

Candidates see economy differently

Bush touts jobs, Dukakis cites rich-poor split

By The Associated Press
Democrat Michael Dukakis and Republican George Bush are offering starkly different views of the nation's economy as they head into the decisive two months of the 1988 presidential campaign.

Dukakis said at a Labor Day rally in Boston that under the Republicans "the rich have gotten richer; the poor have gotten poorer."

He said millions of high-paying jobs have been replaced by low-wage positions, and asked: "Can we afford four more years of that?"

Republican rival Bush touted economic gains under the Reagan administration, saying the administration has created "17½ million jobs, more disposable income for the American people, lower taxes. ... And all my opponent can do is tell the American people how bad things are."

The vice president said the campaign is "about protecting the gains we've made in jobs and peace and it's about how to make new breakthroughs in both areas."

After full schedules on Labor Day, the symbolic opening of the fall campaign, the Republican and Democratic candidates — with the exception of GOP vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle — remained on the road.

Bush was on the West Coast for appearances in Oregon and Washington, while Dukakis had events scheduled in Illinois and Ohio.

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, joined Dukakis at a Labor Day picnic in St. Louis and then headed back to the South.

Quayle was back in Washington after Labor Day appearances at the Statue of Liberty and at an ethnic parade in Detroit.

About 125 anti-abortion activists, by police estimates, were at a Dukakis appearance in Philadelphia. They waved signs and chanted, "Life yes, abortion no. Duke of death must go."

People carrying Dukakis-Bentsen signs stood at the back of the crowd at a Bush appearance in San Diego and shouted: "Where was George?"

About 30 members of a group called the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power heckled Quayle and said they were protesting his vote against a $30 million appropriation to provide the drug AZT to AIDS victims.

In San Diego, a man with a stun gun on his belt was taken into custody at the Bush campaign rally, but he was later released.

"The person did nothing to present a harm to either the vice president or anyone else there," said Steve Sergek, Secret Service special agent in charge of the San Diego field office.

The Secret Service said another man, who was carrying what police believed was a bomb, was arrested in Hamtramck, Mich., shortly before Quayle's arrival there. The device turned out to be a fake.

The 38-year-old Hamtramck man was arrested on charges of interfering with a Secret Service agent.

25 killed on Texas highways

The Texas Department of Public Safety reports at least 25 people died on Texas highways over the three-day Labor Day weekend, including a teen-ager and a child who were killed in separate single-car accidents.

DPS officials had estimated that at as many as 35 people would die before the traffic fatality count ended at midnight Monday. The count began at 6 p.m. Friday. Last year, 26 people died in Texas during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

Cody Massey, 14, of Quitman, was killed at 12:45 p.m. Monday when the pickup in which he was riding became airborne and rolled over twice. DPS spokesman David Wells said. The truck, believed to have been traveling at 100 mph on a hilly county road in Wood County, was driven by a 15-year-old who suffered minor injuries in the accident.

Four-year-old Corey Box, of Pecos, died Monday of injuries suffered Sunday in a single-vehicle rollover on Farm-Market Road 869 10 miles south of Interstate 20 in Reeves County.

Two people were killed north of South Padre Island shortly after 4 a.m. Monday when a car left the road, throwing the driver and passenger from the vehicle. Driver Israel Antonio Martinez, 28, of Port Isabel, and passenger Angela Danielle Nevils, 24, of South Padre Island, both died in the wreck.

Eugene V. Fuller, 48, a longtime Garland officer, was one of four motorcycle fatalities over the weekend when he was struck by a car while riding through Garland just before 5 p.m. Sunday. He was not on duty at the time of the accident.

Two Baylor students also were killed on a motorcycle outside Robinson near Waco Sunday when the cycle changed lanes on Loop 340 and was struck by an approaching car. And a 22-year-old Pottsboro motorcyclist was killed Sunday in a collision on a farm-to-market road near Sherman.

Cutoff set Friday for leaders' class

Snyder Chamber of Commerce officials remind locals that this Friday is the deadline to apply for admission for the sixth annual class of Century II Leadership Scoury County.

Tuition will be $225 and an enrollment of approximately 15 is expected. Application forms to apply are now available through the chamber.

Dr. Jim Palmer, chairman of the social sciences division at Western Texas College, will teach the class for the sixth year.

The group will meet on Thursday afternoons with approximately 12 sessions set between September and May.

Topics to be covered will include an historical and economic overview of Scurry County, city and county government, the local educational system to include public schools and Western Texas College, county farming and ranching operations, Cogdell Memorial Hospital, the county oilpatch to include the operation of SACROC, law enforcement agencies and the media to include the Snyder Daily News and KSNV Radio.

Local civic clubs and organizations are encouraged to sponsor applicants.

Since being implemented in the fall of 1983, approximately 80 local individuals have graduated from the class. A large segment of these now serve or have served in a cross section of leadership rolls to include membership on the city council, school board, county commissioners, college board, Board of County Development, chamber of commerce, Scurry County Fair Association, Scurry County Museum Board.

SDN grid winners replace 'luck' game

Tuesday marks the first announcement of winners in the Snyder Daily News annual football contest, which has replaced the lucky number game featured in the SDN this summer.

The first SDN Football Contest of the season resulted in four entries missing only three games each. The tie-breaker method—using the score of the Snyder Tiger-Lubbock Coronado game—was used to determine the two cash prize winners.

Mike Hughes of Box 143, Ira, won first place, and Benny W. Scott of 418 29th St. won second. Also missing three games but losing out due to the tie-breaker score were Willie E. Johnson and Jennifer Pyburn.

In the recently concluded lucky number game, the SDN gave away $140 to eight individuals. One individual, Paul Farmer, won $55 by finding the lucky number and claiming his prize.

Also during the contest, four items of merchandise were claimed from participating merchants.

Items given away ranged from a wall hanging valued at $100 to gift certificates priced at $25.

For the newly begun football contest, a perfect score will win a year's subscription to the Snyder Daily News worth $56. The weekly winners will win a $12.50 first prize and $5 second prize.

An entry form with 15 of the week's upcoming games will be included in each Tuesday edition during the regular season of the Snyder Tigers.

Another football contest appears in this issue.

Telethon's local goal surpassed

Young fund-raisers for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association collected $2,417 this year, exceeding their $2,000 goal.

Sponsor Diane Pate said Wednesday that the pledge center at the Chamber of Commerce, staffed by members of the Gay 20s Social Club, had received only $170 in pledges by 8 a.m. Monday but that the pace picked up considerably at mid-morning.

After getting only eight pledges overnight Sunday, the Gay 20s members received 55 more on Labor Day before the telethon ended at 7 p.m. Monday.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Growing older is a matter of feeling your corns more than you feel your oats."

In our day, everybody had a nickname. If you didn't, it was a sure indication that you weren't one of the guys. It seems that kids today miss nicknames, although professional athletes still seem to be tagged with appropriate handles.

An advantage of the professional athlete is the ability to hang onto a nickname without being considered immature.

Nicknames—the truly memorable ones—are usually bestowed in youth, but discarded once the bearer reaches some level of maturity.

Plainview editor Danny Andrews, who got his start as a sports writer, noted that nicknames have a way of sticking in sports, and a good nickname can add immeasurably to the aura of any player, no matter what the game.

There are still a few around such as Goose Gossage of the Cubs, Whitey Herzog of St. Louis, Candy Maldonado of the Giants and Oil Can Boyd of the Boston Red Sox.

But many of the truly great handles are just history now—including Dizzy Dean, Pee Wee Reese, Big Train Johnson, Phil "The Scooter" Rizzuto, Three Finger Brown, Shoeless Joe Jackson, Harry "The Hat" Walker, Moose Skowron, Stan "The Man" Musial, John "Blue Moon" Odom, Choo Choo Coleman and others.

Some tags hung on persons can be unflattering. Few want to go through life known as "Four Eyes" or "Bean Poie," but come to think of it, "Bean Pole" might be nice.

Some pet names can be embarrassing, depending on occupations. One might just imagine the campaign slogan for old John "Droopy Drawers" Doe: "Vote for Droopy Drawers—he won't let you down."

Snyder's Tom Machen says it is hard to believe that this country is only 213 years old. "They've been working on it 1-20 longer than that."

Accident lawsuit settled

A settlement was reached Tuesday morning in the trial of a traffic accident-related case in 132nd District Court.

Prospective jurors had been seated for preliminary remarks to be made by attorneys when District Judge Gene Dulaney was told by both sides at 9:05 a.m. that a settlement had been agreed on.

The amount of the settlement was not disclosed.

Cliff Harrison had claimed that Laurie M. Dickinson of Alamogordo, N.M., was negligent in a Sept. 6, 1986, accident in which he was thrown from

32 dead in Mexican floods

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Red Cross workers and army personnel distributed food, clothing and medicine to thousands of people left homeless by floods along the Gulf and Pacific coasts that killed at least 32 people.

Officials confirmed 16 dead and about 15,500 homeless in northern Veracruz state, said state government spokeswoman Guadalupe Lopez. Rescue workers had dispensed 25,000 care packages to those in public shelters, she said Monday night.

Flood waters were receding in most areas around the port of Tuxpan, about 150 miles northeast of Mexico City, where Hurricane Debby struck land on Friday before dissipating.

Vacationers stranded in Mexico

ZIHUATENEJO, Mexico (AP) — Washed out roads and damaged bridges have isolated sections of Mexico's southwestern coast and authorities asked airlines not to fly more tourists into the airport serving this Pacific resort.

"We don't have anything for them to do here," said Capt. Manuel Gomez Mendes, commander of the Zihuatenejo airport, hours before workers finished clearing up to two feet of mud from the lone runway Monday afternoon.

Elsewhere along the coastal road in Guerrero state, a spontaneous relay system shuttled passengers and cargo from break to break in the 220-mile coast road from Lazaro Cardenas to Acapulco.

Thousands of tourists were stranded in luxury hotels suddenly short of power and water, while hundreds were gathered at ticket counters or sleeping alongside luggage at the airport.

"I've been out here for 60 hours," said Capt. Gustav Godiez, chief of airport operations who was supervising the runway cleanup.

"I'm going to kill my travel agent," said Charles Corkery, who said he was on his honeymoon.

But overflow from the Tuxpan River left much of Alamo, located 15 miles inland, beneath eight feet of water, said Red Cross worker Marta Cruz.

"The rains have stopped but the river's still rising," Cruz said from Alamo. "Everybody's waiting for it to subside. They're bringing food to some public shelters by boat from Tuxpan," she said.

About 8,000 people lost their homes in Alamo and 5,000 in Piedras Negras, Lopez said.

Crews on Monday opened roads between Martinez de la Torre and San Rafael 60 miles to the south, cut off by flooding since Saturday. One lane of a 2-lane road between Tuxpan and Papantla, 45 miles south, was reopened to traffic Monday.

Mud and rocks dislodged by more than a week of rain blocked or slowed traffic on major highways linking Mexico City with Queretaro, Acapulco, Oaxaca and Toluca.

Two crewmen were slightly hurt when a passenger train hit rocks and jumped the rails 17 miles north of Mexico City Monday.

day. None of the passengers was hurt, the state railroad company said.

In Mexico City, 600 people returned to their homes after fleeing when rivers flooded their banks, and officials temporarily closed one of the international airport's two runways because of flooding.

Light rain continued on the Pacific coast, where Hurricane Kristy dumped rain last week but never went ashore, the national weather service said.

The airport and all major roads leading to the resort of Ixtapa-Zihuatenejo were closed for the third day, stranding thousands of tourists. Hundreds of vacationers hopped aboard trucks, taxis and buses between breaks in the coastal road to get to Acapulco.

Two 7-year-old boys died when a flash flood swept through their house in Petatlan, about 25 miles south of Zihuatenejo.

Power was restored to parts of Zihuatenejo Monday by hooking up a line from Acapulco, 40 miles south, said Guerrero state spokesman Tomas Benitez.

Highways up the coast to Lazaro Cardenas and inland to Mexico City were damaged or blocked by mudslides, he said.

State official Francisco Javier Rangel estimated 3,000 to 4,000 people had been evacuated from their homes in Guerrero.

More than 20,000 people were evacuated in Chiapas, the Mexico City newspaper La Jornada said in a report from the state on Mexico's southern border.

Seven people died and about 10,000 people fled their homes in Oaxaca, according to Col. Felipe Hernandez Guzman, a state police official.

Some 15,000 people were left without drinking water and medical workers were giving typhus and tetanus shots to people in flooded areas of the state, the health department said.

The Gulf of Mexico ports of Tuxpan and Coatzacoalcos remained closed to navigation Monday because of the threat of more rain.

Doctor Choosy About Patients Leaves Readers Smoldering

By Abigail Van Buren

1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the physician who told a patient with a serious respiratory condition that if she didn't stop smoking, she could find another doctor.

This is not only sad, it's scary. What can we expect next? Doctors who refuse to treat alcoholics, drug abusers or those who try to commit suicide? Maybe some doctors will drop patients who refuse to wear seat belts.

Is this really the "courage and professional integrity" you praised the physician for? I see it as just another form of discrimination.

WARY IN SOUTHFIELD, MICH.

DEAR WARY: Did I get mail! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I smoked for 30 years. I quit 12 years ago — cold turkey. I am tired of those crybabies who say they can't quit. There are only two things required to quit smoking — a sincere desire to quit, and never putting another cigarette in your mouth. People who say they want to quit but keep smoking are lying to themselves. They really don't want to quit.

Please notice that I use the term "quit" — not "stop." When you quit, it's over. When you merely stop, you usually start again. This may sound like semantics, but it helps.

GEORGE SZILAGYI, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: I strongly disagree with the doctor who told his patient, "If you don't quit smoking, you can find another doctor." Would a real friend say, "Stop smoking, or find another friend"? Of course not.

I am a physician. Some of my patients smoke. I know that smoking is not good for them, and so do they, but I'm their friend as well as their physician and I care about what happens to them.

Smoking is an addiction — one of the worst — and it's very difficult to overcome, so I do everything within my power to help them quit.

I take the sympathetic approach. I say, "My friend, I know how hard it is for you to quit smoking, but you are a strong person and I have confidence in you. We are in this together. If you don't quit smoking, there is a good chance that you will develop cancer, and I don't want that to happen to you. The best way to quit is cold turkey, so set a date, and with your strong willpower, I know you can beat this thing!"

Abby, most of them quit. And when they do, my whole office rejoices, and the patient feels like a real winner. If the smoker backslides, I try various other methods: stop-smoking clinics, support groups, Nicorette gum. But abandoning my patient — never!

You were right when you said, "No doctor wants to lose a patient one way or the other," but you were wrong to applaud that doctor for his "courage and professional integrity."

CLAUDE A. FRAZIER, M.D., ASHEVILLE, N.C.

DEAR DR. FRAZIER: I didn't realize how wrong I was until the critical mail started to arrive in significant numbers.

As Lynn Ashby, editorial page editor of the Houston Post, said in an address before his newspaper colleagues, "We all make mistakes. Doctors call their cadavers. Lawyers call their inmates. Diplomats call their wars. But in journalism, our mistakes are spread out there for all to see."

So, thanks to all of you who noticed my mistake, and cared enough to let me know.

It's time to change doctors

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had a problem with doctors and dentists making me wait up to six hours to be seen. Don't they have a legal responsibility to provide service within a reasonable period of time?

DEAR READER: Not to my knowledge. In non-emergency situations, doctors (and dentists) have a humane, social obligation to see a person on time; I am not aware of any legal obligation.

Unquestionably, doctors often are delayed for perfectly valid reasons, such as emergencies. I find that most patients accept this unexpected inconvenience, providing they are told about it. I rant and rave about doctors who callously keep patients waiting without a word. I think that professionals owe their clients the courtesy of letting them know that something has come up. A professional can simply tell the office receptionist — by phone or in person — that he or she is running late, and that patients should have the option of coming back another time or waiting.

If your doctor has spells of lateness, try calling his office just before you leave for your appointment. Ask the receptionist if Dr. X is running late; if he's hours behind, ask the receptionist if your appointment can be rescheduled for a later time that day.

However, lateness shouldn't be habitual. I can think of few situations in which the courteous physician cannot inform his patients that he is delayed. In some cases, the healer is too arrogant or inconsiderate to be kind to patients. A long waiting time does not necessarily mean that your doctor is smart, successful, busy, dedicated or involved in saving lives; more often, it means that he is insensitive and has overbooked his appointment calendar because he is greedy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes morning erections?

DEAR READER: Morning erections are common because of stimulation during dreaming and, probably, pressure from a full bladder. These erections are not under voluntary control, in the usual sense. They occur because of unconscious mechanisms, coupled with warmth, relaxation and lack of fatigue. Men who consider themselves impotent often have morning erections, thereby dispelling the possibility that their sexual malfunctions have a physical basis.

Erections are common during sleep, too. The man who fails to have erections during sleep is usually suffering from organic impotence, such as seen with diabetes, nerve disorders and circulatory insufficiency.

'Shoe fairy' matches sole mates

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — the nearly 16,000-member exchange from her three-bedroom Phoenix home. It's filled with about 10,000 shoes and hundreds of single socks donated by companies across the country.

The phone rings constantly with calls from members, potential members, television and newspaper reporters and companies who want to donate shoes. German and Japanese television networks recently have aired segments on the shoe service.

Ms. Sallman, who wears a size 4 right and size 6 left because of a congenital defect, joined the exchange in the mid-1950s.

Ms. Sallman, sometimes known as "the shoe fairy," is director of the National Odd Shoe Exchange, a non-profit service that helps people who need single shoes or mismatched pairs.

Her main duty is to match up sole mates — like a right-footed amputee with a left-footed amputee who wears the same size, people who wear two sizes because of birth defects or disease, consumers who cannot afford to buy two pairs of shoes to get a matched set or a single shoe.

ation of that suit; a low card discourages that continuation. In "Murder at the Bridge Table" author Granovetter points out East's mistake in today's deal. On the four of spades lead, the ace was played from dummy and East encouraged with the nine. Naturally when West won the ace of hearts he continued with the queen of spades. Declarer now ruffed, drew trumps, played ace of clubs and took a ruffing finesse through East. That provided enough discards for the diamond losers, and the slam was made.

The point made in the book is that East knows a second spade trick will not be forthcoming to the defense. He should therefore play a low spade and leave it to West to choose the best shift if he regains the lead. Left with that choice, West would need only rudimentary skill to see that diamonds are a better source of tricks for the defense. So a diamond switch after taking the ace of hearts beats the slam.

"Murder at the Bridge Table" is available from Granovetter Books, 18 Village View Bluff, Ballston Lake, NY 12019. The price is $12.95, which includes postage.

City builds home for centenarian

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Munching on junk food and wearing pajamas, Willie Sanchious — who says he's 111 — wondered why so much fuss has been made to have him leave the small wood and stucco house he's owned for over a half century.

"Why does everybody want me to move out of my place?" asked the crusty bachelor who, for years, resisted efforts to relocate him to a retirement home or public housing.

"I'm happy here," added the animated centenarian, who outlived two wives and his immediate family.

Sanchious' dilapidated home is no longer fit for habitation and is beyond repair. Lopsided from termite decay, the roof leaks, all the windows are gone and fetid mattresses propped against the walls block gaping holes in the structure.

For Sanchious, however, it's his home. He helped build it and the adjacent house on a city lot he bought in 1922. The second house is in worse condition and is unoccupied.

Both are among 600 abandoned and ramshackled houses earmarked for demolition.

City officials are sympathetic for this senior-citizen and decided to build him a new home on his property.

Adopting a proposal by the city's community development administrator, Richard Smith, a two-bedroom prefabricated home will be paid for with federal money normally used to repair and improve standard homes for the needy. The cost will be under $30,000 including demolition of the old houses.

"Willie would probably die or be emotionally distraught if he were forced to move," explained Smith. "That would put stress on his mental wellbeing and affect his health."

"He most surely would wither away," added Shirley Simpson-Wray, community development coordinator. "For him to look at the land he purchased over 60 years ago must be a comfort."

When told of the city commission's July 25 decision, Sanchious was pleased, but had a terse observation.

"Why don't they do it and stop talking about it. If they're waiting for me to die, I ain't gonna die. Jesus has a lot of things for me to do."

Smith and the city commission have succumbed to one demand by Sanchious.

"I want a big porch in front and one on the street side," he said, recalling homes seen as a child.

Wow 'em with rich chocolate cheesecake

By NANCY BYAL
 Better Homes and Gardens
 Food Editor

Here's a dinner party dessert that's so rich, so creamy, and so luscious that it's sinful — and everyone will rave about it! We used milk chocolate for the chunks because it cuts smoothly, even when the cheesecake is chilled.

White baking bar with cocoa butter is a creamy white, chocolate-like product. Store, melt and cook with it as you would with chocolate. You'll find it shelved with chocolate products in your supermarket.

WHITE CHOCOLATE HAZELNUT CHEESECAKE
 One 8-ounce package hazelnut or shortbread cookies, crushed
 3 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
 1 pound white baking bar with cocoa butter
 Four 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
 1/2 cup margarine or butter, softened
 3 tablespoons hazelnut liqueur or milk
 1 tablespoon vanilla
 Dash ground nutmeg
 4 eggs
 1 egg yolk
 Two 3-ounce bars milk

chocolate with hazelnuts or four 1 1/2-ounce bars milk chocolate with almonds, chopped
 Chocolate curls (optional)

Butter sides of a 10-inch springform pan. In a mixing bowl combine crushed cookies and margarine. Press crust evenly over bottom of pan. Place pan in a shallow baking pan. For filling, cook and stir baking bar over low heat until melted. In a large mixer bowl beat melted baking bar, cream cheese, softened margarine, liqueur, vanilla and nutmeg until well mixed. Add eggs and egg yolk; beat on low speed just until mixed. Stir in milk chocolate.

Pour into crust. Bake in a 350-degree oven 60 to 65 minutes or until a knife inserted midway between center and edge comes out clean. Cool 5 to 10 minutes on a wire rack. Loosen sides of cheesecake. Cool 30 minutes. Remove sides of pan. Cover; chill thoroughly. Top with chocolate curls before serving. Makes 16 servings.

Defense keys 27-20 victory...

Giants returning to '86 form

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - Tom Flynn returned a blocked punt 27 yards for a touchdown and nose tackle Jim Burt scored on a 39-yard touchdown waddle with a fumble to rally New York to a season-opening 27-20 NFL victory over the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins.

yard field goal by Raul Allegre. However, being down 13-3 at the half might have been a moral victory for New York which was held to minus 2 yards rushing in the opening 30 minutes and was frequently in bad field position.

"This was an ugly win," said offensive tackle Karl Nelson, who played in his first regular-season game after missing all of last season with cancer. "Thank God special teams played lights out. The offense did it when we had to and the defense did it when they had to and that was enough."

22. Allegre tied the score four plays later with his second field goal of the game, this one from 32 yards with 4:55 left in the period. The score remained tied until 9:59 was left and again it was the Giants special teams which turned things around when Gary Reasons blocked a Cox punt and Flynn picked it up and scored.

"Last year, there were so many times when we fell behind and couldn't come back or we had a lead in the fourth quarter and just couldn't hold it," Giants safety Kenny Hill said. "We knew this year had to establish some things."

Actually there were a lot of plays made by New York in the second half and they come from the defense, the special teams and even occasionally the offense.

The Giants closed their deficit to 13-10 midway through the third quarter on a 9-yard touchdown run by Joe Morris that was set up by a 20-yard punt by Steve Cox of Washington.

Williams closed out the scoring by hitting Kelvin Bryant with a 19-yard scoring pass with 11 seconds to play.

Landry will support quarterback despite Pelluer's critical mistake

New York fell behind 13-0 in the opening 18:42 as Super Bowl hero Doug Williams hit Ricky Sanders with a 29-yard scoring pass and rookie Chip Lohmiller added field goals of 26 and 25 yards.

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry says he will support quarterback Steve Pelluer despite Pelluer's botched play that cost the team a possible victory against Pittsburgh.

With 3:20 to play, and the Cowboys trailing 24-21, Pelluer suffered an interception after rolling out the wrong way on a third and two play from the Steelers' 4-yard line.

And we can't worry about the mistakes of individuals." Asked if might change quarterback after another mistake, Landry replied, "It would just depend on what the circumstances are. He is going through an adjustment period himself."

Pe'luer called "36" when he meant to say "37." Tailback Herschel Walker and fullback Timmy Newsome went left while Pelluer went right.

"He (Pelluer) learns like we all do," Landry said Monday. "You learn something today, I learn something today."

Green claims Canadian win

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) - Ken Green was standing in the 18th fairway, his hand resting on a 1-iron in his bag, watching and waiting.

Green was waiting to make a decision on whether to go for the water-guarded green on the par-5 finishing hole at the Glen Abbey Golf Club.

When Verplank's putt missed, Green dropped the 1-iron like a wriggling reptile and grabbed the 8-iron.

Ladies host Plains tonight; won't look ahead to Pecos

Coach Patty Grimmert's Lady Tigers take on defending state champion Pecos in the District 4-4A volleyball opener Saturday, but that doesn't mean much tonight.

"There are a lot of things we need to work on to get ready for district and we're not going to overlook Plains tonight," said Grimmert of this evening's 7:30 p.m. match.

GETTING READY - Snyder's Lady Tigers take on Plains in the third of three matches at Snyder High School Gym tonight.

Verplank, who tied for second at 276 with Bill Glasson, had a closing 70 and was two under for the seven holes he played Monday.

"There are guys that say they want to have to birdie the 18th to win. I'm not one of them. I wanted to have to make par," Green said.

Teens make strong showing in famed tennis tournament

NEW YORK (AP) - Kids. What's the matter with kids today? Nothing, if they're teenage American tennis players.

Andre Agassi, the 18-year-old from Las Vegas who is the hottest men's player in the world, and 16-year-old Michael Chang, advanced Monday to the fourth round of the U.S. Open. Tonight, they meet on the stadium court in what Chang called a "special" match.

Aaron Krickstein, who gained fame here as a 16-year-old in 1983, when he made it to the fourth round, is back. This time, after a dramatic five-set night win over No. 3 Stefan Edberg in chilly, windy conditions, Krickstein is in the quarterfinals.

Mayotte by Rostagno, No. 12 Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina by Lozano, and No. 15 Anders Jarryd of Sweden by Hlasek. That left just four men's seeds in the tournament, the fewest in the round of 16 since 1971.

Two women's seeds lost to other seeded players. No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia was beaten by No. 14 Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-1, 6-3. Katerina's sister, No. 6 Manuela, eliminated No. 12 Barbara Potter 6-3, 6-2.

Green led by three strokes with seven holes to play when he and 20 others returned to the Glen Abbey Golf Club course Monday morning to complete the final round.

"It shouldn't have been that close," Green said. "I blew it. The conditions got to me a little bit. The pressure got to me a little bit."

"I was quite scared going into today, especially when I saw that cold wind. I am not a good cold wind player."

And it showed. He bogeyed three of the seven holes he played in the difficult conditions, including three-putt bogeys on 16 and 17.

"It was ugly," Green said. "It also opened the door to Verplank's last-gasp challenge that ended when he failed to birdie the 18th."

Mike Sullivan eagled the final hole for a 67 that lifted him into a tie for fourth with Dave Barr.

Tyson kayoed in car wreck

NEW YORK (AP) Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson, knocked out by a tree in a one-car wreck, will undergo more medical tests as his representatives debate whether he'll be able to defend his title next month.

Tyson, fresh from a unanimous decision over boxer Mitch Green on a Harlem sidewalk two weeks ago, was knocked unconscious for several minutes Sunday when the BMW he was driving skidded into a tree in a friend's yard upstate.

Physicians at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York said they were keeping Tyson in the hospital for more tests today on his head and bruised chest.

"Those tests should include an N.M.R., which is a state-of-the-art brain scan, and other tests for heart and chest," said Dan Klores, a Tyson spokesman.

Andrews won third place in the tourney and Plains took consolation.

Other men's winners included Lendl, going for an unprecedented fourth straight Open crown, and No. 2 Mats Wilander.

The Australian advance was halted on three fronts as Mark Woodforde lost to Wilander, John Frawley fell to Emilio Sanchez of Spain, and Jason Stoltenberg was beaten by Agenor. But Darren Cahill moved into the quarterfinals by beating Martin Laurendeau of Canada.

Homeless in flood-ravaged Bangladesh jostle for food

BAILTALI, Bangladesh (AP) — Soldiers are doling out rice and water purification tablets to the lucky among millions of people left homeless by flooding that has submerged most of Bangladesh and claimed hundreds of lives.

On Monday, barefoot women clambered from boats Monday onto the only strip of this village still above water and pushed each other in the light rain to get at giant cooking pots.

Inundating three-fourths of this impoverished nation, floodwaters have claimed at least 406 lives this summer, according to official figures. Dhaka newspapers said today that the death toll had risen to at least 1,120.

The nation's three main rivers have receded slightly this week, but continue to flow at their highest levels in 34 years.

The Health Ministry says more than 100,000 people are known to be suffering from diarrhea and 5,715 more from dysentery as a result of drinking contaminated water.

Taslimur Rahman, joint secretary of the ministry, told reporters in the capital of Dhaka that people who succumb to the illnesses are often drinking the very flood water that maroons them.

Officials say water purification tablets are being distributed but residents of Baitali, a village of 2,000 people about 50 miles southwest of Dhaka, said they had not seen any.

"The water that is available to drink is the flood water. We have no option but to drink it," Injul Haq Majumder, a 37-year-old teacher, told reporters who arrived by helicopter.

He translated his reply from English to Bengali for villagers who crowded around. A dozen men nodded vigorously in agreement.

The diarrhea cases primarily have hit the interior but were also reported today in Dhaka, a city of 6 million. Rahmat Ali, a municipal official, said flood waters had entered the city's drinking supply through leaky pipes.

In much of Bangladesh, people are huddled on tiny outcroppings of muddy earth. The largest bit of land seen during a helicopter tour Monday that covered one-tenth of the country was about the size of a football field.

"Almost all the districts are like this. Don't think this is the worst," Information Minister Mahbur Rahman told a dozen foreign journalists who accompanying him on the flight.

'Raining fire' may be new problem

COOKE CITY, Mont. (AP) — Firefighters, worried it would start "raining fire" today, hosed down houses and bolstered lines against blazes that have blackened nearly 1 million acres in and around Yellowstone National Park.

Southwesterly winds 20 to 30 mph were expected today after the relatively light winds Monday.

The changing winds could send embers and flames into this community and nearby Silver Gate from the advancing 61,300-acre Storm Creek blaze and backfires set to deprive the fire of fuel.

"With these winds, it will be heroic, a real success to save some of these buildings," said fire information officer Pat Kaunert.

Elsewhere in Yellowstone, the 142,000-acre North Fork fire burned to within 2½ miles of the Old Faithful geyser Monday, but authorities were optimistic the fire would not reach the tourist attraction.

Thirteen fires in and around Yellowstone have scorched 900,000 acres, and should top 1 million acres today after aerial surveys are completed, Gary Cargill, head of the U.S. Forest Service in Denver, said at a news conference in Bozeman. About 300,000 acres could burn this week alone, he said.

In Washington, Gov. Booth Gardner on Monday called in the National Guard to provide support for firefighters battling blazes throughout the state. The Guardsmen will help crews working the state's largest fire, the 12,500-acre White Mountain Complex blaze.

In Idaho, 13 forest fires raged out of control. A new fire broke out Monday seven miles north of Island Park, on the western edge of the massive North Fork fire that burned out of Yellowstone during the weekend, forcing an estimated 150-200 summer cabin owners to evacuate.

In Silver Gate and Cooke City near Yellowstone's northeastern entrance, all but 30 of the approximately 150 residents had evacuated.

"Some of them are staying around because they want to see what the fire does," said Bob Fry, an emergency services official. "They're mostly packed up, though, and we're trying to push them out."

Mild winds blew ash and smoke toward the towns Monday afternoon.

"First it starts snowing ash. Then it starts raining fire," said Kaunert.

Even without the winds, fires jumped lines in many areas.

Lines were completed Monday around Silver Gate, and nearly completed around Cooke City, said fire information officer Sue Conso.

About 75 trucks were called in from as far away as Nevada to protect buildings in the communities. Firefighters also doused homes with water.

Hopes of burning out fuels from a two-mile swath in the fire's path were dashed when backfires failed to burn as expected, leaving towns with less protection than officials had wanted.

Forest Service officials in northwest Montana also prepared an evacuation plan for homes in a residential area south of the tiny town of Fortine.

"Right now, we've got our fingers crossed that this wind isn't going to be that harsh," said spokesman Dick Guth, stressing that residents would be asked to leave only if winds materialize. The blaze jumped over some lines and grew to an estimated 12,300 acres.

While the forecast for brisk winds worried officials at most fires in the region, it was welcomed at the 54,270-acre Hellroaring Creek fire burning in Montana's Absaroka-Beartooth Wilderness and south into Yellowstone.

Spokesman Stephanie Gibert said the expected southwest winds would allow firefighters to set backfires that would burn into the main blaze.

Elsewhere, calmer wind and slightly lower temperatures helped firefighters grapple with blazes that charred nearly 21,000 acres of southern California brush. In northern California, rough, steep terrain four miles north of Shelter Cove in Humboldt County slowed efforts to subdue a fire that burned 550 acres of brush and timber.

Oregon's largest fire of the season was nearly contained at just under 57,000 acres in the rugged Hell's Canyon National Recreation Area.

In Utah, air tankers and ground crews stopped a 250-acre brush fire that had threatened the community of Paradise.

Probe continues of Flight 1141

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Despite conflicting evidence and a crew member with amnesia, federal investigators say they are confident they will determine what caused a Delta jetliner to crash on takeoff.

Wreckage work continued today on Delta Flight 1141, which went down trying to take off from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport last Wednesday, killing 13.

Most members of the National Transportation Safety Board team investigating the accident, which 95 people survived, have returned to Washington.

"A good number are there that are just finishing up in terms of collecting, typing up their notes," said Mike Benson, NTSB spokesman. "This is a difficult accident."

A group of investigators must still interview the plane's pilot, Capt. Larry Davis, he said.

Davis was scheduled to undergo facial surgery at Parkland Hospital in Dallas today and may not be ready for questioning for several days, officials said.

The NTSB learned much from flight engineer Steven Judd, but 1st officer Wilson Kirkland told officials he has no recollection of the accident.

Nevertheless, NTSB member Lee Dickinson on Monday said, "I still think we will be able to collect enough information to get at why this accident happened."

The cockpit of the Boeing 727 remained covered in blue tarpaulin Monday.

Christian leaders, studio cash in on film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Last Temptation of Christ" has proven to be a blessing for conservative Christians.

Denounced by its critics as blasphemous and profane, the movie about a Jesus with human frailties not only has energized the Christian right; it has revived stagnant fund-raising, Christian leaders say.

The movie "has helped our ministry more than anything else before," said the Rev. Donald Wildmon, leader of the American Family Association. Said Don Beeher, director of communications for Campus Crusade for Christ: "This gives us a wonderful opportunity to talk about the real Jesus Christ. ... We're taking lemons and making lemonade."

At the same time, filmgoers are not avoiding the movie, as Christian leaders had hoped. In fact, the controversy seems to have prompted more people to see it.

That price, though, might be a small one for Christian activists. Beseated by negative publicity from the Jim Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart scandals, conservative Christians have used "Last Temptation" as a lightning rod around which to organize and raise money.

In addition to bringing together fundamentalists, Pentecostals, Protestants and Catholics, the controversy makes for a natural fund-raiser: It pits the conservative Christian organizations, which often depict themselves as small and struggling, against a Hollywood Goliath.

The Concerned Women for America, in a fund-raising letter, said, "Your gift of $100, $75, $50, $20 — or whatever amount — is sorely needed. We need your financial help to fight these rich Hollywood moguls." Similarly, the American Family Association has said that those "giving $15 or more to help AFA oppose the movie will receive a one year subscription to the AFA Journal."

"Jerry Falwell has been preaching about the movie for the last three weeks," said the Rev. Robert Hymers, a Los Angeles minister who has been one of the movie's most outspoken critics. "Falwell's doing a tremendous fund-raising job through the film."

The American Society for the Defense of Tradition, Family and Property used a four-page, full-color attack on the movie to solicit small contributions. "People have put their money where their values are," said Raymond Drake, president of the organization. Drake said that a phone campaign brought in $39,000, enough for a full-page advertisement in The New York Times against the movie.

It also may be true that some Christian-themed organizations are trying to exploit the controversy for less-than-noble purposes.

Prosecutors: former minister took bribes

MOSCOW (AP) — The government charged today that bribes were paid to a former key member of the ruling Politburo by defendants in the sensational influence-peddling trial of Leonid I. Brezhnev's son-in-law.

During the reading of the charges, which fill about 500 pages, prosecutors today alleged that defendants gave former Interior Minister Nikolai Shchelokov, the top law enforcement official and a close Brezhnev associate, three large pearls valued at $5,300 each.

Recent newspaper reports have said Shchelokov took $1.1 million in state funds, gave foreign luxury cars to his children and bought furs and crystal chandeliers for himself and his family.

He was fired by Brezhnev's successor, Yuri Andropov, and died in December 1984 at the age of 73. Shchelokov and his wife are said to have committed suicide.

The central figure among nine defendants, 51-year-old Yuri Churbanov, was Shchelokov's deputy and could face the death penalty if convicted on charges he accepted more than $1 million in cash bribes and gifts including regular supplies of wine, cognac, pomegranates, grapes and other exotic fruit flown to him via the Soviet airline Aeroflot from Uzbekistan.

One defendant was out sick today, the trial's second day, and two others were treated by a doctor in the courtroom.

A judge at the military tribunal announced that Khushvan Norbutaev would not attend today's session, and the defendant's lawyer, Olga Rakitina, said the former regional police chief from Uzbekistan was suffering from angina pectoris, a painful but not necessarily dangerous heart condition.

She sought a recess, saying her client was entitled to hear everything that goes on in court, but the judge rejected the request and a clerk then continued reading the indictment.

A physician later gave heart medicine to another defendant, Tashtimir Kakhramanov and administered stomach pills to D. Dzhamalov.

The trial is considered part of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's effort to separate his leadership from the corruption of Brezhnev's rule, which began in 1964 and ended with the Communist Party chief's 1982 death.

Churbanov married Galina Brezhnev in 1971. He had worked as a mechanic before taking a low-level Interior Ministry job in 1961.

Official media have reported extensively on the trial, which is expected to last about two months. Some foreign reporters also are being allowed to attend.

During Monday's reading of the charges, it was repeatedly alleged that Churbanov received the bribes from provincial officials due to his connection with Brezhnev.

Felony charge follows incident with officers

Police arrested an 18-year-old man on aggravated assault on a police officer charges after he reportedly kicked two officers after a confrontation at a convenience store parking lot.

The incident began as officers searched for two men in a two-door blue Oldsmobile after a woman reported at 11:59 p.m. Monday that they had been harassing her and her husband.

When they were confronted by two officers at 12:25 a.m. in the parking lot of a College Ave. convenience store, one of the pair, identified as 18-year-old Darren Keith McCowen of 4116 Kerrville Ave., reportedly kicked both officers before the suspects fled from the scene on foot.

At 1:50 a.m. in the same parking lot, McCowen was arrested on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer, public intoxication, disorderly conduct and evading arrest.

In a separate incident, a second suspect was arrested on a 1979 forgery by passing warrant from Brown County.

Police went to a vacant house in the 800 Block of 27th St. after receiving a report that an individual—first reported as a possible dead man—was there.

At the location, police found the sleeping 56-year-old John Brent Tarlton. Officers said a Brown County warrant for forgery by passing as well as four Scurry County DWI warrants had been pending against the man since 1979.

A county deputy said Tarlton is believed to have been living in Las Vegas, Nev., and Midland and Odessa since then. The deputy said Tarlton's car was found at a Lamesa Hwy. motel.

Other Labor Day arrests included a 40-year-old woman and her 13-year-old daughter in connection with a 5:09 p.m. shoplifting incident at a College Ave. store in which the store manager was reportedly assaulted by the girl.

Police said the two then escaped from the manager after a chase outside the store but were arrested at 5:35 p.m. at 28th St. and Ave. C. when a city patrolman recognized the description of their vehicle.

They are accused of stealing a mop, and the girl was also charged with misdemeanor assault. A 19-year-old male was arrested for public intoxication at 12:39 a.m. Tuesday in the parking lot of a College Ave. convenience store.

'Domino effect' seen in hospitals

CHICAGO (AP) — Inner city hospitals collapsing in financial failure are likely to topple their ailing neighbors in a "domino effect" hastened by growing tides of poor and eroding government support, medical authorities say.

Rural hospitals are shutting down at an equal rate and are leaving large gaps in the availability of health care, the authorities say.

Last week, a 437-bed hospital in Chicago and a 30-bed institution in rural southwestern Illinois announced they would close, becoming casualties in an accelerating national trend.

"It's a fragile environment for hospitals," says Jan Shulman, a spokeswoman for the American Hospital Association, which tallied a record 79 hospital closings nationwide last year.

In Illinois, for example, five closed in 1987. Twenty-five of the state's 226 remaining hospitals fit the profile of endangered institutions, most in Chicago and one in East St. Louis, said Kenneth Robbins, president of the Illinois Hospital Association.

Typically, the shaky hospitals are in poor, inner-city neighborhoods, with 25 percent of their patients poor people covered under Medicaid, 30 percent to 40 percent elderly people covered under Medicare, and 5 percent to 10 percent indigent people with no way of paying, Robbins said.

The state pays hospitals only 73 cents for every dollar they spend treating Medicaid patients, and the federal government pays only 90 cents for every dollar spent treating Medicare patients, he said.

"Nearly 60 percent of all community hospitals lost money providing patient-care services in 1986," Ms. Shulman said. She noted that the number of uninsured people has risen from 33 million in 1983 to 37 million.

"There's a certain domino effect that accompanies the closing of any hospital," Robbins said. If a neighboring hospital has been treating many poor patients, "and it has to absorb even more, the additional load could be the straw that breaks the back of that hospital."

Edward Duffy, outgoing director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid, says surplus beds as much as inadequate government support are to blame for much of the trouble. He cited the soon-to-be closed St. Anne's Hospital as an example, noting that it has been using only about one-quarter of its 437 beds.

"Hospitals like St. Anne's are the steel mills of the hospital industry," Duffy said after the hospital announced its closing last week. "People don't use hospitals like they used to. I could have tripled my rates (of Medicaid reimbursement) but that would not have kept that hospital open."

"I totally disagree," said Robbins, adding that St. Anne's scaled back on beds as an appropriate response to falling demand. "In the final analysis, it was inadequate payment that killed them, not just ... this year or last year, but over a period of years."

Inner city hospitals are not alone in these difficulties.

Texas, whose 43 hospital closings since the beginning of 1987 are the most for any state during the period, sees most of the shut-downs among tiny rural hospitals, said Ann Ward Rogers, a spokeswoman for the Texas Hospital Association.

Besides inadequate government reimbursement and falling occupancy rates, rural hospitals have trouble attracting qualified doctors and nurses, she said in a telephone interview last week from Austin.

Texas has 48 counties with no hospital, Mrs. Rogers said, noting that residents of such counties must travel to seek health care.

Robbins said solutions to the problem will come only through more adequate Medicaid and Medicare financing; better incentives for physicians to treat poor patients in their offices, relieving the burden of indigent patients on hospitals; and better provision of nursing home care.

Whistle-blower's victory may not bode well for others

WASHINGTON (AP) — A victory that could give $800,000 to a fired government whistle-blower sets precedents that he and his lawyers fear will make it riskier for other federal employees to expose waste and hazards.

Bertrand G. Berube, fired in 1983 after he accused the General Services Administration of becoming "the nation's slumlord," said he will take early retirement in a settlement with the agency. He had been GSA's top regional director, overseeing all major government buildings in the Washington, D.C., area.

Despite the settlement ordered by the Merit Systems Protection Board, Berube said laws are needed to prevent the government from punishing other employees who disclose overspending and dangerous conditions and that the federal system to protect such whistle-blowers actually worked against him.

Berube, who says he is the highest ranking civil servant ever fired for whistle-blowing, said federal employees should not think they can duplicate what he did unless they have several hundred thousand dollars to spend on attorneys. He was defended by a public interest group that can afford to back only a fraction of those who go against government employers, he said.

"If a government employee has that kind of money, they're usually not working for the government," said Berube.

Report: schools in U. S. lack right computers

WASHINGTON (AP) — American schools have only one computer for every 30 students and even those pupils with access to computers get to use them an average of just one hour a week, a report to Congress said today.

The report by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment said "today's classrooms typically resemble their ancestors of 50 years ago more closely than operating rooms or business offices resemble their 1938 versions."

The agency estimated that schools have spent $2 billion on computer hardware over the past decade. There are now 1.2 million to 1.7 million computers in public schools, and fewer than 5 percent have no computers.

But the agency said it would cost $4 billion to buy enough equipment to reduce the student-computer ratio from 30-1 to 3-1.

The 246-page report, based on two years' research, said that between 1981 and 1987 the percentage of schools equipped with computers for instructional use grew from 18 percent to 95 percent.

But "the vast majority of schools still do not have enough of them to make the computer a central element of instruction," it said.

Computers are not the only new machines in American classrooms.

"The 1980s witnessed a tremendous expansion in school use of advanced technology of all types," the report said.

"In 1980 very few schools had videocassette recorders. Today roughly 90 percent do," it said, adding that the availability of cable and satellite transmission has made the television a more potent teaching tool — especially for schools in remote areas.

"In practice there is wide disparity — one computer in a classroom, clusters of computers in the library or classrooms, full computer laboratories and classrooms with no computers," it said. "Not all students use computers and ... those who do spend on average a little more than one hour per week on the computer."

The report said that "although new interactive technologies cannot alone solve the problems of American education, they have already contributed to important improvements in learning. These tools can plan an even greater role ... both by helping children acquire basic skills and by endowing them with more sophisticated skills so they can acquire and apply knowledge over their lifetimes."

To tap the potential of technology, the report said, "a greater investment will be necessary," including a more active federal role in spurring research and helping spread the new teaching tools.

The report warned that "the vast majority of those now teaching or planning to teach have had little or no computer education or training." Most of what they have been taught is to how to use computers themselves, not how to teach with computers.

"Despite a nationwide call to improve teaching, there is almost no federal money for the training of new teachers," it said.

Buying stocks, mutual funds, real estate, insurance and annuities will be discussed in a general investments course scheduled through the Western Texas College Continuing Education department.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays from Sept. 27 through Nov. 1, a total of 18 hours of instruction. Fees will be $22.50 per person. A minimum of 12 persons will be required to form the class.

Tim Riggan from Edward D. Jones & Co. will be the instructor. He has designed the course for people with little or no experience in making investments and, after describing various types of investments during the course will offer suggestions for sound financial planning.

To pre-register call 573-8511, ext. 240. They will pay and register the fee at 6:15 p.m. on Sept. 27.

Investments course begins on Sept. 27

Bakker short in PTL takeover

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — With the deadline today, PTL founder Jim Bakker was $1 million short in his bid to buy back the ministry, he left in a sex-and-money scandal, but vowed to leave no stone unturned in coming up with the money.

Bakker and his attorney, Jim Toms, said Monday they're certain supporters will donate the money needed to satisfy PTL bankruptcy trustee M.C. "Red" Benton, who wanted $3 million toward Bakker's $165 million bid by the end of the day.

"To come up with $3 million in a holiday weekend I had to pray and say, 'God help me,'" Bakker said.

He said friends and acquaintances contacted by word-of-mouth had contributed close to $2 million in cash and letters of credit toward the $3 million.
