STORM REPORT

As Reported by...
Stormie Meriwether,
U.C.O. Freshman

Dearest Friends, For the first time in two months. I came home to the ranch in Wheeler! I didn't know I missed this place so much. The trees were beautiful, even in the misty rain. The leaves were gold and John Denver's song, "Take Me Home Country Roads," was playing in my head. When we passed my fishing hole, I couldn't believe the water was so low. I got to the house and went straight to see my cat, Henry. He was excited to see me. Then he curled up in my lap and did not want to get down.

'Tis clean-up day. Clean-up day is not necessarily a regularly-occurring event insofar as it is a particular day of the week or the month, but it is recurring insofar as there is seldom a time during which it does not need to happen. It might be more effective if clean-up day did occur and recur on a certain day, but in truth, a part of clean-up day needs to happen every day, and at the same time, if it happened each day, there really would be not much need for clean-up day.

What is the cause for needing so many clean-up days? It seems like at some point we, or at least I, would learn the lesson as to what contributes to the problem of messiness, and how to avoid it, etc. The answer is not as elusive as the frequency with which the problem occurs suggests. So if we know what to do, why not do it? This is one of the fundamental questions of human existence, and also one of the fundamental characteristics of being human, it seems. Some would say it is lack of discipline which keeps us from doing what we know and ought.

I utilize this space to argue that it is not a lack of discipline as much as a lack of opportunity. True, there is a limited amount of brainpower and willpower available for use each day, and when they are gone, the odds of effective thinking or helpful action are as good as gone. Note also that this phenomenon tends to occur late in the day, which ironically and cruelly also tends to be when cleaning up must occur, if it is to occur on a given day.

But my point was that the need to clean up represents a lack of opportunity to keep things clean. What does this mean? Practically it means there is insufficient time, energy, and opportunity to juggle the things we endeavor to juggle each day, to end in a harmonious balance with to producers with 2021 crops that have triggered payments through ARC or PLC.

It's that time of year for producers to consider all of their risk management options, including safety-net coverage elections through Agriculture Risk Coverage and Price Loss Coverage," said FSA Administrator Zach Ducheneaux. "We recognize that market prices have generally been very good, but if the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, frequent catastrophic weather events and the Ukraine war have taught us anything, it's that we must prepare for the unexpected. It's through programs like ARC and PLC that FSA can provide producers the economic support and security they need to manage market volatility and disasters."

2023 Elections and Enrollment

Producers can elect coverage and enroll in ARC-County (ARC-CO) or PLC, which provide crop-by-crop protection, or ARC-Individual (ARC-IC), which protects the entire farm. Although election changes for 2023 are optional, producers must enroll through a signed contract each year. Also, if a producer has a multi-year contract on the farm and makes an election change for 2023, they must sign a new contract.

If producers do not submit their election by the March 15, 2023 deadline, their election remains the same as their 2022 election for crops on the farm. Farm owners cannot enroll in either program unless they have a share interest in the farm.

Covered commodities include barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambe, flaxseed, grain sorghum, lentils, mustard seed, oats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium and short grain rice, safflower seed, seed cotton, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed and wheat.

Web-Based Decision Tools In partnership with USDA, the University of Illinois and Texas A&M University offer web-based decision tools to assist producers in making informed, educated decisions using crop data specific to their respective farming operations. Tools include:

Gardner-farmdoc Payment Calculator, a tool available through the University of Illinois allows producers to estimate payments for farms and counties for ARC-CO and PLC. ARC and PLC Decision Tool, a tool available through Texas A&M that allows producers to obtain basic information regarding the decision and factors that should be taken into consideration such as future commodity prices and historic yields to estimate payments for 2022.

2021 Payments and Contracts

ARC and PLC payments for a given crop year are paid out the following fall to allow actual county yields and the Market Year Average prices to be finalized. This month, FSA processed payments to producers enrolled in 2021 ARC-CO, ARC-IC and PLC for covered commodities that triggered for the crop year.

For ARC-CO, producers can view the 2021 ARC-CO Benchmark Yields and Revenues online database, for payment rates applicable to their county and each covered commodity. For PLC, payments have triggered for rapeseed and peanuts.

For ARC-IC, producers should contact their local FSA office for additional information pertaining to 2021 payment information, which relies on producer-specific yields for the crop and farm to determine benchmark yields and actual year yields when calculating revenues.

By the Numbers In 2021, producers signed nearly 1.8 million ARC or PLC contracts, and 251 million out of 273 million base acres were enrolled in the programs. For the 2022 crop year signed contracts surpassed 1.8 million, to be paid in the fall of 2023, if a payment triggers.

Since ARC and PLC were first authorized by the 2014 Farm Bill and reauthorized by the 2018 Farm Bill, these safety-net programs have paid out more than $34.9 billion to producers of covered commodities.

Crop Insurance Considerations

ARC and PLC are part of a broader safety net provided by USDA, which also includes crop insurance and marketing assistance loans.

Producers are reminded that ARC and PLC elections and enrollments can impact eligibility for some crop insurance products.

Producers on farms with a PLC election have the option of purchasing Supplemental Coverage Option (SCO) through their Approved Insurance Provider; however, producers on farms where ARC is the election are ineligible for SCO on their planted acres for that crop on that farm.

Unlike SCO, the Enhanced Coverage Option (ECO) is unaffected by an ARC election. Producers may add ECO regardless of the farm program election.
