Roastings

One of the repulsive trends in our society is the practice among entertainers of "honoring" their fellow entertainers. One can't imagine a greater waste of time.

In the first place, there's nothing to honor most entertainers for. They are, generally, an overpaid, spoiled lot - few with any great talent. And since the advent of television, the loud-mouthed, aggressive New York City types have dominated the tube, unfortunately.

The only reason most Americans know the names of these types is that they have nothing better to watch on television. The average television comedy, the average comedian, get off few really humorous remarks. There are exceptions but they are few. Since the early television days of Sid Caesar and a few other really talented comedians, the trend has been to the standup gagmen, spilling off a line of jokes. Canned and dishonest laughter (taped and dubbed in) often produces an automatic audience reaction among the morons. The thinking viewer is repulsed.

The super-sweet sugar, hypocrisy and overpraise of roastings and honorings among entertainers should be mercifully limited to major awards, to the retirement of the most distinguished elderly entertainers.

St. Patrick's Day

St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, died on March 17, 493. The anniversary of his death has been celebrated regularly in recent times by not only Irishmen but those of many other races, and not only Catholics but those of other faiths.

In fact, the New York organization in memory of St. Patrick, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, was organized by both Irish Catholics and Presbyterians, and its first president was a Presbyterian.

The most famous tale about St. Patrick is the one which tells of his banishment of snakes from Ireland. Yet Cardinal Moran, who some years ago wrote an article on St. Patrick for the Catholic Encyclopedia, fails to mention it. He does mention the ordeal of St. Patrick when he was surrounded by demons in the shape of vultures, and tells of the drowning of the demons in answer to his prayers.

Whatever the tale, and there are those who believe several different versions, a great number of people enjoy celebrating the anniversary of the death of St. Patrick, in the middle of this month. Irishmen, particularly, take pride in the occasion, and on some occasions in the past they have even brought pieces of the "ould sod" from Ireland in honor of the occasion.

PASSES TEST
KINGSLEY, IOWA -- Charles Knowles, who recently observed his 100th birthday, won't have to stop driving his orange sports car around town. He passed his renewal drivers test three days after his 100th birthday.

Veteran Care Is Now Available

A large number of children of totally disabled veterans are currently receiving medical care from private physicians and hospitals through the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration (CHAMPVA), according to Allen Lowrey, Veterans Service Officer for Kent County.

This cost-sharing program is an extension of the military's Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS). The military program permits dependents of active duty and retired members to also obtain civilian medical care on the cost-sharing plan.

Eligible for the medical care through CHAMPVA are the minor children of veterans who are rated permanently and totally disabled by the Veterans Administration because of diseases or injuries which were incurred or aggravated during a period of active military service.

Handicapped Youths Not In School Are Being Hunted

AUSTIN--The Texas Education Agency [TEA] is beginning a statewide effort to locate and identify every handicapped child of school age not now in school.

State Board of Education Chairman Joe Kelly Butler of Houston announced the beginning of project "Child Find" at a Capitol news conference in Austin.

"Child Find," he said, "is designed to search out young people between the ages of 3 and 21 who are blind, deaf, physically handicapped, emotionally disturbed, or mentally retarded, and those with learning disabilities."

The program will be implemented by education service centers in 20 regions throughout Texas, with the cooperation of the state's 1,121 independent school districts. In each region, door-to-door contacts will be made in one specific community served by a school district with an average daily attendance of approximately 3,000 students.

Kelly said through the news media and through door-to-door canvasses, handicapped children not in school will be contacted, their families will receive counseling services, and the children will begin receiving the education they need.

No statistics are available on the number of uneducated handicapped children. Butler said. "We believe the number is above 10,000 children. These children are not receiving educational services promised them by Texas law, and it is the duty of public education agencies to make their parents or guardians aware that free special education is available."

"Texas has made dramatic improvements in special education," Butler added. "Today, public education is serving more than 300,000 students in special education programs. But that is only 76 percent of the handicapped children now in the state. It is the goal of public education to be serving the needs of every handicapped child in Texas between the ages of 3 and 21 by 1980--more than 450,000 children."

GOD'S SHADOW
I live in God's shadow-
It is the light of each day.
For God's shadow is not dim,
But it brightly guides my way.

For in His shadow peace I find,
And security in His abundant love.
God watches our steps always.
He sees us from Heaven above.

We see the shadow of a cloud-
Or the shadow of the bird in flight.
We all walk there--in the subtlety of His might.

God's shadow is a lovely haven,
A place of contentment and rest.
I'll not choose a home of this world,
For the haven of God's shadow is best.

Schorr & Ellsberg

Daniel Schorr has been suspended by CBS pending the outcome of an investigation into charges he violated the law in turning over a secret House intelligence report to a New York newspaper.

It has long been clear among soberer minds of the media that every reporter or commentator can't decide for himself which secret papers he'll release, regardless of the law. And so the Schorr affair is a serious matter, affecting both national security and the future conduct of reporters and commentators.

But what Schorr did, and is being condemned for, is not more detrimental than what Daniel Ellsberg, another self-appointed secrets revealer, did during the Vietnam war. Ellsberg was hailed and ballyhooed in the press as a hero. Yet he had turned over secret government papers to the New York Times.

In other words, the double standard of the media is revealed. During the unpopular Vietnam war aid during the media's campaign to force President Nixon out of office, Ellsberg was hailed as a hero--as one who was acting with high motives.

Perhaps Schorr will be cleared also; nevertheless, it's obvious by now that some restraint, some legal compulsion to obey laws pertaining to secret intelligence reports, must take precedence over each individual reporter's personal desires. No society or government can function safely in this age if each individual member of the media is free to decide when he will obey and violate the secrecy laws.

Baldwin's World War

Hanson Baldwin has written a new history of World War II. The initial reaction with any new history of that war is whether anything new can be added. "The Crucial Years," the first of the author's two volumes, does indeed contain new information.

Aside from the weakness of the author in not being really objective about the Germans or dependable with his German history, perhaps somehow linked to his long years as a writer in New York, the first volume is generally sound.

As early as page 6 he speaks of Hitler as a house painter. On page 14 he demeans Hitler's accomplishments in creating employment in the early thirties, and attributes much of the early improvement to confiscation of Jewish property and the takeover of Jewish jobs--not then a major factor. On page 38 he claims the Prussian officer corps had few men of moral courage (grossly untrue). He reports the November, 1939, bomb attempt on Hitler having taken place in the Munich Beer Hall (sic). He moderately overstates German aircraft production and also German fighter strength at the outset of the Battle of Britain. Etc.

But aside from this weakness on German history, the book tends to be objective and very good reading. New insight and information are of material value to any historian or student of the war era. As an American counterpart to the Liddell Hart World War II history (handicapped because the author died before completion) the book fills a long-standing need.

The passages on naval engagements are superlative. Here Baldwin is at his best (an Annapolis graduate). His geopolitical and strategic overviews are highly perceptive. The book, then, does add something of lasting value to the history of the war period.

Help For The Nothing-To-Wear Blues

What woman wouldn't welcome a wonderfully organized wardrobe? One that she can count on to offer a variety of fresh and different and always "pulled-together" looks, one that's easy to accessorize. A wardrobe that can go sportive or dressy.

Planning and shopping for such a dream wardrobe can turn into a veritable project, often consuming far too much time--and money. But help is at hand. Now there's a new kind of pre-planned total wardrobe, available for today's busy woman.

Called The Gathering Designer Group, this collection is based on a color scheme (the number one rule in assembling a workable wardrobe) of geranium coral and off-white. A two-piece dress, skirt, trousers, "big top" and raincoat form the backbone of the wardrobe. Other parts include solid-color and striped jersey tops, a print blouse. Because the collection is precisely coordinated in color, styles and fabrics, everything works with everything else to give lots of fashion mileage.

Here's one dream wardrobe that needn't break the bank. Price tags are pleasant. For example, the coral skirt is about $17, coral pants about $17 and the striped tank top about $8. A woman can choose basic pieces to start, then add more.

What about the right accessories? They've offered in this same collection. There's a wedge shoe, a dressier sandal, print scarf, gold-tone jewelry and belt, a handbag. One needn't be uncoordinated even on rainy days--a handsome color-cued umbrella is also available.

These accessories are nicely affordable. For example, the wedge shoe is about $18, sling about $20, the umbrella about $11.

This new fashion scheme sounds simple, and it is. It takes the work and worry out of assembling a wardrobe. Plus, no matter what she decides to pull from her closet, a woman just can't go wrong. And all this is good news for everyone who has a lot more to do with her time than fuss about her clothes.

To have this dream wardrobe, a woman needn't stir from home. The Gathering Designer Group is available through the Sears, Roebuck and Co. spring and summer catalog.

BULGARIA: COLORFUL AND CONVENIENT--NO VISA

Even the most experienced travelers are often captivated by Bulgaria's ancient charm and delighted by the warmhearted Bulgarian "Dobre doshti!" (Welcome!)

A first stop for many visitors is the capital city of Sofia, which is not only the geographical center of the Balkan peninsula, but the center of Bulgaria's cultural life. Although Sofia has a history going back 5,000 years, it is in every way an attractive modern city with 11 state theaters, an opera house, 20 museums, 800 public libraries and 19 establishments of higher learning. In the crypt of the impressive Alexander Nevsky Memorial Church, in a branch of the National Art Gallery, remarkable works of Old and Medieval Bulgarian art are exhibited--icons, frescoes, old printed books, miniatures, prints and church vessels and treasures.

About five miles from the center of Sofia is Mount Vitosha, rising over 7,000 feet above sea level, providing a magnificent backdrop to the city. During all four seasons of the year Mount Vitosha provides hotels, motels and camp sites offering a wide range of tourist services for its guests.

From Sofia you can take an excursion to the famous Rila Monastery, which lies about 75 miles to the southeast. Surrounded by impressive rugged peaks, the monastery was founded soon after the official adoption of the Christian religion in Bulgaria in 865.

It is Bulgaria's most popular tourist attraction. Its 200 murals and frescoes, painted at different periods over the centuries are regarded by Byzantine scholars as a veritable "picture book" of secular and religious art in the Balkans.

A museum in the shadow of the monastery's 13th century chapel tower houses priceless coins, gems and jeweled sacramental vessels brought by pilgrims.

Lying on the main Sofia-Varna road is the picturesque town of Veliko Turnovo whose quaint houses, perched one above the other on overhanging cliffs, have made it a magnet for tourists visiting Bulgaria.

Tucked away between the Balkan ranges and the elevations of the Sredna Gora Mountains is the Valley of the Roses. At the end of May and extending into the beginning of June each year, the traditional Rose Day Festival is celebrated as young men and women dressed in national costumes and decorated with roses demonstrate a ritual picking of rose blossoms at early dawn, followed by a colorful pageant. Bulgaria is the world's biggest exporter of the oil of roses which it harvests from the mile after mile of roses in the Valley of the Roses.

Plodiv, the second biggest city of Bulgaria, has a 6,000 year old history. Its picturesque situation on six hills, its paramount importance as a crossroads, its numerous monuments dating from differing periods and civilizations and its modern social aspects, all help to make it a first-class tourist attraction. Old Plodiv, situated on three hills and surrounded by the remains of fortress walls, is a historical reservation. ### LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
There is a great deal of talk going on that women should get out of the home and work.
When my children got to school age and I found that I had some time on my hands I did some part time work that was very satisfying. I have the reputation of being a good cook so I started a catering service. I began by making cakes and sandwiches for people who were entertaining. My business grew and my daughter helped after school.
I make a tidy sum every month and have made many new friends among the nicest people in this town.

I feel that this work is creative—in fact one lady said she considered me an artist.
I write this to let women, who do not like to work out of the home, know that this is one answer to the problem.
L.B.—Miss.
Answer:
This would be a good idea for a person who has to be home for the greater part of the day.
Anything that a person does well is a source of satisfaction and if one can be paid for doing so, it is even more satisfying.

Tips On Bad Weather Driving

When bad weather blows in, emergency tow truck drivers get ready. They know that within minutes their switchboards will be lighting up with emergency calls. Yet it is astonishingly easy not to have trouble in snow or rain. Here are some useful tips:

Turn on lights. In rain, cars tend to disappear. Use parking lights at least, to make your car more visible.
Look out for the oily road slick that forms in new rain. It is as slippery as ice and tires skid on it very easily.
Use windshield washers when light drizzles start. Otherwise, wiper blades may turn the first few drops into an oily smear, report windshield wiper experts at Anco.
When a storm is forecast, a good snow driver will park his car so that he will be able to move it afterwards. Avoid tight parking spaces and don't park uphill.
Always use snow tires. It's futile to go very far through deep snow without the right tires.
Make sure your windshield wiper blades are free of ice and snow. This can cause blades to streak, skip and stick. Snow blades which are completely encased in rubber are now available. Designed by Anco, they prevent ice from clogging the blade.
When driving through a dense fog, turn on your wipers. Much of the "fog" that bothers drivers is merely fine accumulation of mist on the windshield.
By following these useful tips when bad weather blows in, you can help yourself avoid that avoidable accident and save yourself being charged for an emergency tow.

Mr. and Mrs. Afton Richards
Jayton Chronicle
Jayton, Texas 79528

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Richards:

Thank you for publishing the poem which my aunt, Winnie Yeager, wrote about the sunset in Jayton.

I am sorry to be this long in expressing thanks as Aunt Winnie had asked me back in December to write to you good folks for her. She was so pleased over it.

The enclosed letter is a copy of one I have written to your County Judge Hahn to express publicly thanks and appreciation to all the wonderful people of Kent County who contributed to the comfort and happiness of Aunt Winnie during her residence in Kent County Nursing Home. You have my permission to publish this if it has Judge Hahn's approval.

Jayton and Kent County are certainly "way out front" in providing many opportunities and benefits for its citizens and you are to be commended.

Sincerely,

Winnie Lu Bounds

Judge Norman Hahn
County Judge
Kent County
Jayton, Texas 79528

Dear Judge Hahn:

The family of Miss Winnie Yeager would like to take this means of expressing deep and sincere thanks and appreciation for the blessings that came her way through the citizens of Jayton and Kent County during her two year's residence in Kent County Nursing Home.

The excellent care given her by all those connected with the Home reflects not only the efficient manner in which the Home is operated but also the concern and love manifested for the patients by the nurses and employees. The sweet homey atmosphere maintained there ties all together in love and friendship and gives the feeling that it is a real family home.

Also the attention given the patients by other groups and organizations on special occasions is most unusual and certainly not found in other cities and communities. Other communities would certainly do well to pattern after Kent County and Jayton in these respects.

We want to publicly express thanks and appreciation, too, to the County for providing an ambulance service and to Sheriff Raldo Goodall, Deputy Purvis Sorrell and Anne Haney who brought Aunt Winnie to Abilene to Hendrick Memorial Hospital on the night of December 22.

My brother, Arthur Compere, and my father, Eb Compere, join me in gratitude for all these kindnesses. God Bless you all.

Sincerely yours,

Winnie Lu Bounds

True Cost of Government

WASHINGTON—You pay a lot more for government than you realize.

President Ford's proposed budget for the next fiscal year calls for spending $394.1 billion, a little more than $1,800 for every man, woman, and child in the country. Congress very likely will raise that figure to more than $400 billion by the time it completes action on the budget.

The American taxpayer will, of course, provide the funds the federal government will spend. Individual income taxes, social insurance receipts, corporate taxes and excise taxes will raise $351 billion of the budget total.

What the federal government doesn't raise in taxes this year to reach its spending levels it will make up for in borrowing. And what the federal government borrows this year, the taxpayers must in later years repay with interest.

The federal budget is, by itself, high enough to alarm the fiscally responsible. But the budget does not reflect substantial additional costs that the federal government imposes upon Americans.

In the first place, not all the spending by federal agencies is reported in the budget. Congress has in recent years excluded a number of federally owned and controlled agencies from the budget totals.

Among these off-budget agencies are the Postal Service, the Export-Import Bank, Amtrak, the Rural Telephone Bank, the Rural Electrification Fund and the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. They will spend an estimated $11.1 billion during the next fiscal year.

More importantly, the budget does not reflect the costs imposed on Americans by the forms and edicts issued by federal regulatory agencies. Nobody knows for sure how much this is, but the estimates range as high as $130 billion a year.

We now have a small army of federal regulators, some 63,444 for nearly two dozen agencies with some regulatory powers, and they generate a veritable mountain of paperwork. It is estimated that the federal government has more than 6,000 different forms in print, and that federal employees shuffle some 10 billion sheets of paper each year, enough to fill the Houston Astrodome 50 times.

The costs that the federal regulators impose upon businesses—and through businesses to consumers—are twofold: First an enormous amount of time and manpower is required to fill out the forms. Second, the regulations imposed can substantially increase the cost of doing business, or force a company to close its doors.

The American people have a right to know how much their government is really costing them, so that they will be able to determine whether they are getting what they pay for. Congress should restrict off-budget spending, and Congress should attempt to determine the true cost of federal regulatory agencies.

Massachusetts

Cynics and the geographically-prejudiced to say it can't be done by a Southerner but Jimmy Carter continues to prove he appeals to Democrats all over the nation. What a former Governor of Georgia strongly supported outside the South, without having sold his soul, is a tribute to the political maturity of the nation. It signifies an end of the bigotry which handicapped every candidate from the South since the Civil War.

Vermont and Massachusetts are proof, if New Hampshire didn't provide it, that Carter is presently the strongest Democratic candidate nationwide the one fresh face in the party that excites voters.

One can expect union leaders, liberal spenders, the bureaucratic army Carter threatens to gang up on former Governor if he grows stronger. There are the usual charges against him in the civil rights area. This is the traditional way to kill off southern contenders.

But today's political mood is apparently different. Most people in every section today admire the way South has handled integration and the admittedly bad relations between black and white races in Dixie that albatross used effectively for so long against Carter. He has a good record in this area—and it shows he stands just about where a majority of Americans stand.

Could it be, then, that the nation—as it did in 1964 with a Catholic—will put aside another bigotry, this having barred Southerners a chance at the Presidency since the Civil War?

The People's View

The New York Times and CBS News recently asked what they considered to be a representative portion of the public on current controversial issues. The results were surprising.

On the emotional issue of abortions, the poll shows that an overwhelming majority believed that the right of a woman to have an abortion should be left entirely to the woman and her doctor. The tally was 67 to 28 per cent, with 7 per cent undecided.

Most Americans do not think—as often charged—government spending for military defense should be reduced—52 to 37 with 11 per cent undecided. A majority believes it would be better if the states were more and the federal government less in the fields of health, education and aid to the poor.

A surprisingly large majority opposes the racial integration of schools if it requires forced busing—70 to 22, with 7 per cent undecided. And half those polled, 50 to 33, think we are giving Russia more than we are getting from the Soviet Union.

If this sampling is reasonably accurate, the people are ahead of many of the candidates in their thinking. Politicians hoping to be President for four years in the next January might do well to consider these results.

Reddy's Helpful Tips

- ★ Operate your dryer with a full load.
- ★ Do not over-dry. Over-drying any fabric increases wear and tear and causes yellowing, in addition to using more energy.
- ★ Use leftover heat to dry light synthetic garments and only partially dry items which are to be pressed immediately.
- ★ Keep lint filter clean! A dirty lint filter can lengthen the drying time and present a fire hazard.
- ★ Vent your dryer to increase its efficiency. Occasionally check the vent to make sure it is not clogged. A clogged vent can cause your dryer to consume needless energy and presents a potential fire hazard.
