

Jamboree Season Opens Here April 18 At Sheriff's Posse Arena

Jamboree season will open in Baird Friday, April 18, with the musical program taking place at the Callahan County Sheriff's Posse grandstands. Pop Whitaker, the instigator of this great free entertainment believes that only the weather can prevent this from being the biggest and best musical jamboree he has ever conducted. Bands, as well as individual entertainers, from many towns and communities have said they would be here to appear on the program. Already enough entertainers have registered with Mr. Whitaker to fill the 2½ hour program.

As is the usual custom, no admission will be charged. Everyone is invited to come out and enjoy an evening of high class entertainment. There will be old time and modern fiddling, tap dancing, singing, band music, and other novelty numbers.

Mr. Whitaker has been working with amateur and professional musicians for the past six years. He organized the jamboree at Baird, after working with jamborees in Parker and Wood counties. He knows the musicians and they know him. When he announces that he will present a program, the musicians commonly known as his "Young-uns" flock to his side, and a high-heeled old good time always is the result.

If you have ever attended one of the jamborees, you will know what to expect, only this will be bigger and better than the rest. If you have never been to the jamboree, you must not miss another. It is unique in that it is fun for everyone and free to all.

Hon. Omar Burleson Visits Here Thursday

Congressman Omar Burleson was a visitor in Baird Thursday, and while here filed his request with Democratic Chairman Hugh Ross as a candidate in the July primaries for re-election to Congress.

Congressman Burleson is now serving his third term, having been elected in 1946 and has been unopposed for the office since that time.

"I shall be a candidate for re-election to Congress," said Burleson, "and will begin my campaign just as soon as I feel it proper to leave Washington.

"During the time I have been in Congress, about the only time there has been opportunity to visit back home was in the fall, at which time I have each year covered my District visiting with the people. I welcome the opportunity of making a campaign this year in order that I may stay in close touch as possible with the people whom I have the honor of representing in the Congress and will thoroughly enjoy the time permitted me to be back home."

Congressman Burleson advises this newspaper that he will have a formal statement regarding issues of interest at a later date.

"In the meantime," said the Congressman, "if the people believe I have been diligent in my duties and faithful to the trust and confidence placed in me, and if they believe these first years of experience are a valuable asset to the Nation, State, and District, then I shall ever be grateful for everyone's interest and effort in my campaign."

Special Meeting For Co-op. Stockholders

The Board of Directors of Callahan County Farmers Co-op., Inc., in an official session March 28, passed resolution unanimously to call a special meeting of the stockholders in the company for April 18, at 8:00 P. M. in the Clyde High School auditorium for the purpose of voting upon a proposed amendment to the charter that would allow the company to increase its capital stock to $500,000.00, so the company can begin construction of the feed mill and elevator in Baird, and also allow for future expansion at the Clyde store.

The Board of Directors also passed unanimously a resolution to amend the by-laws of the company, which at present require 25 per cent of the stockholders must be present to constitute a quorum. This requirement has made it difficult even at the Co-ops annual meetings to have a working quorum, and as the company increases its capital stock this problem will become even more of a hindrance in getting a quorum for the stockholders meetings. The Board voted to strike the per cent out and in the future require only 25 stockholders to be present at a stockholders meeting for there to be a quorum.

Both resolutions will be introduced and voted upon at the stockholders meeting. Stockholders of the company are urged to be in attendance at the meeting, as this will facilitate action upon the immediate and future expansion programs of the company.

Due to the very real expression of appreciation shown in the following letter, the Wednesday Club has asked The Baird Star to publish it and thereby give all our citizens the opportunity to read its contents:

Dear Wednesday Club Members:

I want to thank you so much for my bicycle tape. It is such a wonderful thing you did for me and all the other Baird children. My bike has become as interesting all over again as it was when I first got it. I even make my Dad ride it at night so I can watch the lights reflect.

It is nice to live in a town where people are interested in "us kids." Maybe we'll grow up to be nice citizens, too.

Thanks again,

Carol Lynn McGowen.

CONFESSIONS

BY
WILKINSON

THIS BUSINESS of being a pal isn't all that it's cracked up to be. Louise Marshall's affair with Don Baxter was like that. They had been kids together. They had grown up in the same back yard, so to speak. They had attended the same schools and gone to the same church.

It just naturally developed, therefore, that Don, who was Louise's senior by 16 months, came to look upon her as a kid sister whom he should protect with brotherly instinct, and who was always available to fill in on dates when needed.

Louise accepted the situation with meekness because she cherished every moment she could have with her big, blue-eyed, blond "pal." She concealed her hurts nobly whenever Don told her about taking Rose Carter to a country club dance, or when he mentioned he'd kept a canoe date with Bertha Young.

Not that Louise didn't have admirers of her own. But none could provide the thrill equal to that of being with Don.

It was about a month after her 21st birthday that Louise called a meeting with her inner thoughts and faced the situation squarely.

Something had to be done about Don Baxter. She couldn't go on this way. Her love for him had become so great as to make life almost unbearable.

Abruptly she decided on a drastic move. She'd tell him about her affairs with other men. She'd manufacture a mystic love and hint at daring escapades. She'd refuse Don's invitations on the pretext of keeping a rendezvous with her imaginative suitor. This, if anything, she told herself, would stir to life any dormant and sentimental emotion that Don Baxter held for her.

And so when, on the day following, Don asked her to accompany him to a dance that evening, Louise refused sweetly, vaguely hinting at another date. Don was silent for a moment, and then abruptly he said good-bye and hung up.

Louise was miserable. She went out that night to a movie, by herself. The next two days were spent in solitude and despair. On the third day Don unexpectedly appeared, armed with tennis rackets. He wondered if Louise would care to join him in a couple of sets.

Louise, her heart pounding wildly, shook her head, and the smile vanished from Don's face. It seemed to Louise as she watched him drive away, that her last despairing hope was going with him.

Somehow she struggled through the afternoon and the night that followed. The next morning Don called again. He wanted her to drive with him that afternoon and have dinner at a cozy inn he knew in the country. It took every ounce of will power she could summon to refuse. Somehow it didn't seem real. Her plan was actually working.

During the week that followed, Don called three times, and each time Louise refused his invitation. Her happiness knew no bounds. Yet on the other hand, rumor had it that he was frequently with beautiful Harriet Eaton; that the two of them had staged some pretty wild parties at the country club.

Somewhat discouraged, Louise decided that the thing had gone far enough. She had to know the truth. And so when next he called she agreed to cancel another tentative date and spend the evening with him.

Don seemed jubilant and promised to call at 8:15. At 7:45 he appeared. Louise lingered over her dressing table for a long period, at length descending to the porch where he waited.

Don stared at her in silence. He led her to his roadster and helped her in. They drove out of town on the Bartlett road. Louise looked up questioningly when abruptly he swung off the main highway onto an old dirt road. They penetrated into the woods, coming at length to a clearing, flooded now with silvery moonlight. Don brought the roadster to a stop, switched off the lights and turned to face his companion. He stared at her for a long minute. At length he said: "Louise, you're beautiful. You've always been beautiful. I love you. Will you marry me?"

A reply was not necessary. Don was drawing her toward him. She yielded, face upturned. And at last she knew the delicious ecstasy of his warm lips crushing against hers.

He held her for long minutes. At length she drew away. Don's eyes devoured her hungrily. He kissed her again.

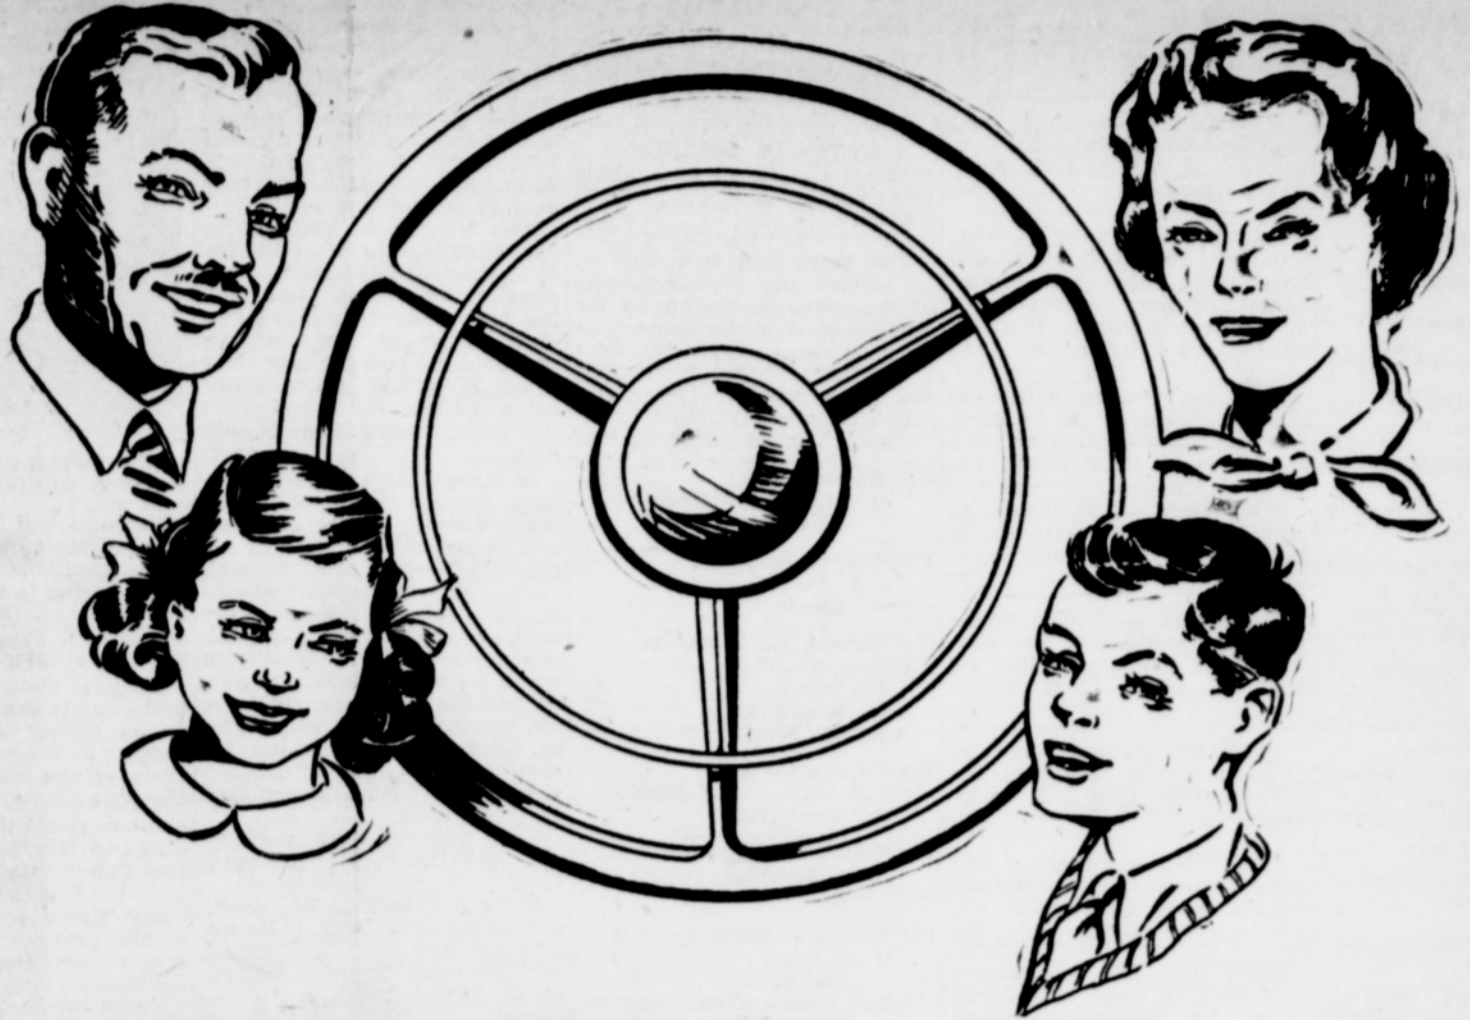

"Darling, I'm mad about you! It's been torture, knowing you were with other men—when I loved you so."

Suddenly Louise knew a sense of guilt. It hadn't been fair the way she had tricked him.

She turned and faced him squarely, prepared to confess. But before she could bring herself to speak, Don went on:

"Louise, precious, I have a confession to make. I must tell you. It's the only fair that I do." He paused. "Louise, I've loved you ever since we were kids together. I—I was afraid you'd never love me, and I wanted you to so much. I tried to make you think that I was interested in other girls. I played around a lot. I gave the impression that I was wild. I—I hoped that it would open your eyes; that it would make you jealous, make you love me. Yesterday I decided to tell you, decided I'd have a showdown. I couldn't go on. I just had to know. Can—you ever forgive me?"

Louise laid her head on his shoulder and sighed deeply. She looked up at the moon and knew a great feeling of happiness. "Yes, Don," she said softly. "Yes—kiss me, darling."

YOUR Wheel of Fate?

Let's go on a picnic—let's go to the shore, to the mountains—to Aunt Susie's. Let's go!

But let's stop, look and listen first! Of the 35,000 fatalities on the highways in 1950, 14,310, or over four in every ten, were killed on Saturdays and Sundays. 644,200 more were injured or maimed for life. Last year the toll was even higher.

When you start out for a family week-end of fun, the Wheel of Fate is right between your hands! One slight swing of that wheel can pull you over the line and into the danger zone of oncoming traffic—into tragedy and death.

Hurry-up week-end and holiday driving, riding bumper-to-bumper at hazardous speeds, leaves no leeway for split-second action. The wheel may be only a dead stick in your hands. You've seen pile-ups on the highway—three, five, seven or eight cars telescoped into junk when a car ahead blew a tire and the wheel went out of control. And you've thanked your lucky stars your family was safe—that time!

So when you and Mom and Jack and Mary go week-ending on the highways, respect that Wheel of Fate in your hands. Use it to guide your family home—alive!

STAY ON THE SAFE SIDE

"It pays to be on the safe side!" So goes a familiar old slogan. On streets and highways, where paint or other markings are liberally displayed to clearly designate the safe side for automobiles, the truth would seem difficult to ignore. Yet, more than 5,000 deaths and over 100,000 injuries are caused each year by drivers who take chances on the wrong side of the road.

There is a growing tendency among drivers to disregard the "life lines of the highways" that is hard to understand, because every motorist with sense enough to drive should know and obey the safety rule that solid lines must never be crossed.

Last year 1,600 more drivers lost their lives, or caused the death of others, by violating wrong-side-of-the-road rules — passing at the crest of a hill, on curves, on the open highway at high speeds, and on the streets of cities, towns and villages — than the 3,400 victims of this illegal habit that were counted in 1948. In the past three years, injuries from crossing the highway "life lines" increased about 15,000 — from 94,000 in 1949 to 110,000 last year.

Nearly all head-on collisions, the worst crashes seen on the highways, result from driving on the wrong side of the road. About 250 lives were lost in 1951 in multiple-death traffic accidents causing five or more deaths each, virtually all of which were head-on collisions. These avoidable tragedies comprised about one-fourth of the nation's catastrophes of all kinds that year.

After speeding and drinking-and-driving, traveling on the wrong side of the road probably claims the greatest number of traffic accident victims each year. It accounts for about one of every six fatalities and more than one of every seven injuries. It is high time for the police and courts to remind motorists of the old fashioned slogan with which we began.

COLLECTIVE EFFORT BUILDS A CITY

We were delighted to see a rare type of co-operation when we visited Grand Prairie this week—co-operation of business people that is building a city. It is indeed inspiring to see a whole town full of people working toward the same goal with the same thoughts and the same zeal.

There are no big men in Grand Prairie. By this we mean there is no big man with all the money and all the influence. Grand Prairie is made up of a lot of average people who know they have something good and are willing to make the most of their opportunities. Situated on the busiest part of the busiest highway that crosses this continent, Grand Prairie is the half way point between Fort Worth and Dallas. A thirty-minute ride will carry you to either one of these cities. This is the connecting link in Grand Prairie's plan to make one big city out of that whole area. We admire their attitude, and we know they will succeed.

There is no community in America that cannot be made a better place in which to live. Initiative and daring are the hallmark of a successful plan for the growth of any place. That success is based on the willingness of businessmen to give freely of their talents in community service.

The same giant highway runs through Baird that runs through Grand Prairie. While Grand Prairie has the industrial resources of two big cities to draw from, Baird has many other advantages from a geographic standpoint. Our industrial advantages are favored by plenty of building space, low taxes, cheap building sites, low overhead, quality labor, plenty of water, gas, power, ideal climate the year-round, and unexcelled transportation facilities. We have everything. Why not all go together for the development of our community?

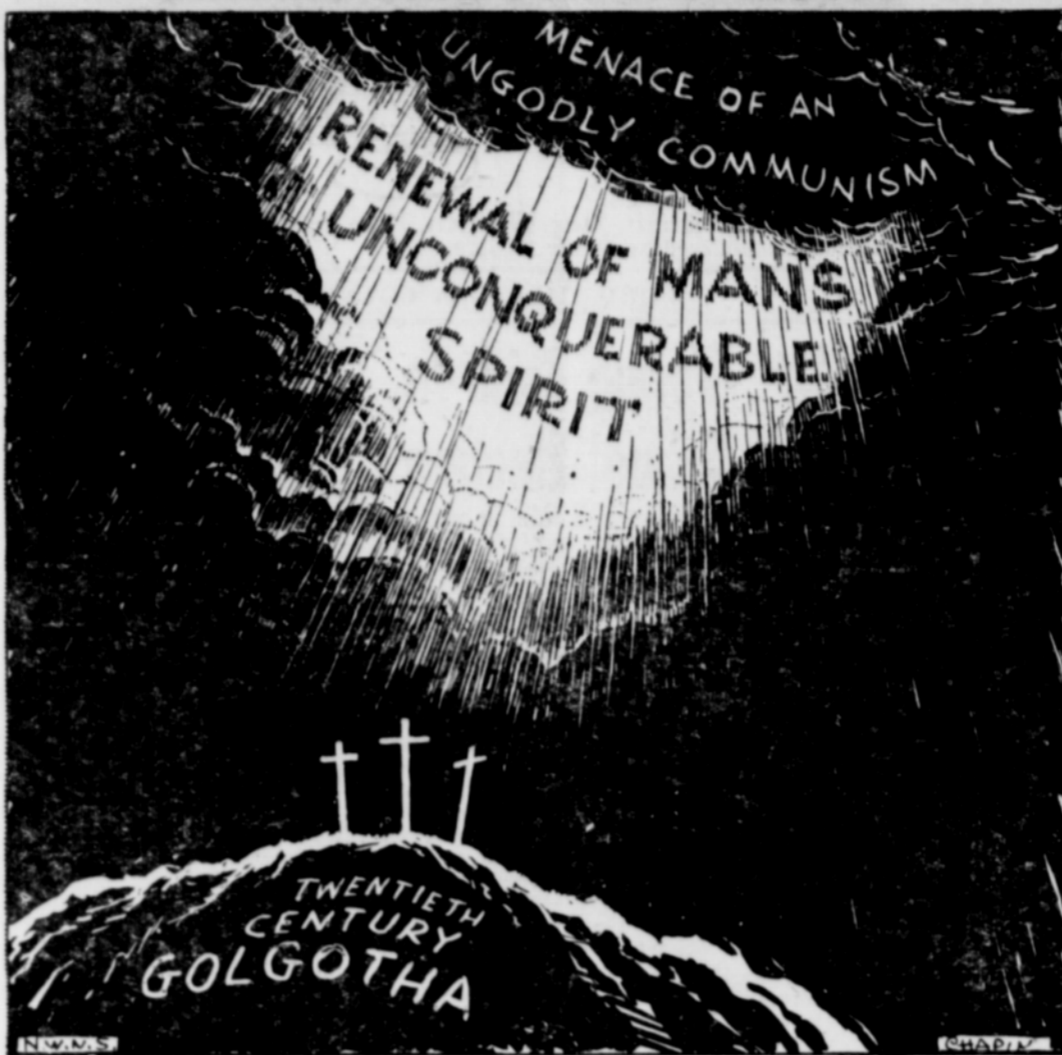

Mr. and Mrs. George H. McDonald, of Seymour, were recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ivey.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Howell and sons, Randy and Terry, were Abilene visitors the first of the week.

D. W. Fulton of Paradise, Cal., visited Mrs. E. C. Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thompson the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fulton, of Lubbock, were Sunday guests of Mrs. E. C. Fulton.

SHINING THROUGH THE CLOUDS

THIS WEEK IN Washington

POLITICS at the Washington level is at least confounding the experts. The managers of the booming campaign of General Dwight Eisenhower, who a short few weeks ago were screaming to get General Eisenhower back into this country, are now divided upon the expediency of his coming home now for fear lest some of the romance and glamour of the five-star general might rub off in close contact with the people.

The best information obtainable now is that the general, who has said he may "re-examine" his position, will be back probably by June 1. And further, it is likely that if "Ike" makes any speeches prior to the GOP convention in Chicago, they will be "non-political" speeches.

The general feels that it would be in bad taste for him to campaign in uniform of a general of the army, and for that reason, if he is nominated by the Republican convention, he will resign from the army, give up his pay and retirement emoluments, and campaign strictly as a civilian.

This is in direct contrast to the action of General Douglas MacArthur, who has declared he is willing to accept a nomination and is making political speeches against his commander-in-chief, with uniform, army plane and all.

At the other end of the Republican field, Senator Robert A. Taft, "Mr. Republican" himself, who has been considered as the Republican organization candidate, or at least the candidate of the professional politicians in the convention, hotly blasted the disaffection in the New Jersey Republican organization and withdrew from that state primary on the ground he is not getting a square break against General Eisenhower. Senator Taft's withdrawal from New Jersey is considered a confession of weakness, although his managers still claim he is out in front of the Republican field by a two-to-one delegate vote at this time.

Senator Taft's stinging defeat at the hands of the Eisenhower supporters in New Hampshire and the unprecedented write-in vote in Minnesota in favor of Eisenhower have given the Taft supporters cause for anxiety and although General Eisenhower came out of Minnesota with none of the delegates, all going to Harold Stassen, who has agreed to divide delegates with Ike, the Minnesota vote was more important politically than the few delegates General Eisenhower picked up in his New Hampshire victory.

SENATOR TAFT needed an extra strong showing in the Wisconsin primary. Of course there are many more delegates, which the Taft supporters declare they will garner from conventions and party appointments, than are named in primaries which will show up in his camp at Chicago, but even the professional politicians can read a trend.

Stassen will wind up in the Eisenhower camp, probably angling for some cabinet job and that may also be true of Governor Warren of California, although there are some who give him a chance in case of an unlikely deadlock.

On the Democratic side of the picture, President Truman is as uncommunicative as ever as to his intentions. Politically, the President is being wise in putting off any announcement as long as possible, particularly if his decision is not to run. If this is his decision, he might be placed at a disadvantage in dealing with our European allies, and, if he does decide to run, he is not being hurt, since the consensus is that he only has to make his wishes known to gain the nomination.

Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, who has thrown his hat in the ring, has opened up national headquarters here and actively started his campaign. He is being importuned by his southern supporters to head up a Dixiecrat party, but the word is that he has refused on the theory he does not believe President Truman will run. What his reaction will be if the President does run remains to be seen, although he refused to bolt the regular Democratic party when the Dixiecrats took a walk at the Philadelphia convention in 1948.

In the meantime, Senator Estes Kefauver is making hay where he can with a back-breaking schedule.

Learn Your Job

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO Miss Gertrude Hunter, Chattanooga, Tenn., went to work for a man who had the reputation of being the hardest man in the city to work for. She didn't know about his reputation at that time, but she soon heard about it from numerous employees who had been working for the company for some time.

When she realized that she had walked into a hard job, she had to ask herself if she were going to be able to hold the job down. After considering the good features to be derived from working for the company she told herself "to get busy and make good on that job." Then she set out to learn more about the job than anybody else in the building; she reviewed what little knowledge she had of curves, angles, degrees and minutes, of which most of her dictation was composed; she brushed up on her shorthand, and gave her job first place in her life.

Her boss, a well educated westerner, expected things to be done NOW. Before coming to this city he was owner and operator of a business college, and he never hesitated to say that there was no excuse for a girl not turning out LETTER-PER-FECT work. He traveled a hard road and he was hard on his employees. When he would say "bring your notebook" she would reach for it and utter a silent prayer that he would not be able to detect how she was trembling while taking his dictation. But before long he and she together were turning out more certificates than any other examiner and stenographer in the whole office.

He was vice-president of the company when she went to work for him, but in a few years he became president, and she a secretary instead of a stenographer. She is glad she stayed on, and now if a young, timid stenographer asks her "How to conquer fear" with respect to a job, she advises "Learn more about your job than anyone else in the office, and then what you dare to dream, dare to do."

Mrs. Curtis Witte, of Abilene, has moved to the home of her mother, Mrs. Cynthia Farmer, while her husband, who has recently inducted into the Army, is away.

So long no see. Reason . . . three day measles and other illness in the family. It seems that the Edwards family are not the only ones that have took their beds with a little old thing like measles, for nearly every family in the community, young and old alike have had them. Quite a few in high school have already had them, but this reporter would guess that if they were gonna' break out there, it will be about week after next, when the senior trip is planned. They plan to go down around San Antonio where it is nice and warm and the sun shines 365 days out of the year. So it won't matter much, maybe the natives of old Sanantonio will think it is a good case of freckles and that we have a little sunshine too.

Mrs. Bill Ferguson, who has been very ill with a heart ailment, is now able to be at her home and is recovering nicely. Her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Hill, of Paducah, Ky., and son, Bob, of the Naval Air Station at San Diego, are at the bedside of their mother.

NEW KETTLE COMEDY RATED TOPS IN SERIES

Funniest and by far the most heartwarming human of Universal-International's famous Kettle comedies to date is "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair," which Starts next Tuesday at the Rio Theatre at Clyde.

Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, as Ma and Pa Kettle, can go on forever with this series judging by the manner in which their efforts were received at the opening performance.

A new romantic team is introduced in "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair." This move resulted from the fact that Richard Long, eldest Kettle son, had married in the previous picture and in real life had been inducted into the Army.

There is more action and suspense in this home-spun comedy than has been noted in previous Kettle films and the laughs are more frequent.

The story makes sense enough too, so the laughs and action blend very well throughout. Ma and Pa would like to send their oldest daughter, Rosie, to college, so Ma tries to win the bread baking and jam contests at the county fair. But she enters the family horse in the trotting race by mistake and then the fun begins.

A fine human interest touch, directing much sympathy toward the elderly couple, is provided toward the end when Ma, after being told that most of the townpeople have bet heavily on another horse and will go broke if the Kettle nag stays in the lead in the big race, makes a slingshot garter and hits her horse with a pebble, causing it to break from a trot to a gallop and be disqualified.

son and Esther Dale are seen in supporting roles in "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair."

to thank each of you who helped

Editor Learns What's Grand About Grand Prairie

The Star editor and wife attended Industrial Week observance at Grand Prairie Sunday and Monday as guests of the new Lennox Hotel. The hotel manager, A. M. Seymour, had extended so cordial an invitation we could not resist driving over to see Grand Prairie's industries on display.

We reached the Lennox in mid-afternoon Sunday where we were received by Mr. Seymour and his hotel staff. A courteous bell boy took us to our room, which we found to be the last word in comfort. The hotel is brand new, and one of a group located in Dallas and Ft. Worth. The owner is getting the habit of building a new hotel like the Lennox somewhere every year.

We took our meals in the hotel coffee shop, and the food was the best we have ever eaten. While we were not allowed to pay for anything at the hotel, we did get a glimpse at the prices on the menu. In this day of high prices, we couldn't believe our eyes. A complete breakfast with ham and eggs for 60c. Sunday dinner for two amounted to $3.85. The rate sign on our hotel room door notified guests that the room rent for two was $6.50 per day. These rates, compared with other hotels of this class, are about half price.

Visiting the hotel lobby where Grand Prairie industries displayed their products, we were amazed. We believe even the Grand Prairie people were as surprised as the visitors to see the variety of industries doing business in their community. Then we were told that only about half of them were represented by displays. Mrs. Emmadean Berry, manager of the chamber of commerce, told us the Industrial Week exhibit would be twice this size next year. It was through her efforts mainly that the show was such a grand success this first year. Pete Brazil, manager of the telephone company and chairman of special events committee for the chamber of commerce, was on the job to help make us enjoy ourselves.

Speaking of live wires, we found one when we met W. A. Hotchkiss, manager of Texas Electric Service Company, who is also first vice president of the chamber of commerce at Grand Prairie. Beside taking care of the electric company's business and playing golf, he found time to build and set up an electric train in one of the display rooms. Three T & P trains, switchmen, tunnel, stations, towns, and everything were in complete automatic operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Ballowe greeted us warmly. Mr. Ballowe is owner of the Shamrock Cake Company, making delicious cakes, sealing them in cans, and distributing them throughout the nation. And they are good. We brought one home with us, and we can tell you for sure it's good.

The exhibit that first caught our eye, naturally, was the printing display presented by Byron B. Busbee, publisher of the Grand Prairie Texan. Newspaper and commercial printing displayed was of high quality, and the arrangement of the display was very attractive.

We saw some of the neatest leathercraft in the form of billfolds, purses, belts, shoes, that we have ever seen. This display was presented by Mrs. V. A. Cornuau, who distributes the articles to retailers in Dallas and Fort Worth.

The leaded art glass for church windows was exhibited by Homer B. Rusk. It is said that the process they use has been in constant use without variance since 800 A. D. Rusk's art windows are installed in churches throughout the nation.

There were so many fine displays we cannot name them all, but some of the outstanding were: mattresses by Floyd T. Knight; venetian blinds by W. R. Barnett of the Nu-Blind Mfg. Co.; special order picture frames by Mrs. Mabel Burton; boats and trailers by R. W. McDonnell of Lone Star Boat Co.; dairy products by Phil Blackwell of Premium Milk Company; children's clothing by J. F. Wilson; traffic signal lights by Albert Sowell of Sargent-Sowell Mfg. Co.; Clarence Heinen, owner-manager of Al Tash Dye Works, displayed the twin Dye-Caster tubs for cleaners and dyers; Formica drain board and table tops exhibited by L. M. Dabney of Midway Plastics; Jack Trice, manager of Plasco, Inc., was showing furniture and vanitory; the chamber of commerce gave away prizes to keep interest running throughout the week.

Grand Prairie's two chief industries presented interesting displays. F. O. Detweiler, general manager of Chance Vought Aircraft, and Robert McColloch, general manager of TEMCO, were directing their exhibits. These two plants together employ more than 16,000 people, and are chiefly responsible for Grand Prairie's rapid growth.

After visiting the displays of manufacturers, we attended church at the Church of Christ where we heard a splendid sermon and enjoyed the good singing. Monday morning found us refreshed and ready to go again. Grand Prairie is more like a bee hive than anything we can think of. The main street is the giant highway that connects Dallas and Fort Worth, but off this main artery traffic is heavy in all directions. Grand Prairie is where business men from Dallas and Fort Worth puff on the peace pipe and combine their interests for greater industrial development in Texas.

We dropped in at the Piccadilly Restaurant, owned and operated by our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dennis, where we had a cup of coffee on them. Some 8,000 industrial workers park their cars daily in the parking lots adjoining the Piccadilly and they are enjoying a good business. Mr. Dennis is well acquainted throughout West Texas, having driven a truck through here for a long time, and his friends make a habit of stopping with him when they want something good to eat.

While Grand Prairie is humming with business, the people are friendly and courteous. Money matters have not consumed their thinking, and they take time to be human. And that's what we learned was so grand about Grand Prairie.

MRS. BEN NUNN HOSTESS TO ENTERPRISE CLUB

The Enterprise Homemakers Club met Thursday, April 3, with Mrs. Ben Nunn. Mrs. A. L. Powers was co-hostess.

The meeting was called to order with group singing. Roll call was answered with "An April Fool Prank." Mrs. P. H. Patton gave an interesting talk on glassware and how it is made in different countries. Mrs. Nunn exhibited her collection of old glassware, as well as later modern glass. Some pieces in the collection are over 100 years old.

After a business session, refreshment plates of frosted cup cakes and punch were served to four guests: Mmes. M. E. Benz, Alice Holladay, D. B. Rodden, J. H. Ratchford of Tulsa, Okla., and the following club members: Mmes. Leon Kendrick, L. D. Simpson, O. D. Gist, J. A. Coffey, R. E. Hansen, Sam Sherrill, J. W. Patton, W. L. Green, O. J. Witte, P. H. Patton, E. M. Parks, Ray Young, J. C. Browning, D. A. Calfee, C. B. Collins, M. M. Gers, H. A. Versyp, D. Corning, Roselynn Hunter, Hardy Merrick, J. C. Meadows, A. L. INSPECTION CHIEF SAYS GET CARS INSPECTED

AUSTIN — "Get your vehicle inspected and avoid the delay and inconvenience of having to wait in line," said Chief G. W. Busby, Motor Vehicle Inspection Division, Department of Public Safety, Austin, Texas.

Designated as official inspection stations in Baird are Rocky Motor Co., No. 1112; Ray Motor Co., No. 2032; and Sutphen Motor Co., No. 2131.

The 2700 official inspection stations licensed in Texas so far are inspecting some 50,000 cars per week and in order to inspect all the cars in this State by the deadline, September 6th, the number of cars inspected per week will have to be doubled.

There can be no further extension of the deadline and operators of vehicles not inspected on September 7th will be subject to arrest. The law provides a fine of not to exceed $200.00 for any person guilty of operating a vehicle after September 7th when such vehicle has not been inspected and approved.

More and more stations are being licensed in Texas daily and the operators of these stations are waiting to faithfully and honestly inspect your car at your earliest convenience. Take your car to the inspection station of your choice and get your approval certificate while there is plenty of time and no waiting. When you get your approval certificate on your car, you will take pride in knowing that your car is safe to operate and that you are helping to contribute to a safer Texas.

Safer Use of Blow Lands In Western Area Urged by U. S. Soil Conservation Service

FORT WORTH — A plea for a return to safer use of Texas blow lands, especially to the production of grass and grain sorghums, was sounded today by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, as the hard-hit wind erosion areas of the state entered the stretch period of high winds and moving soil.
The plea came as field office reports to Regional Director Louis P. Merrill of the SCS showed that hard March winds had added 470,000 acres to the total western Texas acreages undergoing moderate to severe wind erosion damage. Wind of the last two weeks of the month put 249,000 more acres in the moderate to severely damaged category. The total in lands which have been moderately or severely damaged this season is now 1,637,000 acres.
A survey party dispatched by Merrill to view the damaged areas reported that grain sorghum stubble, properly managed, strongly recommended by soil conservation districts, is proving an effective measure in preventing land damage.
The party, which included Regional Agronomist W. M. Nixon, R. M. Marshall, Regional Soil Scientist, and C. A. Rechenhith, Zone Conservationist, also reported:
1. Practices recommended by soil conservation districts, where used, are proving effective in contrast to conditions on unprotected lands nearby.
2. Use of Blue panicum, sand lovegrass, weeping lovegrass, and other grasses is yielding good returns to farm owners and is keeping hazardous soil in place.
3. Emergency tillage has given widespread protection through the dry blow months, although in some areas this device is no longer holding because winds have leveled the surface and there is insufficient moisture to re-list or re-chisel the land.
4. Deep plowing is effective on lands where clay subsoil is within reach, but many fields of deep sand or thin soils are being given this expensive treatment uselessly.
5. Some grass sod is still being broken out on lands not suitable for cultivation that is extremely susceptible to blowing. Three million acres too light or too shallow for crop production are now cultivated in the High Plains of Texas.
The primary objective of districts is proper use and treatment of land that will assure continuing improvement and protection. They have also been responsible for much of the emergency treatment applied on lands where the permanent program has not yet been established.
The group encountered soil drifts which made many farm roads impassable. They saw dragline machinery scooping at drifts on the Santa Fe Railway link between Lubbock and Seagraves. (The operator reported he was barely able to keep up with the drifting sand.)

Farmers who were successfully combating the blow threat were encountered even in the hardest hit areas, the party reported. These included Cartis White, a supervisor of the Dawson County Soil Conservation District, and Glenwood Stovall, both farming southeast of Lamesa; George M. Norman, southeast of Seminole in the Gaines County Soil Conservation District, all of whom are district cooperators. In all cases these men were using grasses and wind resisting feed crops to defeat the blow threat.
Measures under observation at the Soil Conservation Experiment Station near Brownfield also were proving effective in view of the condition of surrounding land, the party reported. These measures include grass seeding, stubble mulch, grain sorghums and cotton in rotation, chiseling and deep plowing.
Merrill pointed out that the need for the use of erosion resisting crops in the western areas fit in with the government request for the production of more feed grains.
"A great portion of the lands in question are well suited to the production of grain sorghums, and properly managed sorghum stubble is as good an instrument as we know to prevent blowing on cropland," Merrill said. "Cotton must be grown in narrow strips with grain sorghum if blowing on cotton land is to be prevented. In 1950—a year in which was not so severe—large acreages of these lands now blowing were protected by sorghum stubble. That kind of protection could have prevented much of the damage we are seeing this year."

LARGE NUMBER OF QUAIL SURVIVE PERILS

AUSTIN—A remarkable number of bobwhite quail survive perils encountered between hatching and maturity, according to the forthcoming April issue of Texas Game & Fish magazine published by the Game & Fish Commission.
An article, entitled "Enemies of the Bobwhite Quail" states that "anyone who has the privilege of seeing a new brood of quail chicks emerging from the nest must wonder how long the fluffy little fellows can escape the dangers which await them."
It continues:
"The principal causes of high mortality of the bobwhite quail are destruction of nests and eggs, hawks, snakes, coyotes and other predatory mammals, parasites and disease.
"The reduction of the potential quail crop begins during the nesting season. The number of nesting failures may exceed 50 per cent of the total number of nests established. Many nests are deserted or destroyed before the eggs have a chance to hatch, or even before the laying of the clutch is completed.
"Parasites and diseases are of minor importance except when the quail population temporarily exceeds the supply of food and cover. Quail chicks may die from coccidiosis, and many adult birds are carriers of this disease which is prevalent among domestic poultry.
"The principal diseases among bobwhite quail are tapeworms, mites, lice, ticks and "chiggers" or red bugs. The first of these parasites apparently are more likely to infest quail on land which also serves as a range for chickens and turkeys."

Humble Co. Reports Increased Business

HOUSTON — In its annual report released today, Humble Oil & Refining Company reported substantial increases in 1951 business resulting from a gain in public demand for oil products of almost 10 per cent over 1950. Humble's net crude oil production and trunk line deliveries were nearly 25 per cent higher than in 1950 while its refinery runs and products marketed by the Sales Department increased more than 11 per cent. Net production of crude oil and natural gas liquids was 136,551,000 barrels.

During the past thirty-five years since the organization of Humble in 1917, public demand for petroleum products has increased at an extraordinary rate. In doing its part to meet this demand, Humble has expanded its assets and operations greatly. Humble's assets at the end of 1951 were $1,060,413,344, and the Company gross business in 1951 was only slightly under a billion dollars.

The growth in investment and operations has been accompanied by increasing outlays. Payrolls, cost of materials, drilling and operating costs, and taxes are all reported to be increasing. In a letter to stockholders, Hines H. Baker, president, and L. T. Barrow, chairman of the board, state that if current replacement costs had been used, charges for depreciation on plant and equipment alone in 1951 would have been about $24,000,000 higher and net income correspondingly lower.

Humble's net income for the year was $169,481,000 or $4.72 a share. This income was 31 per cent higher than in 1950 but below the previous amount of 1948. Dividend payments were increased from $2.00 to $2.25 a share on the present stock, and amounted to slightly less than 48 per cent of net income. More than half of the net income was reinvested in the business. The Company reported record capital expenditures of $158,794,000 in 1951 and a capital budget for 1952 of $245,000,000, including the total drilling program.

Humble's drilling in 1951 exceeded that of any other year in footage and in money spent. Total drilling costs of $105,575,800 included $29,281,500 spent on dry holes. Dry hole costs for the year were nine times as much as the annual average in the prewar period 1937-1940, illustrating how expensive and hazardous exploration and development have become.

During the last four months of 1951, Humble became the leading marketer of gasoline in Texas. In that period it accounted for 16 per cent of the total tax-paid gasoline sales in the state.

The Company's annual report shows that at the end of the year there were 18,112 active employees and 347 on military leave. Wages, salaries, and other compensations paid to employees during 1951 exceeded $106,000,000, an increase of $6,000,000 over 1950.
