Solutions Are Needed To Rising Health Care Costs In Texas

Bill Hobby
AUSTIN--Most Texans are aware that medical costs are soaring, up 66 percent in the last five years alone.

Despite insurance to protect against the financial burdens of illness, consumers pay more than half of all medical expenses out of their pockets.

Little relief can be expected under our existing system of delivering medical services. The system has been described as "20th century technology shackled to a 19th century delivery process."

A new concept known as Health Maintenance Organizations holds a great deal of promise toward rectifying this situation. Simply stated, an HMO is merely a group of persons who incorporate to provide their members with all health services for a set fee per month.

Instead of running the gamut of doctor, specialist, laboratory, hospital, and pharmacy, a member of an HMO often can receive all of his care under one roof.

Since a Health Maintenance Organization requires a set amount of money each year, it forces the physician with incentive to keep people well. If a patient can be treated early enough to prevent costly hospitalization, the HMO saves money, and the benefit to the patient is obvious. Through the economies of mass purchasing and other modern business principles, HMOs provide more comprehensive medical care for less money.

At the state level of government, we must seek solutions to rising medical costs, shortages and maldistribution of health facilities, and inefficient use of manpower. We cannot wait for the federal government to solve this problem.

Experience in other states has shown that HMOs provide improved health care more efficiently than our present system.

A bill authorizing Health Maintenance Organizations in Texas was defeated in the last session of the Legislature. The State Board of Insurance, under the leadership of Chairman Joe Christie, is now studying whether under other legislation, the Board has the authority to approve HMOs.

Few debated the merit of HMOs. The major controversy developed over who should control them, the physicians who deliver the services or the laymen who use them.

Lay control over professional services is not un-American. It has worked effectively for other professional services, and it can work as well in medicine.

We must not allow the controversy over control to deny Texans the same advantages HMOs have provided citizens of many other states.

Jaybirds Continue On March Toward District Title

The game of football is like a hat with three corners. There are three ways you can advance the ball, and defeat the opponent, carrying the ball, throwing it, and kicking it. The Fighting Jaybirds have used all three of these methods effectively to down for potent opponents, and at this time are on the top of the heap, undefeated, with two games to go.

In their win over Bronte Friday night, they rolled up 247 yards against 96 for the opponent carrying the ball, marking 18 first downs for the visitors.

The Longhorns now stand at 3-2 in district and 6-3 on the season. The Jaybirds playing their own ball-control game, took the opening kickoff at their own 42 and drove for the first touchdown in eight plays. The score came with 2:35 to go in the quarter when quarterback Bobby Kelly sneaked in from the one. A two point try failed.

Bronte went ahead for the only time in the game early in the second period after an 86 yard drive was capped by a Kim Barret run from the one. An Alan Barbee kick put Bronte ahead 7-6.

Jayton struck back quickly however, when a pass interception by Billie Johnson put the ball on Bronte's 22. Jayton's quarterback Bobby Kelley tried two passes, then found his brother, Allen Kelley in the end zone. The Kelley-to Kelley pass worked again for the extra point, and the Jaybirds lead 14-7 at half-time.

Jayton scored first in the second half when a 72 yard drive ended with a 16 yard run by tailback Mark Fincher. An attempted pass failed to get the extra points and it was 20-7 Jayton.

Bronte took over on the Jayton 40 and then Nelson Coulter hit Jim Dan Raughton on a 36 yard pass to put the ball on the four. Allen Barbee took it over from that point and an attempt at 2 points failed.

The Longhorn effort all went for nothing though, as David Fincher took the next pickoff and ran it back 82 yards for the final Jaybird score. The extra point failed and the game ended 28-13.

Band Wins At San Angelo

The Jayton High School Band took top honors in Class B competition during Angelo State University's fifth annual Band Day held in San Angelo this past weekend.

The Jayton Band is under the direction of Rick Smith. More than 600 local and area school musicians took part in the day's activities that included participation in Angelo State's Homecoming Parade and a massed band performance during halftime of the homecoming football game with Abilene Christian College.

Other bands taking part in the program included McCamey High School and Reagan County High School. The bands were judged by Eddie Pace, band director of Angelo State University. They were rated during the parade on the basis of marching and performance.

The Kent County Commissioners did not hold the regular meeting the fourth Monday in October on account of it being a holiday. However they did hold a special meeting Thursday, Nov. 1st.

A motion was made by W. H. Parks and seconded by Donnie Carriker to approve the delinquent tax roll, vote on this was unanimous.

A motion was made by W. H. Parks and seconded by Carlos Dickerson to declare the Hudspeth County land owned by Kent County to be used for a public purpose, i.e. hunting, fishing, hiking and recreation until rescinded by court. Vote on this was unanimous.

A motion was made by Sarah Byrd and seconded by Carlos Dickerson to advertise for a grass lease on the Kent County land located in Martin and Dawson Counties. Vote by this was unanimous.

A Big Scramble In Football Contest

The football guessers this week had it a little rough. Billy Wilson, Jr. had 11 games right, for first place. David Geeslin had 10 right for second place.

Then for third place there was a scramble, and the tie-breaker didn't help much. It left Roy Harrison, Paula Mayer and Jean Parker all tied for third. With the tie breaker at 41, here is the list of those who had 9 games right (3 wrong): Roy Harrison 42, Paula Mayer 40, Jean Parker 40, Leella Hall 58, Floyd Hall 39, Gregg Nauert 34, Rena Bural 29, and Janet Johnson 36.

Laws are Proposed To Curb Child Abuse

AUSTIN--State Representative Buddy Temple of Diboll announced this week his intention to introduce a bill next session of the Texas Legislature to help curb repeated child abuse.

Temple stated that some medical experts are convinced that the single largest cause of injuries and death to children between the time of birth and age 3 was repeated injuries intentionally administered in the home by one or both parents.

Temple's proposal would call for a centrally located, statewide reporting system of suspected child abuse cases. The Diboll legislator said such a system would allow early discovery of mistreated children.

Temple said that presently medical doctors who have only a slight suspicion of mistreatment were reluctant to report such cases to the Welfare Department or police authorities. And if the cases were reported, the authorities would have very little on which to make a case.

However, a centrally located reporting system to which even slight suspicions of abuse were reported would allow a file to be developed over a period of time. The accumulative file would give the authorities needed proof.

Temple said that such a system was especially needed since parents guilty of such offenses change from doctor to doctor, preventing any one doctor from reaching a conclusion.

Testament times. He had his faults, but he loved his people, and went down into history as having been one of the greatest of all kings.

two events stop. While Nixon sits snugly by, and let's his men take the hatchet of law and order, and continues to hide behind the technicalities of Constitutional government, King David acted entirely differently to this.

The difference was that David loved his people, and had concern for them. He declared, "These people have done no wrong, the sin is at my door.--Let them go free, and I will take the punishment for my acts.

THIS WEEK IN JAYTON

For many years, at the end of each year, this column came out with a set of forecasts. Some of them were rather far ahead, but many of them came true.

Two weeks ago, in commenting on the presidential tapes, and the fact the president was under court order to deliver them, the column predicted that the important tapes, the public would never see.

One thing I keep thinking about H. R. Haldeman and the Irving committee that taking some of these tapes home with him and showing to them. Wasn't clean conversation one of them H. R. said he wanted to see I think so. This is one they now have and not recorded. Strange happenings indeed.

nally to Washington to counsel with him, and then running John off when his advice did not suit him.

Also many noted men have fallen under fire of the courts for lying, and for obstruction of justice mostly because they were involved in the big cover-up, to try to help the president save face, and to have Nixon appear innocent at all costs.

Back in the day of another great national leader, King David of Israel, he demonstrated some of these same traits of character. One time he decided he wanted his soldiers numbered and counted. The purpose for this probably was to impress his enemies with the strength of his great armies.

David's aids counseled with him, and tried to dissuade him of this, telling him this act was specifically forbidden under the law they were living. But David, in effect told his men "This is a command," and insisted they follow his orders.

For this King David came under serious fire. His God caused an angel to appear, and with David like presently with Nixon he began to lose men right and left. In fact seventy thousand of his men died in one day. Here is where the likeness of history in these common cliché is that every repeats itself. We have an interesting happening in the Old Testament, that in some way resembles President Nixon's current dilemma. Nixon is a strong willerman, that likes for his subordinates to say yes to him, and not to really disagree with him. This is noted in bringing John Con-

Good Soil Practices Have Many Assets

Farmers in the Kent County area who bring additional land into crop production in 1974 are being urged to use sound conservation practices.

Dele Butler, district conservationist for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service at Jayton said conservation measures not only protect the soil from erosion but also increase production.

"Some people are predicting farmers will bring several thousand acres of former 'set-aside' acreage back into crop production in Texas in the next year," Butler said. "This is considered to be the best and quickest way to check food price increases."

"But it's also the quickest way to increase dust storms, sediment pollution, and other erosion problems unless sound conservation measures are installed," Butler pointed out.

"There is a lot of land in our Duck Creek Soil and Water Conservation District which can be used for cropland safely if managed properly," Butler said. "Yet there are other soils which are so susceptible to blowing or washing that they should never be used for crop production."

Butler said he hopes farmers will use soil survey information available from his office before putting new land in cultivation.

"Soil surveys have been made on (all) the land in Kent County Butler said. "These surveys show which soils are best suited for crop production and which soils are most susceptible to erosion. They can also show which soils are most productive."

SCS is giving top priority helping farmers plan conservation measures on new land brought into cultivation. For information, contact the local SCS office at Jayton, Texas telephone 237-2624.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Oscar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas

No one is sure at what place on the rappahannock George Washington sailed the dollar across or for sure whether he did at all. What is for sure, if measured in terms of purchasing power today it would have fallen short if tossed at the narrowest point.

By reason of the dollar's shrinkage, and possibly other reasons, thought is being given to resurrecting the $2 bill. The Federal Reserve is reportedly giving serious consideration to the idea and the Bureau of Printing and Engraving is looking on it as a way of reducing cost of running off $1 bills.

The $2 bill was always sort of minor curiosity. It never gained wide circulation but perhaps it was just ahead of its time. It seems this bill denomination always had sort of a bad reputation. Some of it supposedly stems from its use in buying votes in the Presidential Election of 1880. They were convenient at the racetracks where they matched the basic bet and for other purposes of a rough and rowdy nature.

The first $2 bills were printed in 1862 and bore the portrait of Alexander Hamilton, then Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Hamilton was mortally wounded and died a painful death after being shot in a duel with Aaron Burr. This fact may also add to the superstition that the $2 bill was somewhat unlucky.

A more likely explanation is that people often spent or received in payment, the bill, assuming it to be of $1 denomination. A bill of larger size would have had more attention and hence less error.

Anyway, because the $2 bill was in less use than was thought to justify its printing and engraving, it was discontinued in 1965. At that time there were only relatively few of these bills—about $135 million worth—in circulation. (By that time the picture of Madison had been replaced with the face of Thomas Jefferson.) Most of those in circulation in 1965 were really out of circulation in that they were tucked away in the back of wallets or dresser drawers as collector's items or for sentimental reasons.

In considering the revival of the $2 bill, suggestions are made that it carry the picture of Susan B. Anthony, the great 19th Century fighter for women's rights. This sounds like a good idea since there has been no woman's image on our currency and since M. S. Anthony bravely dedicated herself to that crusade which, in that day, hardly met the approval of many. She endured with patience and perseverance to accomplish what then seemed the impossible.

As an afterthought, maybe what we need is a $5 bill—then it would be "as phony as..." way things keep going an additional dollar to smaller currency might help reduce the bill hoping of course each us have that trouble, something like building bridge over something by the time it's finished there is a need for the bridges.

Steve doesn't mind. Only a little. He knows Dad has to travel. And some days Mom must work the swing shift.

Steve doesn't mind. Not very much. It's just that food doesn't make a dinner. It's like a vacuum when you're alone. And the evening—what's to do?

Such vacuums can affect adversely the developing personality of a child. They can also test a child's sense of security and self-reliance.

We claim no expertise in child psychology. Our concern, however, is that there be no Sunday morning vacuum. A Steve whose character is being molded by spiritual and moral training, a Steve whose home has the atmosphere of religious conviction and integrity... such a Steve is better equipped to meet the tests of loneliness and freedom.

New Way To Make Pastry

What could be more basic than pastry for pie? Flour, salt and fat with just enough water to make the ingredients hold together. Yet there are half a dozen different ways to put it all together. Make it the old fashioned way with lard or with solid vegetable shortening. Make it with a pie crust mix. Even use a frozen ready-made pie crust. Or take the polyunsaturated route and make an oil pastry or one with margarine as the only fat. Newest and most innovative is a real mayonnaise pastry, also high in polyunsaturates. Instead of cutting in shortening, stir in creamy smooth real mayonnaise. It couldn't be easier.

Mayonnaise Pastry
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup mayonnaise

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (optional)
3 tablespoons cold water
Mix flour and salt; blend in real mayonnaise with fork. Sprinkle on lemon rind and water; mix well. Press firmly into ball. Makes enough pastry for double crust pie or two single crusts.

Brown Sugar Chess Pie
2 eggs
1 cup white sugar
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup milk
1 Tablespoon flour
1 Tablespoon corn meal
1/4 cup melted butter
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar with flour and meal. Beat eggs and add all other ingredients. Blend. Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake at 320° for 45 minutes.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES.

THE OMELETTE THAT DISCLOSED THE ARISTOCRAT

Because he did not know how many eggs make an omelette, a French aristocrat met his death. Once again, a trifle had tremendous consequences.

It happened during the time of the French Revolution, that bloody period when an oppressed, poverty stricken people went mad with vengeance and heads fell on the guillotine with monotonous regularity. To be an aristocrat was to be marked for death.

There was a Monsieur Condorcet who had the misfortune to belong to the aristocracy. A price was on his head, and he fled to a secret sympathizer. This friend told Condorcet that it would not be safe for him to remain in his house, but that if he would return at night, he would attempt to provide means for him to escape. Condorcet agreed.

Now, in the natural course of time, a man, either aristocrat or peasant, gets hungry. This sensation began to make itself felt to Monsieur Condorcet in no uncertain way. He considered the situation. Dare he risk detection by exposing himself in a public eating place? Was his disguise good enough? He decided to take the chance. It was an unfortunate decision.

As inconspicuously as possible he entered a Parisian restaurant on the day. However, try as he might, there were certain details of his manner and speech that aroused suspicion. The avicious restaurant owner, mindful of the gain that would accrue to him in return for turning over certain aristocrats to the Revolutionary authorities, observed his new guest closely.

Condorcet ordered an omelette. The restaurant owner stared at him. "How many eggs?" he inquired. Poor Condorcet was baffled. As an aristocrat, his connection with omelettes had been merely the eating of them. He knew nothing of their making, or how many eggs went into one. "Twelve!" he said boldly.

That reply was fatal. Only an aristocrat could know — or care — so little. Condorcet was pointed out by the restaurant owner. He was seized and imprisoned, and subsequently met his death. All because he did not know how many eggs make an omelette!

Jaybird Marching Band Gets Top Rating At Abilene Contests Tuesday

The Jayton Jaybird school band jumped the first big hurdle in Abilene Tuesday toward achieving another big Sweepstakes Award.

In a contest that began at one-thirty at Shotwell Stadium, the band performed superbly, witness said, and so convinced the judges that all three of them gave the band a Number One Rating.

There are three contests, marching, concert and sight reading, and a band making the number one rating in all three events gets the coveted Sweepstakes award. The last time Rick Smith's Jaybird band won the Sweepstakes, there was only one other Class B Band in Texas to get the award.

All Jayton and Kent County and their friends are very proud of the band.

Collision With Ambulance

Driving home from work, Harold crashed into an ambulance at a busy intersection. In short order he found himself facing a charge of "failing to yield the right-of-way to an emergency vehicle."

But in court, Harold came up with the following facts in his own defense:

- 1) that the traffic light had been in his favor;
- 2) that he had not heard the siren because he had his windows up and his radio on; and
- 3) that he had not seen the ambulance until the last moment, because other cars were obscuring his vision.

Under these circumstances the court could find nothing negligent in Harold's conduct, and dismissed the charge.

Traffic codes generally do give special privileges to ambulances. However, these privileges are not absolute. In case of a collision between an ambulance and a private car, the court will weigh the entire situation on its merits.

Furthermore, ambulances have privileges only when there is (or at least appears to be) a true emergency.

Thus, in another case, an ambulance that was merely returning to its home office was held not entitled to go through a stop sign.

And an ambulance transporting a patient to the hospital, with no apparent need for haste, was held not entitled to disregard a red light.

Still, in most situations, the ambulance's right-of-way will be upheld. One indignant citizen decided this preference was a form of unfair discrimination against the motoring public. But when he challenged it in court, the judge held that he had no kick coming.

"The grant of special privileges to an emergency vehicle," said the judge, "is a proper exercise of the police power of the state. When human life may be at stake, prompt performance of the duties imposed upon drivers of emergency vehicles is imperative."
