From The Desk of the City Manager

When the heat increases our ability to "Crank up" on an item of interest it seems to go down. We have promised ourselves that we would write this article as long as the good people will either publish it or you will read it. So here goes.

Personal property is everything except real property so you can see that it covers a multitude of things. The law says "The term personal estate or property as used in this law shall be held to include all household furniture, money, goods, chattels, public stocks of corporations, moneyed or otherwise and generally all property that is not real."

Personal property is clearly defined in the statutes, but the place where the property is taxed or situs often is a problem for the assessor, and it is necessary to further classify personal property into two groups--Tangible and Intangible. Tangible personal property can be defined as property that can be seen, weighed, measured, felt, touched, moved, or is in any manner perceptible to the senses.

Examples: Raw materials Cows in process Finished goods Mds and stock Watercraft Supplies Livestock Furniture Fixtures Aircraft Machinery & Equipment Tools Motor Vehicles Trailers

Intangible personal property can be defined as that property which lacks mass; it is not subject to physical measurement, and yet has value.

Examples: Money Notes Goodwill Franchises Stocks Capital Patents Bonds Interest Annuities

The statutes, Attorney General opinions and court decisions reveal that in this state the general rule is that intangible personal property is taxable at the home or the principle place of business within the state, while tangible personal property, unless temporarily removed, is taxable where located.

While the general laws govern the assessment of most personal property, there are four institutions, or types of business that are to be assessed according to special statutes. These are banks, both national and state, domestic insurance companies, savings and loan associations and credit unions.

Give these lists a good reading. If you were living in one of the larger cities anywhere in Texas every item would be on your annual rendition and you would be taxed at a much higher rate than you are accustomed to paying. Read your own rendition for personal property taxes that you are currently paying or have paid. We are sure that you will be happy you pay your taxes here and also that they are much more reasonable than you may have suspected.

Lay Witness Mission Set At Northside

JAMES C. "POP" TURNER of Abernathy, now a resident of Amherst Manor, in Amherst, celebrated his 98th birthday Tuesday, June 8. Shown in the picture with Mr. Turner are his two daughters, Mrs. J. A. 'Pop' Turner Observes His 98th Birthday

James C. "Pop" Turner, a retired grocer and presently a resident of Amherst Manor, celebrated his 98th birthday Tuesday, June 8.

Refreshments of birthday cake and ice cream was served to the honoree and all residents of the Manor.

For a pastime Turner listens to his radio most of the time. "Due to bad hearing," his children have provided him with a special ear plug for his radio listening.

Before his eyesight failed, Turner played many a game of dominoes with his room mate, visitors, or any nurse who would play dominoes with him.

Turner is known to have a delectable outlook on life, according to his nurses. One greeted him with a "good morning, it sure is a pretty day outside," and his comment was "Any day that you awake is a beautiful day, when you are as old as I am."

STEPPING OUT of a protective tractor cab to promote Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week, July 25-31, is Texas Farm Bureau Queen Harletta Capps of Vernon. The theme for this year's observance of Farm and Ranch Safety Week is "Protection-make it work for safety." Tractor overturns accounted for 60 per cent of the accidental deaths involving tractors in the U.S. in 1970. It is estimated that 90 percent of the lives lost in tractor Overturns could have been saved by protective cabs or roll bars and safety belts.

The Struves' 5-Month Trip

(Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Arno Struve were on a five-month trip late last year and early this year. Their travels took them to the Orient, South Pacific, Australia, New Zealand and other interesting places. The Review requested a series of stories on their trip.

It is inevitable that Melbourne be compared to Sydney because they are the two largest cities in Australia by far. There is an intense rivalry between the two as well as an abiding jealousy. About the turn of the century each of the present states of Australia were separate colonies of Britain and as such were operated as if they were foreign countries to each other. When Australia became federated into a single country the question of where the capital of the country would be became a tug of war between these two great cities. Neither would give in so they compromised by creating a federal district such as we have about half way between Sydney and Melbourne. The capital city in the Federal District is Canberra which we have mentioned before in this story.

Melbourne is much better planned than Sydney. It is built in a square grid system with extremely large blocks in the business district. The business streets are wide but still they are not wide enough to permit smooth flow of traffic as busy times. We have had to spend almost thirty minutes to go only a few blocks in a taxi with the clock meter rolling on. We could profitably have gotten out and walked except that we had too much luggage.

The little Yarra River flows through the main part of the city. Just across the river from the downtown business district there is a huge park. It is well kept as are nearly all of the city parks in Australia. The Queen's representative lives in "government house" on the grounds in this park. Each of the states has a Queen's representative who is the figurehead executive officer of that state and lives in a more or less sumptuous "palace" that is called "government house." Australians still owe allegiance to the Queen just as the British do. Public lands are called "Crown Lands" but are owned and controlled completely by the parliaments of the country.

Anyone thinking going to Australia in order to escape the trend in the U.S. toward government control and "socialism" would be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. There is actually more control there than here. Business hours are strictly regulated. If you owned a drug store or "chemist shop" as it would be called and you wanted to serve the community at hours different from the regular business hours you would have to get a special license. Also the medical services are prepaid and subsidized with the concomitant forms and red tape. Even glasses are furnished by the medical service as well as ambulance use. Incidentally, the taxes necessary to do all these things are quite burdensome, the income tax being significantly higher than ours.

In Sydney we had purchased train tickets all the way to Adelaide via Melbourne, but since there was no daytime train scheduled between Melbourne and Adelaide we decided we wanted to travel by bus where there was a day-time schedule. We had been assured that train tickets were as good as cash and could be readily turned into money but here we found theory and practice to be quite different as it often is. The distance from Melbourne to Adelaide requires a full day by good modern bus to cover. When the railway office people offered to refund only $2.50 for two round trip tickets between the two cities you can readily understand that I started to lose my cool. The tickets had cost us over ten times that amount. Of course there was no point in being angry for such anger always exacts a dear price in the one feels the rest of the day. As the young long hair who waited on me said nobody was trying to "do me in." It was just the way they were interpreting the rules. As I showed no inclination to give in on the matter they consulted further and eventually we did get the right amount of money returned to us.

To use the time we had before our bus left we took a bus tour into the nearby "Blue Dandenong" range of mountains. One of the universal features sacrifice either their morning or afternoon teatime for anybody's sight-seeing tour so the tour always manage a stop of from thirty minutes or more for tea. After we got up into a resort area in the mountains we made such a tea stop. Usually they have scones (pronounced "scons") with their tea; we would call a scone a cold biscuit left over from breakfast. They eat these with "conserves" and seem to relish them highly. At this particular tea stop though they had something very unusual in addition to their scones: They had hugh fresh strawberries. In order not to be tempted further I took a walk in the area around the restaurant and photographed beautiful towers. Not only was the immediate area pretty but the distant vistas of valleys and mountains added much to the interest.

When I got back to the tea house Minnie was indulging in the luscious strawberries so I had a liberal bite of them and found them to be delicious. I was glad we were about ready to go on so that I couldn't be tempted to get a helping of my own.

At this place we ran into a new word. The little square strawberry baskets are called "punnets". We heard and punnet was thereupon added. When we left Australia we had quite a tabulation of strange phrases. Some of the words are perfectly good English words but just not a part of the American vernacular, but most are colorful slang phrases.

Back in the city we window shopped and enjoyed the Christmas decorations. One of the big stores had a particularly delightful fairytale window with animated characters and accompanying music. The local of the scenes was undersea and the characters themselves were humanized marine life. The music was "rinky-rinky" piano and I just loved it. There were always crowds of people stopped in front of these windows.

One of the interests in traveling is the experiencing of unusual foods. But in Australia the food is most uninteresting. We rarely had a meal that didn't consist of meat plus English peas carrots and "beetroot". We would just say beets but they say beetroot. We understand that the bland food is a part of their British heritage. Every so often I get a strong urge to eat sauerkraut and sausage. Several times on this trip we found eating places that seemed to offer an opportunity to satisfy this wish. In Melbourne we ate at a place called the "Wiener Wald" but it was so Australianized that it would have been hard to guess that it was supposed to be a Viennese Restaurant. The sauerkraut was impossible! On the whole trip we never did find good saut like we have here in the every day canned variety.

In Melbourne as in all of Australia and New Zealand there are many more small shops than in America. There are many business places no bigger than your own living room. These little shops are often located in arcades. The arcades are passages that cut right through a city block from one street to another. The little shops then open onto these covered passages. The little shop idea is good for at least two reasons: One is that it enables an individual with limited capital to get a start and secondly these places have a creativeness and variety that a big store cannot duplicate. To get an idea of this way of doing business one could visit Cactus Alley in Lub-

Dear Parents or Students:

Texas now has a new law that requires immunizations for all students enrolled in schools and institutions of higher learning, as shown below:

V A C C I N E S	KINDERGARTEN AND GRADES ONE THRU FIVE		GRADES SIX AND ABOVE
	Doses Required	Last Dose	Dose Required	Last Dose
POLIO (Oral)	3	Since Age 4	3 (To Age 19 yrs.)	Since Age 4
DIPHtheria TETANUS (DTP or Td)	3	Since Age 4	3	Within 10 yrs.
MEASLES (Rubeola)	1 or Illness (Thru Age 12)	Anytime	1 or Illness (Thru Age 12)*	---
RUBELLA (3-day or German Measles)	1 (Thru Age 12)	Anytime	1 (Thru Age 12)*	---
SMALLPOX	1	Within 10 yrs.	1	Within 10 yrs.

*None required age 13 and above

If the number of doses required have been received, but last dose was before time stated, then an additional dose of POLIO, DIPHtheria/TETANUS or SMALLPOX is required.

All immunizations should be completed by the time school is entered. However, if this is not possible, all students will be allowed to enter their respective school systems during the Summer and Fall 1971 terms, with the provision that their immunizations against at least one of the aforementioned diseases will have been started by January 1, 1972 and all completed as soon as medically feasible.

Since many types of personal immunization records are in current use, any document listing each immunization received by year will be acceptable during the 1971-1972 school year for either initiating or updating school immunization records.

Signature or rubber-stamp validation of personal records by physicians or public health clinics is recommended but not required until the Summer 1972 Semester, after which validation of new records is required.

A new, standard Certificate of Immunization form is being developed; however, compatible documents will always be acceptable.

If you have any questions, contact your family physician or local health department. We suggest that you take this letter with you if you contact them in person.

We will appreciate your cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely,

Shelvin Nett Syph
