Personnel account still falls short

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The $500 million shortfall in the Air Force's military personnel account should not be solved with a PCS freeze, more early outs or fewer reenlistments, according to the secretary of the Air Force.

"The Air Force cannot afford to take these actions because of the long-term impacts and, in the case of a PCS freeze, merely pushing the funding problem into next year, said Secretary of the Air Force Edward

The secretary expressed his views in a memorandum to Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci III.

Congress under-funded the Air Force's military account by $515 million this year. That account contains funds for military pay, allowances, reassignments and other person-

The shortfall forced the Air Force to take a number of actions that Secretary Aldridge said "in normal times would be considered unacceptable."

Those actions include:

· Reducing military end strengths by more than 23,000 people.

- Giving early outs to more than 20,000 enlisted people.
- Cutting non-prior service accessions by one-third, to 40,000, the lowest in Air Force history.
- Filling vacancies only when unit manning levels drop below 90 percent overseas or 85 percent stateside.

The continuing weakness of the dollar in recent months has further aggravated O&M shortages, making overseas operations unusually expensive. Air Force has borrowed funds from the flying-hour fuel account to pay back foreign currency losses. Those losses are expected to be about $120 million, or almost a month of flying for the active Air Force.

If the service is not able to replace this money, it must "reduce fourth-quarter flying hours or furlough civilians, or both, in order to absorb this $120 million," the secretary warned.

Every major command has imposed civilian hiring freezes and plans maximum separation of temporary employees. Funds for civilian pay are included in the O&M account.

Talent stars win awards

Song and dance filled the air last week at the Mathis Recreation Center as 15 people competed in the 1988 Base Talent Show.

Nine contestants, who consisted of four acts, were selected to represent Reese AFB in the ATC Talent Show at Keesler AFB, Miss. They are: Eumilta Gibbs, Dedrick Albert, Dennis Howell, James Smith, Derrick Mosley, Elliot Chambliss, Steven Jenkins, Robert D. Johnson, and Stacie Robinson.

Best of Show was Eumilta Gibbs, who sang "The Way We Were" in the Female Music Vocalist not self accompanied cate-

First place in the Female Music Vocalist not self accompanied category went to Stacie Robinson, who sang "Saving All My Love For You.'

Male music vocalist, not self accompanied winners were Robert D. Johnson, singing "Always and Forever," and Derrick Mosley, who sang "You."

In the Vocal Duet category, Elliot Chambliss and Steven Jenkins performed "You Will Know."

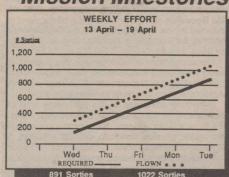

In the Dance category, Dedrick Albert, Dennis Howell and James Smith performed their dance routine to "Push It."

Sgt. Reggie Sayles will accompany thegroup as the Team Representative.

Other category winners were: Cindy Coley in the Music Vocalist category, Wes Amos, Elliot Chambliss, Steven Jenkins, Keith Love and Derrick Mosley in the Vocal Group category and Greg Spraggins in the Instrumental Solo category.

Other contestants were: Susan L. Drake and Sheila Sowards in the Female Music Vocalist category, and Wes Amos in the Male Music Vocalist category.

Mission Milestones

The 64th FTW gained significantly on the time line last week due to good weather and aggressive squadron scheduling. The 131 sorties we gained put the T-37s at 3.2 days ahead of the time line and T-38s at 6.1 days ahead.

Among the many acts featured during the base talent contest last week was this five piece vocal group. (USAF Photo)

Barracks thief nets bad discharge

By Capt. Mark E. Garrard 64th Air Base Group, Judge Advocate General

A public trial by court-martial was held at Reese AFB, Bldg 800, on April 8, 1988, to hear and decide larceny of an expensive gold chain from a resident of Alexander Hall, Bldg 420.

The Accused, AB Anthony Young, chose to have his case decided before a military judge as fact finder rather than have a panel of officers or officer and enlisted members.

After a full hearing, at which the Accused testified under oath, the court found him guilty of all charges.

The case was solved by the quick thinking of MSgt. Michael Braskett, First Sergeant of the 64th Supply Squadron, who the bench to the Accused were: spotted the gold chain around the neck of the Accused after having read a report of the barracks theft.

The Sergeant promptly reported his suspicions to SSgt. Patrick Garthwaite of Security Police Investigations. Sergeant Garthwaite completed the criminal investigation identifying the true owner.

The professional actions of these NCOs, coupled with their testimony at trial, conviced the military judge of AB Young's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

The Accused was sentenced for his crimes to a bad conduct discharge from the United States Air Force, three months confinement and two-thirds forfeiture of his pay per month for three months. At the conclusion of trial the judge's last comments from

"Airman Young, even though the court has adjourned, I would like to explain briefly the sentence in the case to you.

"It pains me deeply to give a bad conduct discharge to a 20-year-old, but by far your most serious offense is the offense of barracks larceny, even under your own view of the offense. Taking something of value from a service member is bad enough, but it is the taking of that item from the room of a serviceman that is an aggravating factor.

"Service members are entitled to feel secure in their barracks, and anything less detracts from the cohesiveness of the military. And by taking this necklace you showed an utter disregard for these principles and for the rights and feelings of your fellow service

Bits & Pieces

The Suggestion Program does make a difference...

Did you know that the Air Force Suggestion Program continues to be the very best in the Department of Defense? As a matter of fact, in FY 87, the Air Force savings from the suggestion program established a record of $306 million dollars saved!

Of perhaps even more significance, the Air Force alone saved 75 percent of the total amount saved in the entire Department of Defense. This leaves no doubt as to the superior quality of folks we have working for a better Air Force for tomorrow.

A suggestion may be worth a thousand dollars...

I just want everyone to know of the very high priority that I place on cost reduction and productivity enhancement. I view the suggestion program as absolutely essential to insuring our Air Force operates as efficiently as possible. I also encourage folks to make suggestions because a valuable suggestion can result in a cash award paid directly to the individual. The amount of the award depends primarily on the savings to the Air Force and the time factor involved to recover those savings.

I would be willing to wager that if everyone spent just 5 minutes a day taking an innovative look around their work areas, I'm certain we could improve this year on last year's record-breaking performance.

I am confident as well that a significant amount of money would be awarded to Reese personnel for their efforts. I challenge each and every person employed at Reese to try and come up with at least one good suggestion to improve our base, and ultimately, our Air Force.

A night to remember...

This past Saturday, Reese was indeed fortunate to have a hero as a guest speaker for the 35th Flying Training Squadron Dining Out. Brig. Gen. (retired) Robby Risner, a Korean War Air Ace and a Vietnam POW gave an emotional talk that will be long remembered.

It's very easy in our day-to-day lives to take many things—such as family, freedom, country—for granted. It takes someone like Gen. Risner who was deprived of so much for so long to open our eyes.

Take time to appreciate and never forget our American way of life that so many people have sacrificed to preserve.

Kudos to...

Administrators' Day

April 27, 1988 Reese AFB, Texas

A day to recognize the Reese admin

by 2nd Lt. Kerri A Bedesem Executive Officer

Deputy Commander for Operations

Administrator's Day at Reese Air Force Base on Wednesday is intended to recognize the base's administrators. But who are they? Where do they work? What functions does an administrator perform?

With more than 26,000 airmen, 2414 officers and more than 30,000 civilians, the administration field is one of the largest in the Air Force. Reese itself has 64 civilians and 52 military administrators.

Administrators are in every squadron and nearly every section on base. You can find administrators in CBPO, Operations, Supply, Services, Communications, OSI, Security Police, Maintenance, the Hospital, as well as most other offices.

While administrators do not directly get planes into the air in the same sense that aircraft mechanics or pilots do, their job is important to that mission.

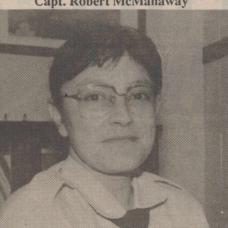

Administrators are responsible for supporting our squadron commanders, base commanders, deputies; they are responsible for maintaining records in our finance centers, CBPO and hangars.

The duties of administrators are as varied as are their locations across the base.

Remembering the number of administrators on base and the various mission-related duties they perform, when you call an administrator a "paper pusher," you'd better smile, because during your Air Force tour you are sure to need their "paper-pushing" know-how and expertise.

Capt. Robert McManaway

SSgt. Dora Martinez

A1C Kim Bullard

The semi-annual Outstanding Administrators Awards for Sept. 1, 1987 through Feb. 29, 1988 were recently announced.

Captain Robert McManaway of the 64th Student Squadron was selected for the Officers and Civilians GS-7 and above category.

The Enlisted E-5 and above and GS-5 and 6 selected is SSgt. Dora Martinez, of Deputy Commander for Operations Administration.

The Enlisted E-1 to E-4, Civilian GS-1 to GS-4 is A1C Kim Bullard of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

The Outstanding Administrators Award program is a Reese-sponsored program. Individuals are also selected to represent Reese at Air Training Command level.

Administrators submitted for the 1987 ATC Outstanding Administrator competition are 2nd Lt. Summer Scott, Administration Officer, Base Level Administration; TSgt. eggy Smith, Senior Enlisted Administrator, Staff Support; SSgt. Devette Washington, Enlisted Administrator, Staff Support; and Carmen Lopez of the Comptroller's office, Enlisted Grade Civilian Administrator.

Clerk vs. Administrato

Many people assigned to our career field are often referred to as "clerks." What is a "clerk?" Where did this persistent title originate? How do we free ourselves from it? Do we want to free ourselves from it? What's the difference between a "clerk" and an

The dictionary says a clerk is "an individual employed to perform more or less routine office tasks. The term "clerk," as we know it, is a carryover from the days of the Army Air Corps. The administrator's duty title was "company clerk." A good example is Radar O'Reilly from the television series MASH. Radar is the stereotype administrator many people see. A likable enough person, but not very skilled, not very educated, and very unsure of himself and his abilities.

Radar was unquestionably the most unappreciated member of the organization. That is, until his departure, when his contributions became extremely evident. In the past, Administration was a career field of relatively simple tasks. Therefore, less skilled people, including those retrained from other career fields, were placed in it. But the career field has changed since Radar's days and so have the people in it.

We're on the leading edge of today's technology with office computers, word processing, etc. So how do we shed this "Radar" image? By being more than clerks. By being administrators. Let's just see what the word "administrator" means.

- stands for adaptable. We must go into all types of jobs and learn the terminologies and idiosyncrasies of each work place. We must adjust our time and our schedules to see that those who depend on us get the products they require, when they require them.
- stands for dedicated. We must do more than just "what's required" and be willing to make personal sacrifices when necessary to produce the best product possible.
- is for astute managers. It's no small task to keep the paperwork flowing, your people motivated, and respond to all the "hot ones" and additional duties we seem to inherit.
- is for industrious. We should stay busy. We should look for things to do which make our job and career field better.
- represents no-nonsense. Enjoying what we do and how we do it is important. However, we must take our job seriously. How we are perceived by others is a no-nonsense matter.
- shows involvement. All of us must get actively involved within the career field. We must expand our sphere of influence beyond the fronts of our desks. If it concerns administration or administrators, it concerns us.
- denotes self-assured. We must always believe in ourselves, and our contribution to the
- is tenacious. We must be determined to hang in there and work to make our offices better places to do business.
- stands for reputable. People expect and deserve a consistently high quality product—one we are willing to stand behind.
- is for accessible. Those of us in supervisory and leadership positions must always be available to discuss and work out administrative problems with our subordinates, other administrators and fellow airmen.
- is tactful. Many people think Administration gets in their way, slows them down. How we address other's administrative shortcomings is as importnat as telling them what needs to be corrected. Remember, your actions reflect on all administrators.
- stands for organized. We must have our act together—individually on the job and collectively as a career field. We must all be headed in the same direction . . . forward!
- denotes reliable. The rest of the Air Force must be confident that they can count on us to do our part and more. We must be as dependable as the sunrise and sunset.

So there's your difference. On one hand, you have a Radar; on the other, an adaptable, dedicated manager: a person who is industrious, no-nonsense, involved, self-assured, tenacious, reputable, accessible, tactful, organized and reliable. You have more than a clerk . . . you have an administrator! If we behave like Radar, we will be perceived and treated like him. As administrators rather than clerks we will go a long way towards achieving the respectability and recognition we desire. Take a look at yourself, are you a clerk or an administrator? (OPR: MSgt. Richard C. Turcic, HQ AAC/IGIA, AV 552-

er with a purpose

Editor's note - The following is a 1978 reprint from the Strand Sentry, by Sgt. Karen P. August.

I'm a pusher - paper pusher that is, and have been given other such dubious titles as clerktypist, secretary, go-fer, and last, but not least,

Actually, until about ten months ago, my opinion of the 702XO career field was quite limited. I was a Communication Center Specialist; therefore how was I to know exactly what their job entailed? Every time I went to the orderly room the "702" was either writing or typing something. As most people, I came to the conclusion that "702" work was definitely dull, completely unchallenging and not

But as the years wore on, I, being a shift worker, began to wear out. I had it with mids, swings, etc. I began thinking about a new career in the Air Force. The Air Force in turn afforded me the opportunity to cross-train. Very few fields were open for my year group.

few days and decided that a "skate job" just might be the answer.

As I self-assuredly entered my new job, the fantasy ended. I quickly came to learn the reality of what it meant to be an administrative specialist. I was amazed at the amount of responsibility placed on my shoulders in such a short amount of time.

The list of my duties is endless: publications have to be ordered, posted, distributed, and kept well stocked; files have to be maintained and retrieved; prepare upgrade action; type APRs and monitor the suspense to insure timeliness of completion; type leave forms, insure no errors are made, monitor the suspense of the supervisor's copy; monitor appointments, make sure everyone is notified and renotified; take follow-up action when an appointment is missed; prepare form letters to make someone's job a little easier and in the

The only "day" job available was (you midst of all of this, familiarize yourself with guessed it) "702." I thought about this for a various publications and forms to give assistance when needed. You can be sure, these transactions occur on a daily basis plus more.

> It takes quite a special person to be able to produce quality work in such a hectic environment as anyone in an administrative position would agree.

> An important point to remember is that the "702" slot of each section is usually a "one person" position. There is no second or third shift to clear any unfinished work. I, for one, am glad to be an administrative specialist and enjoy the fast pace and responsibility.

> So, the next time you happen to walk into an office and the phones are ringing, typewriters are humming and people are busy talking, take a little extra time to say something nice to the admin specialist. Say "thanks for a job well done." A little recognition and pat on the back goes a long way, and you'll be glad you

The long, hot summer...it'll just kill you!

By Col. Kenneth Hess Deputy Commander for Operations

It doesn't take much time in ATC to figure out we work long, hard hours, and that we work the longest and hardest during the summer months.

This is part of the reason our summer mishap rate is so terribly high. Did you realize that in 1987, between Memorial Day and Labor Day, ATC had almost 250 mishaps? Of these, five were fatalities; 55 were sports related; 26 involved four-wheeled vehicles; and 12 were of the two-wheeled variety. During the same summer the Air Force lost 55 proud Americans—31 in alcohol related mishaps. It's no wonder those 101 days are termed "critical."

The long hot summer is a special menace to Operations. Due to personnel turnover, summer leave and TDY, a significant per-the students have experienced a Reese summer. No matter how hard you try, it seems like you can't stress safety enough...you never feel comfortable that everyone got the word-and believed it!

Basically, with longer daylight we're expected to get more done. Typically, a summer flying day will begin around 4:00 a.m. with the early reports, and last until the final missions debrief that night at around 10:00 p.m. Then if there's night flying required we've been known to slip the surly bonds until 3:00 a.m.

Just ask some of the old heads what it's like to carry on that kind of pace for four to

Fatigue added to stress, added to reduced aircraft performance caused by extreme summer heat is the chemistry for potential disaster. In fact, history tells us that during centage of instructors and virtually none of July and August each year, operators are far and away (70 percent of the time) the largest cause of Class A mishaps in ATC.

> Colonel Mark Lillard, our 64th Flying Training Wing commander, has charged us to work hard but smart this summer. We plan to try and take a few days off to balance the pace whenever the mission or safety dictate. But that's what we can do, the rest is up to

> Don't fall prey to business as usual during the summer, because it's not-it's a killer.

> Drink plenty of water. Eat balanced, nutritional meals. Stay in shape. Get adequate rest. Above all else don't take the summer heat and long days lightly. This is not a new challenge, but a recurring problem-we won't learn any new lessons but can prevent repeating old mistakes.

Fly safe, be safe.

Reporting FW&A saves everyone money

Security deposit reminder

Complaints against landlords failing to return a security deposit or charging for rent after a tenant has vacated the property are not uncommon. Most often this is because the lease was not fulfilled in its entirety or a written thirty-day notice was not given prior to vacating the property. You must complete your signed lease agreement or pay the penalty. To avoid these problems, read your lease. If you do not agree with the conditions of the lease and the landlord is unwilling to change them in writing, do not sign the agreement. If you have questions concerning your lease, contact the Housing Referral Office at 3601, or stop by the Base Housing Office, bldg. 6100.

Northrop takes over maintenance at Columbus

COLUMBUS AIR FORCE BASE, Miss. — The flight line here looks a bit different this week. The airplanes are still there. The pilots come and go with the same regularity. And, the same work is

What is different is that 800 military maintainers have been replaced by 435 civilian contract workers. Northrop Worldwide Aircraft Services, Inc., took over maintenance of T-37 and T-38 aircraft here April 1 under a six-month, $6.8 mil-

The contract runs from April 1 to Sept. 30, with annual options for four additional years. The contract resulted from a 1986 Air Force cost study, examining the potential conversion to contract or civil service operation of maintenance functions at most Air Training Command bases.

M. J. Mooney, Northrop's division manager here, said he breathed a sigh of relief when he realized the conversion was actually going to work. He said now the process of fine tuning

"Now that we have the skilled people out there, our big challenge is making a team out of them," said Mooney. "You can't take 450 people, set them down and have an organization. The organization has to meld. We have to solve some problems, but after we work them out and jell into a team, there won't be any stopping us."

More than 900 military and civil service people maintained the base's 175 aircraft before the conversion. But, under the conversion contract, Northrop is using 435 people.

"How are we going to replace 900 people with 400 people? Well, that's the crux of the matter," said Mooney. He said it will not be done with mirrors and it will not be done at the expense of safety or performance.

"One of the main reasons we can do it with less manpower is our experience level far exceeds the military's," said Mooney. "About 50 percent of our people are retired military, so we have people with 20, 25, even 30 years of experience working as our basic mechanics." Mooney said because the level of experience is so high, Northrop can reduce the number of people needed to do the job.

He said the company also can do the job with fewer people because it does not have extra duties to worry about, programs such as commander's call, or the need to maintain combat skills, alert status or readiness conditions.

'Our job is right here, and we don't do anything other than this," said Mooney. He said he is sure the conversion will be successful beyond expecta-

"Since Air Training Command said Columbus is going contract, the senior commanders here pretty much had to go along with it. But even the buck sergeants and airmen we've talked with have been very supportive, very positive," said Mooney.

"That says something about the attitude of the entire base. Everyone believes this really can work. With that kind of support and attitude, there's absolutely no way we can fail."

About 15 maintenance officers and enlisted people will remain at Columbus to perform quality assurance functions. Some 650 military members have received stateside assignments — primarily to Strategic Air Command and Military Airlift Command — and another 150 members are being reassigned overseas.

The majority of the civilian employees affected by the conversion have accepted jobs with Northrop here, while 25 others are now employed at other Department of Defense installations.

Reorganization of contract operations underway

Headquarters Air Training Command offi- used in building these new organizations. cials announced today that the San Antonio Real Property Maintenance Agency (SARPMA) and San Antonio Contracting Center (SACC) will be disestablished by Oct. 1, 1989. Both organizations are headquartered at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

On May 1, each base in the San Antonio area will begin organizing a base/post civil · engineering unit and contracting unit to manage facility maintenance and contract-

This action is part of an effort to ensure commanders have more direct control over the services they need to accomplish their unit's mission. The reorganization to real property maintenance and contracting organizations at each installation will make it more efficient for commanders to construct and maintain facilities necessary for their various missions.

Drug war

KELLY AFB, Texas (AFNS)— Army and Air National Guard took a more active role in the war against drugs last year. Army Lt. Gen Herbert R. Temple Jr., chief of the National Guard Bureau, said more than 375 missions were conducted in 1987.

Missions included aerial observation and reporting marijuana locations, transportation of law enforcement officials, radar and visual surveillance of suspected aircraft and vessels, and loans of specialized equipment.

More than 1,500 guardsmen from 25 states took part during training periods.

Missile first

Connectivity for computer use expanded

by SSgt. Keith Gabel

1958 Communications Squadron

Working with members of the 1958th Communications Squadron, GTE of the Southwest recently installed a new 200 pair cable to the base Data Processing Center (DPC).

Johnson, Commercial Communications Manager for the 1958th Communications Squadron, the additional cable was required because of all the new computer systems requiring connection to the

According to Sgt. Vincent Sperry 1100/60 base level computer in the DPC.

"With the addition of CAMS, the TRIM systems, and BCAS (a computer system for accounting and finance), we've used up all the spare cable going into the DPC.

Without additional cable, many planned for Reese AFB this sumof the newer comuter systems and mer. Total cost for the four projects will be around $100,000 and will provide additional cable to the Wing headquarters building, the Recrea-The cable installation to the tion Center, the Security Police building, and the hospital.

SCOTT AFB, III. (AFNS) — Military Airlift Command will fly fewer training missions this year to stay within its reduced operations and maintenance budget.

Gen. Duane Cassidy, MAC commander in chief, said the command will accept a lower degree of operational readiness to come up people programs.

MAC took a 20 percent cut in operations and maintenance funds significantly for fiscal year 1988, the first time the command has been below a billion dollars since 1979.

General Cassidy said the bulk of the funding needed to carry out the plan will come from a 35 percent reduction in local training flying hours for the rest of the fiscal year. Affected are C-5 Galaxy, C-141 with the dollars it needs to protect Starlifter and C-130 Hercules

> The general said the cuts will reduce the command's capability to respond to short-notice taskings, such as the recent Honduras operation, and major humanitarian relief efforts.

In addition, MAC has canceled all operational readiness inspections for the rest of the year. MAC's international tactical airdrop competition —Airlift Rodeo—also has been canceled. The competition had been slated in June at Pope AFB, N.C.

A number of other flying programs will be reduced, including capability exercises and a variety of airlift support missions.

General Cassidy noted that the reduction in joint airborne and air transportability training missions will impact Army, Navy and Marine Corps training.

"We have decided to accept a short-term reduction in our overall mission capability rather than to take a long-term reduction in our ability to perform our mission through demoralization of our dedicated civilians who have meant so very much to our command and to our nation," General Cassidy

The general added that MAC will require a "reassessment in the next fiscal year in order to bring the command back to the full capability which it currently has."

Nurses prepare for war

Nursing Services will sponsor a panel presentation by nurses with actual wartime experience on June 3. The program is part of Readiness Training.

Participants will meet in the Jack Davis Room of the Reese Officers' Open Mess where the film We All Came Home, a DOD film depicting the experiences of nurses who were prisoners of war will be shown prior to the panel presentation.

Lieutenant Colonel Hattie R. Brantley (retired), one of the nurses featured in the film, will be the guest speaker.

Other members of the panel will be: Lt. Col. Craig Ruble, chief of nursing services; Elizabeth Jarres, from St. Mary of the Plains Hospi-

The USAF Hospital, Reese tal, Lubbock; Dennis Brown, chief nurse, Veterans Administration Hospital, Big Spring, Texas; and Jill Grant of the Vietnam Veterans Administration, Lubbock.

Readiness training is designed to prepare individuals to handle the psychological trauma of war and to care for thousands of wounded at the risk of possible capture by the enemy. The goal of this program is to inform those in attendance of what might happen in a future con-

We are rapidly approaching the time of year when many organizations as well as households will be trying to beat the heat by turning on their air conditioners.

Refrigerated air conditioning consumes the largest portion of the electrical energy that we use during the spring and summer months. Therefore, it makes good sense to use electricity more efficiently, saving wherever you can, and assisting in the conservation of our

Eye bank restores sight to many

Nearly 100 Lubbock area residents have had their sight restored by comeal transplant surgery in the past year according to David L. McCartney, M..D. medical director of Great Plains Lions Eye Bank.

"National Organ/Tissue Donor Awareness Week (April 24-30) is a good time to talk about corneal transplant surgery, one of the most common and the most successful of all organ and tissue transplants.

"Ophthalmologists nationally confirm that more than 90 % of these operations restore sight to persons who have corneal-related blindness due to injury or disease," McCartney added.

Although 250,000 people have received the gift of sight through corneal transplant surgery since the Eye Bank of America was founded in 1961, McCartney said thousands of citizens, some of whom reside in the Lubbock area, must wait for surgery because of a lack of corneal tissue.

The Great Plains Lions Eye Bank is one of 93 member eye banks of the Eye Bank Association of America headquartered in Washington, D.C. Its staff members obtain, medically evaluate and deliver corneal tissue to surgeons and eyes to research centers. "If we could increase eye pledges we could shorten the days for blind persons who wait in darkenss, and we could expand reserach efforts into the causes and cures of all types of blindness," McCartney McCartney emphasized the need for persons to share their decision to pledge their eyes with family and close friends. "This should be a deliberate decision. Family members must be informed so the pledge can be fulfilled. Sharing one's wish in advance can save a difficult decision later on under stress.'

The Great Plains Lions Eye Bank was founded by the Department of Ophthamology and Visual Sciences at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center and members of the District 2-T2 Lions Club.

Organ donor awareness week and Tissue Donor Awareness Week. It is a time for renewed interest in, and public education about, the issue of organ donation.

Each year thousands in the United States remain blind, on dialysis or hospitalized, and some do not even survive the wait for a donated organ.

Because of this donor shortage, Congress put into effect the required request legislation effective Jan. 1.

The intent of this legislation is to increase the donor pool by requiring hospitals to identify and approach families of potential organ or tissue donors.

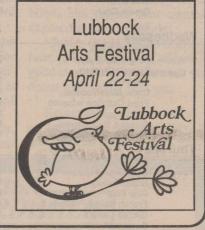

Organ donation, at the time of bereavement, can be a difficult

Nonetheless, donation can really aid the healing process.

One donor family put it this way, "If you could experience the joy we fell each time we meet or

ROY BURNS DRUM CLINIC

Roy Burns' career covers virtually all areas of drumming such as Big Band Drummer, Studio Drummer, Combo Drummer, Publisher, Author of "Concepts" for Modern Drummer, teacher, clinician and now manufacturer of innovative percussion products.

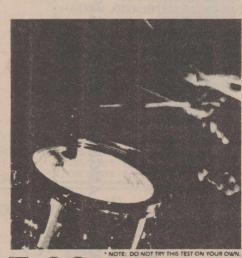

Roy's clinic covers such subjects as; tuning; drumhead selection; stick control; coordination and developing your own style. Roy shares his extensive experience freely in a relaxed and friendly manner.

The Patented Hi-Performance™ drumhead will not fail during a performance even if a break begins to develop. This is not a trick photo with the knife ... but a real test.*

The Patent Pending Power Dot will not dent, pocket or tear. Aquarian Drumheads have a big, full sound that must be experienced in person.

Come and meet Roy Burns in person and try for yourself the most unique Mylar® drumheads ever developed.

New name on base

In the past many of us have referred to the Golf Course at Reese as "The Reese Golf Course." This is a name of the past! The golf course has hung out a new shingle, complete with a new name. From now on it will be called "High Plains" Golf Course.

Base Library has new hours

The Base Library will have new hours of operation effective Monday, May 2.

Monday - Thursday: 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Friday: 10 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Saturday, Sunday: Noon to 4

Holidays: Closed.

Seed catalogs for check out

For all the garden and flower lovers at Reese, the Base Library is proud to announce their new display of flower and vegetable seed catalogs. These catalogs can be checked out on a weekly basis.

Reese power lifters on top

By SrA Greg Spraggins Roundup, Sports

Four Reese Iron Pumpers competed in the West Texas Open Bench Press and Powerlifting Championship held in Lubbock, April 2. Once again Reese Lifters excelled.

Todd Hamilton, assigned to Morale, Welfare and Recreation, press and pulled a 451.7 deadlift for look for players competed in the bench press portion of the meet. Hamilton had an off day compared to his usual-standard. However, his 231 lb. bench press was good enough for first place, continuing his dominance of 132 lb. class.

Hamilton is expected to be in top form when he competes in the USPF Jr. Nationals, June 4 and 5 in Dallas.

Elliot Chambliss, assigned to USAF Hospital, Reese, made a strong bid for the 165 lb. divisional crown. Chambliss competed in the open meet and bench press, earning second in each event. He posted a 440.7 lb. squat, a 303 lb. bench an impressive 1,195.4 total. Chambliss will be competing in the third annual Greater Lackland Open in San Antonio, Saturday.

Robert Killen, assigned to Morale, Welfare and Recreation, and Paul Gillis, assigned to the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, also competed in the bench press event. They both posted impressive lifts in the 165lb.

Gillis posted a 236 bench and Killen posted a 270 lb. bench. He was disqualified in his attempt at 1958th helps those in need

By Glenda E. Ward
1958th Communications Squadron

Have you ever felt the satisfaction in helping an elderly or disabled person?

For first hand testimony, talk to any of the volunteers from the 1958th Communications Squadron who participate in the Lubbock Meals on Wheels program. These individuals will be happy to tell you how good it makes them feel to take a free meal to folks who cannot provide for themselves with regular meals because they are either ill, disabled or lack transportation to go buy food.

No matter the reason, the pride and accomplishment is evident when each volunteer has had a part in helping someone who not only appreciates the food, but the opportunity to chat for a few moments and brighten their day. Many of the Meals on Wheels recipients enjoy seeing men and women wearing the Air Force uniform, and sometimes the volunteers of the 1958th who deliver these meals are the only contact these recipients may have that day with the outside world.

Wednesday of each week is considered "1958th Communications Squadron Day," and members of the Squadron, who participate in the program strictly on a volunteer basis, travel in pairs and must provide their own transportation.

Currently, the 1958th is the only squadron on Reese AFB that participates in this fine community project.

In addition to actively working on the Meals on Wheels program, the Squadron Booster Club has several fund-raising projects during the year, and donates a portion of the profits to the Meals on Wheels program.

MSgt. Tom Jones and Sgt. Leo Jones are two of the many volunteers from the 1958th Communications Squadron who deliver free food to elderly citizens of Lubbock. Also shown is Mrs. Velma Lewis, one of many recipients of Meals on Wheels. (USAF Photo by SSgt. Donald Danford)
