City sales tax rises for month of April

The City of Clarendon posted its third month of sales tax growth for 2018 when Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar distributed April allocations last week.

The city's revenue of $25,993,25 reflected an 8.96 percent increase over the April 2017 allocation. Clarendon's year-todate sales tax revenue now stands at $126,404.81, which is up 6.2 percent over the same period last year.

Hedley was also up for the month with revenue of $831.49, more than doubling its sales tax revenue for the same time last year, which was $369.92. That city is now up 45.36 percent for the year at $3,251.63.

Howardwick's revenue dropped 32.13 percent for April to $1,057.17, but the lakeside city's year-to-date total is still ahead of this point last year, up 20.19 per-cent at $4,477.82.

Statewide, the comptroller distributed $651 million in local sales tax allocations for April, five percent more than in April 2017

Monday grass fire consumes trailer house

A Monday grass fire near Hedley destroyed an abandoned trailer house and other structures west of Hedley.

Clarendon Fire Chief Jeremy Powell said the grass fire was reported east of County Road 23 at 4:20 p.m. The blaze started off of US 287 and moved north northeast.

The fire was stopped at the railroad tracks, but the trailer house and some out buildings were lost, Powell reported. The BNSF railway was also shut down for a short time.

Hedley, Clarendon, and Memphis volunteer fire departments responded along with Donley County motor graders from pre-cincts 1, 3, and 4. Donley and Hall county sheriff's departments and DPS Troopers provided traffic control. and the Associated Ambulance Ashtola fire, but none were lost Authority also responded.

Local and area volunteer firemen have been kept extremely busy lately as persistent drought, low humidity, and high winds have created critically dangerous conditions for wildfires.

In addition to responding to fires near Samnorwood and Wellington in the last week, Clarendon firemen were back in the Ashtola area last Wednesday, April 11, just one day after a fire in that community burned 10-15 acres and destroyed the 1930s era school building there.

Powell said the Wednesday fire started about 3:20 p.m. in the median of US 287 before it moved north and east and consumed 142 acres. Three homes were threatened by the second Traffic on the railroad and US 287 was closed for a short time.

Assisting Clarendon firemen with the blaze were departments from Hedley, Howardwick, and Memphis as well as county motor graders, local EMS, TxDOT, and the Donley County Sheriff's Office.

Even with rain in this week's forecast, fire conditions remain exceedingly high in much of the Panhandle and South Plains, according to the Texas A&M Forest Service.

With elevated fire danger, caution should be used with any outdoor activity that may cause a spark. It only takes one spark to start a wildfire. Some tips to keep in mind are thes

"Like other peanut farmers, Bob White took great pride in grow-ing a nutritious and wholesome food," said NPB President and CEO Bob Parker, "That anyone could be harmed by eating the product he grew bothered him. During his tenure on the National Peanut Board, Bob embraced efforts to find ways to prevent, treat and find a cure for peanut allergy. Aldermen approve new debt

Clarendon's plans to improve its water system took another important step forward last important step forward last Thursday, April 12, when the city council approved issuing $2.522 million in certificates of obligation.

The new debt, which has been planned and discussed for several months, is part of a USDA-backed financing plan and is in addition to $1.387 million in grants funds from the ag department. A $10 per meter charge that is already being collected will pay for the loan over a 40-year period.

City Administrator David

Dockery reported that 46 sets of plans are out right now to contrac-tors, and the city expects to open bids early next month and award contracts by June 15.

The project will replace ut six miles of water lines, install new auto-read water meters throughout the city, and erect a new elevated storage tank on the east side of Clarendon.

In other city business, aldermen discussed ongoing efforts to clean up properties and specifically praised work that demolished a house in the 100 block of west Fifth Street.

Dockery said the city is actively looking at other properties that are tax delinquent and candidates for condemnation.

Time to look at president's war powers

By Gene Healy and John Glaser, Cato Institute
On Monday, two days after President Trump declared "Mission Accomplished" on the latest round of missile strikes against Syria, a bipartisan group of senators unveiled legislation intended to reasser Congress's relevance to the wars we fight. But the new Authorization for the Use of Military Force, introduced by Bob Corker, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman, and the Democrat Tim Kaine, may end up doing the opposite.

Senator Kaine is right that, as he said in a speech about the bill, "for too long Congress has given presi-dents a blank check to wage war." The 2001 authoriza-tion, passed three days after the Sept. 11 attacks and aimed at the perpetrators of those attacks, has done just that. Three presidents in a row have warped its limited authority into an enabling act for globe-span ning presidential war.

The Corker-Kaine resolution won't bring an end to the Forever War; it will institutionalize it. Instead of ratifying war powers that three presidents in a row have seized illegally, Congress should repeal - and not replace – the 2001 legislation.

In authorizing the use of force against a list of terrorist organizations and their affiliates, the bill states that it "establishes rigorous congressional over sight," "improves transparency" and ensures "regular congressional review and debate." Such transparency requirements are an improvement over the status quo. But the bill also turns the constitutional warmaking ess upside down. Our Constitution was designed to make w difficult, requiring the assent of both houses and the president. The bill essentially changes that by merely requiring "regular congressional review" of presiden-tial warmaking and requires reauthorization every four years; meanwhile, choosing new enemies, in new four years; meanwhile, choosing new enemies, in new countries, is the president's call, unless Congress can assemble a veto-proof majority to check him.

The legislation concurs with the argument asserted by Presidents Gorge W. Bush, Barack Obama and now Donald Trump that the war on terror has "evolved"; as the draft authorization announces in its preamble: "Wumerous nonstate actors" now "pose a grave threat to the United States," For both the White House and Senators Corker and Kaine, this justifies giving the president new warmaking powers, with Congress taking a back seat.

And yet if the past 17 years have taught us any-thing, it's that far from being an existential menace, in most cases terrorism is a manageable threat: Since Sept. 11, an American's chance of being killed in the Sept. 11, an American Schanec of being kined in the United States by a terrorist is about one in 40 million. And the groups that Corker-Kaine authorizes war with – the Taliban, Al Qaeda and the Islamic State – do not pose a grave threat to our country now, if they ever

All three are either contained or decimated; why Mr. Trump and future presidents need a perpetually renewable authorization to fight them is not clear. Still less do they need continuing authority to wage war against Al Shabab in Somalia or the Haqqani Network in Afghanistan, among other groups explicitly named in the Corker-Kaine bill.

Instead, Congress should declare that the pur poses of the 2001 authorization have been fulfilled and that it has run its constitutionally justified course.

This "repeal, don't replace" option wouldn't leave the executive branch legally hamstrung should any of these groups, or others, become a genuine threat. The president would still retain independent constitutional power to "repel sudden attacks" in case of an imminent threat. Should Mr. Trump decide that Al Shabab, for example, represents a serious, long-term danger to our national security, he is free to make that case to the people's representatives and secure authorization for war.

As we have painfully learned, war often spawns new threats. The Islamic State had its origins in the Sunni insurgency that rose to fight American forces in Iraq. As early as 2006, the National Intelligence Estimate on Trends in Global Terrorism found that the lraq war had "become the 'cause celebre' for jihad-ists, breeding a deep resentment of U.S. involvement in the Muslim world and cultivating supporters for the global jihadist movement." In the seven countries that the United States either invaded or bombed since Sept. 11, the number of individual terrorist attacks rose by an astonishing 1,900 percent from 2001 to 2015. If anything, open-ended war in the Middle East has made us less safe, not more.

Presidential war undermines fundamental values of our representative democracy. "In no part of the constitution," James Madison wrote in 1793, "is more wisdom to be found than in the clause which confides the question of war or peace to the legislature, and not to the executive department" – were it otherwise, "the trust and the temptation would be too great for any one

Not long ago, Senator Corker, who is retiring this fall, publicly agonized that President Trump's "volatility" could put America "on the path to World War III." And yet, for some unfathomable reason, as his legacy project, Mr. Corker has advanced a measure that empowers one abundantly flawed human being to wage war practically at will. The rise of Mr. Trump, if nothing else, should crystallize the imperative to con-strain the imperial presidency.

Gene Healy is a vice president at the Cato Institute, where John Glaser is director of foreign policy studies.

Wait a minute. The world ignores remaining ambivalent, whether we're smiling or not.

This is not to say there is not value in smiles; they are worthwhile if they do nothing more than brighten a few lives in our own little world. Even slight grins help, and they buy a few seconds while we're trying to think what to say next...

Such instruction is helpful to grandparents. A current example is pro-vided by Dr. Lanny Hall, Chancellor of Hardin-Simmons University. A while back, he told his 12-year-old grand-daughter a joke that would result in her aisle-rolling.

The chiseled-in-stone expression on Ada McCutchen's face didn't change, however. Dr. Hall asked if she thought it was funny. Bad idea! Her blank face "spoke" boldly, clearly indicating a "zero" response on her applause meter. He should have known it was an in-your-face response, better than pie-in-the-

Re-enacting the Battle of Jancinto

On April 21st, 1836, Sam Hous ton's army defeated Santa Anna's army at the battle of San Jacinto, giving Texas its independence from Mexico.

"Santa Anna and his men were mostly sleeping," says Boyd Harris, lead interpreter at the San Jacinto Battleground State Historic Site near Houston "They had spent the entire night before building fortifications to protect their camp and had worked through the next day. Around 3 o'clock in the afternoon Santa Anna ordered his men to stand down, so they were all lying down taking a siesta. Unfortunately for them that's also the time Sam Houston decided he wanted to attack." More than 600 Mexican soldiers were killed. Many more were wounded Only nine Texans perished. The Texans were anxious to avenge the massacres that occurred at the Alamo and Goliad.

The battleground is 20 miles east of downtown Houston near the town of La Porte. It is on 1,200 acres and is the original site of the Texas encampment during the battle. The park is a National Historic Landmark. Every April 21st it's the site of a re-enactment of the famous battle. Usually about 15,000 people attend "April

Thornberry issues statement on failure of balanced budget amendment act

WASHINGTON - U.S. Congressman Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) released a statement after the House failed to pass H.J. Res. 2, the "Balanced Budget Amendment" (BBA) last week.

"I have always supported a Balanced Budget Amendment to the Constitution and was glad to do so again today," Thornberry said. "Unfortunately, it did not get the two-thirds vote required for passage.

"But Congress and the President still need to work toward getting our fiscal home in order. About 70 percent of federal spending is man-datory programs and interest pay-ments. Controlling that is the key to a balanced budget.

"At the same time we need to prioritize spending. The first job of the federal government is to protect the nation. Yet, only 15 percent of the budget goes toward national defense. We need to put first things first."

The BBA would require the Federal government to maintain a balanced budget and would require both chambers to reach a three-fifths roll call vote in order to allow excess spending.

Congressman Thornberry was a cosponsor of H.J. Res. 2, the "Bal-anced Budget Amendment."

Transportation Director Chad Hommel and Superintendent Mike Norrell present the Bus Driver of the Year Award to Terri Seale.

CISD names Seale 'Bus Driver of the Year

ored by Property Casualty Alliance of Texas (PCAT), who is CCISD's property & casualty provider, as the 2017-2018 PCAT Bus Driver of the Year for Clarendon CISD.

The award was presented Superintendent Mike Norrell Transportation Director Chad Hommel. The award was based upon multiple driver attributes: leader-ship, attitude, perseverance, student & parent relationships, and technical skill. Terri received a certificate and a personally monogramed jacket.

"We're honored to recognize

Terri Seale was recently hon-by Property Casualty Alliance exhibited by school bus drivers exas (PCAT), who is CCISD's throughout the PCAT program," said Rick Edward, President of Edward Risk Management, Inc. "When I consider the heartfelt praise offered by other school bus drivers, supervi-sors, school staff, students and parents, it stands out in my mind that the accomplishments extend beyond competent driving. It also speaks volumes to these drivers' humility, gentle spirits, gracious demeanor and servant hearts, even as many of them have dealt with their own life

According to Superintendent Mike Norrell, "Mrs. Seale, who is also an instructional aide, is reliable good-natured, conscientious and rep-resentative of our dedicated, caring staff who go beyond what they are asked to do for our students".

PCAT is the largest public school risk pool in the U.S. devoted solely to property and casualty exposures. Formed in 2003 to meet the unique property and casualty insur-ance needs faced by Texas schools, PCAT has grown to 144 members and more than $15 billion in school

Quail Habitat Field Day set for May 4 "Why did we switch from the previous decade's September

ROBY - The Rolling Plains Quail Research Ranch near Roby vill feature a new twist for its May 4 field day, coordinators said. "For this, our 10th edition, we'll be breaking stride to feature our first such event during the spring," said Dr. Dale Rollins, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service coordinator for the Extension Service Coolumiant of Quail state initiative at San Angelo and the ranch's executive director.

Peregistration is $10 per person by April 25 and $20 thereafter for the event scheduled from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. at the ranch. The ranch is 11 miles west of Roby on US Highay 180 or just east of the intersec-on of Farm-to-Market Road 611 and US Highway 180.

To preregister and for more information, call Rollins at 325-653-4576 or see the full agenda at www. quailresearch.org.

Two Texas Department of Agriculture continuing education units, one general and one integrated pest management, for private applicators will be offered.

date? If for no other reason than to make the tour and talks cloaked in nature's Technicolor with surround sound," Rollins said. "I hope attendees have to strain their ears to hear the speakers above a constant din of quail calling 'poor-Bob-white.' Oh, and this will be a true field day; no classroom instruction, hard chairs or powerpoint presentations. Our goal is to share what we've learned over the past 10 years in hopes of helping participants become more successful quail managers. Rollins said the tour and accompanying site presentations will key off noted conservationist Aldo Leo-pold's central theses of game management, which centers around the premise that "game can be restored through the creative use of the same tools which often destroyed it - the ax, plow, cow, fire and gun."

Topics relating to those "tools" identified by Leopold will include:

 Quail-friendly cacti management; Surgical strikes with herbicides; Brush sculpting for quail; Blueprints for "Quail Houses and Storm Shelters;" and Half-cutting regrowth mesquite.

— Food plot plantings; Seasonal discing to manage plant suc-cession; and Post-Conservation cession; and Post-Conservation Reserve Program: Promoting heterogeneity.

- Patch-hum-grazing and bob whites, and Cows and quail: Where's Talks during lunch will include translocation efforts, eyeworm update, quail forensics, and coyotes translocation and quail.

 Seasonal burn plots to increase forb diversity; Fire: An adjustable wrench for quail managers; How we burn; and a demonstration burn, weather permitting.

Trapping-banding and decreasing wounding loss.

Sponsors for the field day include AgriLife Extension's Reversing the Decline of Quail Initiative, Quail Coalition and the Rolling Plains Quail Research Foun

WT panel to commemorate WWI Centennial

CANYON - West Texas A&M University's Department of History University's Department of History and the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum (PPHM) will host a panel commemorating the WWI centen-inal, "Spring 1918, 'Over Here:' Production and Perceptions on the Eve of Desperate Battle," at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 19 in the PPHM Headmand Lentus People

Hazlewood Lecture Room.

This Great War centennial event will address little-known aspects of the spring 1918 homefront as the American Armed forces prepared for the massive assaults that took place on the western front in fall 1918. Specifically, panelists will dis-cuss how Texas dealt with wartime immigration, the Panhandle's contributions to war production and how World War I changed gender identity in early 20th century America. The four presenters will examine these national issues of production and perception through the lens of how Texans shaped, and were shaped by, their WWI experiences.

The four panelists include PPHM's Michael Grauer along with Dr. Tim Bowman, associate professor of history, Dr. Matt Reardon, assistant professor of history, and Kirbi Kelley-Diaz, history major and PPHM intern. Dr. Byron Pearson.

"The History Department at West Texas A&M University is excited to host this continuing series on the centennial commemoration of World War I because it is true public history," Pearson said. "The response has been fantastic, and the

The American Armed Forces played a critical role in the allied vic tory during World War I. However the American Armed Forces could not have been victorious without the equally important efforts made by Americans at home.

"As historians it is incumbent upon us to not only engage in dis-cussions with our professional colleagues about history, we must also stimulate and enter into ongoing public discussions about that his-tory," Pearson said. "This upcom-ing panel discussion will focus upon how Texas and the Panhandle were connected to the 1918 Homefront as the American forces geared up for the final allied offensives of the

Broncos beat Kress 23-1

By Sandy Anderberg
The Broncos began the game slowly against Kress but picked up speed in the fourth when they scored 15 runs to take a commanding lead and get the big 23-1 win.

Clarendon had a lead of 2-0 after the first inning and added to it after three. According to coach Brad Elam noted that Payton Havens and Nathan Shadle had big days at the the plate, drove in five, scored four runs, and stole four bases. Shadle drove in three runs. "Andy Davis, Noab Elam threw five strong innings allowing only two hits and one unearned run," Elam said. "Very pleased with the way we played today. We hit the ball well."

Lady Broncos split double header

By Sandy Anderberg
On April 3, the Lady Broncos took on Gruver in a double header.
The Lady Greyhounds won the first game 4-17, but the Lady Broncos hustled back to earn a 24-8 win in the second.

"It was like we were a total different team the second game," coach Carrie Hicks said. "We finally started hitting. Everyone got at least one hit. Jade Benson hit a grand slam, and Emily Johnson and Makayla Brown both hit triples. Sandrea Smith and Brown hit doubles. We also played great defense and run-ruled them in the fourth inning."

The ladies took on Follett at home on April 11 and lost 5-15.

"We struggled hitting this game," Hicks said.

Johnson and Hannah Hommel each had a double in the game.

"The second inning is what really hurt us," Hicks said. "We let them score seven runs."

Hicks also noted that Johnson had some incredible plays at first and Kaylin Hicks caught some pop flies. On April 13 the ladies played Claude and were defeated 6-10. Benson's bat was on fire again as she slammed a triple. Darcie Hunsaker hit a double in the game.

"We went four innings with no runs in and that killed us," Hicks said. "We had a few wild throws to first, but other than that, we played pretty good defense."

The Lady Broncos will play at Memphis April 20 to finish their regular season.

Animals and plants have disappeared through natural causes such as storms, volcanic eruptions or diseases. Some animals have been wiped out because people were hungry and killed them for food before they had a chance to replace their populations.

Animals may be threatened by loss of their homes or by sprays used to kill pesky insects. Some are hunted for their furs or horns. When numbers of these animals drop so lov that they may become extinct, we call them 'endangered' and may work to protect them.
