From my perspective

by Lt. Col. (Dr.) Thomas J. Loftus
64th Medical Group

My perspective as I conclude my two years at Reese is one that is colored with a lot of gratitude. I feel very fortunate to have had the opportunity to work closely with so many dedicated commanders, both from the operational and support side of our mission here. The teamwork concept in attacking and resolving problems is clearly evident throughout this wing and one that we can all be proud of. I will miss the many smiles that have greeted me wherever I went on this base.

From the hot dog shop to the golf course, from the flying squadrons to our security police, these people are genuinely happy to be here and to contribute to the overall mission each in their own way.

To the men and women of the 64th Medical Group, I wish to say a special thanks for your hard work and professionalism. Thanks also for your flexibility of mind that was necessary to adopt so many changes in so short a time. A number of the programs we initiated are the first ever taken on by a medical facility in the Air Force, and may indeed bring about positive medical policy change Air Force-wide. It was no fluke that you won the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award, and I consider myself fortunate to have been a temporary occupant of your commander's chair. I am prouder than I can say of your many accomplishments.

There are two special groups of people that I would like to mention specifically because they often have not received the recognition they deserve for supporting the mission of the medical group. First it is our civilian co-workers who, despite frequent turnovers of military staff, changing philosophies, new programs and countless other challenges, still provide superior mission support, and an absolutely essential continuity.

The second group is our "army of volunteers," who selflessly give of their time and cheerfully serve because they want to be contributors, and frankly I view their efforts as crucial to our day-to-day operations. Whether it be in the pharmacy or primary care, radiology or facility management, their efforts have a tangible impact on the way we provide care to the entire Reese community.

I've learned a lot in the past 24 months and I hope to apply this knowledge to the many new challenges that lie ahead for me in Washington. I will not forget the many friends I have made here and I would like to say thanks to all of you.

Plan ahead: The alternative is such a waste

by MSgt. Jean Becerril
64th Logistics Squadron

Your commander has assigned you as the "OPR" for an important training meeting for all units on base. The wing commander will be there and you want everything to go smoothly. You have three months to plan and make arrangements.

You take care of all the important details like reserving a meeting room, notifying all attendees and getting on the wing commander's calendar. You put a notice in the base bulletin one week before and send out reminders to everyone.

As you are checking over your materials, you realize one of your slides is incorrect. You'll have to redo it, but you're out of transparencies for your one-of-a-kind slide projector. You pop over to base supply. Whoops! Base supply is out of your transparencies. Boy, do they have a lot of nerve. Don't they know how important this meeting is? Now they tell you you'll have to do an emergency walk-through, like when you first bought your slide machine! They ask you where you bought the slides the last time, and they ask for an emergency walk-through letter signed by your commander.

You explain the problem to your commander who happily signs the letter and you return to supply. After it is loaded into their machine, the computer and the contracting computer, they send you to contracting. At contracting, a GS-9 now must make the buy instead of the GS-6 who normally would. The difference in their pay is $3.50 per hour. All other work stops while your buy is made. The customer service is great, but the best price may not be available since there isn't time to shop around. You only want 10 slides, so a volume discount isn't available either. These slides are also available through regular supply for $15 less, but that takes one to two weeks to deliver.

The contracting representative calls the source and sends you downtown to pick up the transparencies. After you pick them up, you must return to Base Supply so they can process the receipt into the computer. What a waste!

Yes, it is a waste — a waste of your time, the time of others and a waste of tax dollars. Your oversight interrupted the work flow and slowed down other procurement requests and by a conservative estimate, cost more than $100 in man-hours. Multiply this by 10 to 12 other oversights weekly, and it adds up to fraud, waste and abuse. Let's try to be smart and save time and money. Plan ahead!

Wing safety offers mowing tips

- Make sure all guards are in place and securely fastened.
- When starting to mow, stand firmly and ensure your feet are in a safe place.
- Keep your self-propelled mower under control; don't let it pull you around.
- Learn how to disengage the clutch, if so equipped, in an emergency.
- Keep children and animals clear of the machine when it is running.
- Use care when mowing on lines or hills. Mow across, not up and down.
- Inspect the lawn for sticks, stones, glass or other debris before mowing.
- Do not use an electric lawnmower on wet grass or during rain.
- When working under a lawnmower, remove the spark plug wire. Tip the mower over by using the handle — never grab a place where the rotating machinery can grab or pinch your hand.
- Keep fuel in an approved container and never fuel a machine when it is hot. Spilled gasoline can flash immediately when it comes into contact with a hot surface. The resulting fire or explosion could be fatal.
- Periodically tighten all loose nuts, bolts and screws. Replace missing ones.
- Do not mow barefoot. Wear sturdy shoes to protect your feet.
- Always push a mower — never pull. The machine can run you over if you trip and fall.
- Respect your mower and teach this respect to the younger members of your family who may use it. Teach and enforce the safety rules.

'Is something burning?'

by Arnold P. Miranda
Reese Chief Fire Inspector

In just one minute, your kitchen could be involved in a damaging fire. In the time it takes for you to talk on the phone, answer the door or check the laundry, a fire can develop on the stove. Because for just one minute, you left the stove unattended.

The kitchen, the heart of every home, contains just the right ingredients for a devastating fire to start. Fires and burns caused by unattended or careless cooking results in thousands of fires and injuries daily. Many, if not all, of these fires could have been prevented if residents had just stayed for one minute more.

The Reese Fire Department wants to help you reduce your risk of having a kitchen fire by offering the following fire safety information.

Most cooking fires involve the ignition of greases. Whether it's cooking oils, lard or melted fats from meat, grease is a combustible liquid which ignites easily and burns rapidly. If fire ignites in a pan on your stove, smother the fire by sliding the lid of a larger pan over the fire and turn off the burner. If a fire starts inside the oven, turn off the heat and leave the door closed to smother the flames. Other methods include using baking soda (not baking powder or flour) or a portable extinguisher to extinguish the flames.

If the fire is too large to cover with a lid, or for the safe use of an extinguisher, leave the house immediately and call the fire department at extension 911.

With a grease fire, it is just as important to know how to fight a fire as it is to extinguish one. Unfortunately, the typical reaction to a grease fire is this: the individual tries to carry the burning pan outside or pours water on it. Both of these reactions are dangerously wrong! Moving a burning pan can spread the fire and cause serious burns. Never use water or flour to extinguish a grease fire. Water only intensifies the fire and causes the grease to splatter. Flour can result in an explosion. Deal with the fire where it starts, on the stove. Keep a lid, baking soda or an approved fire extinguisher close at hand.

Some cooking fires are the result of leaving combustible materials such as paper, towels, dishcloths, paper bags and so on near the stove or other hot appliances. Fires also occur because of grease build-up in the stoves, ovens, broilers, exhaust fans or vents. To avoid fires of this type, keep areas clean and free of grease or other combustible materials.

Avoid reaching over the stove burner. Store frequently used items in other locations in the kitchen. Don't store cookies or candies near the stove; it only tempts small children to climb on the stove to retrieve them. Keep all small children out of the kitchen area while cooking. Keep pot handles turned inward, out of the reach of children and where you can't accidentally bump into them. Keep appliance cord up on the counter out of children's reach. Frequently check cords for frayed or broken spots. Replace damaged cords or appliances.

The best way to prevent cooking fires is to never leave the cooking area unattended. Remember, in just one minute, grease can ignite. For further information or assistance, contact the fire prevention section at 6339/3686.

Remember, a watched pot may not boil . . . but it's less likely to catch on fire.

ENERGY and your CAR

by Capt. Eric Bass
64th Operations Group

We value many things in our lives such as God, our significant others, families, careers/jobs, homes and other things. However, there is probably one thing in our lives that we value very much, but have a tendency to take for granted — automobiles.

Yes, our automobiles take a beating every time we start them up to take us to work, drop off the kids, go shopping, go on dates, etc. Most of the time, we just hop in, start up and drive off.

It takes a fair amount of energy for our cars to run, with the main energy source being the battery. Without battery power, your automobile stays put. To conserve some of the energy in your battery, turn off everything in your automobile when you shut off the ignition. Why do this? Well, basically everything in your automobile is powered through your battery.

According to Bobby Cannon, a mechanic at the Reese Service Station, it would behoove us to turn off all of our electronic accessories and our air conditioning when we turn off the ignition, especially if we have an older battery. If you leave on accessories such as your stereo and air conditioner, the battery will have to provide the "juice" to start them up as well as providing the power to start your engine. Once your automobile is started, the alternator kicks in to provide power to the accessories.

Do your car or truck's battery a favor — turn everything off when you turn off your ignition. It helps to reduce wear and tear on the battery while conserving valuable battery power. If you take care of your automobile, it will take care of you.

So who do I vote for?

by Maj. Gary Tucker
64th FTW Voting Officer

OK, so now you've decided to make the big move to register and vote. The only problem is, who do you pick to send to Congress?

The best source of information about a candidate, bar none, is the candidate himself. If already an elected official, direct contact is easy. You can call or write directly to their office; they are not shy about responding to your inquiries. You can also call the "Voting Information Center." Commercially, the number is (703) 693-6500. The DSN number is 223-6500. Additionally, you can hear and leave recorded messages with U.S. senators and representatives by calling 1-800-438-8683.

Now the tough part: what about those attempting to gain office? You can learn their names, addresses and phone numbers and position on issues through the party of your choice. Just contact the local party office for that information. For the more obscure candidates (i.e. minor officials in distant lands with towns yet to be listed on the Rand-McNally road map), you have to dig a bit more. Your best bet there are local papers and magazines. Family members are also a wonderful source of information, so now's a good time to call up good old Aunt Sarah.

Finally, don't ask your unit voting plan representative. Sound odd? It's not actually; if we advised where candidate "X" stood on issue Y, we'd have to do it for every single candidate known to man. We simply don't have that kind of information. We'll get you registered, but you'll be the one doing the research and the one making the decision. Please contact me at 3284 or your unit representative with any question.

Colonel Figun takes MDG command

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
Editor

Col. Monica Figun assumes command of the 64th Medical Group from Lt. Col. (Col. select) Thomas Loftus at 10 a.m. Monday in the officers club.

Colonel Loftus, MDG commander since July 1992, is departing Reese for an assignment in Washington, D.C.

Colonel Figun also arrived at Reese in July 1992. She is currently the senior nurse executive in the medical group. She is a 1968 honor graduate from the Mercy College of Nursing in San Diego, and she earned her commission in 1973.

Since then, the colonel's assignments have included Mountain Home AFB, Idaho; Bergstrom AFB, Texas; George AFB, Calif.; Hickam AFB, Hawaii; Eglin AFB, Fla.; and Randolph AFB, Texas. Colonel Figun said she feels honored by her new command.

"The men and women of the 64th Medical Group," said Colonel Figun, "are the finest health care professionals with whom I've worked. I am confident that we will continue to be significant players for Team Reese."

The colonel's military decorations include the Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters, the Air Force Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters and the Air Force Achievement Medal.

Colonel Figun

Colonel Figun and her husband, retired Maj. Stephen Figun, have four children — Mark, 24; Joanne, 21; Matthew, 14; and Sara, 10.

Everyone on base is welcome at Monday's change-of-command ceremony.

Town meeting set for Thursday, SUG official announces

by Col. Theron Weimer
64th Support Group Commander

In today's Air Force, you have a key role in accomplishing our mission. We succeed through your duty accomplishments. However, there is another context that is very instrumental to mission success and is your role as a customer. For an organization to be successful, it must have total customer focus. It must determine the customer's expectations, establish a sound customer relationship, make a strong commitment to the customer and strive for customer satisfaction. The 64th Support Group is developing a customer-driven vision and needs your help.

Your participation is an important part of that process. You are invited to attend a town meeting in the base theater at 7 p.m. Thursday. Your input is essential to the identification of current and near-term expectations, as well as future requirements. This meeting allows you to have a dialogue with me and my staff without having your comments diluted or misrepresented as they proceed up the chain of command. Such a dialogue is a key ingredient to an effective customer relationship.

The town meeting format is also an opportunity for you to witness our commitment to provide excellent products and services and to convey your satisfaction or dissatisfaction with our actions.

To make our Quality Air Force work, you — the customer — must participate and tell us your expectations and how we are meeting them. The town meeting is one forum in which to do that. I'm looking forward to seeing you there Thursday and hearing what you have to say.

Flightline workers fight the heat

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
Editor

The recent wave of heat on the South Plains is felt by all, but there are few places where it is felt more keenly than on the Reese flightline.

With temperatures soaring into the upper 90s and beyond on most days, wing members on the flightline are subjected to even greater heat stresses. Officials at the base weather station explained that the heat reflecting up from the concrete can add 10 to 15 degrees to the temperatures felt elsewhere.

Despite the grueling heat, wing members seem to be handling it well.

"It's not that bad, except when the wind isn't blowing," said Ron Ham of Lockheed's Ace Flight. Ham said that it helps to be able to move around while working, adding that he felt that fuel workers are at a disadvantage in the heat because they don't have that mobility.

Chet Huxley, a refueling technician with Allied Management of Texas on base, agreed, saying it "seems really hot" to him. Huxley is at even more of a disadvantage, having recently moved here from a somewhat cooler environment — Alaska.

Wing pilots are also on the "hot seat." First Lt. Howard Redd, a recent SUPT graduate, went through T-37s last summer, and he remembers how he and other students had to cope with the weather.

"You're already sweating because you're nervous about learning (to fly)," he said.

"There's forced air coming into the aircraft, but you have to be going really fast to get much air conditioning."

Capt. Pete Roller, 35th Flying Training Squadron, said much the same thing. "It's real important to drink a lot of water," he noted.

Military public health officials in the 64th Medical Group cited that as the "single most important thing" to do. They said that the amount to drink ranges from one pint per hour for 80-degree temperatures, to two-plus quarts per hour for 88 degrees and above.

Other measures include avoiding alcohol, caffeine and sugar. Alcohol and caffeine can cause the body to lose vital fluids, while sugar can prevent the body from absorbing fluids. Also, eating three meals a day is a good way to ensure the body gets the salt it needs.

TROOPS -to- Teachers

Reese NCOs benefit from government program

by Jeffrey Z. Wilbur
Reese Education Services
Officer

Two Reese members will begin new careers as teachers when they separate this year thanks to a new Department of Defense program.

The Teacher and Teacher's Aide Placement Assistance Program, more commonly known as "Troops to Teachers," placed the wing members.

SSgt. Rodney Henkel, 64th Mission Support Squadron, will be teaching reading to eighth graders at Estacado Junior High School in Plainview this fall. MSgt. David Boom, 64th Operations Support Squadron, will teach social studies to sixth graders in Shallowater.

The program has three main goals: to help relieve teacher shortages; to provide positive role models for the nation's public school students; and to assist military and civilian personnel who will be impacted by the military reductions. The primary emphasis is on math and science; however, other subject areas are not excluded from consideration. School districts, especially those in rural and inner-city districts, are experiencing teacher shortages in a range of subject areas.

Members who were on active duty when the program was implemented, Nov. 15, 1993, who have served for at least six continuous years on active duty prior to release, and who have a service record that will lead to an honorable discharge may be able to benefit from Troops to Teachers. Civilian employees of DOD and the Department of Energy must be facing termination as a result of the drawdown or base closure.

For Troops to Teachers, a teaching position requires a bachelor's degree. Service members not educationally qualified at the time of separation have five years to achieve educational requirements and make an application. An associate's degree qualifies members to apply as a teacher's aide.

The program will assist applicants in finding positions and locating areas experiencing teacher shortages. The education center has a data base containing information on virtually every school district in the country.

As Sergeant Boom and Sergeant Henkel can attest — this program provides an excellent opportunity for everyone, whether officer or enlisted, who have thought of pursuing a teaching career.

"The program can't guarantee a position, but it will open the door," said Sergeant Boom, who noted that Troops to Teachers gives military members a "decided advantage" in the search for a position.

"It's a good opportunity all around," said Sergeant Henkel. "It gives me a chance to use the training [I got] from the military in the civilian education system."

Anyone wishing further information on Troops to Teachers can call the education center at 3634, or come by Bldg. 920, Room 139, to see an education counselor.

General Ashy gets fourth star

WASHINGTON — The president has nominated Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Ashy, former ATC (now AETC) commander and Reese UPT graduate, for promotion to general and reassignment as North American Aerospace Defense Command commander in chief.

Currently, General Ashy is commander of both Allied Air Forces Southern Europe and 16th Air Force at Aviano AB, Italy. He will replace Gen. Charles A. Horner at Peterson AFB, Colo. General Horner retires July 1, said Pentagon officials.

General Ashy, who has been in the Air Force since 1962, will also become the U.S. Space Command CINC and Air Force Space Command commander in charge of aerospace defense for the United States and Canada. Additionally, he will be responsible for exploiting and controlling space for national purposes through a far-flung network of satellites and ground stations throughout the world. (Air Force News Service)

DOD to proceed with 1995 base closures

The Department of Defense will conduct the 1995 round of base closures, according to senior defense officials. Prudent management of defense resources demands it, they said.

Defense Secretary William J. Perry and Army Gen. John Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the number and types of facilities recommended for closure will depend on force structure needs.

However, DOD is also considering economic impact on communities as well as DOD's ability to responsibly manage reuse of closed facilities. These considerations will decide the size and shape of the closures it recommends to the Base Realignment and Closure Commission for 1995. (American Forces Information Service)

Discharge rates studied

Uncle Sam is firing minorities almost three times as often as non-minority employees, and Office of Personnel Management Director Jim King recently ordered a study to find out why.

The federal government employs 605,000 minority workers in its 2.175 million non-postal Executive Branch civilian work force. Fiscal 1992 statistics show the government fired nearly 12,000 employees — 6,185 minorities and 5,726 non-minorities. The minority discharge rate was 10.2 per 1,000 minority employees vs. a nonminority discharge rate of 3.7 per 1,000 nonminority workers.

King said the numbers are like a smoke detector and call for immediate action. "We have gathered firefighting equipment necessary to get to the bottom of this issue. As a team, we can examine the real issues and ensure fairness for all employees," he said. (American Forces Information Service)

Wing airmen earn early stripes

Posing with their new senior airman stripes are Timothy Lock (above center), 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, and Stephanie Copley (below center), 64th Communications Squadron. Both airmen received their third stripe early under the below-the-zone program, which allows outstanding airmen first class to advance six months early. Making the surprise presentations were Col. William Reynolds (above), 64th FTW vice commander, Col. Theron Weimer, 64th Support Group commander (below) and CMSgt. David Ptomey, 64th FTW senior enlisted advisor.

A Pocket Sandwich, Mediterranean Style

(NAPS)—Sandwiches made with refrigerated biscuits are fast becoming an American favorite. The recent Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest produced many new and exciting recipes, including this one that features the flavors of the Mediterranean wrapped inside a flaky biscuit "pocket." This recipe makes eight hearty sandwiches and a quick meal when served with fresh fruit and a beverage.

MEDITERRANEAN SANDWICH POCKETSSANDWICHES

- 1 (17.3-oz.) can Pillsbury Grands! refrigerated flaky biscuits
- 3/4 lb. boneless skinless chicken breasts, cut into 2x1/4-inch strips
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon lemon pepper
- 2 tablespoons olive oil or oil
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 2 to 3 tablespoons sesame seed

CUCUMBER SAUCE

- 1 (8-oz.) container lowfat plain yogurt
- 1/2 cup chopped unpeeled cucumber
- 1 to 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

TOPPINGS

- 1 large tomato, quartered, thinly sliced
- 1 cup shredded lettuce

Heat oven to 350°F. Grease large cookie sheet. Separate dough into 8 biscuits. Press or roll each biscuit into 5-inch circle. Place on greased cookie sheet.

Place chicken in large bowl. Sprinkle with garlic salt, oregano and lemon pepper; toss to coat chicken. Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Add coated chicken; stir-fry 3 to 5 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink. Remove pan from heat; stir in lemon juice. To make each pocket, spoon about 1/4 cup chicken mixture down the center of each biscuit. Fold dough over filling to make half circle; press edges down firmly but do not seal. Brush tops with remaining olive oil; sprinkle with sesame seed.

Bake at 350°F. for 12 to 17 minutes or until golden brown. (Sandwiches will open slightly during baking.) Meanwhile, combine all sauce ingredients; mix well. Serve hot sandwiches with sauce and toppings. 8 sandwiches; 1 1/3 cups sauce.

MDG, 54th FTS pacing intramural softball league

Monday night victory puts hospital atop division

by A1C Timothy E. Dempsey
64th FTW Public Affairs

The battle of Dormitory 220 took place Monday night as the 64th Medical Group hammered the 64th Mission Support Squadron, 17-6, to take over first place in the National League of intramural softball.

SSgt. Dave Craig, MDG, sparked a fire under his teammates by slapping a two-run homer in the bottom of the first to bring his team within two runs. According to SSgt. John O'Connor, coach of MDG, there are about three people on MDG (5-1) who can hit the ball out of the park. He said Sergeant Craig is probably the most powerful hitter on the team.

"I think it showed the other team they were in for a game," said Sergeant Craig, who went 4 for 4 at the plate, "It boosted the team's morale. It got us to click and (got) everyone hitting."

MSS (3-1) opened the game with a powerful hitting display, scoring four runs in the top of the first inning. "I hate starting out that fast because we have a tendency to relax," said Sgt. Duane Lusche, coach of MSS.

Sergeant O'Connor said that his team is used to being jumped on early in games, only to come back and win. "At the beginning of each game, we seem a little tight, but as the game goes on we become relaxed and do a lot better." Sergeant Craig gave defensive credit to the team's pitcher, SrA. Eric McCullough, for pitching a good game to "tough batters."

"I have to hand it to him," he said. "He didn't give them anything. He kept them in the park and on the ground."

Even though MDG has taken over first place in the NL, they have different goals for the season. "Our goal is not to be the best team right now, but to make the playoffs and then be the best team at the end of the year."

In other games Monday night, the 64th Operations Support Squadron blanked the 64th Logistic Squadron, 11-0; the 54th Flying Training Squadron remained in first place in the American League by bombing Navy, 16-5; and the Reese Fire Department got their first victory of the season by scorching AMT, 10-0.

Navy was forced to play in a doubleheader June 9, defeating the 52nd FTS, 13-10 and then squeezing by MDG, 6-5, handing MDG their only loss of the season thus far. Other teams pitted in action that evening were the 64th Security Police Squadron, who murdered AMT, 17-2; and Lockheed, who polished off the 64th Communication Squadron, 6-1.

In Wednesday's games, OSS defeated fire department, 18-9; the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron slipped by the 35th FTS "A," 10-9; the 54th FTS outlasted the 35th FTS "B," 15-14; MDG pounded AMT, 19-2; and LS beat Lockheed, 19-13.
