

Pig show to open annual exhibition

The weigh-in of animals for the annual Scurry County Junior Livestock Show was to be completed by 5 p.m. Tuesday in preparation for the first competition division—the market hog show—slated Wednesday.

The swine show will be followed on Thursday by market lamb judging and on Friday with market steers. All events are planned in the ag annex of the Scurry County Coliseum. The pig and lamb shows will start at 6 p.m. and the steer show at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, show judge Carl Wilson, extension agent for Taylor County, will assess an estimated 200 pigs entered by county youth from the 4-H chapter as well as the FFA chapters from See SHOW, page 9

Top heavy, lightweight pigs named champs at Hermleigh

The top heavyweight and lightweight hogs were named the grand and reserve champion animals at the Hermleigh FFA Chapter Show Monday.

The winning pig was entered by Wayne Reynolds and the reserve swine was shown by Rodney Foster, who was a double winner as he showed the grand champion in the sheep competition.

The pig show counted 44 entries and was the largest division Monday. The market lamb show also generated 17 sheep. In addition to Foster's grand champ, the reserve champion was shown by Ben Smith.

The following lists the top three entrants in each of the show's divisions.

SWINE

Bonds ok'd today...

Amarillo may lose TDC unit

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Bond Review Board this morning approved bonds for only one additional maximum-security prison because of legal problems with plans to build one each in Amarillo and Gatesville.

Chairman Charles Terrell of the Texas Board of Corrections said he will call a meeting of the board to decide which city will get the 2,250-bed maximum-security prison. That meeting probably will be within two weeks, he said.

Prison Director Jim Lynaugh said although a decision has not been made, it is likely the prison will be built in Gatesville because site preparation has been done there. Under the state's original plan, the Gatesville prison was to be built before the Amarillo facility, he said.

Terrell and Gov. Bill Clements, chairman of the Bond Review Board, emphasized they will work to see that two maximum-security prisons eventually are built in addition to the Mark Michaels unit constructed last year in Palestine.

Clements said one of his options is calling a special session of the Legislature.

"I fully intend to have that second Michaels unit built ... We have now 50 percent of our inmates that are hardened, violent criminals and we need that additional capacity of the maximum-security unit," Clements said after the board approved $153.6 million in bonds for new prison beds. The bonds include only one Michaels-type unit.

"I think that we have the minimum- and the moderate-security units well-covered with our plans as they now exist," he added.

Terrell asked the board to find a way for the Texas Department of Corrections to build another maximum-security unit.

"We're not going to nix anything. We may have to delay. ... We're not going to forget about Amarillo or Gatesville, either one," Terrell told reporters.

Elimination of immediate bond financing for the second Michaels-type unit came after an opinion by Attorney General Jim Mattox. Glen Hartman, executive director of the authority, told the Bond Review Board in a letter that Mattox said the Legislature did not authorize the second unit.

The appropriations bill passed by the Texas Legislature last summer "clearly states one additional Michaels-type unit," said Ron Dusek, spokesman for Mattox.

"But we are researching whether or not the governor through his budgetary authority ... can make some changes that can get two Michaels-type units built," Dusek said.

Kidnap charge answered

Suspect claims he acted unwillingly

One of three suspects indicted by a Scurry County grand jury for aggravated kidnapping—charges arising from a self-described "ripoff dope deal"—told a 132nd District Court jury Tuesday morning that he went along with the abduction because he feared his companions believed he had been "part of the burn."

Defense attorney Frank Conrad of Sweetwater called his client to the stand, Larry Dan Beard, 32, to testify in his own defense. Beard was indicted by the November grand jury along with two other suspects, John Randal Locknane, 32, and Grady Allen Davis, 25.

Since their arrest Oct. 29, Beard and Davis have remained in the Scurry County Jail. Locknane has since been released after posting a $25,000 bond. Beard is the first of the three to face trial.

The charges against them stem from an incident here Oct. 27 during which Lafayette Griffin, 25, claims he was taken at gunpoint by the three as they attempted to recover some $60 they said they had given to an uncle of Griffin's in an attempt to purchase cocaine.

Beard testified Tuesday he had agreed to help fellow suspect Locknane after he encountered him at a local restaurant. "I didn't know anybody who might have (cocaine)," he testified, "But I told him I was going to the flats to get a beer and someone there might could help him."

According to testimony offered Monday and Tuesday, what then transpired involved several hours and resulted ultimately in Beard, Locknane and Davis passing

Front's passage to chill area reading

From Local, Wire Reports
Cooler temperatures were predicted for the Snyder area Tuesday night as a strong cold front moved into the Panhandle early Tuesday, bringing a surge of colder air behind it.

There was a chance of snow in the Panhandle Tuesday while southern portions of West Texas were expected to have snow mixed with rain. No precipitation is in the Snyder forecast, however.

After an overnight low in the mid-20s, Wednesday is expected to be partly cloudy and colder here with highs in the lower 40s.

Thunderstorms, including some reaching severe levels, were expected to continue through Tuesday night across Southeast Texas, where a tornado watch was in effect until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Fast-moving thunderstorms packing high winds, hail and one possible tornado raced across Northeast Texas Monday night. The National Weather Service said the storms moved so fast, 50 to 60 mph, that they didn't stay in one place long enough to cause significant damage.

A possible tornado was sighted near Canton, about 45 miles east of Dallas, early Tuesday, but there were no reports of damage.

Golf ball size hail was reported in Van Zandt County and marble size hail was common across a vast area as the storm passed.

GED classes to start, volunteer need cited

As spring preparatory classes begin again for individuals interested in securing their GED equivalency diploma, instructors involved in the program note a need for volunteer aides to deal with an unexpected increase in enrollment.

Thursday will mark the startup for these classes. During the spring term, the class will meet from 6 until 9 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

The class is offered free of charge and meets in the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College. Instructors are Howard Sawyer, Elizabeth Jenkins and Esther Clarady.

Sawyer noted Tuesday the sudden rise in students, crediting this to the government's new amnesty program for individuals previously in the country as illegal aliens.

Part of the provisions for being allowed to stay and work in the U.S. is a requirement that they "make an effort toward learning the English language."

Because of this, Sawyer noted any volunteers to assist with GED classes should be able to speak both English and Spanish.

Anyone interested in volunteering may contact him at 573-3464.

He noted that last year, 39 individuals participating in the classes ultimately passed their GED exam.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's difficult to get kids to eat just anything—especially if it hasn't danced on TV."

The newly-renovated airport, Winston Field, is just another example of the progressive attitude of Scurry County citizens.

The airport is a first-class facility—one that business visitors will be pleased to use. The airport really makes a good first impression, and that first impression is important in building a positive community image.

The large crowd that braved the cold weather to attend last month's ceremonial "first takeoff and landing" speaks well of the support that county commissioners have in looking to the future of Snyder and Scurry County.

Snyder's airport ceremony, complete with TV crews, went off without a hitch. But folks in Van Nuys, Calif., were not so lucky then they planned a news media day to publicize their airport's safety record.

Events took an embarrassing turn for airport officials when a plane taxiing on the runway crashed into a parked car containing a Sem Valley Enterprise reporter and photographer who had been assigned to cover the event.

The media reps weren't entirely at fault—they were in a car belonging to the airport public relations director who had planned the accident-free observance.

Reports indicate the Senate will try a revolutionary technique this year—a five-day work week.

In the past, little has been accomplished on Mondays and Fridays as senators headed out of town to give speeches or visit homefolks.

Under the new regimen, senators will now get one full week off for every three worked. And they haven't even said "thanks" to us poor working stiffs.

Given asylum

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Americans who came to the Soviet Union as tourists have been granted political asylum, a Soviet official said today.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov identified the Americans as Theodore Branch, 43, and Cheryl Branch, 40, of Pennsylvania, and said they were granted asylum by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the nation's parliament. It appeared from Gerasimov's remarks at a government news briefing that the Americans were married, but he did not say whether they have children.

Gerasimov identified them as "experts in the field of mass communications," but gave no other details of their jobs or lives in the United States and did not give their hometown.

2 suits settled

HOUSTON (AP) — The parents of two Challenger victims settled wrongful death claims against Morton Thiokol Inc. out of court, their lawyer says.

Houston attorney Ronald Krist said the settlement amounts for Sarah Resnik Belfer, mother of mission specialist Judith Resnik, and Bruce Jarvis, father of payload specialist Gregory Jarvis, were confidential.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is not contributing to the settlements, Krist said Monday.

"We filed a claim (against NASA) for Bruce Jarvis, but it'll be resolved in this," Krist said.

Krist said today that although no formal lawsuit was filed, he and Morton Thiokol attorneys negotiated "the same as if there had been a lawsuit filed."

Any subsequent hearing dates for the actions will be set after Feb. 29. That meeting is set for 10 a.m. at the Kerr County Courthouse.

Additional rocket test sought

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Senior astronauts are concerned about booster rocket flaws found during a test last month, and are asking that the space shuttle not be cleared to fly again until at least three more successful tests are conducted.

NASA's return-to-space plan calls for at least two more successful tests of the redesigned solid rocket booster, but Daniel Brandenstein, chief of the astronaut office at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said he and some other astronauts don't believe that is good enough.

"We are proposing that we do three more (mandatory) tests, but that is still in review," he said in an interview. "They were planning two, but with the (launch date) slip and the failure, putting a third in there is possible."

Navy Rear Adm. Richard H. Truly, a former astronaut who heads the shuttle program, announced earlier this month that the failure in the December rocket test will require a delay in resumption of space flights until late July or August. Flights had been scheduled to resume in June.

A spokesman for Morton Thiokol Inc., manufacturer of the rocket, confirmed on Monday that "discussions are under way" about adding another mandatory test-firing of the rocket. No decision has been made, he said.

Two full-scale firings have been conducted and two more were planned before verifying the redesigned shuttle rocket for flight. Still another test was to be conducted, but officials said this fifth test did not have to precede the first mission. It is this fifth test that Brandenstein now wants to be conducted successfully before shuttle flights resume.

The first full-scale test, called DM8, was conducted successfully in August. It was followed on Dec. 23 by the DM9 test in which a new nozzle boot ring design was used for the first time. The boot ring came apart. "The DM9 outer boot ring test was not a success, so that should not count as one of our 'get ready to fly' tests on the nozzle," said Brandenstein. "My feeling is that we ought to redo the nozzle part of that" and test it three full times again before certifying it for flight.

Truly announced earlier this month that the new boot ring that failed on DM9 would be replaced with the boot ring that worked on DM8. He said it then would be tested twice more to certify it for flight.

Brandenstein said he wants at least one more full-scale test of the whole system before astronauts again ride the rockets into space.

The space shuttle Challenger accident, which killed seven astronauts on Jan. 28, 1986, was blamed on a flawed joint in the side of the solid rocket booster. The side joints have been redesigned, along with parts of the rocket booster nozzle.

John W. Thomas, chief of the shuttle rocket redesign team, said both full-scale tests have shown that the flaw that destroyed Challenger has been corrected.

The new joint design includes the addition of a third O-ring, or rubberized seal, a flange to strengthen the metal joint and a new arrangement of insulation to keep hot rocket gases from reaching the joint.

Thomas said the insulation worked so well in the test firing that the new O-ring design is still unproven.

As a result, NASA has proposed that a flaw be intentionally introduced into the joint for a test-firing in March. This would put hot gas against the O-rings and verify their design. But, the Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel reported Sunday that Morton Thiokol is opposed to the plan.

Morton Thiokol officials, the Sentinel said, want to conduct tests in March and in April without flaws, and then introduce the flaw in a test in June. Currently, a successful June test is not considered essential for a resumption of shuttle flights.

The Sentinel quoted Carver Kennedy, a Morton Thiokol official, as saying that "these issues have been discussed heatedly between us and NASA."

However, Rocky Raab, a Morton Thiokol spokesman, denied on Monday that there has been a disagreement. He said only that there have been "engineering discussions" and claimed that nobody has "taken sides."

Teachers Showered With Gifts Are Touched by Students' Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As school teachers at an elementary school, we object to the attitude of "Reluctant Gift Collector" who belittled those "No. 1-Teacher" mugs, plaques and pins received from students. The teacher said, "A gift certificate for a free meal would be much more appreciated."

How can this teacher be an example to his/her students when he/she can't appreciate the love and admiration they put into those so-called "useless gimcracks"?

We gratefully accept all gifts from our students as priceless treasures, and we proudly display them in our classrooms and homes. These gifts let us know that we are actually doing our jobs as educators, not only dispensing knowledge, but teaching the future generations how to be human.

Let "Reluctant Gift Collector" have the 20 or 30 gift certificates for a meal out — we'd rather have the love!

THE TEACHERS
AT COTTONWOOD,
CASA GRANDE, ARIZ.

DEAR TEACHERS: All 23 of you who signed the above letter, beginning with Dave Maloney and ending with Ceil McMurren: Thank you for expressing so well the unselfish attitude of those who have chosen the teaching profession. No one ever went into teaching to get rich. But read on for a "gift" one teacher received that money couldn't buy:

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the teacher who was the "Reluctant Gift Collector." Enclosed is one of the nicest gifts a teacher could ever hope for.

MY NAME IS LEGION,
MY ADDRESS IS CLOUD NINE
P.S. I was the young man's chemistry teacher.

(The letter enclosed.)

Dear Ms. E.: Each year we ask students admitted to MIT to share with us the name of a teacher who has been especially influential in that student's development. We congratulate you on being named this year! More importantly, we thank you for the time, patience, expertise, love, discipline and all the other qualities which have had an important impact on your students. You do the work from which we all benefit.

Congratulations again on the respect you have earned from your students.

MICHAEL C. BEHNKE,
DIRECTOR OF ADMISSIONS,
MIT, CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "No-Win Situation" rang a bell with me. "No Win" asked whether she should tell her friend, "Jane," that she was cutting down on her visits to her (Jane's) house because of Jane's badly behaved children. You advised "No Win" that she should gently tell Jane as diplomatically as possible that her children's behavior is the problem. You pointed out that ill-mannered and badly behaved children are obnoxious and therefore friendless. You added that she'd be doing Jane and her children an enormous favor by telling her how she feels.

Abby, I am the son of not one but two "Jane-type" parents. The result was just as you described. I grew up self-centered, ill-mannered, badly behaved, obnoxious and friendless.

It all worked out — finally, I am now 52 and fairly successful, but I struggled all my life with personality and attitude problems. My grade school report cards consistently showed low marks in "Respects the rights of others." I eventually learned how to be a human being — but not from my parents. I was taught by the outside world. It would have been a lot easier had I learned those lessons at home. I'm signing my name, but if this is published, please sign me.

Second opinion may be helpful

DEAR DR. GOTT — The doctor said the tube inside my pancreas is twisted and plugs up. That's what puts me in the hospital every year with pancreatitis. I'm also diabetic and have heart trouble. The doctor said that he could remove the end of the pancreas and connect the intestine directly, but that it was a very dangerous operation. In my situation, what would you do?

DEAR READER — Obtain another opinion. Spasm, kinking or blockage of the pancreatic duct can cause a backup of digestive enzymes in the pancreas, leading to inflammation and pain. Corrective surgery is dangerous and, in a diabetic with heart disease, could be enormously complicated. Perhaps a second opinion from a gastroenterologist would provide additional options for you to consider.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Does rheumatic fever still exist? What are its symptoms?

DEAR READER — Rheumatic fever does, indeed, still exist. It is much less common than it once was; however, several recent outbreaks have been reported nationwide. The disease typically follows a streptococcal infection, such as strep throat or scarlet fever. It is characterized by arthritis, chorea (tremors and awkwardness) and carditis (heart inflammation). Sometimes the kidneys are affected.

Rheumatic fever is thought by many experts to be an allergy to the strep bacteria. Because most strep infections are promptly treated with antibiotics, rheumatic fever seems to be on the wane, except for occasional outbreaks (for no known reason), it has become a medical curiosity.

The major consequences of rheumatic fever are Sydenham's chorea (irregular body movements) and mitral valve disease. This structure, an important valve in the heart, can be affected, leading to poor heart function. A diseased mitral valve causes heart murmur (an abnormal sound) and may have to be surgically corrected or replaced.

Although rheumatic fever is an unusual disease, it is one that must be considered in any patient recovering from a strep infection who develops joint pains, fever, heart murmur, red skin patches, protein in the urine or neurological abnormalities.

Pro basketball roundup...

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Charitable in the first half, The Dallas Mavericks turned larcenous in the second. After committing 14 turnovers in the first two periods and clinging to a one-point halftime lead over the struggling Clippers, the Mavericks cut their giveaways to nine in the second half and also had nine second-half steals. That helped Dallas pull away to a 99-87 victory over Los Angeles Monday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 121, Golden State 101; New York 110, Atlanta 102; Detroit 123, Denver 116; the Los Angeles Lakers 121, Houston 110; Chicago 117, Washington 103; Seattle 115, Indiana 105; and New Jersey 117, Phoenix 113.

"They pressed the living heck out of us in the first half, and it bothered us," said Coach John McLeod, whose Mavericks had just three turnovers in the third quarter as they beefed up their lead.

"We had a good solid third quarter, moved the ball well and did a good job defensively down the stretch in the fourth quarter."

Roy Tarpley had 12 of his 20 points in the final period to help the Mavericks maintain control. Tarpley, a 7-foot reserve forward, has been filling the void left by Rolando Blackman, the Mavericks' second-leading scorer who has now missed six games with a sprained knee.

"I had real good position, and my teammates threw me a lot of good passes inside," Tarpley said. "I've been working hard in practice, and I try to carry it through into the game. I'm trying to be the spark for the team when I come into the game."

The Mavericks finished with a season-high 14 steals, and Tarpley said, "We wanted to put on a good defensive effort."

Mark Aguirre, who scored 13 of his 26 points in the third quarter for Dallas, said the Mavericks settled down after a shaky start.

"We got a better grip on things when the second quarter started," he said. "We also got a few steals. And once we did that, we were in command."

The victory gave the Mavericks a three-game lead in the NBA Midwest Division over Houston and Denver, who both lost Monday.

The Clippers, meanwhile, lost for the 14th time in their last 15 games.

"We didn't have enough

Mavs rip LA Clippers

firepower to get 100 points," said Coach Gene Shue, whose team failed to reach the century mark for the 23rd time in 36 games this season. "We need some players that can score."

The Clippers mounted a mild threat in the fourth quarter, as Benoit Benjamin hit a jumper to cut the Dallas lead to 75-67.

But Tarpley scored eight points during a 14-6 run that gave Dallas its biggest lead of the game, 89-73, with 5:19 to play. The Clippers never got closer than 10 points after that.

Quintin Dailey came off the bench to score 27 points for Los Angeles, and Benjamin had 21.

Dailey couldn't explain the Clippers' recent skid.

"Maybe it's the execution. I don't know. It's really weird," he said. "We get the shots and don't knock them down. And then when we do miss a shot, it seems like we're always on the defensive."

Illinois coach resigns following allegations

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - Mike White, saying he accepts responsibility for the latest charges of NCAA recruiting violations, is out as head football coach at the University of Illinois.

Chancellor Morton Weir said White, whose team was placed on probation in 1984, quit Monday after he was confronted with allegations by the NCAA and the university about possible infractions, including one incident in which he was personally involved.

"We just could not continue this way and when the coach saw (the allegations), he decided we could not continue this way," Weir said. "He chose to resign."

White, whose new three-year contract for $900,000 began in January, will be paid about one-third of that as part of the resignation settlement, Weir said.

The NCAA notified Illinois in December of three possible infractions, including a 1985 cash payment by an assistant coach to a prospective athlete for lodging, Weir said. The athlete did not enroll at Illinois and the coach later quit, he said. He would not identify them.

"If you examine these allegations when they become public, you may note that they appear to be minor in nature and date back to 1985," White said. "While I was unaware of the violation, I take full responsibility for the allegations in my capacity as University of Illinois' head football coach."

But Weir said an internal investigation revealed several additional incidents that might be NCAA violations. They included a 1986 visit by White and two assistant coaches to the home of a recruit at a time prohibited by the NCAA, Weir said.

He said White apparently did not realize that was a violation, but in the case of the cash payment, the assistant coach "knew he was doing something" that was against the rules.

But Tarpley scored eight points during a 14-6 run that gave Dallas its biggest lead of the game, 89-73, with 5:19 to play. The Clippers never got closer than 10 points after that.

Quintin Dailey came off the bench to score 27 points for Los Angeles, and Benjamin had 21.

Dailey couldn't explain the Clippers' recent skid.

"Maybe it's the execution. I don't know. It's really weird," he said. "We get the shots and don't knock them down. And then when we do miss a shot, it seems like we're always on the defensive."

Howe voices opinion

DALLAS (AP) - Steve Howe says the Texas Rangers terminated his two-year, $1.2 million contract because club officials were fearful of a major incident during the season.

Howe said Monday that he would abide by the team's decision to fire him following his drinking while he was at a mini-camp for pitchers in Arlington last week.

"But I'm not happy with it," he said. "I've done a lot of things wrong, and this is the biggest reaction for the least."

Howe violated the terms of his contract regarding a substance abuse after-care program, Rangers officials said Sunday.

"I understand why the

Howe voices opinion

Rangers did it," the relief pitcher said in a telephone interview from the Klaispell, Mont., office of his agent-attorney, John Lence.

"They have been under such scrutiny since the day they signed me, and they are scared to death. I guess the fear of a major incident during the season is what got me released."

Howe, who had been suspended or released seven times because of substance abuse during his professional career, signed a contract on Oct. 9 that allowed the Rangers to void the pact if he consumed drugs or alcohol.

Howe said he went drinking with some Rangers teammates at an Arlington bar on Jan. 10.

"I figured it wouldn't hurt me. I didn't feel good about it... But it wasn't like I made a scene. I was not beating up on anybody or making a jerk out of myself, but I did violate the agreement."

U. S. protesting Soviet campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is objecting to the apparent resumption of a Kremlin disinformation campaign which a top U.S. official says could undermine attempts to improve relations between the superpowers.

Charles Z. Wick, director of the U.S. Information Agency, said in an interview Monday that a renewed Soviet campaign "could undermine the move toward greater understanding between our two countries."

Wick said he raised the issue in a Jan. 12 meeting with Yuri Dubinin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States, and a similar complaint was sent through diplomatic channels in Moscow.

No formal protest was filed, but "certainly there was an exchange, and this relates to the sincerity of their purpose" in agreeing at the U.S.-Soviet summit last month to stop disinformation, Wick said.

"We are waiting to hear back from them," he said.

After a monthlong lull, the disinformation campaign apparently resumed with a report Jan. 9 in the Ghanaian Times alleging that the United States had given South Africa chemical weapons which later went to guerrillas battling Soviet-backed governments in Angola and Mozambique.

The report was similar to allegations that have appeared in Africa the past three years that American scientists are developing so-called "ethnic weapons" which kill blacks but not whites.

U.S. officials have vigorously denied and protested such allegations. They have also documented instances in which similar reports have been passed to newspapers in Africa and elsewhere by agents of the Soviet KGB, operating under the general direction of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee.

Conforming to past patterns, the official Soviet news agency Tass carried its own version of the Ghanaian report, and alleged that South Africa had sent its top geneticist, Richard Ambrosia, to the Army laboratory at Fort Detrick, Md.

Responding to repeated U.S. protests, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said at the summit that he would direct top aides to meet with Wick.

Wick said that Dubinin "came to see me as a follow-up to my meetings with Gorbachev."

Ex-First Lady doesn't like to auction possessions

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of personal possessions of former three-time Texas Gov. John B. Connally and his wife Nellie are gathered at a Houston auction house, ready for bidders.

"I don't like it at all, but it's something we have to do," Mrs. Connally said Monday while surveying the items.

An auction to help pay off the couple's $48 million in debts begins Friday at Hart Galleries in Houston.

"It seems strange that they're mine and that they're here," Mrs. Connally, 68, said as she gave a tour describing the possessions. "I'm looking at these things with detachment."

Connally, who served as governor from 1963-69, was in New York on business Monday, but was expected to return to Houston by Friday to attend the auction with his wife. Connally, 70, filed for both personal and business bankruptcy in July.

"Most of the things we hate to give up are the gifts from friends and staff," Mrs. Connally said. "It's sort of like the end of something. We got into this so we have to do this."

The former governor, who also served as secretary of the Navy under President Kennedy and treasury secretary under President Nixon, launched several real estate ventures at the peak of the oil boom with former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes as his partner.

When the boom went bust, it took Connally, Barnes and others in tow.

Some 25,000 books were thrown into a bonfire in Berlin in 1933 in the first Nazi book burning.

Black woman's case before high court

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Bank teller Clara Watson says she tried to endure racial slurs and customers saying they didn't want a black person counting their money.

But when she was passed over four times for promotion, she started a legal battle that has reached the nation's highest court and, she says, has badly damaged her health along the way.

At the heart of the complex case is whether an employer's subjective decisions can be construed as discriminatory, attorneys said.

The Supreme Court has ruled that statistics can be used to prove discrimination when it comes to objective criteria for hiring and promotions, such as whether a test or physical requirement discriminates against a minority group.

The high court, however, has not addressed the question of subjective criteria in discrimination cases.

Nine of the nation's 12 circuit courts of appeal allow the use of subjective decisions in proving discrimination cases, but the 5th U.S. Circuit, where Ms. Watson took her case after losing in U.S. District Court, is one that does not. The 5th Circuit, based in New Orleans, upheld the lower court's 1986 ruling, 2-1.

Bruce McGee, who represents Fort Worth Bank & Trust, said it has firm's policy not to comment on pending cases.

But Brender said he believed he had a strong enough case under Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act to win on the first ground, never thinking it would go this far.

"To me, it seems like half of my life," said Ms. Watson, 39, who lives in the Dallas-Fort Worth suburb of Euless. "The last seven years have been stressful, with a capital 'S.' It's been depressing because I felt the evidence was there and it was overlooked."

In the years since she first filed her lawsuit, Ms. Watson said she has changed jobs, been divorced, lost friends and suffered kidney failure. She is on a waiting list for a kidney transplant and undergoes dialysis at home four times a day.

She has been on disability leave since May 1987 from American Airlines, where she cleaned airplane cabins at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. She believes the switch from an office job to manual labor contributed to her failing health.

"It's a big difference, having to wear overalls vs. a dress-and-heels. It's a slap in the face. Every morning you have to slap yourself in the face to get started," she said Thursday.

She was 25 when she was hired at the State Bank of East Fort Worth, the fifth black working at the neighborhood bank that served a large number of blacks, she said.

The bank later changed its name to Fort Worth Bank & Trust, and is now MBank East. The other black employees included a maid, custodian and two women who printed checks, she said.

At Christmas parties, blacks had a separate table at the rear of the room, and when she became the bank's first black teller, she said she heard employees say such things as: "That's an awful lot of money for blacks to be counting."

"When I first made teller, I had to take a lot of racial slurs from customers and when I complained to management they did absolutely nothing about it. Every day I had to deal with being called black, a nigger. They'd say: 'I don't want a black dealing with my money. I don't want a nigger's hands on my checks.' I had a lot of determination."

Ms. Watson started out balancing canceled checks from depositors, and after three years was named a motor bank teller.

The burglary was reported at 4:08 p.m. Monday.

A 26-year-old woman was arrested on warrants for following too closely and failure to appear in court after police were called to the scene of a reported fight in the 400 Block of 36th Place.

The fight was reportedly between a man and a woman.

The king of spades lead, Flint reasoned that the play of the king from East indicated that the opening leader had Q-J-10-2 as well as a six-card club suit for his overall. He also believed that the heart king would be with West for his vulnerable overall. So, not expecting anything dramatic to occur, Jeremy won his spade ace and played the heart ace. When West's king came down, he got to dummy with a diamond, finessed against the trump 10 in the East hand and made all 13 tricks.

Meanwhile, at the other table, declarer South received a different lead against his four-heart contract — the ace of clubs, followed by a diamond shift. Since declarer did not see a reason to refuse the heart finesse, he lost to West's singleton king. Another diamond came back, and declarer won and played another heart. Eventually he lost two heart tricks, three spade tricks and the ace of clubs for down three.

Conard again asked his client why he made no attempt to stop the action. "They'd accused me of being in on the burn. Who's to say they wouldn't shoot me?" he replied.

Testimony from both Beard and Griffin, who took the stand Monday, indicated that Griffin was released a short time later after the three men and he returned to the east Snyder cafe. At that point, two individuals known to Griffin gave the men some $54 for his release.

Griffin contacted police about the incident and the three were arrested after questioning on Oct. 29.

After a 10:30 a.m. courtroom break Tuesday, Beard was to be cross-examined by District Attorney Ernie Armstrong.

A nine-man, three-woman jury has been hearing testimony in the case since around 3 p.m. Monday. The case was recessed at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Beard testified he was talking to Griffin when fellow suspect Locknane approached them with the gun and forced Griffin into the car with them.

English star Jeremy Flint has many claims to fame, including a year on tour in the United States when he came in second in the McKenney trophy race, losing only to frequent partner Peter Pender. Last October he was again runner-up, this time to the United States in the Bermuda Bowl open world team championship.

Today's deal won't compensate him for losing that contest, but at least he can say that he won six more tricks than his U.S. opponent at the other table.

After the queen of spades lead, Flint reasoned that the play of the king from East indicated that the opening leader had Q-J-10-2 as well as a six-card club suit for his overall. He also believed that the heart king would be with West for his vulnerable overall. So, not expecting anything dramatic to occur, Jeremy won his spade ace and played the heart ace. Since declarer did not see a reason to refuse the heart finesse, he lost to West's singleton king. Another diamond came back, and declarer won and played another heart. Eventually he lost two heart tricks, three spade tricks and the ace of clubs for down three.

I can't say that the U.S. declarer misplayed the hand, but Flint must be congratulated on his right decision at the table to forsake the trump finesse against the king.

On Friday, the steer judging will cap the show. Some 34 animals are expected to be entered in this category and they will be viewed by show judge Joe Ed Wise of Santa Anna.

The traditional end for the three-day competition will be the premium sale on Saturday. It will begin at 1 p.m. and will follow a noon steak dinner for prospective buyers.

Two cars collide in Monday wreck

Police reported no injuries in a two-car accident at 5:08 p.m. Monday in the 2400 Block of Ave. Q.

A 1981 Chevrolet Z-28 driven by Larry Kenneth Meckley of 2207 32nd St. was in collision with a 1982 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Michael Wilfred Taylor of 4501 Denison Ave.

"It's going to be a tough case for the court," said a Fort Worth attorney who spoke only on condition he not be identified. "A lot of policy arguments are going to be made."

In the seven years since, Brender has put together a four-year statistical study he claims proves Fort Worth Bank & Trust discriminated against blacks and used subjective hiring and promotion criteria to thwart their progress.
