Jaybirds Tale Lead In District Title Chase By Downing Hawley 28-0 Here Friday

Football Contest Starts With Tie

The contestants really got into the Chronicle football contest this week. A whole lot of people came up with their own opinions and only one miss. Most of them did not get into consideration.

Others were determined by the breaker score which was first was Jean Parker 28.

second W. L. Mayer, 32, and third Alfonso Trevino, 36. Others were Gus Fincher 38, Mike Wilson 39, Roy Harrison 49, George Johnson 52, and Leella Hall 52.

Quite a number of people guessed ten games right. This contest is made possible by the merchants listed on the contest page.

Quite a number of people, looking at the Jaybirds' 0-4 season record (including high sitting sports writers) decide the Birds had lost their wings, and went for the Bearcats Friday night, and this was their first mistake.

The Jaybirds scored in the first, second and fourth quarters, while withholding any points from the visitor, and had 28 points on the scoreboard when the final gun sounded.

It could have been declared Mark Fincher night. The sophomore back scored two touchdowns, ran two conversions for four points, and intercepted a 'Cat pass.

Also senior Mike Wilson pushed two touchdowns to help the Jaybird cause.

The backs and ends get their names in the headlines Saturday morning, but this was made possible by the fine blocking in the line, and the tough hitting of the defense. It was truly a team victory.

In stats, the Birds led 18 to 7, and rushed for 252 yards, compared with 60 for the Cats. The Jaybirds completed 5 of 7 passes for 88 yards, losing one pass; Hawley completed 3 of 7 passes for 8 yards, and had one picked off.

Jayton lost 3 fumbles and Hawley lost 2. The Birds were penalized 4 times for 40 yards, Hawley 7 times for 63 yards.

Jayton punted one time for 52 yards, while Hawley averaged 23 yards on 7 punts.

It was the Jaybirds first conference tilt, giving them a 4-1 season record and 1-0 in district. Hawley is now 1-1 in district and 3-2 for the season.

Work Planned On Texas 76

Projects in Kent County are included in a $40.7 million program to increase safety and improve sections of non-interstate highways in Texas.

District Engineer J. C. Roberts of Abilene said work to be performed under the annual program includes such things as widening of pavements and structures, reconditioning, resurfacing, providing additional surfacing, sodding and improvement of shoulders and other miscellaneous work.

The projects in Kent County will involve only a seal coat on the existing pavement.

Statewide, the 1974 State Highway Safety and Betterment and Farm to Market Improvement Program includes work on 5,095.2 miles of US- and State-numbered highways and Farm to Market Roads. The program includes 810 individual projects in 209 counties of the State.

Fifty-seven percent of the work statewide will be on US- and State-numbered highways and 41 percent on Farm to Market Roads with two percent reserved for later assignment.

Projects in Kent County are: S. H. 70 from Dickens County line to U. S. 380.

The trouble with most speakers is they shout too loudly for the little they have to say.

Campbell Funeral Home. He was a veteran of World War II.

was hushed up, and kept from the public, then the people of the state again elected him to the Senate.

My guess is that within six years, the people of the state of Maryland will elect Agnew to a high state office. Watch it and see.

Jim Reynolds, our neighbor to the east, editor of the Crosbyton Review, who usually wears a smile, was frowning in print last week. He was pointing out the financial woes of weekly newspapers, things we are all well aware of. He rather raked some of his local merchants for sending too many of their advertising dollars out of town, to never return. In point, he mentioned a radio station 40 miles away. This sounded like Post or Slaton.

Really, I noticed something in Reynolds' paper the week before which looked to me like smiling material. In his statement of ownership, etc., which the postal service requires that all papers run once each year, he listed no mortgage holders. And yet he thinks he is not doing so well. My, my.

Sunday afternoon late, we were driving from Slaton toward Idalou on State Highway 400 and noticed four crop planes at work, applying leaf killer to crops.

This signifies that the farmers are getting ready to start harvesting the crops.

Between Lubbock and Levelland on Monday, we noted one field with the cotton harvesters at work, and most of the cotton already out.

Even if we were not witnessing fall weather, cool nights and warm days, we would know it is fall.

CISCO VISITORS
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rogers of Cisco visited Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Stanaland Sunday.

My wife and I were driving on University Avenue in Slaton Sunday morning shortly after ten o'clock. Here came a car west on Broadway, and headed north on University. On the car was a sign that said "Believe it or not, the car made the turn without losing the precious cargo; but about halfway down the block toward the intersection, and the car continued right on up the street.

My guess is that he approached the car with both hands, put part of it on top to get a free hand to open the door, and then forgot to get it.

I can imagine the feeling of frustration when he arrived at the first stop—and no coverage.

If a person ever had any doubt about justice, American style, he indeed show favoritism, and that doubt has certainly been removed by the unwinding of the Agnew case.

Let's look at it like this. Take for instance, the four Cubans caught in the Watergate break-in. All they did was commit an act of burglary, and were caught inside the building. They never hurt anyone, they did not steal anything; they were guilty of a simple case of

Robert Adolphus Moreland Kent County Pioneer Buried In Jayton

Robert Adolphus Moreland, 87, pioneer Jayton resident died in Callan hospital Tuesday, from an extended illness.

He probably knew more about Kent County and its people than any other person, having spent much time in accumulating and writing its history.

Thursday in the Jayton Church of Christ, with Virgil Yoakum officiating.

Burial was in Jayton Cemetery, with Weatherbee Funeral Home of Rotan in charge of arrangements.

Christ. He was married to Bertha Vencil December 5, 1921, in Floydada.

Robert Segura, number 22 made the first touchdown for the Jaybirds. The extra point attempt failed. During the fourth quarter Gene Cleveland threw a zig-zag pattern to cover 60 yards down the field for the last score.

There was a pass interception by Gene Cleveland during the course of the game. Billy Harrison recovered a fumble and Marion Perkins gained position of the ball by recovering a missed lateral.

Farmcast
A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

What Goes Up Comes Down... Sheep, Lamb Feeding Continue Decline... Red Meat Production Dips.

While much notice was given when farm prices were advancing to new record levels, very little has been said regarding recent farm price declines. Agricultural producers are well aware of price declines during the past few weeks. Cattle prices, for example, have decreased in price 30 per cent during the past several weeks (the same is true for hogs). The price decline is the biggest since 1950.

It shows again that the law of supply and demand does work in agriculture. As more livestock went to market, the price declined and these downward dips to producers hopefully will result in lower prices for the consumer. Livestock prices—as is the case with all agricultural commodities—will continue to go up and then down. Prices to farmers do in fact fluctuate widely on the short range as well as the long haul. Meanwhile, production costs of farmers remain fairly static and in fact continue to increase in price even though the price that farmers receive for their food and fiber gyrate constantly.

This is one of the lessons in agricultural economics that the general public knows very little about, yet it is basic to farming and ranching.

Texas' farm prices as of Sept. 15 are down two per cent below the previous month.

Beef cattle at $47.80 per hundred pounds are down $8.50 from a month ago.

Hogs at $41.80 were $14 below last month. Other meat and poultry prices were also below month ago levels. Sheep at $15, for example, was down $4.40 per hundredweight from a month ago; lambs were down $3.90. Broilers were off two cents from last month, and turkeys declined four cents per pound. Egg prices dropped six cents per dozen from a month ago.

Crops showed some price increases, the first in some time. Cotton was up nine cents from a month ago but is still more than 20 cents under parity. Grain sorghum was up 28 cents from a month ago. Wheat was up 23 cents per bushel.

DRYLOT sheep feeders with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 107,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of Sept. 1, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes.

This is nine per cent below the number on feed a month earlier and 10 per cent below the number on feed Oct. 1 of a year ago.

Current intentions to market are: October 47,000; November 33,000, and December 27,000.

Placements during September totaled 34,000 head with a total of 10 feeders reporting 1,000 or more head on feed as of Oct. 1. Marketings during September totaled 50,000 head.

COMMERCIAL slaughter of red meats in Texas is reported to be down three per cent during August and 14 per cent below a year ago.

Cattle slaughtered totaled 290,000 head, which is 8,000 below the number slaughtered a month prior and 42,000 under a year ago.

Hog slaughter is 50,000 less than a year ago. The eight-month cumulative hog kill this year totals 1,068,000. Calves killed during August was 3,900 above last month but 1,500 less than a year ago.

LIVESTOCK producers are again reminded to continue to submit screwworm samples to the fly laboratory at Mission. Also check your herds regularly and treat wounds on livestock for screwworm control.

Booby Trap Against Trespassers

On the outskirts of town stood an old open-air theater, abandoned for years. The owner of the property, resentful of occasional trespassers, decided to get tough. He placed a small bomb under the stage, connecting it to a nearby door.

Sure enough, a few days later a youthful intruder opened the door, set off the bomb, and suffered fatal injuries.

Could the property owner be held legally liable for this tragedy? At a court hearing, he insisted he had the right to safeguard his property against any unlawful intrusion.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

AN ERROR THAT GAVE US THE MODERN MICROSCOPE

Sometimes the mistakes made in scientific research lead to more amazing results than the successes. The fact that we now have microscopes that magnify objects 200,000 times is the chance result of a scientific error, which showed the way to use an electron beam in microscopy.

The first microscope was invented by a Dutchman named Leeuwenhoek. His instruments started the scientific world of his day. For the first time, men could examine in some detail the structure of a snowflake, a flea's leg, or a grain of oats.

During 150 years, many improvements were made in the microscope. About 80 years ago, instruments with a power of about 1000 were constructed. Then it was discovered that the limits of power had been reached, unless some new medium with a wave length shorter than that of ordinary light could be used.

The next step was the adaptation of the microscope to the use of ultra-violet light. By this means, instruments with a magnification of 2500 diameters were developed. But again the limits had been reached, still almost negligible compared to present standards.

In 1924, a French scientist, Louis DeBroglie, discovered that a stream of electrons, such as constitute an electric current, emits a wave whose length is less than 1/100,000th that of light. If that wave could be used in microscopy, the possibilities were amazing. But there was one great difficulty: no one knew how to direct a beam of electron waves.

At this point in the history of science, there happened one of those small things that sometimes lead to important and unforeseen results. A German physicist, Dr.

A Third Party?

In America veteran political experts have long warned third-party hopefuls such efforts are doomed to failure. But a little more than a hundred years ago a third party was successful (the Republican Party).
 And today in England, where the Conservative and Labor parties have enjoyed a monopoly of government for many decades, a third party—the Liberal Party—has pulled even in the polls. Liberals have, for the first time in a generation, a chance to form the next government in London.
 Does this indicate the time is at hand when a third party can make its mark in America? Viewing the split in the Democratic Party, and the state of affairs in the Republican Party, some think so. Many do not.
 It is, of course, true that our two major parties contain strange political mixtures. The Solid South is finally split but there are still conservative Dixie Democrats. There are far left eastern Republicans. They would probably feel more comfortable and it would make political sense if these and certain other elements realigned themselves within the parties.
 More likely, perhaps, is the advent of a third party, led by some with more than a regional appeal, perhaps a group from both major parties. Chances are against such a political evolution immediately, but events of the last thirty-five years, and current politics in England, indicate there's a chance a new party could be successful.

FARM PRICES FALL
 The Department of Agriculture has reported that farm prices dropped 8 percent in the month ended Sept. 15. An official of the Cost of Living Council predicted sharp declines in meat animals would be reflected soon at retail counters.

The Texas State Health Department has awarded its official certificate of competency for the oldest ecology oriented profession in Texas to Michael W. Owen, of Box 2, Jayton, Texas.
 Owen is a member of the City of Jayton Council. To practice water ecology in Texas, he has been taught effective ways for producing safe drinking water and treatments to make wastewater into clean streams for public use. Because of this training, through the Texas Water Utilities Association, the largest water and wastewater training school in the U. S., there are cleaner streams and better operated facilities here than any other section of the country.
 He received the certificate only after completing a formal and specialized education, accumulated a prescribed amount of actual work experience, and passed the examination given by the State Health Department's Sanitary Engineering Section.
 Our growing concern over clean water makes the water ecologist one of the most important workers in the community. Though his efforts are not seen by those he serves, his results are visible every time one turns on a tap.

Texas Is High In Exportation Of Oil

By Bill Hobby
 Austin--Since the discovery of what first seemed to be limitless supplies of crude oil in Texas, our state has been an exporter of this basic energy source.
 We now discover that far from being limitless, Texas oil reserves are becoming critically short.
 In 1970, Texas exported 325,000 barrels of crude oil a day to other parts of the United States. By 1980 it is estimated that Texas will be importing 3.5 million barrels a day by 1985.
 Almost all of this oil will have to come from the Persian Gulf and other far-flung producing areas.
 Conventional tankers cannot deliver such massive amounts of crude at an acceptable price. Thus we must rely on the supertankers to supply Texas refineries at a reasonable cost.
 The problem is that no port in the United States is capable of handling these huge ships, which require water depths of between 55 and 110 feet.
 The only practical solution appears to be the construction of deep-water offshore terminals, or so-called superports.
 Those in state government have recognized the problems and promise of this approach to easing the energy crisis. Last fall, the Legislature established the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission is well underway with that plan which will be presented to the next session of the Legislature.

 Legislation is presently pending before the U. S. Congress which would simplify the licensing procedures necessary for superports, whether they are to be built by state or local governments or by private industry.
 This legislation is vitally needed to remove the many bureaucratic roadblocks to establishing superports.
 Federal laws on this subject should reserve to the state the right to decide where a deep-water terminal is to be built off its coast. This provision is needed because of the vast environmental and economic impact a superport will have on the residents of these states.
 It is obvious that offshore terminals are needed, and their construction should not be delayed unduly. This will require a great deal of coordination between state and federal agencies and the private business sectors involved.
 I believe a superport for Texas is vital to our economy. It can and must be built with the utmost concern for the ecology of our Gulf and the environment of our coastal residents.
 Love increases with time for those who avoid the fate of selfishness.

A CHILD'S BILL OF RIGHTS

I am a human being, as such I am composed of feeling, emotions, habits and a reasonable amount of ability to think for myself. I am not a mere cog in the huge educational machine but am a complete machine; nay, I am more for I possess the following inalienable rights:

- I have the right to be treated by the teacher with as much courtesy as she might expect her principal or superintendent to show her.
- I have the right to a teacher who loves children and when I do not have such as is so often the case, I have the right to show that I do not love her.
- I have a right to be different from other folks and the right to develop my own special interests and abilities.
- I have the right to a voice in the government of my class and my school and right to show as much imperfection in this as adults show in their government of themselves.
- I have the right to fair play and when in trouble to have my side presented by myself and my fellows impartially.
- I have the right to a temperless trial and an angerless punishment; otherwise I shall become bitter toward my oppressors.
- I have the right to my own temper and when a teacher loses hers I have the right to lose mine also.
- Since adults no longer have public stocks, whipping posts or gallows in the town square, I have the right to have the public excluded when I suffer mental or bodily punishment.
- When my pride is humiliated I have the right to some form of self-expression, otherwise I shall display arrogance and bullying as a means of regaining my own self respect.
- I have the right to know why a thing is done as well as to know how it is done. When a teacher assigns mere "busy work" I have the right to invent some of my own.
- I have the right to self-expression -- the chance to talk and to hear my fellow pupils talk rather than to be forced to listen to the teacher most of the time.
- I am a bundle of nervous energy and have the right to use this in some other way than the mere reading of books or the manipulation of figures.
- I have the right to know how well I have succeeded at each task undertaken, provided the teacher recognizes the fact that there are usually several ways to do a given task.
- I have the right to success in tasks, suited to my ability.
- In short, I have the right to my own unique personality, different from every other personality in the world.

"We go over every two years. It takes me that long to pay for it and my wife that long to tell everybody about it."

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
 Member of Congress, Texas

Washington, D. C. -- The cost of running for political office has gotten ridiculous. No person should be denied the right to seek public office simply because he or she is unable to either pay for it himself or is forced to receive contributions from sources which obligates him after he is elected.

There is nothing wrong with financial contributions to political campaigns. Large sums, however, should be prohibited and the sources of contributions should be made an open book for all to see.

Our state legislature has done a good job and will probably go further in subsequent sessions to accomplish this purpose. On the federal level, there is wide support for controlling expenditures, revealing the sources of donations and other methods of control. There are already numerous provisions on the law books for limits but there are loopholes which need to be closed. Legislation has been introduced proposing numerous approaches. The U. S. Senate has passed a broad bill which places strict compliance on Federal candidates in the general election. Under the Senate bill, individuals could contribute no more than $25,000 to all Federal candidates. No more than $9,000 of that sum could be given to any one candidate. If strictly enforced, such a law would effectively curb the influence of big individual contributors.

The solution, however, carries with it some vexing new possibilities. Candidates who challenge incumbents more readily need substantial funds. Normally the advantage lies with the one already in office. He has access to publicity that goes with public service and other resources to promote his re-election.

The challenger overcomes these advantages only by raising the funds required to mount a strong and effective campaign. The Senate bill would severely limit his ability to raise those funds unless, however, the candidate, but used to promote him in numerous ways. Other organized groups have a similar provision for support of their candidates in the general election.

Consideration is now being given to having federal elections financed from tax money on a formula which divides the funds between parties or between candidates.

The law now provides that a taxpayer may have a $25.00 credit for a campaign contribution. It is something else to pay these costs out of the Federal Treasury from everyone's tax money.

Another question arises. Should the federal government place control over campaigns for Federal office, how long would it be before they would want to include State primaries? As a matter of fact there are those in congress and in influential groups outside who want to include all primary elections under the control of Washington. Those of us who maintain that the State Legislatures should retain this authority and responsibility have been opposing such ideas for a number of years.

In the house of representatives there is now a move to enact a mixed system of public and private financing of qualified candidates for President and Congress in the general elections. The purpose is to enable any candidate to mount an effective campaign without the need for large private contributions. The goal is to provide sufficient financial support to encourage the maximum feasible degree of participation in elections for Federal office. The advocates of this line admit that they would like to extend this system to primary candidates at a later time.

If absolute accountability and open records are available to the electorate people will exercise a judgement which could determine their support for a candidate. This is what our Legislature wants to do and would be a most effective way of guaranteeing wholesome elections.

Seasonal Fires

Outdoor fires this time of the year cost American people billions of dollars and account for a number of tragic accidents, which take many lives. The brisk fall and winter smell of leaves burning or of other raketables is nostalgic, but often produces a poor ending.

To avoid uncontrolled fires, and the tragic results which occur in their wake, the accident prevention unit of the Maryland State Department of Health once offered several suggestions which we think are worth repeating.

1. Burn only in areas where fires are permitted.
2. Never start an outdoor fire on a windy day.
3. Clear an area around the spot where the fire is to be started.
4. If possible, hook up a garden hose for use in an emergency.
5. Use a covered wire basket for burning trash and leaves when possible.
6. Never start a fire near wooden buildings.
7. Never leave a fire until you are sure it's completely out.

Ali & Joe

On January 28th, Joe Frazer and Muhammad Ali meet in a 12-round return bout. Their fifteen-round go in 1971 drew a gate bringing each more than $2 million.

Next year's shuffle guarantees each (neither of which is the heavyweight champion) $850,000.

All of which raises questions as to society's scale of financial remuneration. Skilled and talented workers labor a lifetime for less than entertainment and sports figures receive for one effort.

Boxers come up the hard, dangerous way and risk their lives; less can be said to justify huge sums paid to so-called entertainers with the right connections.

Phnom Penh's War

If one were to make an educated guess as to the number of times enemy forces have advanced to within a few miles of Phnom Penh in the past year, it would be between twenty and fifty.

Each time, of course, the enemy is held and the word put out is that the defenders of the Cambodian capital were successful.

But how often are we to get exercised over the same threat or fairy tale? One would think wire service reporters would tire of writing the story every week or two. Surely one tires of reading it—obviously designed to impress public opinion in the United States.

The Wind From The North
 Is Strong and Proud,
 And He Pounds On My Door
 In A Fashion Loud—
 —Anne Lawler

November, ninth month of the old Roman calendar, is the birthday month of five U.S. Presidents and the month in which President John Kennedy was assassinated (the 22nd in 1963). It's also the month in which the Allies invaded North Africa (the 7th, 1942) in World War II and in which World War I ended in 1918 (November 11th).

The 2nd is the birthday anniversary of both James Polk, 11th President, and Warren Harding, 29th President. Harding, a relatively recent President, was born in Morrow County, Ohio, in 1865, the oldest of eight children. He was first a newspaper man, buying a Marion, Ohio, weekly for $300. At his death it was a daily and a valuable property.

He served in the state legislature and as Lieutenant Governor and was then defeated in a gubernatorial race. He nominated William Taft at the Republican convention in 1912 and two years later was elected to the U.S. Senate. In 1920 he was nominated by the Republicans and elected President. However, he failed to survive his term, dying after a trip to Alaska, which he had promised to make in his campaign, in 1923.

On the 6th, in 1789, the Pope appointed the first American Catholic bishop, John Carroll of Maryland. At that time there were no Catholic schools in the United States and Carroll was educated in France and consecrated bishop in England.

On the 15th, in 1777, a committee of the Continental Congress which had adopted the Declaration of Independence, reported out the draft of the Articles of Confederation—the first Constitution of the new nation; it provided for a perpetual union. This draft was changed, in 1787, and there was controversy until the Civil War whether or not States were in a perpetual union under terms of the 1787 Constitution.

James Abram Garfield, 20th President, was born in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, on the 19th in 1831, descended from Massachusetts ancestors. He was elected President as a Republican in 1880, and was assassinated in 1881.

Franklin Pierce (pronounced pierce), 14th U.S. President, was born on the 23rd in 1804, at Hillsborough, N.H., and served his state in various capacities, resigning a U.S. Senate seat because the pay was insufficient. He was nominated and elected as a Democrat in 1852. He attempted to annex Cuba, tried to pacify North and South, but was not re-nominated by his party. He became very critical of Lincoln during the Civil War.

Zachary Taylor, 12th U.S. President, was born in Orange County, Virginia, on the 24th in 1784, preceded Pierce as President. He was a military hero in the Mexican war, son of a Revolutionary War officer of Virginia, grew up in Louisville, Kentucky (then Virginia), and won a great victory over the Seminole Indians in Florida, dying in office in 1850.

Thanksgiving, a truly American observance, falls on the 22nd this year.

A NEW BEGINNING

Our daughter came in from the florist the other afternoon and laid a spray of lilies across the pages of the family Bible. I couldn't believe my eyes—for it was harvest time, not Easter.

I put them in a vase on the dining room table, and at dinner that night we exclaimed over their sweet fragrance. But, to me, it was vaguely disturbing—Easter lilies in New England in November—the leaves drifting to the ground in the yard outside, and a symbol of the Resurrection blooming, all at the same time.

And why not? What is the Resurrection but rebirth . . . a new beginning? Even in the fall of the year, even in the autumn of our lives, is it ever too late to begin again? Even if one has not been going to church, is it too late to start again? These were the questions I asked myself. I found the answers when I went back to church last Sunday.

Legislative Committee Considers Economy Of Agricultural Exports

The House Agricultural Export Committee met October 16 in the Agriculture Pavilion of the Texas State Fair in Dallas. W. S. "Bill" Healy, who is chairman of this committee said that the purpose of the committee would be to assist the agriculture industry in determining what commodities are available for export so as to assist the Agriculture Department in the marketing program.

Healy said that when the supply is such that Texas farmers and ranchers can benefit from increased exports, then it would be beneficial not only to Texans but to people of foreign countries for us to export some of these commodities. Healy said that in the interest of mankind, he favors a program of selective exporting so that the standard of living can be raised not only in Texas and the United States but in foreign countries.

Healy said that this Committee will take an active part in helping the Commissioner of Agriculture with the Texas Marketing Program which is one of the most effective in the Nation. He said that this committee will be able to assist Commissioner John White in his endeavors.

Moderns Chief
An old Indian chief took his watch into town to be repaired. When the jeweler took the back off, a dead bug fell out.
The chief, astonished, exclaimed: "Ugh! No wonder watch stop. Engineer dead!"

Morton's Mouth

Rogers Morton, Secretary of the Interior, continues to about the country uttering sensational statements about coming price increases. He recently repeated, unfortunately, his view that gasoline prices may eventually reach $1 a gallon.

Statements like this from high government officials greatly to the psychology of inflation. They are especially regrettable because they may well be overly pessimistic and unnecessary. And since psychology plays a major role in the fueling of inflationary thinking and pricing, they usually generate inflation.

In this connection, chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisors also recently commented unwisely on the current inflationary trend. The day after the welcome news that wholesale prices dropped in September, he predicted, to the press, that prices would continue to rise sharply for the next six months—though not as sharply in the past six.

Stein's timing and stress were bad, though he may be right. Public officials, of course, should be candid in their statements; yet they should also take into account damage pessimistic guesses about the economy by government leaders have on the nation and inflationary thinking.
