CITY SALES TAX COLLECTION DUE TO BEGIN ON APRIL 1

Collection of a city sales tax of one per cent for Burk Burnett will begin on April 1. The tax was passed by local voters in October 1968, and approved by the state comptroller.

The city tax of one cent will be collected along with the state sales tax of three cents on all items subject to the state tax. Beginning April 1, the tax collected from consumers will be one cent on purchases of 12 cents, two cents on 38 cents, three cents on 63 cents and four cents on each dollar. Sales over one dollar will be taxed on the same basis.

City manager Gary Bean estimates that the city sales tax will bring in additional revenue of about $25,000 each year. City employees received a ten per cent salary raise, Jan. 1, in anticipation of the additional funds.

'Miss Burk Burnett' To Represent City At The Miss Texas Pageant

A "Miss Burk Burnett" will represent this city at the Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth, Tex., in July.

The next Miss America might be living right here in Burk Burnett. She may be your receptionist or secretary, or perhaps one of the youngsters in the annual High School play. Or she may be one of our girls attending college in another city or state. We extend an invitation for her to come home and compete in our Pageant.

You may see her every day and never suspect that a year from now she will be a magazine cover, touring foreign capitals, and representing American Young Womanhood as Miss America.

But if she is in Burk Burnett, we're going to find her at the local contest on April 12th. We're going to ask every citizen in this community to help us find a girl to represent us in the Miss Texas Pageant and perhaps go on to capture the Miss America title.

WE DIG THIS IDEA!

SEE AMERICA THIS SUMMER

One part of our balance-of-payments problem is the result of Americans spending more than twice as much in other countries as foreign visitors spend in our country.

What is being done about it? The government has joined its efforts with those of travel-related private industries to promote travel to and within the United States. This program is described in a 40-page booklet issued by the U.S. Department of Commerce, which details the economics of tourism in attractively illustrated pages. All Americans are urged to welcome visitors from other countries.

Tourist attractions of the United States are widely advertised by the petroleum industry, which is promoting a series of historical and scenic tours throughout the length and breadth of the country—offering a "living history" of the nation.

The entire travel and transportation industry is publicizing the desirability of American travel, but the added touch of personal invitation to those abroad, and the development of local programs can stimulate an even greater volume of visitors.

When responsible people in many nations are seeking a better understanding, person-to-person relationships can be of material help.

Are you going to extend an invitation this summer?

COOPERATE - BUT

The Odessa, Texas, American offers some timely comment on the widely-held belief that the functions of government and private enterprise can be blended in "semi-private corporations."

It observes, "A corporation, like a nation, cannot long endure (as a free entity) half slave to the state and half free. Freedom cannot be divided into pieces like a pie without destroying the flavor of the whole pie. The nature of freedom is inherent in the nature of God and who ever heard of a 'semi-private' deity?"

The goal of modern business is and should be to cooperate with government at all levels for the purpose of strengthening the private property, free market system under representative government.

But, there is a great difference between cooperation and subservience. Subservience follows the loss of economic independence, just as surely as night follows day.

FACT AND OPINION

"Strict law enforcement with no favoritism or exceptions is the surest cure for crime and mob violence in this country," says Congressman Wendell Wyatt of Oregon.

Americanism is an unflinching love of country; loyalty to its institutions and ideals; eagerness to defend it against all enemies; undivided allegiance to the flag; and a desire to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and posterity.

SENSING THE NEWS

By THURMAN SENSING
Southern States Industrial Council

THE 'HUNGER' SENSATIONALISTS

In recent months, Senator George McGovern (D-SD) and a pack of "hunger hunters" in the U.S. Senate have had a field day trying to present rural America, especially the Southern States, as a region of starvation. In recent weeks, for instance, Senator McGovern called on the U.S. Agriculture Department to use food surpluses in "places like Beaufort, S.C., where the children get half the calories they need each day — and the worms eat much of the that." Indeed, the Senator has had some success, for he pressured the federal government to step up its food stamp distribution in Beaufort.

Hunger is the "big thing" politically this year. A number of politicians apparently believe that it will pay off at the polls. Overnight, some politicians are discovering malnutrition as an issue.

Now, the fact is that malnutrition exists in some areas in the United States. There is hunger. Everyone knows that. It isn't necessary for a politician to make a big discovery out of it. To be sure, the problem of malnutrition is a limited one. It has been blown all out of proportion by the politicians and the sob sisters of the New Left.

The relevant questions are: why are some children hungry in the richest nation in the world? What should be done about it?

If anyone is hungry in America, it is not because the system is wrong or because community leaders are hard-hearted. Never in history have so many people been so well off in any nation as in America today. The vast majority of Americans know that the free enterprise system is a truly workable system. They obtain the fruits of their labor. More than that, this is a generous society in which we live — generous to a fault.

Every community has an abundance of church, volunteer and civic agencies that seek to help those who are in want. It can't be argued that affluent Americans are indifferent to the plight of the needy.

So why are there hungry children? The answer to that is ignorant, shiftless and morally irresponsible parents. Take Beaufort County, for example, which has been singled out for criticism in the mass media. It isn't a hardship county. On the contrary, it is the site of major military installations, with big payrolls, and has a large tourist business. Thousands of Beaufort County residents enjoy a good life. But like hundreds of counties in every state in the union, it has a small element of people who haven't adjusted to a self-reliant society or who prefer a dependent existence.

If one looks at these poverty pockets around the nation, one finds women with six children by many fathers, homes with color television but no heating stoves, houses with big cars parked outside but no plumbing — not even a sanitary privy. One finds children whose mothers and fathers have moved to big industrial cities and sent their youngsters home to be supported by aged grand parents, men and women who buy a couple of quarts of liquor on payday but no beans and bacon. One finds people who represent the third generation on relief.

A county or state government can't be blamed for the problems of such people, including the hunger. The federal government — the New Deal, Fair Deal, New Frontier, Great Society — is to blame for an environment in which no-work is rewarded with government aid and dependence is encouraged.

In the recent sensational "hunger" disclosures, the Nixon Administration has been persuaded to loosen rules governing distribution of food stamps. But the federal government could give away millions of dollars worth of food stamps and still not eliminate poverty or the tragedy of hungry children. Last year New York City alone had 870,000 people receiving relief checks. There is no end to dependency and to giveaways.

What is needed is order in the life of the hard-core poor. Able-bodied men must be compelled to work instead of lying about the house except when they go downtown to pick up their welfare checks or go to the liquor store. The "permissiveness" that is much discussed today is especially unfortunate with respect to those on relief. Lacking discipline, the hard-core poor need to be subjected to external discipline — requirements that they clean their dwelling places, observe sanitation rules and spend their money — the aid they receive — on food, not booze. This is what should be done, but will it be done? It is time that leaders speak up who will tell it like it is.

Family FINANCIAL PROTECTION

Polyholder Questions Answered by The Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. Things are pretty rough for me financially right now because I've had some big losses in the stock market and unexpected expenses when we discovered my youngest son has rheumatic fever. Because of these expenses I can't manage to pay the current premiums on my life insurance. What can I do?

A. First of all, you should have a talk with your life insurance agent. He will be able to counsel you.

If any of your policies is term insurance, it will have no cash value and you may have no other choice but to try to borrow to avoid dropping it. On the other hand, your permanent life insurance presents you with several alternatives.

If your financial situation seems to be temporary, you could use your cash values to keep your insurance in full force. A policy loan to pay part or all of your premiums would be the solution, and you could repay the loan when you are able.

If you don't think your financial situation will improve within the foreseeable future, then you might want to convert your policy to a smaller amount of paid-up protection, with no further payments. Another alternative might be to convert the policy to extended term insurance, keeping the full face value for the period of time stated in your policy. Depending on the amount of your cash value, this might remain in force for several years after you stop paying the premiums. This might be advisable if your family needs as much protection as possible right now.

Q. I recently inherited a large sum of money. I'm planning to put all of it into investments, but I've been wondering if I should pay my life insurance premiums in full. Is this ever done?

A. Yes, it can be done and may be a good idea if you have the funds to spare. If you do pre-pay your premiums, you will save money to the extent that life insurance companies discount the premiums at rates of from 4 to 4.5 per cent when pre-paid. It would be wise to check the tax considerations first.

UNIDENTIFIED FOOD SUBSTANCES

As exciting as "who dunnits" are — and as completely interesting as some television "private eye" series may be — it's my opinion that just as much glamour is present in the detective work now occurring daily in the world's nutrition research laboratories.

We are, in fact, very probably on the threshold of some of the most exciting findings in the history of modern nutrition research. Earlier in this century we began identifying, and realizing the essentiality of, vitamins. Now we are on the verge of determining possible "hidden deficiencies" and minimal needs for so-called "trace" minerals. By this I mean our needs for minute amounts of minerals such as zinc, copper, nickel, aluminum, vanadium, and others. Plant life and other lower forms of life are known to need these minerals for normal functioning. We are beginning to learn that humans need them, too. And human needs for iron in the diet are, of course, well known.

More to be Identified

Equally, we are on the track of uncovering unidentified substances in food that we know are there but researchers must identify and catalogue with respect to human needs. These factors represent the most exciting nutrition research questions facing us today.

How do we know that unidentified factors exist?

The device that research "detectives" use is similar to that employed by the scientists who discovered vitamins many years ago. You start with a so-called "purified" diet that contains all the known nutrients in sufficient amounts. This calls for a mix of pure proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals. Fed to experimental animals, and keeping a record of the results in terms of growths and reproductive abilities yields information to the scientist. If he can get better results by adding any natural foods to this diet he can be fairly certain that natural food contains some unidentified factor — something we don't know about — that is responsible for the better health of the experimental animals.

Many Clues

The next job is to identify exactly what it is that makes the difference. The challenging character of today's research is the fact that many clues are coming to the fore. So are new research techniques for finding answers. Heretofore unknown vitamins, trace minerals, the interactions between various nutrients and their presence in foods in certain balanced amounts, and antioxidant factors are among the unidentified food substances I am talking about. Research techniques and new systems for analyzing data are reported with increasing regularity.

Until we know exactly what it is that we do not know, nutritionists are anxious that people protect themselves from under-nourishment. In other words, because we do know that unidentified substances in our foods of animal and plant origin do exist, it is obviously wise for you to eat a wide variety of food from the four food groups — the milk group, the meat group, vegetables and fruits, and enriched or whole grain breads and cereals.

Adopt Routine

If you do this routinely, you'll be providing for your good health now. Later scientists can tell you why it was a such a good idea. You'll be snug, snug, and secure in the knowledge that you won't be missing needed health-giving food elements

Highway Patrol Investigates 13 Rural Accidents

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 13 accidents on rural highways in Wichita County during the month of February, according to Sergeant D. S. Lawson, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in one person killed, two persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $12,405.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first two months of 1969 shows a total of 31 accidents resulting in one person killed, and 20 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $29,300.

"Windy" March is here. Pedestrians and drivers can be temporarily blinded by blowing dust or sand — long enough for a hazardous situation to develop and lead to an accident. The reduction of visibility can cause a head-on collision, a rear-end collision, or a run-off roadway type of accident.

The wind itself can exert a powerful force on your vehicle and force it across or off the roadway. Sudden changes in wind velocity can cause you to lose control of your vehicle. Be sure to have both hands on the steering wheel to help maintain control of your vehicle.

The sergeant said, "Be alert and prepared for these dangers of gusty winds and reduced visibility."

Should Schools Consolidate?

Legislative action can soon be expected on proposals that will have tremendous impact on our state's public school system and the young people of Texas for years to come.

The recent and controversial report of the Committee on Public School Education is represented in several bills already introduced in both houses of the Legislature.

Of primary concern is the proposal to force consolidation of 865 of the state's 1,218 districts, creating 353 districts containing no less than 2,600 students. This would obviously eliminate practically every rural and small community school in the state.

Also of great significance is the proposal to institute a sweeping re-evaluation of all real property in Texas, a program that will, for all practical effect, establish the state board of education as a statewide tax assessor for local school taxes.

That this is aimed directly at the thousands of rural landowners and residents in Texas can hardly be doubted, as the committee's report declares: "The Bartlett study verified the fact that city school districts are being cheated in the distribution of state school aid because county tax rolls favor rural areas."

Certainly it should be recognized that there are schools, supporting only a handful of students, that should consider consolidation with neighboring districts, certainly it should be recognized that tax inequities, favoring some rural districts, do exist.

But we submit the arbitrary elimination of our rural schools and resultant decay of thousands of rural communities, and the many complex problems arising, is not the answer. Voluntary consolidation should be encouraged, but mere bigness is no guarantee of quality or economy.

We also submit that the tax proposal, that will result in tax bills to our state's rural residents — farmers and ranchers who live on their land and make their living from the land — increasing two, three and four times in size, is certainly as inequitable as is now claimed by the committee on behalf of citizens of metropolitan centers.

The old saying that two wrongs don't make a right certainly seems appropriate in this area. It would appear much more logical and practical, then, while encouraging voluntary consolidation of many of our smaller schools, to seek new ways to improve and upgrade the curricula of these schools and to spend our tax money to help accomplish this goal; to bring advanced and improved educational opportunities to the students rather than forcing them to travel many additional miles per day for their education, and to keep control of our schools where it always has been and should always be — in the hands of our local citizens and taxpayers.

That this is aimed directly at the thousands of rural landowners and residents in Texas can hardly be doubted, as the committee's report declares: "The Bartlett study verified the fact that city school districts are being cheated in the distribution of state school aid because county tax rolls favor rural areas."

Certainly it should be recognized that there are schools, supporting only a handful of students, that should consider consolidation with neighboring districts, certainly it should be recognized that tax inequities, favoring some rural districts, do exist.

But we submit the arbitrary elimination of our rural schools and resultant decay of thousands of rural communities, and the many complex problems arising,

Adult members should keep these dates in mind and make reservations with the Explorer Adviser.

Fifty miles of canoe travel is the aim of this trip. River roads under consideration are the Red, Wichita, Brazos, Pease, and Possum Kingdom Lake.

It is the wish of the older members that the Red River will oblige them with ample water because then they hope to make Lake Texoma their destination.

Every member must have his life preserver and paddle in addition to camping equipment. For additional information call Neil Kreidler, 569-3622.

Drivers in West Berlin are never stymied by closed service stations when they run short of fuel: since 1965, they can 'fill her up' from coin-operated gas pumps at 150 locations throughout the city.

This convenience in an area that previously required personal service is but one among many that enable Berliners to overcome the strictly observed hours of closing for retail establishments: groceries and canned goods, and even cold snacks complete with cutlery and a napkin, are available to them from automatic dispensers 24 hours a day.

The fully automatic gas vending machines offer any desired combination of up to $7.50 worth of five different grades of gasoline. They also print a receipt showing the location, amount spent, month and year; and stop the flow when your tank is filled, returning the unspent portion of your deposit. If the gas pump was empty to start with, you get your money back.

These self-service gas pumps have safeguards that check each coin and reject slugs, etc. Because they are almost impossible to break open, there is no record of successful pilferage of the cash compartments.

Most purchases from coin-operated gas pumps are made late at night: on the average, 23% of the customers come between 9 and 10 p.m., and 43% between 10 and 12 p.m. Demand is usually heavy also during the compulsory lunch and dinner closings, particularly on Sundays and holidays.

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

Crisis in "Fun City"

Ever since Mayor John Lindsay, in taking office, proclaimed New York "Fun City" its residents have found less and less justification for this moniker. Strikes like the garbage walkout and the teachers dispute added to the long list of city ills that appear to be getting worse instead of better.

New Yorkers have always had a great deal of pride in the city's bigness. But its problems are big, too.

"Fun City" taxpayers are confronted with an enormous welfare problem. The city's welfare roll is growing at the rate of 20,000 persons a month. Estimates put the number being supported by welfare at one million, nearly one out of every eight residents, and more than the population of Houston.

Costs of this "public assistance" are rising even faster. The city has estimated its spending will reach $685 million a year by this June, compared with $454 million two years ago. Millions in state and Federal money is also used.

The city's welfare cost—now more than it spends on education—is going up faster than the city can collect taxes from the gainfully employed and the businessmen, large and small. A crisis is at hand.

This runaway situation is quite puzzling because, nationally, unemployment is unusually low. What would it be like if there was a depression?

The situation is so dynamic and perplexing that the Federal government has initiated a study of the city's welfare program. From past experience, this should be fair warning to the nation's taxpayers.

In fact, Governor Nelson Rockefeller has already suggested that the Federal government should take over the various welfare programs entirely. One reason advanced for such a turnover is the disparity between state benefits: a welfare family in Mississippi gets only a small fraction of what one can draw in New York.

Since the Supreme Court ruled last summer that a state cannot require a period of residency before doling out welfare benefits, this may be promoting the migration of people into New York, and other states where payments are high.

Under this "instant welfare" policy, a family can pick up checks assured that taxpayers of another state will help finance the family's venture.

Besides the proposal that the Federal government finance and administer all welfare, there is talk originating in Washington that the present system of applications, investigations and paperwork be eliminated and that a simple "statement of need" be sufficient to start the welfare dollars coming.

The situation in New York shows how a welfare program can get out of hand. As a cigarette commercial asks, "Where will it all end?"

Snow Bunny Anyone?

When skiers at some of the country's most popular ski resorts put aside their skis and seek the warmth of a welcoming fireplace and a hot meal, many of them enjoy a yummy combination consisting of a toasted Thomas' English muffin topped off with a slice of ham and a cheese sauce.

Some skiers are dubbing this version of a Welsh rabbit a Snow Bunny. Call it what you will, it's delicious. Best part of this treat is it knows no hour—it's equally good for brunch, lunch or supper. And you don't have to be a skier to enjoy it either. Try it on your stay-at-homes. They'll love it. Incidentally, next time you're in your favorite market shopping for Thomas' English muffins, pick up an extra package or two of muffins to put in your freezer so you'll have English muffins on hand whenever you need them.

Spring is here once again with a bouquet of pastel blossoms and mouthwatering things to eat. It's time for buds, birds on the wing and luscious, deep-red strawberries that reach their tantalizing pinnacle April through July. The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

America in its early days depended on the "GOOD BOOK" for its guide in ethics, worship, and pursuit of freedom. These early gains are now in danger of falling and we need to turn all America once again to God and His word. America can be strong only when each individual looks to God for strength.

Calvary Baptist Church Revival Slated To Begin Here Monday

Calvary Baptist Church, College and Ave. B, begins revival services Monday night, March 24th, and will continue through Sunday night, March 30th. Services begin nightly at 7:30 p.m.

The evangelist for the revival will be Bro. Vergle Jones, pastor of the Irvin Road Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas.

Bro. Jones is no stranger in Burkburnett. He grew up here, and graduated from the Burkburnett High School, where he played on the football team. Many of his relatives still live here, among them his dad and Mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones.

Bro. Jones has been in the ministry nearly twenty years, and has pastored churches and held revival meetings all over Texas and Oklahoma. He was saved, baptized and ordained to the ministry in the Calvary Baptist Church here.

This man preaches the truth of God's word with feeling and conviction. You will do well to hear him every night.

The pastor, Ray C. Morrow, along with the entire Church, extends to one and all a warm and cordial welcome.

World-famed heart transplant surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley watches in Houston as one of his surgical team signs up with The Living Bank, a non-profit organization formed to help persons who wish to donate all or parts of their bodies for transplantation or research upon death. Dr. Cooley and several others on his team signed the few papers necessary. The Living Bank's founder, Mrs. Glen Karsten of Houston, provided the forms as nurse Mary Lou Budde signed. In a joint press conference following the event, both Dr. Cooley and Mrs. Karsten emphasized the importance of a central international information center such as The Living Bank for progress in the field of transplantation of human organs. The Living Bank can be contacted at P. O. Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77005. Dr. Cooley was presented with a gold Living Bank pin when he signed the forms to donate all of his body for medical use.
