Business and Inflation

Some people think that business hasn't any really big stake in the inflation problem, on the grounds that if costs rise, due to wage boosts or any other cause, all the businessmen have to do is to raise the prices of their services or commodities.

But that attitude, if it ever did prevail in business circles, has just about disappeared now. Businessmen, like others, have learned that there is no way to keep up with the inflation spiral once it gets the bit in its teeth. As a consequence, more and more business enterprises, particularly large ones, are now taking an active part in anti-inflation programs.

A news letter circulated by General Electric provides an example. It is predicted on this statement: "Inflation is the nations most threatening domestic problem. Directly or indirectly, it hurts everyone, whether they be housewives, children, working men and women, or retired people living on social security pensions, or investment income.

The causes of inflation are varied. But the biggest cause, in the view of most economists, is government spending. Government—federal, state and local—now collects and spends about 30 percent of the national income. By the very size of this expenditure, it is inflationary even if taxes are high enough to pay for government spending.

The common idea is that the current magnitude of federal spending must be laid at the door of defense. And it is true that defense accounts for the largest single item in the budget. But it is also true that defense spending has actually declined more than a billion since 1954, while non-defense spending has increased by more than 10 billion.

What is needed, in the letter's view, is a careful examination of each of the many civilian programs Congress must consider. Is so costly a program needed? Could it not be undertaken by local government or private initiative? Is there any really urgent need for a program at all in the light of the damage that inflationary spending does?

The letter has some specific ideas as to action it believes should be taken by either Congress or the executive branch. One is to establish an honest dollar as a cornerstone of national policy, and to make this a yardstick against which spending legislation could be measured. Another is to control "back door" federal spending, under which normal appropriation processes are evaded. Another is to organize all spending bills into a single general expenditure authorization bill, so that legislators can see what is intended and relate expenditures to anticipated revenues. Another is to give the President the item of veto, under which he could veto specific items in an appropriations bill without vetoing the bill in its entirety. And another is to abandon the concept that all social and economical problems are best solved at the federal level.

This is a large order, but by no means an impossible one. And there's no doubt that more and more Americans are becoming convinced that something of the sort will have to be done if further degradation of the dollar is to be prevented.

The Labor Reform Bill

The Labor reform bill has been generally described as a compromise. This simply means that it is weaker than the original Landrum-Griffin bill which was passed by the House. At the same time, it is stronger in important particulars than the Senate's Kennedy-Erwin bill.

A great many people are convinced that the country would have been better off had the Landrum-Griffin bill become law in undiluted form. But the compromise bill was, it is clear, the most effective legislation that had any hope of approval at this time. It has been pronounced acceptable by Representatives Landrum and Griffin, along with Senators McLellan and Kennedy and, for the most part, follows the Presidential recommendations made early this year.

The bill has two facets. First, guarantees designed to protect the rights of union members and to protect union treasuries from looting are provided. Second, bans are placed against secondary boycotts and "blackmail" picketing. Additionally, organizational picketing is somewhat limited and an attempt is made to clear up the legislative "no mans land" where federal and state laws meet and conflict.

Now about all we can do is wait and see just how good this bill is. It is a step in the right direction. The question is whether it is a long enough step. It will be up to the people to watch results and demand additional legislation if the new bill proves inadequate, and union organizations continue to abuse the coercive and monopoly privileges granted them—privileges properly denied all other business.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

EAST LANSING, MICH., FARMER: "One big cost of farming is often overlooked. A last year's survey by Michigan Farm Bureau showed the average farm accident costs about $700 in property loss alone. Ten percent of the 6,000 members surveyed had accidents during the year, with property losses totaling $70,000, medical bills amounting to $50,000 and injuries costing 64,000 man hours of labor. And most of these could have been prevented, if the victims had only lived and worked safely."

REYNOLDSVILLE, PA., STAR: Americans do a lot of beefing about the spendthrifts on Capitol Hill or in their State Houses. But the truth of the matter is we make those legislators spendthrifts even when they don't want to be one. We do not award any Congressional Service Medals to those who spend their time trying to introduce economy. Nobody ever put up a monument in any town or city square to the stubborn gent who saved a few million during his tenure of office. We called them pinch-pennies, tight-wads and burrs on the tail of progress. It is not popular to be an economizer, in fact, in many cases, its political suicide."

OBERLIN, KANS., HERALD: 'It seems at times as if government by the people' is something of a joke. In spite of the fact that officials are elected, measures frequently pass Congress which are in opposition to the public's will. But action during 1959 has done much to bolster the democratic theory. Now John Q. Public is fighting mad about labor disgraces and his ire is making itself felt in Congressional halls."

COLUMBUS, WISC., REPUBLICAN: "The big laugh of the week should be labeled the House passage of a bill approving an additional 1c tax on gasoline so that the federal road construction program may go on. The 'big catch' comes in that the 1c tax is supposed to be in force only 22 months, beginning with this Sept. 1st. Most of us have been around this world enough to know the 'folly' of any tax put on by the Federal government getting so 'light' a treatment, even if so stipulated."

Last year total cash dividends paid on common stocks listed on the New York Exchange came to $8,711,482,860. This was the second highest figure on record, and was but one percent below the all time high established in 1957.

NOW... '60 CHEVROLET TRUCKS WITH REVOLUTIONARY TORSION-SPRING SUSPENSION THAT GIVES ASTONISHING NEW SHOCKPROOF ACTION !!!!!

Chevy's done the next best thing to paving every road in America!

First they threw out the front axle and put in torsion-spring independent suspension. Then they built wide-base coil rear springs into most light-duty models, variable-rate leaf springs into heavies. That made it—a ride you have to feel to believe. A ride that lets you move faster to get more work done in a day's time.

Brawnier bulldozer build!

Frames are stronger, cabs 67% more rigid. Front wheels and tires are precision-balanced. And that new suspension cushions jars and road shock that used to spell slow death for the truck's body and sheet metal.

More comfortable cabs!

Easier to hop in and out of too. Many models are a whole 7 inches lower outside. Yet there's more head room inside, plus more width for shoulders and hips. More real comfort!

Big in the power department!

With the industry's most advanced gas-saving 6's. With high-torque Workmaster V8 performance in heavyweights. With new 6-cylinder or V8 power available in L.C.F.'s.

Why we built two cars for 1960 . . . as different as night and day

On October 2—for the first time in Chevrolet's 49-year history—you will be able to walk into your dealer's showroom and see two totally different kinds of cars. ■ One is the conventional 1960 Chevrolet, brand new in appearance and more beautifully refined and luxurious than you can imagine. ■ The other is unlike any car we or anybody else ever built—the revolutionary Corvair, with the engine in the rear where it belongs in a compact car. ■ We'd like to tell you why we built two such different cars, how we built them—and for whom we built them.

Why two kinds of cars? Because America itself has been going through some big changes in the past few years. Our cities have been straining at their seams. Traffic is jam-packed. Parking space is at a premium.

And our suburbs have spread like wildfire. People are living farther from their work, driving more miles on crowded streets. There is new leisure time—but more things to do. There's a new standard of living—and more need for two cars in the family garage.

In short, America's automobile needs have become so complex that no one kind of car can satisfy them completely. That is why we at Chevrolet, keeping tab on these trends, have had a revolutionary compact car in the planning stages for more than nine years.

Thus, when we decided three years ago to prepare for production of such a car we were ready to build it the way it should be built. There was no need for a hasty "crash" program that would create only a sawed-off version of a conventional car.

That is why the two cars you will see in your dealer's showroom October 2 will be two entirely different kinds of cars. One is the conventional '60 Chevrolet—brand new in beauty, with new space inside, new spirit under the hood, a new feeling of sumptuousness and luxury never before attained by any car in its field. There is great V8 power linked with new thrift, plus Chevrolet's superb 6-cylinder engine. It is a traditional car that comes even closer to perfection—in silence, in room, in ease of control, in velvety ride—than any other car we have ever made.

The other is the Corvair, a compact car that is astonishingly different from anything ever built in this country. It has to be—because this is a six-passenger compact car, with a really remarkable performance . . . a car designed specifically to American standards of comfort, to American traffic needs.

The engine is in the rear. Among the basic advantages resulting from this engine location are better traction on a compact 108-inch wheelbase and a practically flat floor. But to be placed in the rear, the engine had to be ultra light and ultra short. So Corvair's engine is totally new—mostly aluminum and air cooled; it weighs about 40 per cent less than conventional engines. It is a "flat" horizontally opposed six—so it is only three cylinders long . . . and that leaves a lot more room for passengers.

Another weight saving: like modern airplanes, the Corvair has no frame; the body-shell supplies it great structural strength . . . it's a welded unit that is virtually rattle-free.

The ride is fantastic. But to get it we had to design independent suspension at every wheel; conventional springing would give a compact car a choppy ride. Right now we'll make one prediction: no other U.S. compact car will ride so comfortably, hold the road so firmly and handle so beautifully.

Now there are two kinds of cars from Chevrolet—because it takes two kinds of cars to serve America's needs today. If you love luxury—the utmost in luxury—and if you want generous interior space, breath-taking performance, automatic drives and power assists—then the conventional '60 Chevrolet may be your choice.

If easy parking, traffic agility and utmost economy are high on your list—then you should seriously consider the Corvair. But the best thing to do is to look these two new cars over at your Chevrolet dealer's . . . take them out for a drive. It may be that the only logical choice for your family between two cars like this is—both. They make a perfect pair.
