HE AND HIS SHADOW!

RETAIN STATE CONTROL

For more than thirty years, the individual states and the federal government have worked amicably together to provide the best equitable method of operating the unemployment compensation systems.

Now the Congress is considering legislation H.R. 8282 which would greatly revamp our national unemployment compensation program. It would shift control of unemployment benefit policies from the state legislatures to the Congress.

The proposed legislation would: 1. Establish a permanent system of federal extended benefits. 2. More than double the wage base on which the unemployment payroll tax is levied and would also increase the tax rate. 3. Set the stage for the abandonment of experience rating. 4. Establish federal benefit standards that would disrupt state laws and dictate benefit levels. 5. Force all states (after a maximum of six weeks' postponement) to pay regular benefits to people who quit their jobs voluntarily, who are fined for misconduct or who refuse suitable jobs. 6. Provide federal grants to encourage greater state spending for benefit liberalization. These proposed changes would federalize the effectively operating state unemployment compensation systems.

The added burden on the industrial community would hinder its ability to provide the necessary economic growth and new job opportunities. In fact, rather than sustain jobs it could destroy them.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

WYTHEVILLE, VA., ENTERPRISE: "The Enterprise is not advocating a third party, but we positively are advocating a return to the basic issues, and a sound government, and darn it, a government as existed when we studied civics and government in old Wytheville High School. . . it would be reassuring if those who intone about the sanctity of the two-party system voted and acted as a partisan of one of the parties rather than a spokesman for both."

HUNTINGTON, IND., HERALD-PRESS: "In effect today is one-man price control. It has not been established by Act of Congress. It is not practiced as a war measure. Whatever else it is, it is a spectacular exercise of the vast power of the White House. It is iron fisted notice that industry in the United States is in the paws of the government of the United States."

SPALDING, NEBR., ENTERPRISE: "The Internal Revenue Service celebrated its 100 anniversary not too long ago. Tax officials noted that no one sent them best wishes for many happy returns."

THE AMERICAN WAY

Serves Him Right!

You do not have to like it—or "lump" it either. You DO have an alternative. YOU can help outlaw such practices by getting action on the LIBERTY AMENDMENT designed to restore the Constitution to full force and effect. Learn what can be done by writing to the LIBERTY AMENDMENT COMMITTEE, 6413 Franklin Ave., Los Angeles 28, Calif.

Seven States have already formally approved the LIBERTY AMENDMENT which provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Sec. 4 . . . and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates and/or gifts."

Increased Retention

According to the Southern Pine Association, the textured surface of rough sawn lumber increases the retention of finishes. The product is extensively utilized on exterior walls of homes and other buildings.

HISTORY REPEATS—IF WE LET IT

By Will's E. Stone
Chairman, Liberty Amendment Committee of the USA

Are you complaining about taxes, excesses of political power, attacks upon your property, and an endless variety of bureaucratic impositions upon your way of life?

The reasons for such complaints are ages old. The arts of tyranny have not changed, and neither have the means of removing tyranny. We learn from history that it has all happened before.

In Rome, 2000 years ago, Cicero declared: "I tell you that freedom does not mean the freedom to exploit law in order to destroy it! It is not freedom which permits the Trojan Horse to be wheeled within the gates. . . Our Constitution speaks of the 'general welfare of the people'. Under that phrase all sorts of excesses can be employed by lusty tyrants to make us bondsmen."

America's Founding Fathers knew this was true, and tried to protect us from the "lusty tyrants" that would employ these "excesses" under the pretense of the "general welfare." James Madison in No. 41 of the Federalist Papers made it perfectly clear that the words "general welfare" in Article 1, Section 8, Paragraph 1 of our Constitution is not the whole Constitution, but it is in fact a minor phrase within an explanatory clause outlining general purposes which are then qualified "by a recital of particulars" in the balance of the same sentence consisting of eighteen paragraphs separated only by semicolons.

But the "lusty tyrants" are with us again! They prate about the "general welfare of the people" as they move to employ "all sorts of excesses" even as they did in the destruction of Rome.

Each day brings new examples of these excesses, each seemingly more destructive of American concepts than the one before it.

We hear of the tiny town of ten families consisting of forty men, women and children, twenty of whom are now employed in dispensing "poverty" benefactions to the other twenty. It is said they have already consumed 57,000 tax dollars in the effort.

This is but the beginning of the poverty program. Perhaps, in time, it may equal the poverty program so long applied to the Indians. We are told the bureaucrats caring for the Indians outnumber the Indians two to one.

The work of "lusty tyrants" is demonstrated by the violation of legal requirements for proper legislation involved in the appropriation of a mere three hundred million tax dollars for the "Dickey-Lincoln" power project in Maine—of such doubtful merit it was denied discussion in the House of Representatives.

It does no good, however, to merely point out such evidences of "lusty tyrants to make us bondsmen." Certainly no real American, proud of our heritage of freedom, can feel anything but utter disgust with this trend "to exploit law and order to destroy it."

It is NOT a case of "like it or lump it!"

The sculptured lines of folding wood panel doors grace what might otherwise have been an awkwardly large corner doorway. Because the doors fold back against themselves, they take minimal floor clearance space and allow more flexible furniture arrangement while adding decorative interest to the room. The folding panel doors are stock units of ponderosa pine, obtainable at lumber dealers.

Folding Doors Can Add Beauty And Save Space

Folding doors, which are often used for closets, can also turn an awkwardly located doorway into a graceful passage.

Because these doors fold back against themselves, they require a minimum of floor clearance. Where standard single or double doors would be unwieldy or impractical, folding doors leave floor and wall areas free for more flexible furniture arrangement.

Modern folding panel doors of ponderosa pine also add a decorative touch to a doorway. Available in stock sizes and in a variety of elegant designs, they can be installed as single or double units for doorways, or hung in a series to form an entire closet wall.

Folding doors can be used to good advantage in corner entrances and hallways where floor space is restricted, to close off studio-type kitchens, and as connecting doors between kitchens and dining rooms or dressing rooms and bathrooms.

In addition to being decorative, panel doors reduce the passage of sound. In areas where ventilation is important, folding louvered doors are often used because they provide free circulation of air as well as privacy.

By Mary Whitman

Have you ever considered how difficult it would be to conduct everyday business transactions without money? This was virtually the situation confronting early American colonists, points out Ken Bressett, numismatic editor at Whitman Publishing Company, Racine, Wis.

Faced with a shortage of money in the early 1600's, our settlers resorted to barter as a medium of exchange, and used Indian wampum when trading with the redskins. Monetary scarcity was caused by reluctance of the British to ship coins over here.

Colonists finally took matters into their own hands in 1652, issuing crude pieces of money known as New England shillings.

"The standard shilling was supplemented by two other coins, the threepence and sixpence," notes Bressett. "All were flat discs of silver with the emblem 'NE' (for New England) punched on one side, and denomination on the reverse side."

However, simplicity of the design soon invited counterfeiting, so the coins were replaced by the Willow, Oak and Pine Tree series.

When the King of England learned that colonists were minting their own coins, a stop order was issued, says Bressett. To avoid conflict, our early settlers adventurously went on making these coins for the next 30 years, using the original date of 1652.

The earliest American coins were succeeded by a variety of private issues, and in 1787 the first federally authorized U.S. money appeared — the Eagle cent. After 1792, our present monetary system based on a dollar divided into 10 parts went into effect.

All early American coinage is listed, described and priced in Whitman's A Guide Book of United States Coins. This volume, known as the "Red Book," is regarded as the most authoritative reference on current market values of American coins.

Fashionably Yours
 BY JEAN LUBAN • MERCHANDISING DIRECTOR • BRIDE'S

After Winter... a totally fresh rendering of fashions designed to captivate every member of the Spring bridal party. Fashion takes its cue from the awakening season with romantic dresses that are at once pure in line and demure in concept. Bridesmaids' dresses are perfectly coordinated with the same pure lines, tender new textures and feminine touches used in brides' dresses.

The day of the anonymous sleeve is over and The BRIDE'S Magazine proves the point prettily with a dress sleeved in the Kabuki manner. Emma Domb enhances this new shape with strokes of watercolor silk and lines of crisp linen twill. Watercolor silk sashes the lifted waist, lines the new sleeve and generously bows a tiny pillbox. The effect... one of the most feminine "total looks" yet contrived for attendants to a Spring bride.

WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE ???

Remember the grim and dreary poem of the Ancient Mariner, with "water, everywhere, and not a drop to drink"? Remember how you used to have to memorize it, or even—horrors!—recite it?

Two thirds of the earth's surface is covered with water, and yet right now the 19th century poetic fantasy is facing us as a menacing truth. There is a growing shortage of fresh water in many areas, including such populous metropolitan centers as New York, where you have to ask for a drink in a restaurant.

Worse, much of our water is poor in color, clarity, taste or odor, and some of it actually contains chemical wastes, filth and bacterial growth. Among the most serious of water pollutants are the growing amounts of detergents in use in home and industry.

Water in Our Bodies

The human body is composed of about two-thirds water, by weight. This high water content of the body has been called "the sea within you." It is, literally, salt water plus other essential substances in solution.

One of Six Nutrients

Water is included among the six essential nutrients, the other five being proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and vitamins. All foods contain a percentage of water, and some valuable ones, like whole milk (87 percent)

Mineral Elements

Most drinking water contains traces of mineral elements from the soil through which it passed on its way to your kitchen. Some of these, like iodine which prevents simple goiter or fluoride which lessens dental decay, are important nutrients which must be supplied in the total diet if they are not naturally present in proper quantities.

City Supplies Protected

City water supplies, as a rule, are now adequately protected against contamination; rural supplies must be protected by the owner's own initiative. It is important not to waste water, which is no longer cheap and plentiful. Dripping faucets and unmetered supplies waste millions of gallons annually.

You are lucky if you have a reliable stream of cold, clean, fresh and safe water when you turn your kitchen faucet,

Veterans Told To Get Release From Liability

Veterans who sell their GI homes and permit the buyer to assume their GI loan remain liable in case of subsequent foreclosure unless they obtain a release of liability.

This can be obtained upon request to VA, if VA approves the buyer as a good credit risk. Jack Coker, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco, said today.

A release from liability, however, does not restore the veteran's eligibility for another GI loan.

This can be restored only when the VA is no longer liable to the lender on the guaranty, and if the veteran:

- (a.) is forced to sell his home through no fault of his own, for reasons of health, employment, etc.;
- (b.) has his property taken by a Government agency for public use, or destroyed by a natural hazard; or
- (c.) is in military service and must dispose of his home because of military transfer.

Further information may be obtained at VA Offices located at 1400 North Valley Mills Dr., Waco, Texas; 2208 Main, Dallas, Texas; and 1612-20 19th Street, Lubbock, Texas.

After Obeying the "Five Steps" In Coming to Christ, What Then?

From the BIBLE, in the preceding weeks, we have seen that the "five steps" in coming to Christ are:

- HEARING GOD'S WORD—NOT current events, human philosophy, nor doctrines of men, Rom. 10:17.
- FAITH IN CHRIST — NOT faith only, Mark 16:16.
- REPENTANCE — NOT praying, nor merely mourning, Acts 17:30; 2 Cor. 7:10; Matt. 21:28, 29.
- CONFESSION OF CHRIST — NOT telling one's experience, nor confessing sins, Rom. 10:9; Acts 8:37.
- BEING BAPTIZED (immersed), in WATER FOR (in order to obtain) REMISSION OF SINS — NOT being sprinkled, nor poured; NOT because one is already saved, nor just to get into the church, Rom. 6:4; Acts 2:38.

Following these steps, saves one, and the LORD ADDS (NOWHERE DOES THE BIBLE SAY: 'JOIN THE CHURCH') the saved to the church, Acts 2:41, 47. Then the saved are to continue steadfastly, Acts 2:42, observing all Jesus has commanded.

May we assist you in doing JUST EXACTLY these things? If so, contact us. Attend our services Sunday at 9:45 a. m. and 10:45 a. m. 6:00 p. m.

If a nation values anything more than freedom, it will lose its freedom; and the irony of it is that if it is comfort or money that it values more, it will lose that too.

SCIENTISTS MAKING OWN 'EARTHQUAKES'

Coronado, Calif. — (HK) — Scientists are making their own "earthquakes."

The reason: to obtain new information on the behavior of steel-framed buildings subjected to earthquake forces and to aid in the design of safer, earthquake-resistant buildings. The results were reported here recently to engineers attending the annual convention of the Structural Engineers Association of California.

No area is immune to quakes, say scientists. Damaging shocks have hit 40 states at one time or another.

ONE OF SEVERAL

Research through man-made "earthquakes" — one type conducted in miniature and the other staged at actual high-rise buildings — is one of several university studies being sponsored by the Committee of Structural Steel Producers and the Committee of Steel Plate Producers of American Iron and Steel Institute.

Professor Egor Popov of the Department of Civil Engineering, University of California, Berkeley, described his laboratory tests of steel beam-to-column connections. These tests are important because connections have been found to be a critical element in buildings during an earthquake.

Popov concluded that steel beams and their connections can withstand a large number of earthquake-like forces. In his tests, he simulated these powerful forces with a double-acting hydraulic jack that bends the free end of short steel beams as much as 10 inches.

In another report, J. G. Bouwkamp, an associate professor in the Department of Civil Engineering at the University of California, described simulated earthquakes created in buildings at the Medical Center of the University of California at San Francisco.

The buildings were subjected to earthquake-like shocks produced by two machines called vibration generators which were attached to the steel building frames. Motions of the buildings were measured by sensitive recorders.

ited sums of money could risk getting into the foreign intrigues that have engaged our government. Assured that it could back up its programs in a war, it has steadily involved us deeper and deeper in the affairs of the rest of the world.

Purposes Of Government

"The Nature of Man and His Government" examines government from many angles, attempting to pin down its true nature and function. As the author points out, government is a tool devised by man for a purpose. If it is not performing that purpose in the best way possible, it should either be improved upon or replaced. The book studies the possibilities inherent in either of these courses of action.

As Rose Wilder Lane expresses it in the introduction, the book is full of revolutionary ideas. The reader will find it very stimulating.

THE NATURE OF GOVERNMENT

Americans are asking, "How did we get involved in a war in Southeast Asia—a war we supposedly cannot win and yet cannot leave either?" How have we reached this point where we seem to be involved in every problem in every sector of the world?

One answer to this question, not usually considered, comes to us from a book published six years ago: "One of the most serious mistakes the citizens can ever make is to grant to their government the power of a draft. Governments which can forcefully enlist the citizens under them, can shoulder their way truculently among all foreign powers, confident that they can compel a final showdown to their liking."

Caution Required

"Locking this power, a government is constantly in review before its citizens. The citizens may, in such a case, refuse to accept their government's foreign policies and the errors perpetuated thereby. This would leave such a government in an untenable position. It must move warily and peacefully or risk an ultimate exposure before a hostile force."

The foregoing is from "The Nature of Man and His Government," a short book written by Robert LeFevre, Dean of the Colorado Freedom School (published by Claxton Printers, Caldwell, Idaho; $1).

LeFevre points out that only a government with the power to draft soldiers and raise unlim-

JANIE DALE PHILLIPS, DONNIE CULPEPPER ENGAGEMENT TOLD

Major General Samuel Cochran Phillips, USAF, and Mrs. Phillips of Washington, D.C. announce the engagement of their daughter, Janie Dale, to Cadet Captain Donnie Culpepper, USAF Academy, son of Mrs. Valerie Culpepper, 414 Park Street, Burkburnett. Wheat Program For '66 Outlined

To be eligible for program benefits, wheat producers will meet the wheat diversion provisions of the program, will plant within allotments for other crops—such as cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts—on the participating farm, plant within wheat allotments on all other farms in which they have an interest in the wheat crops, and otherwise meet provisions of the wheat program.

They will not have to stay within their feed grain base acreage unless wheat is being substituted for feed grains, in which case they will participate in both wheat and feed grain programs on the participating farm and stay within the wheat acreage allotments and feed grain base acreages on any other farms in which they have an interest in the crop.

In addition, participating farmers will maintain in conservation uses on the participating farm an acreage equal to the established conserving base plus the acreage to be diverted under all programs for which they expect to receive benefits.

A wheat farmer who participates in the newly authorized cropland adjustment program will need to keep within any crop acreage allotment or permitted acreage on that farm or any other farm in which he has an interest, and he will maintain in conserving use the normal conserving acreage plus that diverted under the cropland adjustment and other programs.

VETERANS Questions - Answers

(Editor's Note: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q—At the time my husband died, I could not locate his discharge papers and therefore did not receive a burial flag. May I get this burial flag now?

A—Yes. A flag will be issued if circumstances at the time prevented your receiving the flag prior to interment. The applicant must personally sign and set forth the circumstances on the application.

Q—What is the final deadline for World War II GI loan applications?

A—Individual World War II veterans face their GI loan deadline ten years from the date of discharge or release from service plus one year for each three months of active wartime service. However, the final deadline for all World War II veterans is July 25, 1967. Veterans discharged from service because of a service-incurred disability will be given until July 25, 1967, despite lack of qualifying length of service.

Q—I receive a nonservice-connected pension from the VA. Can I also receive Social Security benefits when I reach age 65?

A—A veteran may receive a nonservice-connected pension, if otherwise eligible, as long as his income without dependents does not exceed $1,300 or with dependents $3,000 per year. Ninety percent of Social Security benefits are counted as income.

Order Is Placed For 800,000 Official Texas State Road Maps

Austin — The largest single order for the Official State Highway Map of the Texas Highway Department is now rolling off the presses.

The initial order for 800,000 of the full-color maps is up 200,000 over the first order for 1965 maps. In past years, substantial reprints have been required to fill the ever-increasing demand for both Texas motorists and out-of-state visitors.

The maps are produced for free distribution by the Travel and Information Division of the Texas Highway Department. They provide tourists and Texans with up-to-date information on highways, mileages, lakes accessible to the public, Safety Rest Areas, city route maps, and to distinguish Interstate, U. S. State and farm- and ranch-to-market roads in the state.

The growth of the Interstate Highway network is graphically shown, as the 1966 map shows 521 more miles of divided highways than appeared on the 1965 map. The majority of this increase is the Interstate System.

Over 22,000 miles of farm-to-market roads are shown—some 7,500 more miles of this type road than appeared on the 1965 map.

Safety Rest Areas are again indicated on the map by small green dots alongside the highway. Last year there were 914 green dots. This year there are 934.

The reverse side of the 1966 map is devoted to full-color pictures of various scenic attractions of Texas with the challenge to "Discover Texas — America's Fun-tier."

Postcards for convenient ordering of the 1966 maps will be available at each Texas county tax assessor-collector's office, and as Texans buy their 1966 auto tags they may pick up these free order cards at their tax office.

Free copies of the map are also available at each of the eight Tourists Bureaus operated by the Highway Department at principal highway entrances to Texas and in the rotunda of the State Capitol, and at all 25 Highway Department district offices over the state.

Free copies also may be obtained by writing the Texas Highway Department, Travel and Information Division, Austin, Texas 78703.

In comparison with what I expected out of my life I'm so far ahead that I often give myself a pat on the back.

The RESPECTED WORD

The bible is a book translated into every known language. It is the word that men have died for, in order that it may be available to all men. It is the textbook for God's people.

The bible, itself, is not worshipped, but is respected, for it is the story of God and his relationship to man. It is man's guide for worship and daily living.

Attend church regularly, study and seek God's will in your life.

"I wait for the Lord, my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

NOSE BREATHING

Nose breathing can affect a child's dental and physical health.

Children generally realize that bad habits, such as thumb-sucking, when carried too far in a child's age, affect the teeth in a way as to push them into abnormal positions. Thumb-sucking is only one of the so-called "bad" oral habits. Mouth breathing can also be detrimental to the child's health. It is overlooked and undetected.

Importance of proper attention for mouth breathers is stressed in this winter during the National Children's Dental Week, sponsored Feb. 6-10 by the American Dental Association.

Nose breathing means that an individual has a habit of breathing through the mouth. This occurs continuously, and the tissues become irritated, the drying effects of the tissues become inflamed, sometimes swollen and unhelpful. Mouth breathing can contribute to a different kind of tooth pattern than usually seen. Mouth breathers show whitish soft spots around the line of the front teeth, a result of drying of foreign matter that collects about the teeth. A continual mouth-breather often develops a malocclusion. In other terms, the mouth open, the supporting of the tongue and the teeth collapse toward the front of the mouth, thereby the front teeth will begin to breathes through his mouth, the air does not pass through the nose, missing the important function that the nose plays in preparing the air for the lungs. As dry, dirty, cold air from the outside passes through the nose, the air is filtered by the hairs in the nose; it is warmed by the large mass of blood vessels that are inside the nose, and is humidified by the moisture that the nose contains. Mouth breathing usually will result in an increase in upper respiratory infections. The child will have more colds, or even suffer a more serious lung problem. Not every child who breathes through his mouth should be considered a mouth breather, for many children have short upper lips and will keep their mouths open while breathing through their nose. Who then, becomes a mouth breather?

Children with narrow faces have a tendency to have narrow airways or noses, easily closed off because of a minor cold. Some children will have enlarged adenoid or tonsil tissue, which normally grows in excess up to about 10 years of age and then diminishes in size. During this period, the airway may be obstructed by the tonsils. The child is forced to breathe through his mouth until he outgrows his enlarged tonsils. He develops a breathing habit not easily corrected.

Mouth breathing is very common between the ages of 4-12 and is easily diagnosed by your physician or dentist. It should be corrected to prevent harmful dental and physical effects.

CREATIVE CAREERS

by Ruth Wade Ray

Ruth Wade Ray, Director of Ray-Vogue Schools, the oldest professional arts school in the U. S., now beginning its 50th year, answers high school seniors' questions about continuing their education in the creative arts.

Q. How can I tell whether I have creative talent?

A. You can test yourself or ask your high school counselor to give you a creativity test. Ask yourself: "Do I like to do things in an unusual way, bringing my own personality to bear on the project at hand? And: "Do I like to think up new ideas?" If the answer to both is "yes," you will probably do well in this field. In other words, if you feel creative you probably are creative.

Q. Where can a creative person make the most of his talents?

A. After a careful study of career opportunities for the creative person, our school concentrated on six areas that offer the best opportunities for immediate and long range financial rewards for graduates. They are shown on the chart below.

Q. If I decide on a creative career, how much schooling will I need after high school?

A. For most careers, two years of full time study. This is true in the fields of Interior Design, Dress Design, Commercial Art, or Fashion Illustration. Photography and Fashion Merchandising require only one year of full time schooling. Q. If I want more information on a professional arts career, where is the best place to find it?

A. Your high school counselor will be able to help you. And, you can get help by writing to Student Counselor, Ray-Vogue Schools, 750 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Specify which area interests you—otherwise you'll receive general information.

BUSINESS Keys to Success

Must You Love Your Work?

It's been another one of those weeks — here it is Friday afternoon and there's so much work to be done that it looks like you'll have to cancel your golf date and put in some overtime Saturday.

You never liked this job much anyway — maybe now's the time to start looking for a more satisfying line of work.

Sound familiar? Well, it's fairly typical — but jumping to another job or another field is rarely the solution, according to Dr. Frederick J. Gaudet, director of the Psychological Laboratory at Stevens Institute of Technology.

Although some do find greener pastures elsewhere, you're more likely to find the same kind of problems, the same frustrations in a new location. Fact is, you don't have to love your work or even be particularly taken by it, according to Dr. Gaudet, who claims that most of the world's work is done by people who have no undying passion for their particular line of work.

What they do have — those who succeed at work they don't especially like — is management skill, says Dr. Gaudet. This includes the basic skill — communications. The path to doing more satisfactory work, and getting more satisfactory work out of those around you, is better handling of the information that's needed on the job.

Charles Bruning Company, division of Addressograph Multigraph Corporation, a pioneer in applying communications theory to management problems, suggests asking yourself these questions regarding your job:

1. What are the requirements of the job? Many persons have been on the same job for years without being sure what exactly was expected of them. When the job was explained more thoroughly, production became more efficient.
2. Do I have all the information I need for the job? Dr. Richard Centers, UCLA psychologist, found in a study of success that the greatest single reason for individual failure was "poor management". Especially lack of control over
3. Am I passing along enough information to people whose help I need to get the job done? Most companies have copying machines. They can copy almost any document in seconds. Make use of this tool that is a product of our modern age of industry.
4. Am I setting my sights high enough? To enjoy the exhilaration of success, Dr. Solomon Diamond, psychologist at Los Angeles State College, found that goals must be within the individual's reach. He found — as did Dr. David McClelland of Yale University, that the unsuccessful generally set goals which were unrealistically high — or too low. If experience has shown you that your goal in life is unreachably then change your goal!

Information needed to do the job — whether it was controlling a sales territory, a manufacturing process, or an individual career. Getting "control" over information may mean reading more in your field, taking classes on the subject, having more information brought to you at specified times by subordinates or co-workers, or merely asking more questions.

Some Owners Cultivate Roof That Goes to Seed

Some roofs can really grow on you, especially if they're sod.

A few sod roofs have recently popped up (literally) atop some homes in the West, where they originated. Sod roofs recall frontier days when settlers built their meager homes into hillsides so that the earth formed the roof, back and even part of the walls. Besides taking advantage of the local raw materials, these homes afforded defensible positions against Indian attacks.

But sod roofs had a serious drawback. They leaked whenever it rained — and for a few days afterwards, too.

Today the sod roof is little more than an oddity. The modern sod roof fancier, attracted by the novelty of growing lush grass and bright wildflowers on the roof, solves the problem of leakage the same way most other homeowners do — with asphalt roofing. In the case of sod roofs, built-up waterproof asphalt roofing is installed between the sheathing and the soil.

The modern homeowner doesn't have to grow flowers on his roof to give his house a dash of needed color. Asphalt roof shingles, used on most residential roofs today, are available in a wide assortment of colors, including forest colors, pastels and blends. Heavyweight shingles also come with written guarantees up to 25 years.

When it comes to low maintenance, asphalt shingles have it all over sod roofs. Unlike sod, asphalt shingle roofs don't have to be raked, mowed, weeded, watered or fertilized to be kept in good condition. For that matter, they rarely need any other care either.

YOU... AND Small Business

Congress has already received from President Johnson a large list of proposals labeled as "absolutely must" legislation. His program deals with such important issues as right-to-work, unemployment compensation, minimum wage increase, and secondary boycotts.

However, in view of the considerable criticism that Congress has abandoned its status as an equal branch of Government, there are rumblings on the Potomac that Congress this year will give much more consideration and deliberation to the long-run impact of new legislation before it rushes into action. Last year Congress enacted the massive total of 349 public laws.

L. M. Evans

Even the mild Mike Mansfield, the Senate's Majority Leader, is on record that "the main concern of the Senate in the second session will be the perfection, the elaboration, and the refinement of the basic legislation which underpins major Federal programs and, particularly, the legislation which has been put into the statute books during the past three or four years."

National Small Business Association (NSBA), the effective voice of small business in Washington, agrees completely with Senator Mansfield that there is a paramount need for Congress to reflect on where it has been, and where it is now, before blazing new paths. By way of example, NSBA calls attention to the legislation enacted in 1962 called the "Self-Employed Individuals Tax Retirement Act."

Self-Employed Retirement Act Needs Revision

In pointing out the need for review by Congress, L. M. Evans, a past President of National Small Business Association, says the legislation obviously has not achieved what Congress intended since less than 10,000 individuals out of an estimated five million eligible self-employed have acted under the law.

"The small business community is not unique in its desire for private pension plans," Mr. Evans says, "but establishing this coverage is far more difficult for the small firm than for the large firm."

Evans, whose firm makes electronic components in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, insists that "fair play demands that the small business partnership and individual proprietorship have the same equality under the tax laws as the corporate form of enterprise."

Under the 1962 Self-Employed Retirement Act the contribution limit is $2,500 and only one-half of the contribution is deductible.

Keogh, Smathers Introduce Bills

Many members of Congress are also convinced that fairness for the small business community requires the doing-away of these limits and making the self-employed's contribution fully deductible, and legislation along these lines has been proposed by Rep. Eugene Keogh (D-N.Y.) and Senator George Smathers (D-Fla.), and others.

NSBA, Mr. Evans says, encourages self-reliance rather than reliance by the citizens on Government. "The citizens most needing private pension coverage are small firms," according to Mr. Evans, "and the provision of the Keogh Bill (H.R. 10) and the Smathers Bill (S. 2272) allowing full tax deduction for the contributions made toward the pension of the self-employed owners are sound and urgently need enactment. This would encourage the owner-employer to establish plans for their employees as well."

ed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Spannagel Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Patterson were in Oklahoma City over the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Al Stoak.

Mr. and Mrs. Frankie D. Miller of Irving announce the birth of a son Jan. 14. They have chosen the name of Jimmie Lee. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lee Miller of Randlett.

He invented a better way of living...electrical living!

Thomas A. Edison, whose birthdate each year signals the observance of National Electrical Week, brought electricity out of the laboratory and into practical use for the benefit of mankind. His invention of the first practical incandescent lamp, and his many other inventions in the field of electric power generation and distribution, created a new way of life and a new industry. Edison foresaw great things for electricity and for the electric industry he founded. And today business-managed electric companies, like Texas Electric Service Company, are making his vision come true... constantly planning, building and working to provide more and better electric service... for continued progress and for better living.
