County H.D. Clubs Hold Safety Demonstrations

The Highway Safety meeting sponsored by the Kent County Home Demonstration Clubs was held at the Girard Community Center, Monday afternoon, February 28.

Mr. Lawrie Taylor showed an interesting film made by H. Smith, sponsored by the Ford Motor Company. Defensive, courteous driving, by creating a space cushion around us, and correcting our visual bad habits while driving were made in five main points.

(1). Aim high with your vision by looking several blocks ahead.

(2). Get the big picture. Don't center your eyes on any one thing. Know what is going on around you.

(3). Keep your eyes moving as if covering a wide screen. Watch your rearview mirrors.

(4). Leave yourself an out. Cut speed to avoid trouble, or if visibility is cut for any reason, night, rain, or if following a truck.

(5). Make sure that others see you by giving polite taps on your horn, signal lights, and hand signals.

Mr. Smith stressed leaving yourself a space cushion, whenever possible. Count to three before starting up when at a traffic light, to let the driver of the car get some space between you, then drive approximately the same speed as the moving traffic.

You Will Feel Better When Well Nourished

"For physical fitness, nutrition is important in the middle and later years as it was when you were under 40," said Mrs. Roberta Stansland Extension county home demonstration agent. "Even though cooking for just one or two, you'll feel better if well nourished."

A person needs fewer calories after age 40, but the need for vitamins, minerals and protein stays high throughout life. The agent suggested choosing adequate amounts of these nutrients from the basic four food groups each day.

The basic four groups include milk, meat, fruits and vegetables and breads and cereals.

Citrus fruits provide vitamin C. Select butter or margarine, eggs and vegetables for vitamin A.

Include fruits, eggs, enriched breads and cereals as sources of iron. "Make every dish you prepare as tasty and attractive as possible, Mrs. Stansland suggested. Use fruit and vegetable garnishes even though they take some time to prepare."

Make a meal plan that's easy to follow such a plan helps the homemaker include all the necessary foods in daily meals.

"With fewer to cook for, you may find it more economical to buy foods in small units than you once did," the agent advised. "If half a giant size box of cereal goes to waste, it's food money lost." Consult cookbooks to know what ingredients to buy for making smaller amounts of food than before.

For best nutrition, use leftovers in creative ways. Tom strips of ham or chicken with greens to make an attractive chef's salad. Or combine meats with saucers, canned soup or vegetables to make new one, dish meals.

"Remember to reheat leftovers in the oven to have a delicious addition to your meal with less watching than when you reheat leftovers on the range top", Mrs. Stansland said.

Freeze leftovers and later they'll seem like new dishes.

"Nutritional health is just as important when you get older as it was when you were younger," the agent said. "Make the effort and take the time to eat nutritious meals."

If program crop yields on which payments are made are based on both irrigated and dry-land yields (blended yields), the set-aside must be in proper proportion, the instructions say.

Cub Scouts Hold Blue And Gold Banquet

February was the birthday month for the Boy Scouts of America. The highlight of the month is the annual Blue and Gold Banquet.

This year the Jayton Cub Scouts were especially honored to have Frank Runkles from Post to be the guest speaker for their banquet. He dressed in the full attire of a Comanche chief, showed some Indian relics, did a war dance, and generally kept the audience enthralled.

Approximately 45 people, including cubs and their families, enjoyed the covered dish meal. Den Two began the program with an opening ceremony along the Indian theme. Then Den One and Two combined to tell what cubbing is all about. The program was closed by Den One, who used Indian sign language to convey their message.

Boys who are at least 8 years of age and not over 10 years, may join in the fun of cubbing. Parents may contact Mr. Randal Navert, cubmaster, or one of the den leaders to enroll their sons.

TICKLE BOX by Ted Trogdon

"Uh, does this mean I'm fired?"

Unkel Zeke Sez

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I thought when scientists come up with a mechanic pig mama a few years back that we had gone as far as we could go, technical speaking. But just when a feller starts thinking that way, somepun comes along that shows marvels never ebe.

Saturday night at the country store, Zeke Grubb give a report on an invention that puts em all in the shade, the 40 hour week, the moon buggies, the music for hens to lay by, all of em. Zeke said it looks like we got the answer to the question the first man ask when he set down aside the first cow and started to milk. What to do about that tall?

Zeke said he had saw buried back in one of his farm journals last week where this feller in Florida had give a patent for a cow tail holder. Zeke allowed it was one of the most important news items in the history of the world, and he was terrible shocked it wasn't on the front page. Zeke said the papers was full of stuff about President Nixon going to China to play Ping Pong so he won't get cloaked by the Vice President's golf balls, when they could be telling folks about the cow tail holder.

The fellers was true excited about Zeke's report. Bug Hookum said folks have had about as good luck controlling Bossie's tail as the Government has with Jap imports. Ever time a feller figgered a single on that tail, the old gal come up with two new ways to hit him with it. Bug said we has tried everything from tying a brick to Bossie's tail to tying the tail to the barn door. The cow would overcome gravity and flap the brick up side your head, or she would git upset cause her tail was stuck and kick over the milk bucket or step in it.

That was it, broke in Zeke, the Government patent said this new cow tail holder "holds the tail firmly without disturbing the composure of the animal." That was the wonder of it, said Zeke. It clomps around the tail and the cow's leg and jest holds the tail out of the way.

Clem Webster said he had his doubts about the future of the cow tail holder. He said milking is on the automatic now in the first place, and in the second place it wouldn't surprise him to see scientists come up with a detailed cow like they done with her horns. Inventions, allowed Clem, is like the feller that allus was a hour late and a dollar short. Clem said if he was to figger a way to grow a square tomat, it would be right after some feller come out with round sandwich bread.

But the fellers was full agreed, Mister Editor, that a cow tail holder that worked 200 year ago would of done no end of good for civilization, special the church. Old Bossie's tail, claimed Clem, probable has caused more folks to lose their religion than anything short of a preacher that lets his sermon run 10 minute over.

Sincerely
Unkle Zeke

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Jayton Chronicle,
Congratulations on the new Community Center. I read with interest your intent to have paintings, etc., to adorn the walls. How about organizing a "Society for Preservation of Cottonpickers". All of us who are left should be honored for our service to the county.

What prompted me into thinking of those long ago days of getting down and picking them "boles" on our knees, or stooping of back was my inquiring of the price of cotton. Can you believe I called three brokerage firms to ask the price of cotton only to be told that commodities were not their market. Next I searched for the Cotton Exchange and it is no longer listed in the Houston phone book. Finally I called Anderson-Clayton Co. who referred me to the Houston Cotton Exchange. The fellow knew the price immediately, "38¢ around Houston and about 28¢ around Lubbock". Then he added, "Hasn't been one of our best years."

I got to thinking, if Cotton is the King of the South, some of us who knows it the best needs to keep its name before the public in this day and time of synthetics, etc.

On that petition for the domino parlor in Jayton, did you all put down for some ivory dominos?

Always looking for the next issue of the Jayton Chronicle.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Alice Davis Wilson

Dear Mr. Richards:
I want to say thank you for sending my paper on. It's always a pleasure to get the Jayton Chronicle and read of our many friends.

Last week was especially appreciated. The wedding picture of my grandson, Douglas Mark Hoskinson and his wonderful wife.

There came a time in my life my heart was saddened and my friends at Girard and Jayton kept me up. I miss these wonderful people and those small towns where everybody says Hello and stops a minute on the street to chat.

As all my friends know I didn't drive much there and here in this town I have to drive in a city of 90,000 people.

Mr. Richards, I had a fear about driving in this traffic. I had been taught as a child faith was stronger than fear. So now I drive at ease, but it's good to have fear to help us see the right way and be sure we are on the right path.

Mr. Richards, I love getting this wonderful paper, I wish some one at Girard would send in the news from there.

I am sending a poem as you can see it's yellow from age. It's been a blessing to me. Please put it in your paper. Enclosed is $4.00 for the Jayton Chronicle.

When does a baby start to think?

Nobody knows, but thoughts come by association. Baby eagerly responds to the sight of a bottle. Experience proves that the bottle offers both satisfaction and comfort.

Because baby does learn by association, it is important that parents expand their children's horizons. A very small child will respond to a simple prayer. And a child of three will enjoy attending Church School geared for youngsters of that age.

Religious instruction and guidance is not only for the mature—it is needed regularly by everyone. The spiritual life of your child needs constant cultivation and the mind needs day by day development.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas

THERE ARE SOME RED FACES around after secret proposals made by the Communist North Vietnamese were recently made public. It was revealed that the President's emissary, Henry Kissinger, had offered Hanoi many of the same things the extreme doves have been demanding. It seems the President was willing to make just about every concession espoused by the "Peace" advocates, short of complete capitulation.

One point in Mr. Nixon's plan, as presented by Mr. Kissinger, was a $7 1/2 billion foreign aid program for all of Indo-China, with $2 1/2 billion earmarked for Communist North Vietnam. The significance of this point was somewhat lost among the others making up the proposal. In fact it is the most amazing of the main seven points involved.

Since when has the president—any President—or his representative in this case, been endowed with the authority to appropriate, earmark and spend taxpayers dollars except by the Congress? This illustrates the usurpation of power by the Executive which has been in process for the last several years, including warmaking.

in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Woods of Arnett, Oklahoma spent the weekend with relatives in Jayton. The Louis, Archie and Bennie Smith families.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Woods and Bennie Smith went to Midland Monday to pick up Allen and Candice Cravin, the Woods great-grandchildren, so they could go home with them for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith went to Lubbock to have a checkup last week. They were dismissed for two months. He took his last X-ray treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson of Meadow visited with his sister Mr. and Mrs. Dave Boydston Sunday and attended the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Parks Snyder visited with her daughter Mr. and Mrs. Howard Goswick and attended church services on Sunday.

The North Vietnamese have consistently shown a rather sophisticated grasp of American politics. They have played on the dissension in this Country over the war to the fullest extent. In many ways they have successfully depended on this divisiveness to hold hostage our prisoners and to prevent total destruction of their Country. At the same time, they probably know that Mr. Nixon may not be able to deliver on his $2 1/2 Billion offer.

It is as if our bombing assaults had seriously damaged North Vietnam but the fact is they are not badly hurt by reason of our policy of limited attacks against it.

At a time when foreign aid is being reduced to friendly nations, the North Vietnamese probably, and correctly, have an idea that of the $7 1/2 billion total for Indo-China, the $2 1/2 billion might be pretty hard to come by. And, they would be if the Congress balked at appropriating this kind of money? Where would we be if we walked out of South Vietnam, leaving our prisoners in North Vietnam and unable to furnish the money pledged for a "peace" settlement?

At a time when there seems to be a sentiment in the Country and the Congress to reduce foreign aid and channel the savings into domestic programs of one sort or another, it is highly doubtful that another huge program of this dimension will be approved for Indo-China. There are active considerations in the Congress, and particularly in the Senate, ranging from reduction to the elimination of foreign aid. Looking at what the United States has always done in the past to aid former enemies, the North Vietnamese may expect such a policy to continue, regardless of what they do but if they are as perceiving

OFF-KEY REPLY

A steady customer became indignant at receiving a typewritten letter, many years ago, from Montgomery Ward & Co., one of the first American firms to use typewriters. The customer wrote: "Misters, you don't need print letters for me. I ain't got no college education but I ken read niting as good as any."

There are both compact and spreading varieties of bedding petunias. The compact ones usually are listed in catalogs as "dwarf". They have mound-shaped plants.

as it appears, they may get the message that such massive handouts are not likely. With the billions burnt up in the war, it would be cheap to pay off the North Vietnamese communists with $2 1/2 Billion to withdraw their forces from South Vietnam; to cease their aggression and to release our prisoners but before the ransom is paid they should have to perform in advance their part of the agreement. This is the only way they might get the $2 1/2 billion.

Letters To Editor

DOUBLE MOUNTAIN Coronado, a Spanish explorer is thought to be the first European to ever see double mountain in A. D. 1540. The Double Mountains have long been a place of mystery with many legendary tales of buried treasure. Much labor has been expended searching for elusive gold. The mountains have been lookout points by Spanish Indians and settlers from the days of Spanish dominion. The early trail drivers often used the vicinity for rest stops, back in the not to far distant past.

It is said that moonshine liquor was made in hidden caves, in 1920. I was with some men on the east mountain when a man sprang up among us running like a jack-rabbit he went down the mountain like a mountain goat only faster. He was running as fast as he could see him, he was supposed to be in hiding. He was in no danger as no one could have caught him.

Several years before this incident occurred, I was with a bunch of young people on a Sunday picnic. We were on the west mountain a boy was showing us how close he could get to the edge. He got a little too close and went over board, fortunately there was a narrow ledge eight or ten feet below that he managed to hang on until we could get him back to safety. If the ledge had not been there, he probably would have fallen at least a hundred feet. He was wearing a pair of new pants which were badly damaged.

For years I kept a copy of the Aspermont Star printed in 1911 it contained a story of a mystery which took place near Double Mountain sixty-one years. That is a long time.

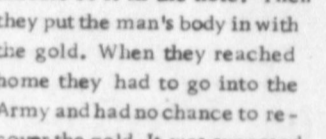

But I believe that I can write the story about like I read it at the time, one morning a man living near the Mountain went out to milk his cows, there was a freshly dug hole near his cow lot containing some bones. He called the sheriff at Aspermont, who came over with another man and pronounced the bones as human bones. For some time an old man had seen him around the mountains. He became friends with a man and told him that he was seeking a buried treasure, and later told him the following story. He said that at the beginning of the Civil War that he entered the Confederate army, and he became friendly with a man and they were close friends until the man was mortally wounded in battle. He said that before he died that his friend told him that he had a map that he wanted him to have, and told him that he and another man were working for a man who owned a horse ranch. They drove a bunch of horses to Montana and sold them for seventy thousand dollars in gold. On their return to Texas they stopped at Double Mountains, on an afternoon. Their horses went hunting and while away they planned his murder. When he came back he lay down to take a nap, and this man shot him. They kept only two horses in camp. The Indians stole the others that night. They took out some of the gold, dug a hole and put the rest of it in the hole. Then they put the man's body in with the gold. When they reached home they had to go into the Army and had no chance to recover the gold. It was supposed that the old man got the gold. He was not seen around any more. I have written this as it was printed in the Aspermont Star in 1911 and I am sure that there are people living around Aspermont today who remember the occurrence.

QUANDARY
Each morning when I venture out,
The roguish sun is on my route.
He walks with me through
lane and street,
Down country road, and parkway neat.
As boldly he pursues,
defies,
With sunbeam dust he fills
my eyes!
Although at times, he seems a gangster,
It could be, he is just a prankster.

Lazy Lasagne
A Favorite Recipe of Nancy (Mrs. Ben) Barnes
Special to the Jayton Chronicle

Serves 6-8.
*And an old stand-by to keep frozen. It seems a bit informal for our Capitol dining room, but so good you soon forget.

2 pounds ground round steak
1 t. salt
1 envelope Lawry's spaghetti sauce mix
2 cans (1 lb. each) tomatoes
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
1 t. basil
grated Parmesan cheese
1 package (8 oz.) lasagne noodles
2 packages (6 oz. each) sliced Mozzarella cheese
In Dutch oven or large saucepan, brown meat in salt. Add spaghetti sauce mix, tomatoes, tomato sauce, basil and a generous sprinkling of Parmesan cheese. Simmer 30 minutes. Cook lasagne noodles just until tender. In 9" x 11" casserole, layer meat sauce, noodles, and Mozzarella cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Repeat layers, saving enough meat sauce to pour over top layer. Bake in 300 to 325 degree oven for 20 minutes. This is simplified version of lasagne, yet has an authentic taste; better by far if made the day before or at least early in the morning, and then baked just before serving.
