all American Legion Posts, Districts and Departments are urged to encourage the widest possible distribution of "Masters of Deceit" and to see that copies are available in all school and public libraries; be it further

RESOLVED, that we also commend J. Edgar Hoover for his forthright stand against the spread of Juvenile delinquency.

A Money Raising Invention

One thing can be said with little fear of contradiction—the young people of this country need a better grounding in simple economics, and a wider knowledge of the economic machinery that makes this country tick.

In recognition of this need the American Economic Foundation prepared a number of messages which appeared month by month in Boy's Life, the official publication of The Boy Scouts of America. All consisted of a series of drawings with brief explanatory captions. And one was concerned with "The 'invention' that made big business possible"—that is, the stock exchange.

When the country was young, the message points out, the people's needs could be satisfied by individually or family-owned businesses. But as population and demand grew such businesses needed more tools of production—land, buildings, machinery, etc. than the owners could afford to buy. In other words, money had to be pooled in some way to buy all the required tools.

So, in 1792, the Stock Exchange was invented, and started operation under a butternut tree on Wall Street. The needed tool money was raised by selling shares of stocks, and that is exactly how it is raised now.

The inventors of The Exchange would certainly be astonished at what has happened to their invention. Today something like 10 million people own shares and most of them are of average means. Stock ownership in America is the right of the many, not the privileged few.

Disgraceful Tactics

Public Power advocates, it seems are determined to force this variety of socialism down the public throat—whether or not the people want it.

If you don't believe that, here's what happened in a Florida town a short time ago. It's a small-scale example—but it has a big significance.

A special election was held to determine whether the town should enter into a 30-year lease agreement with a business-managed utility company to take over the municipally-owned power plant. Consumers had long been extremely dissatisfied with the operation of this plant under political management. The utility company had offered to pay the town more than $6 million to assume remaining outstanding bonds and debt on both the light and water departments, and to reduce electric rates.

The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the leasing plan—3,306 for to 583 against, a six to one margin. However, the plan did not carry because the law requires that 60 percent of all freeholders must vote in such an election if it is to be legal, and the referendum was 699 votes short of the necessary number.

Why was this the case? The Miami News answers that question. According to it, "The tactics used to defeat the issue were a disgrace to the city and the entire state." For instance, municipal ownership partisans conducted a "stay home" campaign through truckborne loudspeakers. A car pool was made available to voters—but when they arrived they found nails scattered around the parking lot, placed there in an obvious attempt to put the pool out of business. And a rumor was circulated that voting had to be done by 2 p. m. where the true deadline was 7 p. m.

The Miami News sees the matter this way: "An election victory by default is not a victory for our democratic system."

HOW BOUT THAT By WILLY & RALPH

Yellow Dog In Reverse

People who have reached middle age will remember the old "yellow dog" contracts. Under them, employers forced workers to guarantee that they wouldn't join a union. If these workers did join, they were summarily fired.

The unions fought hard against these contracts, and public opinion was back of them. Many years ago the contracts were outlawed, as they should have been. There's no room for this kind of coercion in a free country.

But now we have "Yellow Dog" in reverse. They are found in compulsory unionism (the union shop) which forces a man to join and remain a member of a union in order to hold his job. And there's no room for this kind of coercion in a free country either.

Compulsory unionism is just as bad as compulsory non-unionism. The right of people to join or not join a union or any other organization, as they choose, should be established as an absolutely basic and irrevocable right. Right-to-work laws—now in effect in 18 states, with several more states due to vote on them in November—provide the answer.

The Internal Revenue Service's recent decision to disallow the cost of certain utility advertising as a legitimate business expense will be strenuously fought by The Southern Company, its president states. In his words, the attempt to deny the investor owned electric industry the right to free speech, will be met with stern opposition.

Total world property assets amount to $6 billion according to the American Economic Foundation, of which a third are in the United States.

LIKE TO GAMBLE?
Games of chance may be fun if the stakes are not too high. But when you risk the security of yourself and family by buying less than the best property insurance, then gambling is no fun. Your peace of mind can never be complete as long as your home is covered by next best insurance, and if you should suffer a loss the results could spell disaster. So take the gamble out of your insurance program by letting your local capital stock agent sell you "risk-proof" capital stock insurance. ## Wichita Bryan YWA

Wichita Bryan YWA's met last evening, Oct. 16th in the home of Bernice Vaughn, secretary. A report was given by Carol Armstrong, committee chairman on the YWA activities during the past month during the following year. Myrna Hoffman, chairman, presented reports for the programs during the year in which the group has learned about many different places of the world. A discussion was held on initiation services for new members which will be held in November. There were nineteen members and three visitors present.

Into and out of the State Supreme Court flow many of the most controversial issues of the day. Public officials, large corporations and important persons are often involved in the cases, and the lives of many less celebrated persons frequently are affected by the decisions.

After a two months summer recess the high court reconvened this month and waded into a stack of disputes. Among interesting cases either decided or due to be decided are these:

WATER RIGHTS are involved in a case filed by Southern Canal Co. of Houston against the State Water Board. Southern Canal wanted a permit to take 280,110 acre feet of water per year from the Trinity River for industrial use in the Houston area. Water Board refused the request, and the company appealed to the courts.

Upstream cities such as Dallas and Ft. Worth had opposed the Houston company's request when it was before the Board. Oral arguments were centered on whether the courts have the right to review Water Board decisions. Supreme Court's ruling will have implications for every person interested in the course of Texas' water development.

KEEPING ROOMERS and setting up a church in a residential area were the cause of contention in two cases from Houston. In both cases certain property owners in university neighborhoods argued that other property owners were violating deed restrictions.

Lower courts ruled in favor of the room renters and church builders. Supreme Court agreed to review the roomers' case and denied a motion to force the lower court judge to move the student religious center.

OFFICE-SEEKERS had their inning in the usual contests arising out of the year's elections. George Parr, a familiar figure in the courts, won the right to a new trial in his effort to be certified winner in a 1956 election for Duval County Sheriff.

Laredo Atty William Wright lost out in an attempt to force secretary of State Zollie Steakley to place his name on the general election ballot as a Constitutional Party candidate for district judge. Steakley had refused on grounds Wright voted in the Democratic primary.

Myron Love, choice of Houston liberals, won out in a dispute over legality of his selection as Democratic nominee for district judge. Harris County Executive Committee had ruled that no candidate filed in time for this office, and Love was nominated by the one-man District Executive Committee. Conservative forces had contested this method.

DAMAGE SUITS, labor management controversy also command judicial attention. A gas explosion in the basement of Dallas Baker Hotel, back in 1946 is the basis for one suit in which 83 petitioners ask some $1,000,000 for deaths and injuries. High court sent it back to district court for new trial.

In Houston 311 workers of the AFL-CIO Office Employees Union picketed a construction project to protest firing of one man. A lower court granted an injunction against the picketers, and the Supreme Court refused to interfere.

Better Traveling Days Ahead—

Holding promise of better traveling days ahead is the 1961-62 interstate advance planning program announced by the State Highway Commission.

Commission authorized the preliminary studies for 285 miles of new interstate highways, consisting of 45 projects in 22 counties. Included in the advance planning will be completion of the gaps in the interstate highways between Dallas and Houston, Dallas and Texarkana and from Denton to Ft. Worth to Hillsboro.

Cost of the program is forecast as $36,500,000 for land purchases and $166,500,000 for construction.

Water Safety Law Due—

Some 280,000 Texas boat owners will have to obtain licenses for their craft if a proposed uniform Water Safety Act is enacted by the 1959 Legislature.

Representatives of sportsmen organizations, trade associations and safety groups drafted the measure. It is to be introduced by Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas.

State Highway Dept. would have responsibility for registering boats. Enforcement of safety regulations would be the job of the state's various peace officers and game wardens.

Zoning, the restrictions of skiing, racing, fishing, etc., to various areas was omitted from the bill.

Republicans Jockey For Position

Texas Republicans got no help from Secretary of State Steakley in their effort to break into the first column on the general election ballot.

In the past the Secretary of State's office sent out the list of certified nominees, to counties, with the Democrats listed in the first column. GOP protested, demanded a drawing for position. Steakley said he was not authorized to set up such a procedure. His office mailed out ballot forms this year, without comment. Democrats were in the first column on the forms.

Short Snorts—

Texas Rangers will be honored at a $50 a plate dinner to be given in Ft. Worth's Ridglea Country Club to climax Law Enforcement week. Texas Law Enforcement Foundation is spearheading arrangements. Texas Highway Dept. is experimenting in the use of lignite slag as a road surfacing material. Slag is very hard and has an uneven surface to hold down skidding. Lignite, a very soft coal, is plentiful in Texas and slag is what is left after the lignite is burned.
