BULLDOGS OPEN GRID WORKOUTS

More than 85 youngsters, in various stages of experience but all full of desire, turned out Monday morning for the opening football drills for the Burk Burnett Bulldogs.

Coach Bill Froman, and his assistants put the boys through strenuous workouts for the first three days and most admitted being sore and tired, especially after the first day.

Coach Froman lost 11 seniors through graduation, sadly depleting the ranks, but he will have the services of four returning starters, and seven other lettermen.

Back among the starters will be Ray Andrakas and Bobby Larson at tackles, Lannie Walker at guard and Donald Brown at halfback.

Lettermen returning for more action are Jim Eob Sprague and Larry Sullivan at ends, Tom Thornton at guard and Tony Landers at center. John Robinson, who played on defense and quarterback, is back, as is Rick Kinnard, who saw plenty of action last year at halfback.

Back for another stint at halfback is Wendell Hobbs.

But no spot is taken, and plenty of competition for starting spots is expected.

The boys are going through two-day sessions. Froman said the twice daily schedule will continue until the boys show enough improvement to allow the sessions to be cut to once a day.

At least one Saturday workout is included in the schedule.

The Bulldogs, bouncing back last year after several so-so seasons will open the 1968 season with Iowa Park on the night of September 13 on the Bulldog Field.

A CLOSE KINSHIP

The unanimity with which spokesmen for the petroleum industry are voicing concern over the decline in exploratory drilling for new oil reserves is something that should give pause to even the most vociferous proponents of new ways of taxing and regulating the industry.

Mr. O. F. Thomas, president of a major oil company, has added his voice to those of others in the industry who have warned of the widening gap between consumption and new discoveries. He declared that rising U. S. energy needs mean that the U. S. oil industry must find 78 billion barrels of oil over the next dozen years — twice present proved reserves.

The irony is that the oil can be found. Petroleum geologists know it is in the ground. Thus, as Mr. Thomas points out, "The problem isn't that we don't actually have the oil. The crux of the problem is cost or economic justification. The oil will only be found if the incentive is provided to undertake the risky and costly search. If our efforts were guided solely by survival, regardless of cost, we could discover this vast quantity of hidden oil at a rate far in excess of our galloping consumption level. However, we must live within the bounds of our financial limitations." He blamed, as other oilmen have, the 40 per cent drop in exploratory drilling since 1957 on the fact that drilling costs have been rising while crude oil prices have been declining. To compensate, at least in part, for this, tax incentives — such as percentage depletion — are of greater importance than ever before.

What is becoming apparent is that future petroleum supplies depend more upon events in the halls of Congress than upon the geologist in the field. Far too many of us still fail to accept the close kinship between such seemingly remote considerations as tax incentives for the oil industry and gasoline in our auto tanks.

FAILURE OF FARM PROGRAMS

This year the Department of Agriculture will pay farmers about $3.1 billion not to grow crops.

In the same period, the same department will spend something like $940 million to feed hungry families and school children. It is asking the Congress for additional money to expand the food programs.

Under the pay for not growing program, the biggest beneficiaries are the big land owners. They get the biggest checks for letting the biggest plots lie idle. At the same time, some small farmers are actually not allowed to grow crops they need for animal feed because the acreage has been taken out of production.

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman says that both of the contradictory programs — crop limitation and food purchase for the hungry are necessary to combat poverty. He holds that, if government payments to big operators were ruled out, not enough land would be idled to meet his restrictions, and that price depressing surpluses would result.

Today, something like 3.5 million people are receiving free foods, including meats and vitamin enriched convenience type foodstuffs. Approximately 2.5 million more are enrolled in the food stamp program.

The smaller farmer, is reduced to working out special loans, and assistance in finding nonfarm jobs in rural areas, with the help of managers in Washington.

It is estimated that something like 50 million acres of land are being held out of production. But, simultaneously, the government is underwriting water development projects designed to put new land into production.

Many farm experts, including the leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation, believe the farmer would fare better under private enterprise. Some, including Representative Paul Finley, of Illinois, believe that the farm programs have contributed to, if they have not actually created the present farm chaos. He urges both city dwellers and farmers to demand the return of agriculture to the free market.

Why not? The present programs seem not to help either the consumer or the farmer. Only the bureaucrats.

The Arizona Farm Bureau Federation reports that the average American spends only 18 per cent of his disposable income for food. About 25 per cent of these expenditures are for food eaten away from home. Of each dollar spent in a food store, only 77 cents actually goes for food and of this meat accounts for 30 cents and dairy products 13 cents.

LEG OF LAMB IDEAL FOR SPIT-BARBECUING

This summer why not progress from barbecuing directly on the grill to spit barbecuing. In the learning process you can absorb a few basic rules.

First choose a bone-in leg of Milk-fed spring lamb. Very often you can buy legs weighing close to 8 or 9 pounds... perfect for a large group. Put the spit through the leg so it is balanced for even turning. Insert a meat thermometer through the thickest part of the flesh and let it rise to 165° for slightly pink lamb. A drip pan fashioned from heavy duty aluminum foil serves to catch the juices and barbecue sauce as it turns, and prevents flame-ups from spattering fat.

HICKORY BARBECUED LEG OF LAMB

(Makes 6 to 8 servings)

- | | |
|-------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| Leg of lamb | 1 tablespoon light brown sugar |
| Salt and pepper | 1 tablespoon salad oil |
| 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce | ¼ cup coarsely chopped onion |
| ½ cup hickory flavor catsup | |

Sprinkle lamb with salt and pepper. Skewer with rotisserie spit. Place spit about 8 inches above grey-hot coals. Roast ½ hour. Combine remaining ingredients; brush on lamb frequently, while continuing to roast for a total of 30 minutes per pound or until meat thermometer registers 175° for medium doneness.

BEHIND YOUR HEALTH

H. E. Kingman, Jr., D.V.M.

What do mice and rats have to do with your health and mine? Each year 38 million of them make a direct contribution to our health as experimental animals. In fact, mice and rats make up over one half of all animals used in research.

In their natural environment rodents are a traditional enemy of man. They spend their lives in sewers, garbage dumps and alleys and are often carriers of disease.

Yet they are the mainstay of the research laboratory—housed in antiseptic quarters and provided with a constant supply of fresh water and food.

Why this special attention? For one thing, their size and abundance make them economical research animals. Also, they multiply rapidly, making possible the study of many generations of the same strain. The breeding of pure strains helps remove genetic variables, thereby increasing the accuracy of research.

Many are bred in a "germ free environment" designed to provide animals free of external elements, such as naturally occurring disease, which could affect test results.

The contributions of rodents to man's health are as numerous as the health problems man encounters. It is fair to say that virtually every life-saving drug widely used today was at some time during the development tried on mice and rats.

Right now, rodents are major contributors in our efforts to understand the baffling mechanism by which the body rejects transplants. This rejection process is, of course, one of the major unsolved problems of heart, kidney, and other transplant surgery.

In addition, much of the cancer research is conducted with mice and rats, and when the cause of human cancer is determined, it is a safe bet that the experimental rodent will have played a major role.

SEN. RALPH YARBOROUGH'S NEWSLETTER

As the two great political conventions choose candidates for this national election year, it is appropriate to consider whether 18-year-old Americans should be allowed to vote. Or put another way — whether a young American old enough to fight and die for his country is old enough to participate in our electoral process. President Johnson has made this a high priority item for Congress when we return after Labor Day.

As far back as 1952, when I was running for governor of Texas, I favored lowering our voting age to 18. It wasn't a new idea then, and it's not a new idea today, but it makes a lot of sense. Georgia became the first state to lower the voting age in 1943. Since then, Kentucky, Alaska and Hawaii have allowed residents under 21 to vote, and both Nebraska and North Dakota will put the question to their voters this year.

The present Texas voting age of 21 is a carryover from the middle ages, when a man could not become a knight until he reached 21 years of age. Today the age of 18 has been set as the age of responsibility in most other respects. At 18, a young man can be drafted into the Army. In most areas, 18-year-olds can marry without their parents' consent, 18-year-olds can stand trial as adults in a criminal court and 18-year-olds who work must pay taxes to our state and federal governments.

National polls show that a majority of Americans favor lowering 18-year-olds to vote, and speaking at TCU in Fort Worth recently, President Johnson said "the time is already here to grant the right to vote to 18 year-olds. We have everything to gain by extending to these young people the most precious right and responsibility of citizenship, the right to vote."

I'm cosponsoring with Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield a constitutional amendment to guarantee Americans 18 to 21 years of age the right to vote and to participate as full citizens.

We hear a great deal today about a few irrepressible young Americans — the hippies and the dropouts of our society. But little is heard of the responsible men and women in the 18-to-21 age bracket who work or go to school, or who raise children or contribute to their communities. We have men between 18 and 21 years of age presently serving this nation in the military service, but they can't vote.

The HOUSTON POST recently ran an excellent article endorsing the 18-year-old vote amendment. Former President Eisenhower has spoken in favor of it.

It is a question of faith — faith in our country and in our sons and daughters. I have faith in these young men and women who will lead our nation tomorrow, and I believe they should have a voice in shaping their destiny.

THE NUMBERS GAME

Whether it's Lucky 7, or 3 or 9 you're partial to, chances are there is a number that works for you.

The ancients believed that the world was built upon a symbolic structure of numbers. Many moderns are investigating the language of numbers to learn more about the stars.

Whether you're a scientist or a seer, numbers as well as stars may figure in your destiny.

Well known prophetess Jeane Dixon believes that your birth date influences your personality and that your personal vibrations are dictated by your own personal number and your Zodiac sign. Did you know for example that the number "5" is associated with adventure and good fortune. Or that "7" is the most mysterious of all numbers and has been used throughout history to express completion in all things spiritual?

Jeane Dixon now has a provocative way to introduce you to numerology and astrology. Her Game of Destiny, put out by the Milton Bradley Company, challenges players to compute their lucky numbers and uncover their personal horoscopes.

Says Mrs. Dixon, "The purpose of the game is not to convert you into a believer of the psychic." However, you may find that fate and destiny are in your hands when you pick up the cards in this entertaining game.

Whether you become a "true believer" or not, you'll enjoy the magic of the oldest science in the world. And you may find that you like what's in the stars!

SLUM CLEARANCE PROFITABLE SAYS EXECUTIVE

Already in the model stage are many plans to turn city ghettos into healthier communities, creating $250 billion in new business and helping today's ghetto dwellers to become more productive. (Photo courtesy American Society of Civil Engineers.)

Higher earnings for suburbanites and city-dwellers alike are predicted by a top U.S. industrialist who estimates that $250 billion in new business will be created by the rebuilding of urban ghettos.

Although the work will be done in the cities, a healthy chunk of the revenue is likely to be carried home by residents of smaller communities, especially people who work in construction, real estate, and building product manufacturing.

City ghettos will need at least 10 million new single and multi-dwelling units by the end of this century, according to W. Wilfred Groves, general manager of the 100-year-old U.S.A. lock and hardware operations of Eaton Yale & Towne Inc., America's leading firm in the field.

Biggest Single Market

"Businessmen who ignore the urban crisis today and in the immediate future could be overlooking what may possibly be the single biggest market in the history of this country," said Groves.

"Sick cities must be saved not only because of social responsibilities to those existing in ghettos, but because these cities represent an economic necessity to business. Markets today deteriorate in the slums, and thrive in healthy areas," he added.

In the industrialist's view,

American business today cannot monetarily afford the continued existence of slums. Decay of the inner-city hastens the exodus not only of families but businesses as well to the suburbs. As a result, retail trade falls off sharply and an increasing share of the tax burden falls on industry.

Eaton Yale & Towne, a multi-national company with 90 operations around the world, markets truck and off-highway vehicle components, construction and logging equipment, automotive products, locks and builders' hardware, materials handling equipment, control systems and general products. The company's sales for the six months ended June 30, 1968, were $432,198,000.

From where will the money to rebuild ghettos come? "From the very ghettos we are rebuilding," predicts the lock and hardware executive. "History shows us again and again that when deprived people gain adequate housing, education and security, their productivity rises.

"Even the huge sum of $250 billion comes to less than $1,250 for each American alive today, and cleaning up our ghettos should save several times this amount in increased productivity and in lower costs of welfare, fire, insurance, theft and police work."

"Companies that set out to do good may end up doing well."

POLE FRAME

Wood pole frame construction — the predominant structural system for farm service buildings — is also utilized for many beach side homes, particularly those in areas which may be exposed to hurricanes.

A frame work of pressure treated wood poles is embedded directly in soil or sand and the house is built around their upper extremities. Because of this elevation, hurricane spawned tidal waves can pass beneath the home without striking it directly.

Most pressure treated poles in the United States are of Southern Pine because of its strength and ease of treatment.

She's your telephone service representative. To many telephone users, she is the phone company.

She answers questions, provides personal number booklets, directories and duplicate bills. She helps you get new phones installed.

As a service representative, she has to be something of a lady executive, a bit of a diplomat and an expert in phone service.

And she is. She was hired from a select group of applicants and put through an extensive training program.

And she attends regular meetings to discuss customer service.

Next time you need help on a telephone problem, just call the telephone business office.

Your service representative will take it from there.

ASK A "SIMPLE" QUESTION

Smart fishermen ask "simple" questions. At least so it seems on occasion — especially to the green beginner who would rather go home skunked than reveal his ineptitude.

It's no crime to ask questions, say the fishing authorities at Mercury outboards. In fact, the real pro always takes advantage of every bit of local advice he can ferret out.

But whom you ask is important. Certainly, not everyone you run across during a session on the water is worth talking to, much less attempting to obtain information from. In short, seek out the expert.

Don't waste time with the individual who swings his rod like a sledgehammer. He'll be no real help. Neither will the bank fisherman who usually resents what he considers an invasion of his personal fishing territory.

Look for the man using artificials, casting smoothly and with little effort. Often this type of person not only can give valid information, but doesn't mind sharing it with others.

How he is approached determines his responsiveness.

Good manners and courtesy are the mark of top-flight fishermen. Extend them always, and they'll be returned in kind. This means moving up to within talking distance, but without disturbing another's fishing. Never approach through a stretch of water he is going to fish.

Engage in polite conversation. Ask your questions. Keep them general about locations, depths, and lures. Don't expect to have the exact lures and pockets pinpointed. These you must find for yourself.

Soliciting assistance is no disgrace among the very best anglers, comment the Mercury lads.

Those who fail to ask "simple" questions seldom fool the fish — only themselves.

John Doe ?

During the last war Kilroy was the name of the man who had been there. John Doe, the encyclopedia tells us, is the name used in legal documents to describe a person whose real name is unknown.

You do not know the name of this darling baby, and his name may be unknown to us, but in his eyes dwell love and trust. His eyes are like doe-eyes. Yet the male deer is a young buck, rather than a doe, and he is known for his swift running and his ability to jump to high places.

Our prayer for this young man is this:

May the Lord strengthen and stablish you. Then as Isaiah says in the 6th verse of the 33rd Chapter, wisdom and knowledge shall be the stability of thy times, and strength of salvation: the fear of the Lord is his treasure."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

BURK GIRL WINS AGAIN

MARIAN BENTLEY

Marianne Bentley, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bentley and a member of the Burkburnett 4-H Community Club, was one of the four winners at the District 4H Dress Revue held at the Wilbarger Auditorium in Vernon on August 2nd. Girls from 17 counties of District III competed in the annual Revue. Miss Bentley, who won the Wichita County Revue in June will now go on to the State Fair in Dallas on Oct. 5th.

Miss Bentley modeled a tangerine orange dress she made. The A-Line dress is all orange except for a white yoke and standup collar. A matching orange jacket, also with a yoke, had long sleeves and white covered buttons. White accessories completed her outfit. Miss Bentley was judged on appearance, poise, personality, and her 4-H Record Book.

Miss Bentley has been a 4-H member for 7 years and she has completed projects in foods, clothing, electricity, poultry, entomology, child care, livestock, home improvement and preservation. She's held every office in the Burk Club except president. Last year she was secretary of the County 4-H Council and this year she is parliamentarian of the Council, and chairman of the County Sub-Committee. She has attended State 4H Roundup at Texas A & M and this year she attended the Junior Leadership Camp at Brownwood, Texas.

She will compete with 48 girls from all over the state of Texas at the State Revue. The Tennessee Trek, a national event sponsored by the Tanasi Girl Scout Council in Knoxville, Tenn., from August 4-16, has been an experience for Miss Diane Lutyens of Burkburnett. Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Lutyens of Burkburnett and the family moved to this area this summer from San Antonio. She will be a student at Burkburnett High School.

BURKBURNETT GIRL SCOUT ATTENDS TREK

Purpose of the trek was to provide opportunities for backpacking and trail skills while exploring the majesty of the Great Smokey Mountains and actually living surrounded by its primitive beauty. Learning first hand how to understand nature of the mountains and read the signs of wildlife with 64 other Senior Girl Scouts from around the United States. The history of the region was explored through field trips to the Cherokee Indian Reservation and other historic points of interest.

GUESS WHAT'S THE MOST POPULAR SHOPPER 'EXTRA' OF ALL TIME?

New York — Everybody likes to get a little something extra for his money.

Merchants learned that thousands of years ago, and in all the time since, those who most often succeeded were those who provided a greater added value for their customers.

But in the centuries long gone some of the added attractions were peculiar, indeed, to say the least.

At one time in the dim dark past, Roman cosmetic manufacturers gave a tooth of a special kind of wolf (named Hyrcanian) as a premium to women who purchased their beauty aids.

According to the explanation which has come down to us, the wolf's tooth was believed to have a magic property. When handled correctly, it would enable the woman to keep the love of the man she had selected.

The ancient Greek merchants also had a peculiar practice. In peddling images of the Athenian gods, they offered special packets of incense as an extra for purchasers.

The merchants claimed that the incense had an aroma that met with the particular deity's approval.

This merchandising proved so popular that the merchants soon also established a market for repeat orders of the incense.

At a somewhat later time in history, some long-forgotten baker found out he could beat his competition by adding an extra, 13th roll or bun to the standard dozen. Before long the competition was doing it, too, and gave rise to the expression "baker's dozen."

Generations ago in New Orleans the merchandising practice called "lagniappe"—the Cajun expression meaning a little something extra—became a standard retailing tradition.

Since the founding of this country the most successful merchants have always featured an extra of some kind or other with purchases.

Many of today's elders remember such things as peppermint sticks for the kids, or the cracker or pickle barrel for pop—not to mention the pot-bellied stove around which many a discussion of public affairs took place.

Still later came the free piece of cheese on the hunk of apple pie, the mustard for the hotdog and the two-for-one special, such as the double-header baseball game.

Today's merchants offer many more extras: free parking or delivery, weekly specials, "loss leaders," credit, local newspaper advertising to advise the housewife of bargains, convenient store locations, air conditioning, attractive decor, and so on.

But guess what has proved to be the most successful single idea of all time?

It's nothing more than a little square piece of gummed paper.

You know it as the trading stamp.

It has become by far the most popular merchandising promotion device in all history, both with customers and merchants.

The trading stamp idea won quick acceptance with the public when it was first introduced in this country 72 years ago, and ever since has continued to grow in consumer favor.

A national survey completed a few months ago showed that more than 8 out of 10 U.S. households are stamp users. This is a record figure.

Stamp popularity is attributable to a number of things. The chief ones are that the customer gets the stamps, redeemable for high quality merchandise, at no raise in store prices, and that all customers get the benefits equally on the basis of the amount spent.

Individuals or groups wishing to know more details of how trading stamps benefit consumers may obtain an informative booklet, entitled "What You Should Know About Trading Stamps," by writing the Trading Stamp Institute of America, Inc., at 11 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10004.

Drivers Urged To Be Careful Over Labor Day

The long Labor Day weekend brings thousands of additional holiday travelers on the highways. Everywhere, Texans will be enjoying the final summer cutting before school starts.

The Texas Highway Department strives to make the 68.5 thousand miles of highways in the State safe and convenient. Construction areas, however, pose special problems to travelers, even though every effort is made to move traffic through and around them as smoothly and safely as possible.
