P-R-O

In these times of atomic research, we are in an unusual position in that it is hard to believe what will be achieved next in our modern age. But, nevertheless, most of us are still looking for the one shot in the arm that will cure all our ailments.

I'm afraid this will never be achieved, for this is not the age of the machine or the missile, it is not a time when vacuum tubes can do man's thinking or machines his work, or when nose-coned mice or monkeys can accomplish his mission. However, I'm inclined to believe the song of all the monkeys aren't in the zoo.

This is the age when people make the difference. We must remember that the United States reached its present strength and freedom, through courage and vigor, not through laziness and indifference.

I mention the above to point out that we have a wonderful organization here in our chamber of Commerce and the opportunities are unlimited as to what we can do and provide for ourselves and others of the area, but too often we are lazy and indifferent or what's the use of it all cut and dried when we finally get to the meeting.

How many times have you been to a Chamber luncheon and heard the industrial report. I have and usually its good, about finding new industries. I'm not against that, but how much interest and cooperation do we as a group take into consideration of our older, larger and more important business.

Many times they are even overlooked. We set dates and plan events without even a second thought as to what the school may be having on that weekend or what the city may be promoting, no telling who else. We need all the cooperation we can get from all groups so we can educate ourselves and then we as people will be easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave.

However, we must have good leaders, people who are willing to work and cooperate, and not false leaders, men who are strangers to the old words of "honor and faith and sure intent," for if we follow such men, we will be sapped of conviction, drained of our beliefs and bereft of our faith.

Library-Museum Committee Busy Seeking Information for Project

Clarence Bizet Withdraws From Council Race

Clarence Bizet disqualified himself as a candidate Thursday for the Burk Burnett City Council.

According to Section 8 of the City of Burk Burnett Charter, May 8, 1923, a candidate has to be a resident of Burk Burnett for two years preceding his election to the council.

The section reads: Each member of the Board of Commissioners shall be a resident citizen of Burk Burnett; shall have the qualification of an elector therein, and shall have been such resident citizen of the City of Burk Burnett for a period of not less than two years immediately preceding his election.

Bizet had filed for office with the city manager, Jess Whatley. Bizet announced his withdrawal to preclude embarrassment for any candidate, city official or the city itself. He said it was regrettable that his ineligibility was not learned before he made efforts to seek the Councilman's post. Bizet learned of his ineligibility when he was reviewing the city charter.

The withdrawing candidate moved to Burk Burnett on Feb. 7, 1964. He had resided in Burk Burnett from 1958-60; however, he made no efforts then to establish residence in Burk Burnett.

Louisiana's state capital building at Baton Rouge, is the tallest in the nation.

Mrs. M. D. Cheney and Mrs. P. O. Wise visited the Electra Library March 23rd seeking information on how to set up a public library system in behalf of the Burk Burnett Community Project.

Miss Myrtle Russell, the librarian, was happy to give them the history of Electra's Library. Electra Library was founded in 1926 and ranks 24th in the state of Texas. Miss Russell has been librarian since the library opened.

Her every word and thought are for the young people of her town. She says statistics show that every town with a public library has to have one less policeman on duty, that in a study over a number of years she has learned that the children on the honor roll at school are the children who visit her library regularly.

Miss Russell has trained a number of young people in library work. Most of them have gone on to make it their profession or have used it to work their way through college.

It is her opinion that, if we have a building, the books will come pouring in. People will just naturally open up their hearts and give for such a worthy cause.

When their library was founded people from as far away as Des Moines, Iowa, sent books. Books were donated, money was donated and books were given as memorials. They now have 6,662 books in their library.

Mrs. Russell offered her assistance in any way. Electra has a great asset in its public library and in having a citizen like Myrtle Russell.

Her great belief in her library and the people of her town, gave us the faith to believe that we too could have a library.

Burk Riding Club Helps In Search In Oklahoma

Wendell Goins, president of the Burk Burnett Riding Club, canceled a scheduled trail ride for the afternoon of March 21 in response to a call from Cotton County, Okla., authorities, requesting the assistance of horsemen in a wide area search. The two week search has been continued intermittently by law officials and area residents in a vicinity 6 miles east of Randlett, where on March 6th evidence was discovered, which gave rise to suspicion of foul play to a person, or persons unknown.

The search for further evidence was resumed on March 21st by 29 members of the Burk Burnett club, with area horsemen and law enforcement agents. Additional assistance was supplied by airplane coverage. Newsmen and TV photographers stood by throughout the afternoon.

Searchers on foot and horseback combed an uninhabited area along the creek bank, strewn with abandoned buildings and old wells.

Extensive coverage evidenced but slight indication to the recent presence of any human beings, none of which could be immediately evaluated as significant. The drive was halted in the late afternoon by sheriff Woodrow Wilson, and no further plans was disclosed as to the continuance of the investigation.

Laymen from the churches of Burk Burnett will gather at the new high school Cafetorium Monday evening, March 29th, for a 7:00 p. m. dinner meeting.

Over 200 men are expected to be present for a dinner and fellowship meeting that will launch the City-wide Evangelistic Crusade that is scheduled for July 11-18. Laymen from Wichita Falls and Archer City will be present to lead in the evenings program. The group singing will be led by the Rev. Larry B. Russell, Minister of Music and Education at Lamar Baptist Church in Wichita Falls. A local men's quartet will present a special number, as well as a solo by Mr. Russell.

The inspirational speaker of the evening will be the Reverend Lee A. Bedford, pastor of Glen Oaks Methodist church in Dallas. Rev. Bedford, until last September, served as Director of Evangelism for the North Texas Conference of the Methodist church.

Rev. Lamoin Champ, pastor of the First Baptist church and chairman of the Crusade Planning Committee, will present the plans for the coming Crusade. Laymen of all denominations in the city are invited to attend this great gathering of Christian Men.

No Thought For The Consequence

COLLISION COURSE

In launching an all-out drive for shorter work week legislation, organized labor obviously has no regard for the serious consequences to economic well-being that could ensue. Here are some of the damaging effects:

- The insistence on 40 hour pay for 35 hours of work would bring a 14 per cent rise in production costs.
- An additional 25 per cent increase would result if the five hour overtime has to be paid at double the regular rate.
- The increase in hourly labor costs would intensify the unemployment problem. To raise the costs of goods is to reduce the market for them, and hence to curtail the number of jobs.
- Increased costs squeeze profits, curtails business expansion and reduces employment opportunities.
- Higher prices would enable foreign competitors to capture many domestic markets.
- Without a comparable rise in productivity there will be less goods and services available.

Congress should promptly reject the attempt by labor unions to have it enact legislation that is obviously not in the best interest of all Americans.

SALESMEN OF POWER

Electric companies are natural monopolies and, because of that, are publicly regulated. So consumers may naturally believe that there is no great incentive for them to aggressively sell their product, inasmuch as they have what amounts to a captive market.

But that is not the case, as a revealing article in Forbes magazine makes clear. In its words, "Last year utility men were being forced to pay attention to the demand side of their corporate equation, as well as to the supply side." The reason for this is the vast increases in the industry's capacity — for two straight years now it has produced the astonishing total of more than a trillion kilowatt-hours of electricity. In order to dispose of all that power it has had to concentrate on selling.

It has done this in two ways. It has encouraged greater use by promoting such comparatively recent innovations as electric heating. Then, whenever possible it has cut its rates. Forbes quotes an executive of one leading utility as saying, "Whenever we cut rates, we grow." All in all, during 1964 alone, the industry's rate reductions came to $100 million. Since 1946, the cost of electricity has gone down 28 per cent — despite the fact that the cost of almost everything has risen substantially and in many cases drastically.

Not every utility, of course, reduces its rates during the same period. Conditions vary from area to area. But, whatever the particular situation, the user of investor-owned utility service — whether in the home, in industry, or on the farm — gets the utmost value for his dollar.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Can't Fool the People

Roger W. Babson Weekly Report

ROGER W. BABSON
DOUBLE PAY FOR OVERTIME WORK

Double time pay for overtime could have quite an effect on many people, both employers and employees. Furthermore, it looks at this point as though both President Johnson and his Labor Secretary, W. Willard Wirtz, are going to prod Congress for such a law. And the proposed overtime wage provision would be compulsory for all those covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Reason For Decision

The President wants all factions to like him, and he obviously has the feeling right now that labor is not so well disposed toward him as it might be. He has, for instance, made no move as yet to repeal the Taft-Hartley right to work provision, although he earlier stated his intention of doing so. Insiders in Washington seem to think that President Johnson would like to repeal that controversial measure, but that he is afraid he would make enemies among businessmen if he put the pressure on. So he prefers to let that matter ride and try to please labor in less objectional ways.

Both the Chief Executive and Secretary Wirtz apparently have decided that an attractive addition to fair labor standards would solve the problem. Double pay for overtime could be initiated in Congress by simply changing the maximum hours ruling in the Fair Labor Standards Act to grant premium pay of double time instead of the present time and a half. Secretary Wirtz has endorsed this idea already in his annual report to Congress.

Would Unemployment Be Helped

Best guess is that Congress could be swung over to such a position even though employers in general would oppose it. Congressional consensus is that employers would not be so badly antagonized by extension of this phase of labor standards as they would by a fighting drive to make right to work legislation in the states illegal. There will be attempts to convince management—and the public—that double pay for overtime would serve to reduce unemployment substantially.

Secretary Wirtz has already expressed his opinion that double pay for overtime would force employers to take on more people to do that work that is now being done by those on longer shifts. He claims that this was proved when the original Wage hour Law raised overtime pay to time and a half and discouraged heavy overtime operations by making them too costly. His view now is that wages have climbed high enough so that double pay for overtime, is essential if long shifts are to be replaced by bigger personnels, thus increasing employment and cutting back joblessness.

What Would Be The Results?

In his State of the Union Message President Johnson called for extending wage hour coverage to more than 2,000,000 workers, probably affecting agriculture, hotels, motels, dry cleaning establishments, and restaurants. So if the double pay for overtime proposal should be passed, it would undoubtedly involve widening circles of employees in the package, with Congressional approval, overtime would be reduced considerably. Employers, of course, would try to increase efficiency and productivity without taking on great numbers of new hands, but this could work to only a limited degree.

Men and women currently making generous take home pay because of overtime would suffer a cut in their total weekly earnings if they were to be put back on a 40 hour schedule. That happened at the time of the original Wage Hour Law hike to time and a half, and it could certainly be expected to happen again. Then there is another prospect that will concern both employers and their help. If double pay for overtime should force firms to enlarge their staffs because the economics of the situation would restrict the use of overtime, what would happen in a recession or a depression? With no sharp cutbacks in overtime possible to help ride out the storm, heavy layoffs could seriously intensify the nation's woes.

REPLY TO THE NCC

Mr. Fletcher Coates Executive Director, Dept. of Information National Council of Churches, USA 474 Riverside Drive, New York, N. Y.

Last week I wrote the first installment of what shall be a detailed answer to your public charge that I am a deliberate liar.

You deny that the Council claims to speak for 38 million Christians. You say it speaks only for itself.

Other political organizations such as AFL-CIO, Klu Klux Klan, Farmers Union, B'nai B'rith, Black Muslims and the Communist Party speak for their memberships.

Your libelous letter to newspaper editors carrying my column stated: "To answer other reckless charges in the column, the National Council of Churches has never advocated recognition or diplomatic exchange, or membership in the United Nations of Communist China."

When you say NCC does not advocate these things what you really mean is that a committee of NCC recommended them and that NCC "accepted" the committee report.

General Assembly speak for it NCC "accepted" the reports and resolutions of the Cleveland Conference. My dictionary says "accept" means, to receive with favor.

Mr. Coates, do you claim that the NCC did not take these stands, that it was merely the World Order Study Conference sponsored by the NCC? If so, this is deceit worse than simply lying.

This is LIFE

The Unforgettable Winston Churchill

The life of Winston Churchill, giant of a century, has ended. In the words of former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan: "The oldest among us can recall nothing to compare with it, and the younger ones among you, however long you live, will never see the like again."

But the name of Churchill will never be forgotten. It will always blaze out from the pages of history. The story of his life was intertwined with the story of his time, for he was deeply involved in all the great affairs of the century that began when he was in his 20's: two global wars of unprecedented carnage, the collapse of great empires, the rise and fall of new ideologies, the advent of the scientific society.

Text and pictures record the life of this unquestionably great man in the Newsbook "The Unforgettable Winston Churchill." Beginning with the majestic state ceremonies which held the world's attention upon his death at the end of January, this publication by the editors of Life is a fitting tribute to Sir Winston. It's available for $1.95 at newsstands, or $2.25 by mail from LIFE-Winston Churchill Book, 540 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60611.

ABOUT SPORTS

By BOB LAURICK

To many people March 20th means more than just the first day of Spring. To them it means warmer weather for America's great past time in sports. Baseball. I have used this phrase "America's Great Past Time in Sports. Baseball," before and as of now, it is still number one. However Football and even Basketball is raising high on the list.

I remember when I was a small boy of about eleven or twelve, I couldn't wait for Sunday to arrive. That was the day Dad played Class B. Baseball, and the excitement of just going to the park, getting in taru the player gate and being able to sneak away to ramble with the other kids as the game started was about all the excitement. I could stand talking about excitement now that I look back on it all. I think the group-ups got more excited than we kids from the roar of the stands. "Kill the Umpire!" Throw the Bum Out!" That's when we kids came back our seats. There was something more out there, than some men seeing how fat they could hit the ball, then see if he could run to that white bag called a base before the ball got there. There was the excitement of listening to the yelling, telling that little man in the blue suit off. I always thought they were back there to stop the man in blue from getting the people in the stands who continuously yelled at him. "You know what happened a vaudeville? Well give that umpire five more years behind the plate and he'll do the same thing to organized baseball.

ORGANIZED — Now that's a word for you. The dictionary says to systematize to give organic character to, to build a trade union among. This is a body of persons organized for some end or work. That is the advantage the young "Kid Baseball players" of today have. They have an organized cause they think they may group of grown-ups to start the leagues, to set up a fair aged group, places to play, times to play, setting equipment etc. This takes time, but this organized group of men and women do this thing in most cases free of charge. But they need all the help they can get from Dads and Moms of the kids baseballers, from friends and merchants, and of course from fans at the game.

Don't destroy the program that has been so carefully planned for the boys. What's that, you wouldn't think of it. No, I guess you wouldn't, not openly, anyway. But you do just that when you see, and have idle talks with friends and neighbors about that guy who pitched against my son last night was to big, no wonder my son struck out three times. Or that team should be in a bigger age group, just look at them. I think that umpire is a friend calling this game.

I know a lot of men who would give an arm and leg to be able to umpire these kids baseball games, but won't become enemies and this would be bad for business. And in some cases it may well be true. So let's all pull together and try to have the best season yet to "our Kid Baseballers."

TRIAL WATCHING

What has become of the ancient and honorable pastime of trial watching? In old England where it was known as "attendance at court", people of all classes indulged. But today, except at a few well publicized spectacles, there is often no audience at all.

True, we watch plenty of make believe trials. On TV, in movies, at the theatre, the trial scene is the cornerstone of countless dramatic thrillers. But the real courtroom adds something vital. That grim man on the witness stand is no actor earning his weekly wage. He is really afraid he may be found guilty of burglary and sent to jail for three years. That aging widow, seeking damages for the death of her husband really needs the money to give her children a respectable upbringing.

Perhaps you feel that trial watching is a form of idle curiosity. Surely it shows curiosity. But is such curiosity idle? The law itself doesn't think so. The silent spectator, there only to watch, is not just tolerated but welcomed. In the eyes of the law, he serves two useful purposes:

1. He helps justice. His show of interest tends to put all of the participants on their mettle. The dictatorial judge, the apathetic juror, the dishonest witness — all may fear that they might, somehow, run afoul of that anonymous observer in the back of the courtroom.

2. He helps himself. He learns at first hand how democracy meets the acid test: the way it treats an individual. The things he finds wrong can make him a more constructive citizen. The things he finds right can breath fresh meaning into the slogans of freedom.

Access to the courtroom may be limited in a few special circumstances. For example, if the testimony is sordid, children may be barred to protect their morals. Troublemakers may be kept out to preserve decorum. Crowding may be forbidden as a matter of public safety.

As a rule, however, the courtroom doors are wide open. No one will take your name or ask your business. You can walk in or out at any time.

But stay awhile. Far more awaits you in a courtroom than the sight of a few people in trouble. It is, in fact the best place to discover why Daniel

The General Electric Company has announced that it will donate an exterior lighting system to illuminate the historic Alamo.

The Company's Lamp Division, in cooperation with the City of San Antonio, will provide flattering nighttime illumination on the Alamo and Alamo Cenotaph, a memorial to the Alamo's fallen heroes.

"We at G. E. are pleased to provide this lighting for the Alamo, which is one of America's greatest landmarks," said Donald D. Scarff, General Electric vice president and general manager of the Company's Lamp Division at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio.

"President Johnson has invited industry to help encourage citizens to visit our historic shrines and landmarks," said Scarff. "This project offers an example of what we in the electrical industry can contribute toward the success of the President's program."

The Alamo lighting program has been approved by the Alamo committee of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. "This generous gift of light will allow the Alamo to be seen in its splendor after sundown," said Mrs. Phillip W. Herral, chairman of the committee.

Plans call for the Alamo, which was founded in 1718, to be lighted in a manner which will accentuate the beauty, character and composition of the shrine and walls at night.

"The intent is to create a sunlight impression," said C. M. Cutler, G. E. lighting engineer who planned the Alamo lighting. Cutler, who was chief designer for the 1936 Texas Centennial added: "We want to complement, with light, the architectural character of the Chapel by bringing out the pilasters and cornices, and texture and beauty of the stone."

When installed the exterior lighting will be maintained by the City of San Antonio. Mayor Walter W. McAllister has termed the Alamo lighting "a significant contribution to our community which will please San Antonians and attract more visitors in the years ahead."

Mr. Merchant: YOU LOSE 3 OUT OF 10 Customers Every Year

... AND THIRTY PER CENT OF YOUR BUSINESS GOES WITH THEM. HARD TO BELIEVE, BUT TRUE. IF YOURS IS AN AVERAGE BUSINESS, YOU NORMALLY LOSE APPROXIMATELY THIRTY PER CENT OF YOUR CUSTOMERS EVERY YEAR. IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE IT, LOOK THROUGH LAST YEAR'S ACCOUNTS AND SEE HOW MANY ARE NO LONGER ACTIVE.

Why do you lose them?

Through death, hard feelings, moving to another community or through the efforts of hard-driving competitors... a variety of reasons... some of them beyond your control.

AT THE SAME TIME THERE IS A NORMAL BUSINESS INCREASE OF ONLY FOUR PER CENT EVERY YEAR. THAT LEAVES YOU FACING A TWENTY-SIX PER CENT HANDICAP EVERY YEAR... A HANDICAP YOU MUST OVERCOME IF YOUR BUSINESS IS TO REMAIN HEALTHY AND PROFITABLE.

What to do about it:

The answer lies in better merchandising, better planning and more vigorous promotion of fast selling goods and services.

BEAUTIFY THE BIRD BATH

Here a bird bath is the feature of a small, formal garden. It stands where four paths meet and is set off with sweet alyssum and four beds of bright petunias. Note raked earth paths.

This low bird bath is set off by the dark green of the yew hedge in the background; embellished with dwarf snapdragons. This pretty scene occupies a small bed at the side of a terrace.

A bird bath is ordinarily placed in a garden not only to afford a place for birds to drink and bathe but to provide a feature in the landscape. For this reason it deserves to be given a colorful setting. The two illustrations show two entirely different conceptions of bird bath placement, yet each is an example of good planning and planting.

The top picture shows a bird bath used as the center of a formal garden, surrounded with sweet alyssum plants and four beds of petunias. The bath serves as a focal point, at the meeting of the paths as they come from different directions in the garden. Notice that both pedestal and petunias are light in color, contrasting with the dark, raked earth of the paths. In the bottom picture the low bird bath has a small area all to itself in a little bed at one side of a terrace. It has a dark green background of a yew hedge and a suitable foreground of dwarf snapdragons. Once again, both bird bath and flowers are light in color. In this case they do not contrast with the paving which also is light, but with the yew background.

Is there a bird bath in your garden? If so, is it properly featured and planted? It's so easy to beautify a bird bath. Why not try?

World of a girl

By CECE ALLISON, Director Scott Home Service Center

PSYCHOLOGY CAN SOLVE LITTLE SISTER PROBLEMS

Dear Cece: I am 15 and have to share a room with my sister who is 10. Mother has made it clear that we are responsible for keeping our room neat and tidy. I am willing to do my share, but my sister even refuses to hang up her clothes or make her bed. I end up picking up after her because if our house-keeping doesn't pass inspection, both of us are punished. Is this fair? Betty.

Dear Betty: It's not fair, but neither is life. At 15 you should be learning how to get along with relatives both older and younger. Put yourself in your mother's place. True, she wants you to keep your room clean and attractive, but more than that she wants her daughters to learn how to work together. If you offer to help your sister make her bed neatly and encourage her to put her clothing away properly so it will look nice the next time she wears it, she'll take more of an interest in cooperating. Another persuader might be a cleaning basket with her name on it filled with a dusting mitt, some mirror cleaner and a roll of colored Scotch Towels for polishing the job off. Who knows — she may take to cleaning with a vengeance and put big sister to shame.

Dear Cece: Four of us have been friends since we started grade school. Now we are 15 and three of us have started dating. The fourth girl whom I'll call Ellen, has changed recently. When we meet a boy one of us is dating, she giggles out loud and makes remarks. At a party last week, she was bragging about how many older boys she goes out with. Her behavior is getting to be very embarrassing to the rest of us. Is there some way we can tell her that she is acting like a child without making her mad? The Group.

Dear Group: Ellen is suffering from a case of "green eyes" because you three are dating and she is not. She is determined to attract attention when the boys are on the scene even if she has to play the fool to do it. You can't tell her outright that you are annoyed, because that will make her more unhappy than she is right now. You can, however, help her look more attractive and encourage her to develop any special talent she might have in music or dancing. At parties see that she is asked to do something—change records or help serve the food. Arrange a blind date for her with one of the boys in your class. When Ellen's social life picks up she'll relax and be her own sweet self again. Cece.

Dear Readers: To receive a free copy of "Off To A Beautiful Start," a booklet filled with hints on grooming, make-up and fashion, drop me a postcard at the address listed at the bottom of this column. Don't forget to print your name and address clearly.

Questions and comments should be addressed to Mrs. Cece Allison, Room 1440, 420 Lexington Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

"Go" Families Use Tablets in Myriad Ways

Tablets today are indispensable accessories for modern on-the-go families.

Attractive, yet inexpensive enough to satisfy all budgets, they serve unobtrusively in every room of the house. Next to the telephone there is the memo pad, in the kitchen are recipe booklets, budget books, menu pads, shopping lists. For the busy executive at home there is the bedside tablet for in-bed phone calls or early morning bursts of inspiration, and in the game room or study, notebooks, sketch pads or other specialized tablets.

The most versatile are the ever-available looseleafs manufactured in a variety of sizes. By using dividers they can be used to cover a wide range of subjects, from "A" for automobile expenses on through the alphabet.

God's Purposes

If you were having a picnic at the lake at approximately this spot, you might say, "Well, why did the engineers leave those trees in the water when they made this lake? They create such an eyesore. I can see no purpose in it." Yet, fishermen tell us that the fish love those old tree stumps and roots and that you can almost always find fish swimming in the dark recesses around and between these trees.

So many times we question God's wisdom in allowing some things to be and other things to come to pass. But God is good and his purposes are wise. The very thing that seems useless to us, might make us marvel if we could see with Heaven's eyes.

As Isaiah reminds us, "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts."

But he also wants us to know that his thoughts are many toward us and that everything works toward our good and our salvation. If we had no conflicts, and no questions, we would never have the opportunity to step out on faith.

Come to church Sunday and learn of God, his purposes, and the unsearchable riches of his love.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
