Poor Richard's COLUMNAC

By RICHARD HAVENS

We're proud to announce the addition of Lori Hopson to The Review staff. We feel that Lori will be a tremendous help in gathering and writing news and helping out in the advertising department.

Lori has had prior experience in the newspaper field, and we feel confident that she will bring some fresh and new ideas into our organization here.

You'll find an article beginning on page 2 of this paper entitled "Will Your Child Be Hungry In 1985?" It is a lengthy article, but I urge those of you who are involved either directly or indirectly with agriculture to read it.

The article, written for Independent Cattlemen's Association, was brought to us by Bryan Shadden who is the Lubbock County chairman of that organization. Bryan pointed out, however, that the name of the organization is somewhat misleading, as the organization encompasses those involved in agriculture in any way.

This organization is headed by T. A. Cunningham of Collied, Texas. He and other members of the organization are urging farmers and ranchers to "be concerned" with what's going on and to "get involved".

The people of the County Line community have placed a letter in this issue of The Review, pointing out that since the County Line school consolidated with the Abernathy Independent School District that County Line had a representative from that community on the school board, up until 1970 when J. H. Myatt moved to Dimmitt.

Not that I am campaigning for any one candidate, or against any candidate, but I feel that County Line is entitled to a "voice" in matters pertaining to the school.

This is not up to me to make the choice, however. This is up to you, the eligible and qualified voters of the Abernathy Independent School District. Voting in this country is a privilege... go vote in the elections Saturday and exercise this privilege.

The people of County Line would appreciate your support in electing Richard Howard to the school board April 5. Signed by Supporters Of the County Line Community

New Manager Named For Co-op Grain Co.

By Lori Hopson

"I'm very impressed with the town and the people," says Ted Major of his new home in Abernathy. Major replaces Dan Ryan as manager of the Co-op Grain Company.

As manager of the co-op elevator and farm supply in Groom, Texas for 16 years, Major received his appointment here due to his experience in the co-op management field.

He says that the purpose of the Co-op is to provide farmers with both dividends and services, and to serve agriculture in the area.

Major will be joined in Abernathy at the end of the current school term by his wife, Eunice, and son, Chad, who is a freshman in high school. An older son, Del who is now a senior student, will report for service in the U.S. Air Force after graduation. The Majors are active in the Methodist church of Groom.

Though he has no definite plans for changing the mode of operations at the co-op for the near future, Major says that he plans to "get acquainted" and carry on business as it is, then "see where we stand".

A graduate of Groom high school, Major attended classes at Amarillo College until war encouraged him to join the Air Force, where he served for four years. He then returned to Groom and farmed there for about 12 years before taking the job as co-op manager for that area. He was also active in the Masons in that city.

Major adds that he would "very definitely" like to become an active and involved member of the Abernathy community.

PLANE, PAIR NABBED AT ABERNATHY AIRPORT BY DRUG AGENTS

Two men were arrested and approximately $33,000 and a private aircraft were confiscated about 11 a. m. Tuesday at the Drug Enforcement Administration.

The men were arrested moments after they landed at the airport and the plane was confiscated along with a small quantity of a green substance believed to be marijuana.

Acting on a confidential tip, the agents of the Lubbock Task Force arrested a 20-year-old Mexican national and a white man believed to be in his mid-50's. The money, in cash and checks, was thought to have been connected with smuggling the illicit plant into this country, agents said.

In the raid last month, three men were arrested and 1,560 pounds of marijuana, worth $156,000, was confiscated.

The investigation was continuing late Tuesday, agents said.

Will Your Child Be Hungry In 1985?

By Jean Thompson
For Independent Cattlemen's Association
T. A. Cunningham, President

Food is like sleep — not much reason to think about it as long as one has had enough. Only lack really stimulates thought about it. The American people have grown so accustomed to abundant supplies of food they no longer think about the source of it or wonder if there will be adequate amounts next year.

They have bought more luxuries, comforts, and conveniences than any other people in the world because until recently only around 3% of their disposable income was required to buy food while other nationalities had to spend 40% to 80% of their income just to eat. Can there be any doubt that much of our nation's affluence has been made possible by American agriculture? It is ironic, indeed, that people enjoying such multitudinous benefits from it will allow irresponsible political interference and economic juggernauts to threaten the survival of our agricultural businesses. For 200 years, America's family farms and ranches have been the goose that lays the golden egg, and now only an informed and concerned public can save this goose.

Only 2% of the population in the United States is in the business of growing food. America's farmers, including those who harvest their crops of grasses with livestock and are called ranchers, have been steadily declining while our population spiraled upward. Yet, our food producers have not only provided lavish food supplies for our own people, they grew enough to save the nation's balance of payments with exports in 1973 and last year provided the strategic bargaining chip for U.S. diplomatic efforts in trying to keep peace in the Mideast and elsewhere. In the 1960's, the average food producer increased his productivity 8% per year. Output per man hour in non-agricultural industry increased 3% annually in the same period. For this kind of performance, the average food producer earned an average $5,250.00 net income per year between 1967 and 1971. This was a 3.6% return on his investment. He could have made considerably more from that same investment in tax free municipal bonds and not had to work for it. Costs of production ate up almost 3/4 of his gross income during that period and those costs have skyrocketed in the last three years, while the prices of farm products have fluctuated wildly between boom and bust — beef had a flash boom followed by a still sustained bust, which, sadly has not benefited the consumers because the middle men were making up some of their inflated costs at the expense of the cattle producers.

Union wages, government salaries, and prices of all other products automatically rise to offset cost of living increases and inflated production costs, but when farm prices increase, loud howls of indignation sweep the nation. Apparently, very few Americans realize the goose that lays their golden egg can be starved to death.

The food producer's financial investments and work are always in danger of weather disaster. This they accept as an unavoidable part of their business, but when they have to mortgage their land and inventory to survive this cost price squeeze, only the very large operations will be able to borrow enough additional money to survive any serious weather calamity. The family farms and ranches that have been the backbone of American agriculture will perish. These are the food producers who with their families do most of their own labor while studying constantly to learn how to apply each technological advance research provides. One of the few places left in America where management and labor are the same man. They have proved themselves to be some of the most efficient and most highly motivated workers in the world. No way has yet been discovered to grow food without lots of often grueling, hard, dirty work which has to be done in its time and season regardless of freezing cold or blistering heat. In our comfort-pleasure oriented society with its emphasis on short hours and five day work weeks, it is ever increasingly difficult to find people willing to do this kind of work. Caring for livestock and planting and harvesting crops cannot be left undone because it is 5 p.m. or Saturday. Our independent food producers are motivated by the challenge of making their financial investments pay off to put in the long hours of hard work required to grow food. WHO is going to replace this labor force?

If America's food production goes solely into the hands of big conglomerates or corporations, WHAT will the price of food be when this work has to be done by union workers or eight hour shifts, five days a week, supervised by management personnel? And can wages motivate people to do this kind of work?

Publicity on the world food situation during the World Food Conference produced a most curious reaction of an outcry for governmental controls over land and food production. Every governmental control affecting food production in the United States has achieved only disruption of food production. And if any amount of bureaucratic control could produce food, Russia wouldn't be buying it from us. She has absolute bureaucratic control and has had our agricultural technology since World War II. She has certainly proven her mechanization capacity and yet, with 50% of her working class growing food, she cannot produce enough to keep her own people fed. China has 80% of her population working in agriculture and last year had to conscript more from the cities into the fields. Shouldn't that be sufficient evidence that no kind of any amount of bureaucratic controls can insure adequate food supplies.

In fact, Russia's experience indicates there is an inverse ratio between governmental intervention and food production. She had been viewed as the breadbasket of Europe before introducing large scale collectivization, but has been unable to solve her agricultural production problems since then. For the past three decades, the rate of growth in her population has exceeded the rate of growth in agricultural production.

What is the explanation for the amazing productivity of American agriculture which so far exceeds other nation's food production with so few food producers? What does the American farmer and rancher have that the Russians do not have? Only freedom and incentive for motivation. Both as these are being endangered.

The importance and practical value of freedom in agriculture can be seen by examining the way our food production chain works. Government funded research develops new ideas for improvement and its Extension Services brings them from Experiment Station into the field. Then the food producer studies these new ideas to see how they can be tailored to fit his particular locality and situation. To implement them, he has to gamble his own financial investments and work on his ability to adapt the new techniques to his unique environmental conditions. This is a powerful and two-fold incentive. He is motivated by both the necessity to protect his financial investments and the challenge to his ego to prove out in practice the soundness and validity of his judgement.

No two farms or ranches are alike. Soil, climatic conditions, and interaction between the two, vary widely from place to place. Ideas that prove highly successful on one place can be total failures on another. The very best of theories will not grow food unless they are woven into the whole of highly varied conditions nature presents in each location. America's food producers come to grips with the gut issues of environmentalism twenty four hours a day, 365 days a year.

It is somewhat startling to hear the theoretical environmentalists spouting rhetoric as though the environment had just been discovered. Apparently, some of them didn't know it was here until they found it in a book. Let's hope and pray these ardent people "discover" food because there is often a wide chasm between theoretical facts and practical facts. Legislation and bureaucratic decrees based on theories which have not been proved in practice are extremely dangerous to America's food supplies and costly to the consumers.

For example of this, consider the furor raised over the possibility of the coyote becoming extinct. Had he been asked, the most illiterate old sheep herder could have told anybody the possibility of rats becoming extinct in the cities was more probable than the wily coyote disappearing from the open range. And, doubtless, he would have posed some most logical questions about body lice, cockroaches, and malaria-carrying mosquitos being part of the ecology, too. The sensational emotionalism generated around the coyote completely obscured practical considerations and bureaucratic controls were instituted to protect the coyote. Fifty years of predator control work were wiped out. The coyotes are so prolific and destructive that now, three years later, there are 92 separate studies in progress trying to find some way to keep them from overcoming the west. Packs of coyotes are voraciously consuming food needed for hungry children and have cost the consumers hundreds of millions of dollars in red meat. It would, indeed, be interesting to know what the total cost to the consumers has been for this one bureaucratic blunder.

For, of course, American consumers have to pay at least twice for each and every bureaucratic control. Once in taxes for government personnel to implement and enforce it and then again in costs added to those of production. When a bureaucratic intervention is based on misinformation or faulty theory, we have to pay a third time for the efforts to rectify the mistake. When famine is stalking the world, bureaucratic mistakes disrupting food production can well cost the consumer a much dearer price in the future — one most Americans have never known — hunger.

Isn't it time for consumers to stand up and demand that all bureaucratic interference and legislation affecting food be proven out in practice on government land and the total cost of each one be made known to the American public before it is imposed on our food production, processing or distribution system? How much longer can we afford these costly bureaucratic blunders jeopardizing the basic essential of life?

The Federal government owns almost 1/3 of all land in the United States. Surely that is sufficient ground on which to prove out any and all theories or ideas which can be generated by busy brains with idle hands. The public will learn much about bureaucratic capability to manage land by studying what has been done in the past thirty years with this government owned land. Let the American people compare what this land has produced in food and dollar value to the economy with what privately owned land has produced, the management of it in terms of conservation and environmental protection before any disruption of the nation's food supply is made with anymore unproved bureaucratic interference.

It is natural for some politicians to be more concerned with pleasing the majority of voters before next election than they are with how that vast majority is going to eat ten years from now. This is the sad part of democracy that led us into this energy disaster. This situation was plainly discernable from facts available ten years ago and if corrective measures had been taken, this catastrophe could have been averted, but what politician is willing to present such unpleasantness to the voters. Now we are paying the price for this shortsightedness. We have had a bitter lesson on what foreign governments will do when we are dependent on them for oil. How will we fare if we become dependent on them for food?

COUNTY LINE CLUB

The County Line Community Club met March 27th in Barbara Teakell's home. Founaine Home opened meeting with prayer. Discussion was held about the work being done on our community club building. Windows have been removed from west and north sides plus some in front. These are being covered and the whole building is to be stuccoed. We will also have new shingles put on roof and porches built over doors. Storm windows will be installed in windows that are left in front. If you have ever shoveled sand from a house or building you know how much these windows will be appreciated. The ladies are quite excited about the improvements. Hostesses for the meetings were Joyce Connell, Founaine Home and Barbara Teakell. Refreshments were served to the following members: Kate Jones, Joyce Connell, Gladys Cox, Audrey McGuire, Jerri Floyd, Bobbie Embry, Gladys Allen, Nettie Parrish, Barbara Teakell, Mary Ruth Manley, Founaine Home and Faye Pope.

The County Line cookbooks are still available. Contact Pam Connell or Audrey McGuire. These are a nice shower, birthday, etc., gift. May surprise you how many people collect cookbooks also. May be like this reporter, collect but, don't use (very often).

FARMERS USING NATURAL GAS FOR IRRIGATION PURPOSE TO MEET TONIGHT AT NEW DEAL

Local farmers concerned with preserving a no. 2 priority for irrigation gas will have an opportunity to do something about it in the annual meeting of the Lubbock County Gas Users Association, April 3, 1975.

The meeting is scheduled for 8:00 p.m. in the New Deal Club House where all county gas users will hear a current report on a recent action by the Federal Power Commission, which classified irrigation gas as no. 3 priority. The commission stated that irrigation gas was an industrial use commodity, though it has heretofore been classified as no. 2 priority and commercial use.

Obviously, irrigation farming cannot be continued without natural gas, and Charles Wood, secretary-treasurer for the gas users association, announced that Tonya Spradling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Spradling underwent a tonsillectomy Tuesday in Methodist Hospital, Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mase-rang of Muleshoe and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Cannon of Lubbock visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H.L. Hunley last weekend.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis last weekend were their daughters and son-in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Bowers of Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Stallings of Lubbock. Her mother and sister Mrs. Margaret King and Helen also visited in the Davis home.

this constituted a "life and death struggle" and that every farmer's help would be needed to keep natural gas available for irrigation.

He added that it was necessary to unite and make farmers' voices heard, and their needs made clear, both to the Federal Power Commission and the Congress.

County officers and directors from the county to the Board of Directors of the Plains Irrigation Gas Users Association will be elected at the meeting.

Attending the meeting will be John D. Aiken, association attorney from Hereford, Texas, and Mr. Luke Miller, president of the association board of directors.

Those unable to attend the meeting are requested to send their dues $5.00 per well, by mail.

AGRICULTURE, HOMEMAKING STUDENTS TO "SWITCH" ROLES FOR SHORT TERM

BY DENISE HARBIN
 The Vocational Ag and Homemaking classes are switching places for 2 or 3 weeks. The boys are taking homemaking and the girls, Ag. Mrs. Janet Wheatley, the new student teacher, teaches the two homemaking classes.

They are learning about the four basic food groups and nutrition, how to plan a menu, and table settings. They planned a luncheon and prepared it. One of the classes had a cookie lab and prepared a snack for the migrant four year old class. The other class is learning about grocery buying.

Projects of the class will include mechanical operation of a sewing machine, basic sewing techniques, dating and family living.

Mrs. Wheatley said, "They are just experts in the kitchen. They are willing to learn." She thinks that it is good to change classes because they will be out on their own soon and need to survive in the kitchen as well as in society.

Mr. Jerry Adams, vocational agriculture teacher, is teaching the girls general shopwork including identifying and learning to use basic hand tools, changing tires, and problems that might cause an automobile not to start. The girls will build a simple wood-working project.

Mr. Adams said, "All students need to know how to do general shop work that should be familiar to everyone. Girls need to know how to change a tire as well as the safety involved, and need to be familiar with general problem areas of the automobile."

TEXAS TALK

by Harold Thompson

Q: As far as feed and feed grains are concerned, what are the differences between concentrates and roughages?

A: Fiber content and the amount of nutrient which is digestible by the animal are the basic criteria for separating these classes.

CONCENTRATES—are feeds generally high in nutrients and low in fiber content. Virtually all grains are in this class, as well as several by-products including linseed meal, cottonseed meal, hominy feed and wheat bran. Many of the concentrates have a high protein content, although this is not a prerequisite of the class.

ROUGHAGES—are high in fiber and low in nutrients. Feeds other than the grains are generally classed as roughage. These include: straw, silage, hay and a variety of coarse by-products of the plants utilized in feed grain production.

JUNIOR DIVISION DRIBBLERS ADVANCE TO STATE MEET

In the junior division (9-10 year olds) of the Regional Little Dribblers Tournament at Hale Center last week, the Abernathy All-Stars brought home the championship trophy. They defeated Silverton Thursday, then Friday evening they outplayed a strong Hale Center team 44-33 to advance to the finals of the double-elimination event.

With Hale Center having defeated Silverton earlier in the day Saturday, the Abernathy squad again met Hale Center and this time posted a 40-33 win over the host team in the finals.

Coaching the junior division All-Stars are Robert Cook and Jerry Peterson, with assistance from Carl Irbeck.

As Regional champs, the local team will advance to the State Tournament, which gets underway today (Thursday) at Idalou. In their first game the Abernathy All-Stars will meet Crosbyton at 4:45 Thursday.

In the major division of the Regional Tourney, the Abernathy All-Stars (11-12 year olds) were defeated by Silverton Thursday. They rebounded, however, to defeat Kress Friday, then met Silverton again Saturday morning where they were downed 25-33. Coaching the major division team were Oscar Lopez and Joe Garcia.

In addition to the team trophy which the junior division won (which is on display at Struve's) the boys were awarded individual trophies.

Cletus Irbeck, who scored 31 points in the Friday contest, was again a strong competitor in the final game Saturday night even though he was "about half sick."

The local boys held a 10-5 lead at the end of the first quarter, extended that to a 20-9 at halftime, and managed 10 points to Hale Center's 11 in the third stanza. Of those 10 points, Billy Nunn dumped in 8, while Tommy Guilan accounted for the other 2.

After Hale Center came to within 6 points of the Abernathy unit in the final quarter, Cletus flipped in a couple of free throws, then Billy took a long pass from Cletus and added two points just before Cletus fouled out. Mark Riddell tossed in a lay-up with a minute to go, and Tommy Guilan closed out the Abernathy scoring with a couple of free shots. During the final 6 minutes, Hale Center's Kurt Ashmore and Sid Sgesser burned the net for 6 and 7 points, respectively, while lanky Mike Masters took many a rebound.

All the local boys played well, and much improvement was noted in the team, both individually and as a unit.

HOW'S THE Electric Company DOING?

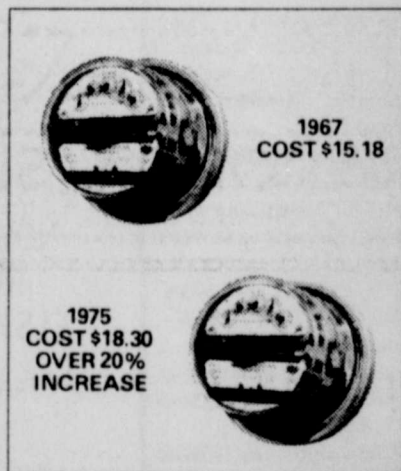

Let's ask Sharon McDuffee, meter reader . . .

"Sharon, that looks like a complex piece of equipment there..."

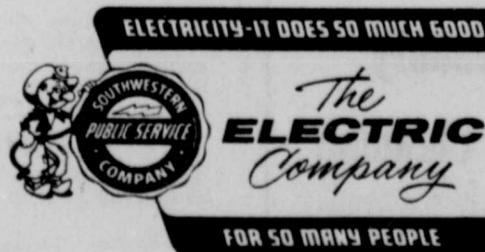

"Yes, it is. It's accurate and dependable, but it costs money."

"Seven years ago, it cost $15.18 and now it costs $18.30, over 20% more. And that meter is just one of the things we use to serve a home."

That's part of the reason your electric bill may be higher these days . . . our equipment costs more, and to give you good service, we have to buy new things to replace the old . . . to keep your electric service dependable.

The Future IS Electric!
