Miss Montgomery Luncheon Honoree

Saturday, January 8, Sperry and Hutchinson Company sponsored a 4-H Special Recognition Luncheon for Miss Susie Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.G. Montgomery of Aberrathy. Each year S & H Green Stamp Company sponsors the 4-H Home Improvement Recordbook Contest, and this year Susie was the State winner. As winner, Susie received an all expense paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago and was honored with this Special Recognition Luncheon.

To win the State Contest, Susie kept an exact record of all her home improvement activities throughout the seven years she has carried this project. Susie began the project with hopes that she could help make decisions when her family redecorated her room. Striking color, line, and design were some of Susie's first challenges. She learned the importance of a beautiful home to the happiness of the family who lives there. After conquering all the basic principles of interior design, Susie did redecorate her own room. This project proved to be so rewarding that Susie continued to work with Home Improvement. She learned to antique furniture, arrange furniture, and many other duties of home improvement including landscaping and yardwork.

After Susie had learned from her leaders, she took the challenge and has led two Home Improvement Groups herself. Teaching the younger girls to line dresser drawers, make waste paper baskets, and the basics of home improvement further broadened her knowledge of home improvement. She also plans to keep teaching home improvement, and her next group will do Macrame Wall Hangings. This teaching and her love for Home Economics has inspired Susie to choose Home Economics Education as her major when she enters Texas Tech next fall.

Sperry Hutchinson has set up several objectives which they hope the participants in their projects will attain. Susie has certainly reached each of these objectives. She has developed leadership talents and a good character and is a good citizen. This past summer, she represented the girls of this area at the Farm Bureau Leadership Lab. She is President of the Aberrathy 4-H Community Club and active in others school, church, and community activities. In the nine years she has been in 4-H, Susie has carried projects in Home Improvement, Home Management, Foods, Clothing, Public Speaking, Child Development, and Swine.

Representing S & H Company was Mrs. Claudia Koobs, Regional Consumer Relations Representative of Fort Worth. At the luncheon Mrs. Koobs spoke on the S & H Company's support of 4-H Programs. Judge Henry Heck gave the welcome. For a short program, Susie Montgomery gave a resume of her trip to 4-H Congress. She related her experiences on the trip which included tours to the Chicago Merchandise Mart, the Field Museum of Natural History, a concert of the Chicago Pop Opera directed by Arthur Fielder, and many banquets. Her most memorable experience was hearing President Nixon speak to their group. Guests at the luncheon included Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Montgomery, Mayor L. G. Dearing of Aberrathy, Mrs. Donald Huffaker, Mrs. Dennis Rhodes, Mrs. Wayne McClendon, Judge Henry Heck, and Agents Ollie Linder, Jimmie Walker, Mrs. D.C. Gamble, and James Esty.

From The Desk of the City Manager

This is the time of the year when you will be receiving a form from various taxing agencies one of which will be from the City of Aberrathy. One side of the form will list your real property and it will show the value placed on it for taxing purposes. The other side will have a form on which you list your personal property. Automobiles, pickups, and trucks that are 1967 models or younger should be listed. Older models are not taxed by the City.

There is always some questions about what is taxed and at what rate, etc. So we will attempt to give you a thumbnail sketch of how it works. The ad valorem tax is a tax on property and is based on its value. The rate is $1.45 per hundred dollars taxable value which, in our case, is 40% of the current market value of property. Under the Constitution of the State of Texas, the State and other agencies created by the State, such as counties, school districts, municipalities, etc., are authorized to levy and collect ad valorem taxes.

All property, both real estate and personal, except that expressly exempted by State law, is taxed each year. The greatest amount of misunderstanding is found in what constitutes business personal property. So we will expound on that a little and explain the manner in which it is assessed for taxation. Business personal property includes merchandise inventories, raw materials and supplies, machinery and equipment, store fixtures, office machines, data processing and other electronic machines, automobiles and trucks, aircraft, hotel and apartment house furnishings, money, notes and accounts receivable, stocks, bonds, franchises, and other miscellaneous assets related to business activities.

The law of the State of Texas and the Charter of the City of Aberrathy require property to be rendered each year as of the first of the year. Each individual, business or corporation has from Jan. 1 through April 30 to file a rendition with the City tax assessor. You may accept the figure shown and, in that case, it is not necessary to return the rendition. The assessor will render for you and, if there is any increase in the assessment, you will be notified in writing in time for you to appear before the Evaluation Board before the assessment becomes final. Property is rendered at its market value; however, the percentage of the market value to which the tax rate of $1.45 is applied is forty percent.

Property is assessed as of January 1 of each year, in the name of the owner at that date. The tax is for the entire calendar year, and property is not assessed, nor is the tax collected, for just a portion of a year. If you start a new business after the first of the year, and there is no personal property owned or in your possession on the assessment date, there will be no assessment until the following year. Tax statements for the current calendar year are mailed on or about October 1. The tax may be paid in October and a discount of three percent will be given. In November two percent and December, one percent discount will be given. The full amount of the tax becomes due and payable in January.

Mrs. Griffith Is Injured In Steer-Dog Fight

Mrs. Boyd L. (Charlie Mae) Griffith, who resides on a farm west of Aberrathy, was injured about 6 p.m. in an unusual accident near her home. After she had pulled the dog off, the steer attacked the bulldog, and Mrs. Griffith was trampled by the steer. Griffith had taken a load of cotton to gin in Aberrathy during this time. Mrs. Griffith called nearby neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fondy, who took her to Methodist Hospital, Lubbock.

Upon his return home, Mr. Griffith was advised of the accident by Mrs. Israel Garza, whose husband is employed by Griffith.

amount of the tax becomes due and payable in January.

If no payment is made, a penalty of one and one half percent per month attaches at the delinquent date of Feb. 1. This becomes lien against the affected property and should be avoided if it is at all possible to do so. Any taxpayer is welcome at City Hall at any time. If there is any question in your mind as to how and why things are done, please feel free to call on us. We cannot raise or lower your taxes. That is done by the Board of Equalization and only then after you have been given full opportunity to present your side of the case. If an assessment is wrong, you can be assured that these fine men will correct it. Jim Davis

Report From City Council Meeting Here

Mr. John Stoneham and Mr. Ed Graham met with the City Council Monday night to present a petition asking the City to annex an area bounded by First Street on the north, West Service Road on the east, and Avenue D on the west. The Council accepted the petition favorably and instructed the City Manager to do the preliminary examination necessary and present the ordinance for first reading at the February meeting.

The financial report for the first three months of the fiscal year was reviewed. Tax collections are still ahead of normal. Some past due taxes are dragging. It had been hoped that costly legal action could be avoided, but at this point action must be initiated if payment is not received in the immediate future.

Bids were opened for the purchase of gasoline delivered to the City storage tank. Consumers Fuel Association was awarded the contract for the year 1972.

The City Manager was directed to advertise for bids on the runway lighting at the airport. The Council also expressed a desire to get all the buildings that they do not own at the airport removed as quickly as possible. This has been dragging on for over a year, so it should be consummated without further delay.

A committee was appointed to meet with the Chamber of Commerce to work on a proposed City Park in the area the Chamber recently purchased. Details will be worked out and reported back to the Council.

Other routine business was conducted.

TALK IN PRINT

Last summer, Mrs. BFD and I did a lot of driving in the Aberrathy territory of South Hale County and North Lubbock County looking at the cotton and grain crops. These travels took us into four Commissioners' Precincts in the two counties. The best-kept rural roads were in Precinct 3, Hale County, with those in Precinct Two, Hale County, a very close second. The poorest-kept were the two North Lubbock County Precincts.

Although rural road-keeping is not the Commissioners' whole function, it is a very important one to those people who have to travel unpaved rural roads every day. Jack Eason comes up this year for re-election as Commissioner of Precinct 3, Hale County. No one can vote against him because he did not keep the rural roads in good condition. He and his men deserve an A-plus on this phase of the Commissioners' duties. I am not going to vote for him. I live in Lubbock County.

Flattering myself with the old saw, "wise men change their minds but fools never do," I am resuming the gripe about dogs running loose. The dog problem is worse now than it has been in the past few years. If all the other laws on the city's books were flouted like the dog ordinance, there would be chaos in this town.

I suggest to the city council that a "dog" referendum be conducted in April along with the annual city election. Only extra cost to the city would be the printing of the dog referendum ballots. If city officials will have it conducted along with the city election to name three aldermen.

Several years ago such a referendum was conducted during a regular city election, and an overwhelming majority of the voters expressed in the referendum that the city dog ordinance be enforced. Their wishes have not been carried out.

Give the people another chance in April to express their views on the dog problem. If a majority of the voters want the dog ordinance enforced, it will be incumbent upon the city officials to follow their wishes.

I appreciate the fact that the dog ordinance is a hard one with which to cope. This is due to the attitude of some people about their pets. I.e., "You can kick my kid and insult my wife, but don't touch my dog."

There are big dogs running in twos, threes, and more in some sections of town that could attack and kill a small child or seriously injure an adult. If this should happen, I don't want it to be my fault because I did not bring it to the attention of the people in town responsible for enforcing the dog ordinance.

Our elected officials are in business, and cannot afford the loss of patronage by pushing the sensitive dog problem. I think they can help get themselves off the hook by calling a referendum in April. If a majority of voters want the dog ordinance, they can point to that fact when irate pet owners get on their backs. In the event the referendum shows that a majority of voters want the dog ordinance junked and let dogs roam all over town, that will get me off the officials' backs. Let us vote and see how it comes out. -tip-

Sergeant Davis, an administrative specialist in the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing, was selected to escort Miss Louise Eddards of the acrobatic roller skating duo, the Blue Streaks. Filmed highlights of Hope's shows during the 15-day, around-the-world tour will be telecast over NBC Jan. 17.

Before beginning his tour of duty at Ubon, Sergeant Davis served at Luke AFB, Ariz.

The sergeant, a 1963 graduate of Abernathy High School, received a BBA degree in 1968 from North Texas State University, and is a member of Kappa Alpha Order.

The Struves' 5-Month Trip

(Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Arno Struve were on a five-month trip late last year and early this year. Their travels took them to the Orient, South Pacific, Australia, New Zealand and other interesting places. The Review requested a series of stories on their trip.

Mary and Nemo had been so liberal in every way with us that Minnie insisted that we find a suitable gift for them.

We learned that Mary would like to have a set of wrought iron chairs. While we were there, we were able to find the proper items and placed them on her upstairs balcony. Of course, Mary remonstrated about the chairs, but I think she was quite pleased to get them.

Another trip that we took with Nemo was to the coastal area north of Port Macquarie. We stopped at a summer resort, Crescent Head, where we met some friends of the Elses, Mr.

and Mrs. Barnett, who operate a bakery and delicatessen there. We purchased additional foods for our picnic lunch and drove on north to an abandoned prison, the stone walls of which are still in place and command a beautiful view of a lovely bay called Trial Bay.

The area generally is one of broad rivers and flat lands that produce considerable quantities of sugar cane. We had to cross the streams by means of "punts" which are small ferry boats that hold from four to six automobiles.

The main coastal highway, Highway 1, was part of our routing for the day. The highways in Australia are mostly not even as good as our farm to market roads and in areas where the roads are winding due to mountainous terrain, it is dangerous experience to drive on them. The road markings are poor to absent and the drivers are as bad as any we saw in Italy several years ago. They will take risks in passing that may endanger several cars and many people.

Australia is said to have the highest fatality rate on the highways of any country in the world. While we were visiting the Elses, we had one more trip that I must tell about. We met Mrs. Livermore at the races and several days later we met her husband, Ivan, when they came by the Elses for a visit. They were temporarily staying in Port Macquarie at their town house that they use during holidays and occasionally otherwise when they are in town. The house is near the beach-front and a little better than adequate, especially for a place that is used only occasionally. The view of the ocean and of the town from their upstairs deck was interesting. There were often ships passing at sea. We had Sunday dinner with them and I guess we asked so many questions about them and their "station" that they decided to take us the next day to see their place.

Ivan Livermore has been a very large cattleman but has now "retired" to a "small" home place of some 65,000 acres that is blessed with live streams to the extent of 100 miles of river front on his place. This place is called Cooplacurripa which is an aboriginal word meaning "running water". In addition to this "station", he has a smaller one closer to the coast called Somerset. Cooplacurripa is in the high mountain country where he keeps the cow herd and, as the calves grow, he shifts them to lower and lush pastures until he finishes them on grass at Somerset which is only a very short distance from the town of Wingham, where there is a cooperative abattoir that butchers all of his cattle. The meat is frozen and exported to the U.S.

Ivan Livermore started as a young man buying up orphan calves and feeding them by hand with a bottle. Later, as it became popular for people generally to do the same thing, they bid up the price of the calves so much that he quit feeding calves himself and, instead, bought up calves like that all over the country and sold them to other people who wanted to feed them.

Eventually, he became a very big operator and ranching on large areas in Queensland and the Northern Territories. At one time, he had the use of 13,000 square miles of grassland. The Australian government decided that no man should have more than 5,000 square miles of land and took all but this amount from him and, since all of the land was under lease from the government, it was legal for this to be done. By rise and a partnership with some of his trusted employees, he built this 5,000 square miles back up to 8,000 square miles. His holdings were adjacent to ranch lands owned by the great Texas Kings Ranch in Queensland. He operated this vast stretch of country during the time Australia broke her ties with Great Britain. At the time, the British contracts were terminated and they were then able to sell beef to the U.S. The price of cattle went from about 3¢/lb. on foot to about 10¢/lb. almost overnight. You can see why they appreciate the U.S. market so much.

There are practically no railroads in the outback that are available for shipping beef to market. In the old days, marketable cattle had to be driven to the coast much as the cattle were driven to market from Texas in the last century. Then came the motortruck and revolutionized the transportation of cattle to market. The motorized equipment of today that is used for this purpose consists of a tractor truck and several trailers strung out behind. As such a rig travels over a dirt road there is a tremendous cloud of dust that rolls across country with the truck. These are called "cattle trains" and if you see one coming out of the narrow paved roads out in the back country, it is best to get completely off the road and let it pass.

Ivan got tired of operating on such a large scale, he said "fighting the game", and of running cattle trains so decided to take it easy. He sold out for five million dollars and went to live at Cooplacurripa. I asked him what he did with all that money and he said, with a wry smile, that he paid it on his overdrafts at the bank as far as it would go. Actually, he came out with something like four million dollars and, since they have no capital gains tax in Australia (yet), he netted a nice nest egg.

An interesting sidelight about the Livermores is that Charlotte Livermore is of Italian descent. Two of her brothers live in Italy. One of them is a physician in Rome and the other has been, and still may be, the Italian ambassador to France.

The Livermores picked us up in their not-so-recent two-door Dodge hardtop that had seen a good many rough country miles. Our destination on this Monday morning was to be Wingham, some fifty or so miles from Port Macquarie. In Wingham we visited Ron Livermore and had morning tea on the veranda of their home overlooking the Manning River. The house is on a fifty foot bluff above the river. The stories we were told about Ron Livermore would make an interesting addition to this tale but it has become too lengthy already.

In the edge of Wingham we visited a park that consisted of some natural bush land that has its native plant cover still on it. One of the native wild fig trees stands ninety feet tall. The park is a sanctuary for a type of large bat that is called a flying fox. We saw many hundreds of these creatures asleep, suspended head down from the tree branches above us. A few were disturbed and were flying around. We were able to take a considerable footage of movies of these odd animals.

At Wingham we visited the cooperative abattoir and watched the process of butchering sheep. We were treated royally on a conducted tour of the plant and this was in no small measure because of the status of our host. Also, the importance of the U.S. market to these people probably had something to do with the red-carpet treatment.

The Livermores decided that since we were enjoying our tour with them so much that they would take us on out to Cooplacurripa. We had secretly hoped that they would decide to do this. Charlotte Livermore purchased a package of sandwiches for our lunch and we headed west.

The first Livermore land we came to was the Somerset place. The main railroad line runs through this ranch. We discovered that we had already photographed their land from the train. We never would have dreamed that we would have the privilege of being on the land and seeing it as we were this day.

We stopped along the way between Somerset and Cooplacurripa under the shade of a big eucalyptus tree to eat our sandwiches. Some of Ivan's Devon and Hereford cattle were not far away. Just below us was an irrigated pasture being sprinkled from a sparkling stream.

The Livermores were just getting into a beautiful, new modern airconditioned home at Cooplacurripa. Their old house was still standing in which they had lived for these many years. It was a very ordinary frame house in appearance, typical of all the other station houses that we had seen all over Australia, and hardly what you would expect to be the home of a millionaire. This was all changed now for their new home lacked nothing. It has, in addition to hot and cold running water in the baths and kitchens, a separate water system of cistern water or rain water, if you prefer it.

Ivan's racehorses were at Cooplacurripa and he had his trainer bring out each one of them and show them to us much in the manner of 4-H or FFA boys showing their cattle in this country. He knew just how to handle the animals to show them at their best. Ivan confided to us that his racehorses were more than a hobby and that they much more than paid their own way. He runs them in many of major tracks in Australia. As a matter of fact, we saw his horses listed in the newspapers as running at the Sydney track when we were there a few days later. We wanted to go see them run but had too many other things pushing us while we were there.

Also at Cooplacurripa, we watched a "cowboy" breaking a horse. We watched as he first mounted the animal and had a little country rodeo right there. One of the problems of stations in Australia is the rabbit scourge. Ivan said that he kept a crew employed the year round that did nothing but poison rabbits. They accomplished this by putting raw, clean carrots in furrows kept open for the purpose. A week later a nother placement of carrots is put out and finally, after another week, poisoned carrots are placed in the furrows. The poison is called 1080. When the crew finishes on one side of the far side and starts again on the far side and the process must be repeated over and over because the rabbits are so prolific. If the rabbits were not poisoned, they would eat the grass right down into the dirt and leave nothing for the cattle. Rabbits were innocently imported from England and, because they have no natural enemies in Australia, they multiply enormously and practically destroy everything if they are allowed to live unhindered.

We considered this day as being one of the more interesting days we had spent in Australia and the association with the Livermores as an extraordinary privilege.

We were late getting back to Port Macquarie and we learned that Mary had to restrain Nemo from calling the police. He was sure we had had a bad accident because we were so late getting in.

We consider ourselves very fortunate to have been able to do all the things we have told about in our story. It seemed that what came to us accidentally was more interesting than the things we tried to arrange on purpose. In fact, this seems to be the story of our lives. We have been blessed by seeming pure chance more than by what has been made possible by our own efforts. In any case, our sense of appreciation has never become sated and we find life as lovely today as it has always been. Perhaps more so.

Minnie agrees with me that this story has stretched out long enough for a newspaper account. Buford said he was going to "get us home", so now I shall summarize the rest of our journey into a few words.

On the way home we stopped in Sydney for a few days and visited other people that we had met in our travels. We visited the very complete zoo there and were able to see some of the more exotic native animals of Australia that we hadn't seen in the wild.

We flew from there to New Zealand and traveled from almost the southern tip of that country to the capital at the other end. In New Zealand we had the good fortune to meet a couple from Oceanside, Calif. and traveled with them for many days. The man, Mr. Harry Hynes, originally came from Springfield, Colorado, and has the appearance of a typical westerner.

From New Zealand we flew to Fiji and were engrossed with the utter strangeness of the people there. We stayed about two weeks and enjoyed the warm sea waters and fresh fruits. Bananas and pineapples are dirt cheap and are the best tasting fruit I have ever eaten. I could eat the pineapples, core and all (except the outer rind, of course).

From Fiji we went to American Samoa where we stayed only for a few hours. The most beautiful sight of all met our eyes at American Samoa. The Stars and Stripes flying over the airport there was the most thrilling sight of all our trip.

We stopped in Hawaii for two weeks but it was rather anticlimactic after having seen so many similar things before getting there. Besides, we were tired and anxious to get home.

From Hawaii we had the pleasant experience of flying home in a 747. It was a fitting termination of a dream journey that we had never dared really hope that we could make.

Needless to say, we were glad to reach the relaxation of home, but suppose that if the opportunity presents itself, we will be off again.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Too Old to Drive?

As auto accidents go, Mrs. Martin's collision with another car was nothing special. But soon afterward, bad news arrived in the mail.

"Your driver's license has been revoked," said a notice from the Traffic Bureau.

Mrs. Martin, an ardent motorist, decided to put up a fight. Challenging the Traffic Bureau in court, she pointed out that the collision was in no way her fault.

"Even so," countered a Bureau spokesman, "this woman has already passed her 77th birthday. That alone is enough basis for us to revoke her license."

But the court disagreed. Ordering the license restored, the court said advanced years alone are not enough reason to take away a person's right to drive.

Most traffic laws say that officials may revoke the license of anyone unfit to handle a car. But they may not classify a person as unfit without good grounds. Even a physical disability may not be enough to disqualify a driver if the disability can be kept under adequate control.

For example: A man had diabetes. But his condition was such that the possibility of insulin shock was slight. And if shock did occur, it would give him enough warning to allow him to pull over to the curb. A court held that his license could not be revoked.

Another man occasionally suffered from double vision. But he could clear it up instantly just by shutting one eye. His license, too, was held not subject to revocation.

However, a court refused similar help to a woman afflicted by heart trouble, high blood pressure, and partial paralysis on one side. Seeking to have her license restored, she recalled that she had driven for 30 years without an accident.

But the court, noting the very real possibility of sudden trouble, said her good driving in the past was no guarantee against bad driving in the future. As one judge put it:

"The purpose is not punishment of the driver but the protection of the public."

"Take Five" to millions of military veterans means to take time off to rest.

To us, "take five" means detailed work and planning for the next five years.

We'll be investing more than $144 million in power plant capacity and the lines and equipment needed to get an adequate supply of electricity to you. Electricity that will be needed for sewage and water treatment, disposal of wastes and for other environmental "clean-ups". Electricity, the cleanest of all energies at the point of consumption, is being depended upon as the means for effectively and efficiently cleaning up our environment.

And, adequate electricity will be needed just for the normal growth of people, their industries, their jobs, their resources — nothing frivolous, mind you — just normal, everyday solid growth.

Yes, through 1976, we'll be taking five — doing the worrying — so you won't have to... so when you want electric power it'll be there at the flick of a switch.

Hale County 4-H'ers Earn State Honors

Three Hale County youths have received all-expense-paid trips to the 50th National 4-H Congress in Chicago and another has been awarded a $50 U.S. Savings Bond for outstanding 4-H work.

Terry Terrell, 17, and Roger Pinkerton, 19, both of Plainview and Susan Montgomery, 17, of Abernathy, were selected to attend the golden anniversary congress Nov. 28 to Dec. 2 in the nation's second city.

Rebecca Baumgardner, 18, of Plainview, received a savings bond.

The three were part of more than 30 Texas youths selected for their 4-H projects by the Cooperative Extension Service to attend the congress in awards programs arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Terrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Terrell, a high school junior, started driving a tractor on his "daddy's knee."

His project in petroleum power has taught him the skill to operate and maintain all the farm machinery on the family's farm.

In the six years in the petroleum power project he has helped build and design different machinery and Pinkerton found enough interest from his project in field crops science to cause him to study agronomy at Texas Tech University where he is a freshman.

His Chicago trip was provided by Amchem Products, Inc., donor in the field crops science program.

A project in home improvement was beneficial and necessary for Miss Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Montgomery. She was given her own room with the agreement she would design and fix it up.

Formerly it was the guest room, officially, she said, but in the family "we referred to it as the junk room."

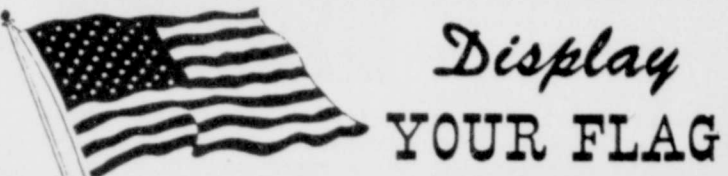

4-H'er, she should start killing the little red ants that were plaguing the house.

She said she little realized that that would be the beginning of her award-winning entomology project.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baumgardner, she has not only collected, mounted and identified 23 different orders of insects, but more importantly has learned the value of beneficial insects, how to control them and that one must be careful when interfering with the balance of nature.

Her efforts in what she labels "this buggy business" have earned her a bond from Hercules Incorporated.

The 4-H awards programs are arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Hiring Of Tax Appraiser For County Approved

In a brief meeting Monday, Hale County Commissioners approved hiring Bob Pennington as a personal property tax appraiser for the county tax office.

He will begin work Jan. 3 at a salary of $450 a month.

Court members also approved the transfer of $4,500 to the child welfare department, a routine procedure used to provide funds for the department. Other activity at the meeting included approval of the purchase of a nail picking machine for use in Precinct 2.

Meeting with the court in the morning session was S. M. True, who earlier had met with the group to ask for financial help in constructing additional pens at Hale County Agriculture Center for use in the swine division of the annual county stock show.

Commissioners told True to go ahead with studies on the project and to obtain samples from the company which constructed the first set of pens placed in the building.

In other activity, the group approved closing the Courthouse Friday in observance of New Year's Day.

Claims filed after Jan. 21 will not be backdated.

"The extended benefits become payable to individuals as a result of amendments to state and federal law and are payable only to claimants who have exhausted their regular benefits says R.L. Coffman, TEC Administrator.

A claimant for extended benefits may receive as much as 50 per cent of his total regular unemployment benefits, payable at the same weekly rate as his regular benefits. To be eligible for extended benefits, a claimant must not have entitlement to regular benefits in any state or territory; must have a benefit year that ends on or after Jan.

County Home Demonstration Agent Resigns

Mrs. Kate Gamble, Hale County Home Demonstration Agent, has resigned her position, effective January 20th, 1972. Mrs. Gamble has served in this capacity since January 16th, 1969. She and her husband moved to Plainview from Canyon, Texas where they resided for many years. Mrs. Gamble taught in the Canyon School System and served as Randall County Home Demonstration Agent.

Mrs. Gamble has served as District 2 Director of the Home Demonstration Agents Association since being in Hale County.

According to Mrs. Gamble, "Knowing and serving the many fine people of this county, including the Commissioners' Court, the 4-H boys and girls, the Home Demonstration Clubs, and the general public, has been a great pleasure. It has been a wonderful experience, and though we are reluctant to leave, I would like to have more time to spend with my family, and be free to travel with my husband. It has been a very hard decision to make."

The Gambles will return to their home in Canyon, within the next few months. Mrs. Catherine Crawford, District Home Demonstration Agent of Lubbock, hopes to present a successor to Mrs. Gamble to the Hale County Commissioners' Court in the very near future.
