—Lubbock: plus 12.1 percent with $11.4 million received to date compared to $10.2 million last year. The monthly return showed an increase of 8.8 percent.

Girl 'fair'

Snyder Junior High School student Kassie Applin was listed in fair condition Monday morning at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock after undergoing surgery to have a portion of her liver removed.

The young girl, daughter of Marvin Applin and Sharon Selvera, both of Snyder, was injured Thursday at school at a junior high shop class.

School officials say she was pushing a board through a table saw when the board was apparently caught in a bind, causing it to jerk backward, striking the girl in the front.

As a result, she reportedly suffered a bruised liver.

A family spokesman indicated she might be released from the hospital later this week.

Hundreds die in Algerian riots

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Soldiers shot protesters and army helicopters buzzed riot areas to quell unrest that killed at least 200 in coastal, desert and mountain areas hit hard by high unemployment and spiraling prices.

President Chadli Bendjedid prepared to address the nation tonight while the country remained under a state of emergency and a nighttime curfew was in effect in the capital, Algiers. Observers said he would likely appeal for calm in his 8 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT) message.

They suggested he could buttress this appeal by addressing the economic crisis which triggered the violence Tuesday — the worst in this North African nation since its independence from France in 1962.

Unrest hit the western port city of Oran to Annaba in the east. Rioting also was reported in a dozen provincial centers, including in the southern desert, said Interior Minister El Hadi Khediri, appearing on state television over the weekend.

"We have tried in vain to stop the troubles," Khediri said.

In Algiers, where the violence started, clashes between the army and rioters spread late Saturday and early Sunday as protesters defied a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew and a ban on demonstrations.

Only brief volleys of gunfire were heard early today.

County oks pickup bid

Scurry County commissioners Monday voted to accept a low bid of $12,320 from Mal Donelson Chevrolet for a 1988 Chevrolet pickup truck to be used by County Agent Marvin Ensor.

The court asked for bids for either a 1988 or '89 model, and the Chevrolet dealership was the only one of three dealerships submitting bids to make an offer for an '88.

Other business in the 10 a.m. meeting included approval of Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr.'s request for authorization to advertise for bids for a used diesel dump truck.

Bid items mainly on college agenda

Bid items will comprise the majority of board time Monday at the regular October session for Western Texas College trustees. The meeting will begin at 5:45 p.m.

The only action item not related to the purchase of equipment or supplies will be the consideration of the small class report for the fall term. Classes with fewer than 10 students must be approved by the board.

In addition, trustees are scheduled to hear the annual fall enrollment report from Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student ser-VICES. College president Dr. Harry Krenk will make his monthly president's report to the board also.

Trustees will be asked to ratify the purchase of a 12-passenger window van for the Senior Citizens Center.

Contest winner eats pie to celebrate win

ONEONTA, Ala. (AP) — After gulping 13 Moon Pies in 10 minutes to win the World Championship Moon Pie Eating Contest, David Dunn was ready to celebrate.

With a Moon Pie.

Dunn, 23, of the town of Arab, upset last year's winner, Rodney Frazer, the "Rambo of Moon Pies," in Saturday's contest. Frazer ate 11 of the marshmallow pies to tie John Reynolds for second place among 32 contestants.

Last year, the 30-year-old Frazer ate 15 pies, a lawyer of marshall between two graham-cracker-like cookies.

"I had some pretty stiff competition," said Frazer, who wore a tuxedo and a Moon Pie T-shirt and arrived in a limousine.

But Dunn had practiced. "I've gained about 10 pounds in a week," he said. That's not too surprising. Dunn ate nine last week to win a similar contest in his hometown.

Sponsored by Wal-Mart, the contest started in 1985 when assistant manager John Love and two other employees unknowingly ordered Moon Pies from the Chattanooga Bakery at the same time.

Love found himself with 21,000 Moon Pies, which provided the inspiration for the contest.

Dunn said he planned a celebration dinner of a cola and at least one more Moon Pie.

Tough cop retires after 27 years of battling criminals

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Police Superintendent Joseph A. Walsh was The Law in this tough town, but after nearly half a century with the department, he's called it quits to his legendary battles with crooks and lawmen.

Walsh, who retired Thursday, fended off attempts by several mayors and police boards to wrest away control of the Police Department during his 27 years at the helm. And he walked away unscathed from efforts to link him to organized crime and bribery.

Some enemies regarded the man known as "the boss," "jaws" and "the super" as the city's own J. Edgar Hoover, claiming he kept files on power brokers to insure he maintained his grip on the department. But colleagues on the force, like Lt. Roger Falcone, head of special services, considered him a "cop's cop."

"Joe Walsh's greatest attribute was that he was a human being," said attorney Joseph Mirsky, a close friend. "You either loved him or hated him. There was no in between."

Walsh, a Bridgeport native who joined the force in 1941 as a $30-a-week patrolman and continued to go out on drug raids in his final years, dismissed his critics and defended his tenacious grip on the department in an interview.

"I was a rough cop," he said. "I fought with everybody. I always thought a police department should be run by a policeman."

He also defended Bridgeport, an aging, industrial city that is the state's largest, and said its reputation as a center for crime and drugs is undeserved.

Walsh, 72, scored his biggest victory when he turned the tables on an FBI attempt to entice him to accept a $30,000 bribe in 1981.

He had been identified as the target of a grand jury investigation into the Police Department that year when the FBI sent Tommy Marra Jr., a convicted car thief whose family had known Walsh for decades, to meet him and offer the bribe wearing a concealed microphone.

But Marra allegedly tipped the chief, who showed up at the meeting wearing his own concealed microphone. When Marra handed over a $5,000 installment on the bribe, Walsh arrested him. Marra is now serving a 65-year sentence for kidnapping a former associate.

"Walsh owned the town and whatever he wanted to do he did," said Richard Gregorie, who was then attorney in charge of the Organized Crime Strike Force in Connecticut and now a U.S. attorney in Florida.

"There were a number of allegations regarding organized crime connections with the chief of police."

Walsh dismissed the allegations and said the "sting" was the work of overzealous prosecutors.

"Everyone knows I'm honest. When I was a detective captain, I bought my clothes at the pawn shop, that's how honest I was," he said.

Earlier this month, in Walsh's last battle in office, current Mayor Thomas W. Buccicci stripped him of his power to authorize overtime, turning it over to the police board, because of a city fiscal crisis. Walsh responded by halting foot patrols in four high-crime areas, but to no avail. Buccicci ordered Walsh to restore the details without giving back his overtime authority.

Walsh said he retired to spend more time with his wife, three children and eight grandchildren.

"I've been on the job for 47 years and I feel guilty I've been away from my wife to play cops and robbers while she raised our family," he said.

America's Drinking Water: Unsafe at Every Source?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: To ensure that the drinking water of all Americans would be free of chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects and nervous disorders, The Safe Drinking Water Act was passed in 1974.

So what happened? Nothing. The problem was ignored.

Today, only 50 water systems out of nearly 60,000 in our country use the activated carbon filter system that removes toxic chemicals from our drinking water! (Western Europe is way ahead of us in this regard.)

I have put the facts into a newsletter, telling citizens how to evaluate their drinking water and what to do if their water does not meet government standards.

The newsletter contains information such as: Where does drinking water come from, and how does it become contaminated? How is water made safe to drink? What can you do about contamination at the source? Bottled water — do you need it?

Abby, your column is powerful. Will you please use it to get this very important message to the public? I am enclosing a copy of the newsletter for your perusal.

Abby, have you heard, "A woman who is not interested in diamonds is herself a gem"? Sign me ...

WISE WICHITA WOMAN

DEAR W.W. WOMAN: No, but I have read: "Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies." (Proverbs 31:10)

A lack of interest in diamonds makes not a woman a "gem." Neither does an interest in diamonds diminish a woman's worth.

DEAR ABBY: You were asked, "Why do so many public speakers (who should know better) insist on speaking longer than the time they are allotted?"

I was reminded of an incident that took place 20 years ago.

A local minister who had been invited to be the guest speaker at our Rotary Club asked the club president, Robert Proctor, how long he should speak.

Mr. Proctor replied: "You may speak as long as you wish, but everybody leaves here in 40 minutes."

Pain is occurring after mastectomy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Four months ago I had a double mastectomy and had expanders put in which will eventually be replaced by silicone implants. I've completed my radiation, and have three months of chemotherapy left. Recently I've had quite a bit of pain around the right expander. I have to decide whether to keep them, or have them removed and wear prostheses. If I were your patient, what would you advise?

DEAR READER: This is a question best asked of the surgeon who performed your operation.

Sometimes radiation and chemotherapy will produce tissue swelling and inflammation that cause pain. In this instance, you might be more comfortable in the long run by delaying the silicone implants until your treatments have been completed and the tissue reaction has subsided.

However, you are pretty close to the conclusion of your chemotherapy. Hence, the surgeon may believe that this would be an appropriate time for the implant procedure. Because your surgeon is the specialist who is most familiar with your particular case, I think that he or she is the person to advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The cardiologist tells me I have aortic stenosis. What are the treatment options for this condition?

DEAR READER: The aortic valve is a major structure through which passes all the blood that is pumped to the body. Frequently, as people age, calcium deposits appear on the valve cusps, the triangular components that open and shut with each heart beat. This calcium can prevent the valve from opening fully. The valve becomes stenosed (narrowed) and an extra heart sound, called a murmur, can be heard with a stethoscope. Ordinarily, the mild degree of aortic stenosis that develops with age needs no specific treatment.

On the other hand, some children are born with a significant amount of aortic stenosis. In addition, certain older patients can develop severe stenosis. Under these circumstances, the heart must overwork to pump blood through the narrow valve. With time, the heart becomes increasingly unable to compensate, heart failure is the result.

Using special tests of cardiac function, specialists can assess the amount of heart strain in people with aortic stenosis. When heart function begins to deteriorate, the valve must be surgically repaired or replaced before irreparable damage takes place.

Therefore, the answer to your question depends on your heart function and the degree of stenosis. After testing you, your cardiologist should be able to give you the information you require.

Minister ticketed for not having permit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — It could cost a controversial minister $1,000 to give away food to the homeless.

But the Rev. W.N. Otwell said Sunday he is "guilty of love," and will not pay any fine that might result from a ticket from the city's health department.

The ticket, issued Sunday at the Water Garden in downtown Fort Worth, charges Otwell with operating a temporary food establishment without a permit. Jodie Collins, a sanitarian with the food section of the health department, said the maximum fine is $1,000.

Members of The Church at Fort Worth, Otwell's church, have been giving away sandwiches and other food items at the park in downtown Fort Worth for the past six Sunday despite repeated efforts by city officials to persuade the minister to comply with regulations on food preparation.

The food is given away at the end of a church service for the homeless.

"We'll be back next Sunday, the Lord willing," Otwell told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "We're not going to stop. I'm not going to pay it (the fine), and jail, we've been there before."

"I'm not trying to be hardheaded," the minister said. "All I'm guilty of is feeding the poor. I'm guilty of love. If they want to call me guilty, let them call me guilty."

The ticket was given after members of the church gave sleeping bags, winter clothing and homemade sandwiches to about 75 people.

City officials say they are trying to protect the people the church is feeding by making certain that the food is properly prepared.

The Rev. Otwell blasted city officials during an sermon at the park Sunday, saying he opposes regulation of church activities by city officials.

"The city of Fort Worth this morning is saying to me as pastor and to The Church that you cannot hand out sandwiches without our approval," he said. "I say these buildings belong to you, but the people belong to God."

Jody Henneke, Fort Worth's environmental health supervisor, says city officials will meet this week to consider possible options against the minister.

State officials have in the past closed a children's home operated by The Church after the Rev. Otwell refused to obtain a state license.

Bank failures to reach record level

HONOLULU (AP) — U.S. commercial bank failures are expected to decline by about 25 percent in 1988 after reaching record levels this year, the head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman told a news conference at the American Bankers Association's annual convention Sunday that by the end of 1988 as many as 250 banks will have failed or needed federal assistance to stay afloat.

Last year a record 184 FDIC-insured institutions failed and 19 received federal assistance. Reserves at the end of 1987 totaled $18.3 billion.

Faction renews call for moratorium

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Conservationists in September asked Louisiana-Pacific, Temple-Inland and Champion International to hold off on timber harvesting in the areas while the bill was being considered. The companies own 77 percent of the land in the proposed addition.
Last week, conservationists say Louisiana-Pacific workers began cutting a five-mile corridor through land the company owns along Village Creek. Louisiana-Pacific officials in Conroe did not answer telephone calls Sunday by The Associated Press.
Ms. Johnston said a Louisiana-Pacific official told her the company is discussing the moratorium request and will consult other timber companies about their intent.
"If Louisiana-Pacific continues the destruction of these areas, they will be burning their nose at the U.S. Congress, at Rep. Charles Wilson and at the conservation community," Ms. Johnston said.
A bill sponsored by U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, would allow the state to buy or exchange 14,000 acres in three areas along Village Creek in Hardin County, Big Sandy in Polk County and the Canyonlands in Tyler County and add them to the Big Thicket preserve, about 80 miles northeast of Houston.

Baptist minister resigns post

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas' second largest Southern Baptist congregation is beginning the healing process after the church's pastor resigned because he had an extramarital affair.
The Rev. Billy Weber, 45, of Prestonwood Baptist Church told church deacons of some "personal improprieties" before announcing publicly that he had had an affair.
The former minister apologized and told church members in a recorded message played at Sunday night's sermon to "Remember me at my best."
"This is a case where Bill Weber failed God," he said. "But God has never and will never fail Bill Weber and his family and his church."
Church officials told The Dallas Morning News that the former minister chose to record the brief message earlier in the day rather than to deliver it personally to congregation.
"I want to apologize to you as an individual and as a part of the church for having disappointed you and having failed you," the Rev. Weber said.
"For those of you who asked why this happened to Bill Weber, why did this happen to Prestonwood, I can only say that Bill Weber is not perfect, as you well know," he added.
The former minister concluded the message by saying, "Please pray especially for me and just trust God to do some things for me during this time of faith and rejuvenation."
"I need not tell you that this is the most traumatic moment in the history of our church," said the Rev. Tim LaHaye, who delivered the Sunday morning sermon at Prestonwood Baptist.

"From this moment on, we can experience the healing of God," LaHaye said. "God is able to overrule in the affairs of man."
Church members echoed the sentiment as they left the services Sunday morning.
"My kind of feeling is that we're here to worship God anyway," Rose Keagy said. "The pastor is only human, and what he says about God is what counts, not his personal life."
"As I heard our pastor say, 'We are a family. We are not a corporation, we are not a business, we are not a club. We're the body of Christ,'" said associate pastor Bill Taylor.
But neither Weber nor church officials would disclose any details of the relationship.
Weber, founder of the 11,000-member church, met early Saturday with more than 120 Prestonwood deacons and "made a full disclosure to them of some personal improprieties while he was pastor," according to a church statement.
The statement reported Weber "asked their forgiveness and said he was sorry he had enormously disappointed so many people."
At an afternoon news conference, Deacon Newt Hamlin said Weber had tendered his resignation.
"This is certainly the most difficult decision of my life, but one I believe is in the best interest of the church, its future and its ministry in this community," Weber said in a statement.
"I have offered no excuses for my exercise in bad judgment — for there are none — and have sought forgiveness from the Lord, my family, church and community," Weber said.

Teen sex scandal sweeps the city of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A former top city official's indictment for allegedly patronizing a bordello with girls as young as age 14 pulled the covers from liaisons between wealthy, powerful men and young, drug-taking runaways.
Roger Boas, a 67-year-old car dealer prominent in local politics for nearly 30 years, was one of 14 people indicted a week ago today.
He is accused of visiting the bordello during a 2½-year period that included part of his decade long tenure as the city's chief administrative officer and his unsuccessful mayoral campaign.
The bordello, in a nondescript, two-story building in a mixed residential-commercial neighborhood, housed part of a prostitution ring that served customers in three states, and earned $20,000 a week, authorities said.
The grand jury indictment, issued after a 16-month investigation, contains 86 criminal counts against defendants including a city police officer and a locally prominent jeweler. Eight of those charged were alleged patrons of the flourishing sex-for-pay operation. The others were charged with various counts of pimping and pandering.

Authorities reportedly learned of the ring in May 1987 through an anonymous tip. When authorities failed to follow up, the tipster tried again two months later, accusing police of failing to investigate because officers were among the patrons.
Vice officers put the building under surveillance in September. Five months later, the operation was shut down.
Although up to eight officers were under investigation by the prosecutor's office, police officials have consistently denied allegations that policemen were protecting the operation.
A grand jury began hearing evidence in the case in June, including testimony from several girls who worked at the bordello, said John Carbone Jr., assistant district attorney in charge of special prosecutions.
Some defense attorneys complain their clients are being victimized by an investigation targeted to get Boas.
District Attorney Arlo Smith denied that.
Boas, who has been married 30 years, has four children and won the Silver and Bronze stars in World War II, has been identified by five underage prostitutes as the regular client they knew as "George," authorities said. He faces 19 counts of unlawful sex with a minor stemming from visits between November 1985 and last May.

Boas, released on $5,000 bail last week after surrendering, said he would address the charges "in the proper manner," but added:
"For my family's sake and for the sake of the many friends I have in San Francisco I am truly saddened that someone in the criminal justice system tried to convict me in the media using leaks, rumors and innuendo — in advance of the legal process."
After the indictments came out, the San Francisco Chronicle published a lengthy profile of "Darlene," a 15-year-old former prostitute who said she earned $600 a day at the bordello. She reportedly became a key witness in the investigation.

Butterfingers to the rescue

By James Jacoby
You won't find a lesson in any textbook on how to bid the South hand. Obviously South hoped North would hold a little strength in the red suits. If North had values in the black suits and West had some tricks in diamonds, South's bold five-diamond bid might be doubled and set an uncomfortable number of tricks. But hands with 8-4-1 distribution defy scientific analysis, so I concur with the bid of World Grandmaster Betty Kennedy, who held the South cards in a Women's Pairs event at a regional tournament last June.
Fortunately for Betty, the defenders were somewhat mesmerized — they fumbled the defense, dropping the ball not once but twice. East won the jack of spades and continued the suit. Declarer ruffed and played a low heart. West ducked, and East won the king and tried another spade. Declarer was now able to ruff again, play ace and ruff a heart, ruff a club and ruff her last heart. That was 11 tricks and the contract.
Correct defense sets the contract two tricks. East should realize that the lead of the spade three is from a three-card holding. (South would hardly jump to five diamonds with three little spades.) So at trick two a trump return should be automatic. Upon gaining the lead with the king of hearts, East leads another trump and declarer's goose is well cooked.

Ray Brown cops all-around honors...

Western wins SRSU rodeo

ALPINE - Led by Ray Brown's 180-point performance, Western Texas College roped its first win of the season here Sunday.

Brown placed first in the average of the steer wrestling and calf roping to lead Western to a victory in the Sul Ross State University Rodeo.

"We needed it. This was good for everybody," said Coach Bob Doty, whose six-man squad edged Howard College 290 points to 287.5. "Even though we had a lot of guys back this season, Adam (Brewster) and Wesley (Henderson) carried us to a certain extent last spring. Now we're having some other guys having big place in the District 4-4A volleyball standings. "We just can't leave it up to anyone else. We have to concentrate on what we're doing. We have to do our thing and do it the best we can."

The loss, Snyder's third in district play this season, left the Tigers in a three-way tie for second place with Andrews and Fort Stockton. Snyder plays in Sweetwater on Tuesday.

"We're going to have to play the way we're capable of playing," said Coach Grimmert. The match is set for 7:30 p.m. A freshman match opens the action at 5 p.m. and will be followed by JV play at 6:30 p.m.

Snyder lost to the Mustangs earlier this season in Snyder. Tuesday's other district matches have Andrews at Pecos, Fort Stockton at Monahans and Lake View at Big Spring.

Here Saturday, Pecos extended its records to 22-2 overall and 8-0 in district play.

"We were staying with them point-for-point in the first game. They got one server who scored three points on us. They missed a serve and we missed a serve and they came back and finished up the game," recalled Grimmert of Saturday's action. "We stopped giving them offense. We were playing defense. We did well picking up their stuff but we were the ones making mistakes. The second game we just couldn't get anything going. I think we lost our intensity instead of gaining it. When we played Andrews we lost the first game 15-2 and came back (to win 15-3, 15-9). I was hoping we would get that same feeling but we couldn't get anything going."

Scoring on serves for Snyder were Angie Brewster 5, Holly Fuller 2 and Teena Brazier and Sandra Morin 1 each.

Snyder will take records of 15-9 and 5-3 into Tuesday's match in Sweetwater.

In other action here last Saturday, Snyder junior varsity defeated Pecos, 15-12, 15-11 to go 14-8 on the season.

SHS netters stung by Monahans but hang onto playoff chances

MONAHANS - Coach Charlie Chrane expected a tough match here Saturday and he got it as his Tigers were gunned down 15-3 by undefeated Monahans in District 4-4A team tennis play.

"We knew Monahans was going to be the toughest match and we knew their girls would be exceptionally tough," said the coach. "I thought our boys should have played better than they did, but sometimes those things happen."

The loss all but knocks Snyder out of a chance at the district title, but not the playoffs. The Tigers have to rely on Big Spring losing, however, and that is a distinct possibility. The Steers must travel to San Angelo to play Lake View on Tuesday, host Pecos on Saturday, and finish a postponed match with Monahans on Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Snyder meanwhile, has completed its regular season schedule with the exception of finishing a postponed match with Andrews. That action will likely take place on Oct. 18.

Currently, Monahans is undefeated, Big Spring has one loss and Snyder two. However, if Big Spring loses another match, the Tigers will advance to the playoffs since they defeated the Steers earlier in the season.

"We've got to count on someone beating Big Spring," said Chrane.

In those makeup matches that are tentatively slated for the 18th, Snyder leads Andrews 7-1 while Monahans and Big Spring are tied 3-3.

In the meantime, the Tigers may be faced with having no one to play this week.

"It's hard to get any matches scheduled at this stage of the game. You can only play one match during the week and one on the weekend and everybody else is already playing," said Chrane. "We'll try to find a match but it is not likely."

First and second place teams average with respective times of 8.1, 8.6 and a combined 16.7. He was fourth in the long-go of the steer wrestling with a 6.5, took third in the short-go with a 7.5, and won the average with a 14.0.

Western also got 55 points from the bull riding event, where Michael Gaffney finished in a tie for the average with Howard's Steve Klein. Both pointed 147 on two-head. Gaffney had placed second in Sunday's short-go with a 74.

The other points came in the saddle bronc where Kenny Taton tied for third in the long-go with a 73. He took a no-score in the finals. Western narrowly missed some other points when Denny McLanahan finished sixth in the average of the bareback with a 130 on two head. Only the top four places tally points.

"We had a chance to do better in the short round but that's part of it," said Doty. "We're starting off well."

Jim Blain Kinney and Bryan Peterson took no-scores in the finals of the saddle bronc while Russell Merchant no-timed in the finals of the steer wrestling.

Merchant, a WTC student but not a designated team member, was second in the long-go of the event with a 5.9.

Bobby Moody also reached the finals of the bulldogging but no-timed.

In other WTC efforts, Buddy Reed placed third in the long-go of the bull riding with a 77 but bucked off in the finals; Bubba Benight no-timed in the finals of the calf roping, and Jimmy Uptergrove had a too-long, 12.8 in the finals of the calf roping.

In women's action, Melanie Graf had some tough luck with a 21.2 in the finals of the goat tying.

Tarleton State University won the women's division with 200 points. Eastern New Mexico was a distant second with 70 points.

Next action for Western will begin Thursday in Vernon for the VRJC Rodeo.

touchdowns as Mark Rypien won his first game as starting quarterback. He threw three touchdown passes and ran for another score.

Kelvin Bryant also made a big push for the starting tailback job with three touchdowns, two on pass receptions, and 118 yards rushing on 23 carries.

Washington came into the game with a minus eight turnovers, near the bottom in the NFL. The Redskins intercepted four passes and recovered a fumble as Dallas plunged to the cellar of the NFC East with a 2-4 ledger.

Dallas starting quarterback Steve Pelluer was intercepted three times and Washington showed no favoritism when he was replaced, picking off one of Danny White's tosses.

Interceptions by Monty Coleman and Alvin Walton led to touchdowns and another score was produced by Terry Orr's fumble recovery.

Landry said Pelluer was still his starting quarterback. "Steve will be our starter next week against the Bears," Landry said. "We just needed to get White some work."

Rypien threw touchdown passes of 13 yards to Gary Clark and 10 and 24 yards to Bryant. He also ran 19 yards for a score.

Dallas' touchdowns came on a one-yard run by Timmy Newsome and Kelvin Martin's 35-yard reception from Pelluer.

Landry said Washington earned the victory. "You can't take anything away from the Redskins," Landry said. "They took it away from us. The turnovers hurt and were the key to the game. We didn't make the plays to turn the ball back our way."

Landry said Washington "also did a good job of shutting down our run. Washington gave us a different look on defense and some of the things we weren't prepared for. Usually they sit back in zones. Today they pressured the quarterback."

Herschel Walker was held to 51 yards rushing on 15 carries. He had 92 yards receiving.

Pelluer said it may have been his worst game as a Cowboy. "I used some poor judgment," Pelluer admitted. "It's not a real positive thing for us. But I don't think it's going to hurt my confidence. I've got a lot of ability and I've proven it."

HIGHLAND - Ira's Bulldogs spoiled a Hornet homecoming celebration and Highland's District 7-1A debut with a 16-8 victory here Saturday evening.

The Bulldogs, 4-2, got a pair of touchdown passes from Charles Barbee to James Sturdivant for all the points they needed. A safety got the other two points as Ira's defense kept the Hornets in check.

Greg Wright scored Highland's lone TD. The win put Ira at 1-0 in district play. Ira now prepares to entertain Loraine at 7:30 p.m. this Friday. Highland, 0-1 in district and 3-3 overall, will host Hermleigh.

And after 4 hours, 29 minutes of baseball on the edge of the absurd, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Mets 5-4 to tie the NL playoffs at two games apiece.

Jay Howell, Saturday's villain-martyr, was suspended for three days by NL President A. Bartlett Giamatti for using pine tar on his glove.

In his memory-honor, Los Angeles starter John Tudor inked the initials "JH" on his uniform sleeve, as did other Dodgers.

Tudor's marker had more stuff than his arm, however. He was pounded for four runs and eight hits in five innings and left trailing 4-2.

But then the Dodgers pitched a tribute to Howell. The Mets got two hits and no runs in seven innings off Brian Holton, Ricky Horton, Alejandro Pena, Leary, Jesse Orosco and Hershiser - in short, every Dodgers pitcher except Tim Lincecum, the starter for Game 5 today. He was back at the hotel.

Gooden took a three-hitter into the ninth. He walked Shelby to start the inning - Gooden's third leadoff walk - and Scioscia hit the first pitch over the fence right, the Dodgers' first homer in 47 innings and the ninth homer off Gooden in 263 2-3 innings this year.

Pena came in to start the ninth and pitched three hitless innings. Randy Myers and Roger McDowell combined to pitch 3 1-3 hitless innings for the Mets before Gibson's homer.

In bizarre contest...

LA locks series with Mets

NEW YORK (AP) - The bizarre is merely ordinary in the National League playoffs.

Picture this: - Orel Hershiser, the last available Dodgers pitcher, coming out of the bullpen to get a save, a day after throwing 110 pitches - his second relief appearance this year.

- Tim Lary coming in to start the 12th inning, his second relief appearance of the season, too.

- Dwight Gooden giving up a

A's sweep Red Sox

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Unsung heroes had played strong supporting roles, but Oakland's season-long stars dominated a familiar script the day the Athletics won their first American League pennant since 1974.

The A's success story was painfully familiar Sunday to the Boston Red Sox. The 4-1 victory was Oakland's fourth straight in the best-of-seven AL playoffs and the 10th home win in a row over Boston.

Home-run leader Jose Canseco put the A's ahead with a homer, 21-game winner Dave Stewart allowed four hits in seven innings and major-league save leader Dennis Eckersley blanked Boston for the fourth game in a row.

Canseco's shot into the right-field bleachers in the first inning was his fifth homer in just 26 at-bats against Boston starter Bruce Hurst, a two-time loser in the playoffs. His homer also tied the AL playoffs record set by Kansas City's George Brett in 1985.

Washington skins Cowboys; Dallas in division cellar now

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Reports of the early demise of the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins were greatly exaggerated, the Dallas Cowboys learned.

Washington rediscovered its old winning turnover formula Sunday to stay alive in the NFC East with a 35-17 defeat of the Cowboys. The win evened the Redskins' record at 3-3.

HIGHLAND - Ira's Bulldogs spoiled a Hornet homecoming celebration and Highland's District 7-1A debut with a 16-8 victory here Saturday evening.

The Bulldogs, 4-2, got a pair of touchdown passes from Charles Barbee to James Sturdivant for all the points they needed. A safety got the other two points as Ira's defense kept the Hornets in check.

Greg Wright scored Highland's lone TD. The win put Ira at 1-0 in district play. Ira now prepares to entertain Loraine at 7:30 p.m. this Friday. Highland, 0-1 in district and 3-3 overall, will host Hermleigh.

Dukakis people deny concession of Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Democratic officials spent the past several weeks watching in dismay as GOP presidential nominee George Bush pounded Michael Dukakis on gun control, crime and the Pledge of Allegiance.

But now, reveling in vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen's debate performance and citing a backlash against Bush's campaign, Democrats say the Lone Star state once again is up for grabs.

But the Bush camp says that boast is wishful thinking born out of desperation. Republicans say the Dukakis-Bentsen ticket is running aground in Texas, forcing a major decision on the Democrats: whether to go full bore in Texas or scale back and concentrate on California.

"They're making decisions about taking some of the money that they were going to spend in Texas and putting it in other states," Bush campaign spokesman Mark Sanders said late last week.

Democratic national party chairman Paul Kirk even concedes that Dukakis' state campaign suffered a "rope-a-dope" phase and was too timid in combating Bush's charges. But other Democrats say they have no intention of reducing efforts in Texas.

"That's the kind of rumor that comes from Republican campaign managers who must have been snorting something (Panama strongman Manuel Noriega sent them," said Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party.

Dukakis campaigned in the state Thursday while Texas were blitzed with new campaign commercials rebutting a GOP attack on his crime stance. Bush says Dukakis is soft on crime, citing a Massachusetts prison furlough program that initially made first-degree murderers eligible for weekend passes.

The new Dukakis ads reverse the attack. They say a prison inmate who in 1981 raped and murdered a woman was staying at a Houston halfway house that Bush — then a Houston congressman — helped start and then touted in 1982 during White House ceremonies honoring volunteer organizations.

Some Texas Democrats say the new hard-hitting ads come none too soon after an otherwise dismal campaign effort.

"I think they've done a rotten job of it," said state Democratic chairman Bob Slagle.

"I think the Dukakis people have done a very poor job of rebutting the Pledge of Allegiance business and the 'soft-on-crime' business. I've never seen people in a campaign, where they were paid to give advice, dissipate a 17-point lead before. I think they were asleep at the switch in answering some of this stuff."

The new ads also criticize Texas Republican Gov. Bill Clements for trying to ease prison crowding by releasing dangerous inmates early.

Democratic campaign officials charge that Republicans planted the rumor of a Texas retreat by Dukakis forces because Bush is in trouble in the state he calls home. Dukakis state campaign manager Tom Cosgrove cited Bush's Thursday visit to an energy forum in Midland. "We're forcing the vice president to spend money in Texas," Cosgrove said.

The day after the vice presidential debate, Dukakis and Bentsen — Texas' senior senator — headed a rally in Lone Star, a small East Texas town troubled by the layoffs of thousands of steel workers.

After the rally, Dukakis was asked about speculation that he would scale back his state campaign if new campaign ads did not produce higher poll ratings. "We're going to win in Texas," Dukakis said. "That's why we're here."

Both parties have said Texas, with its 29 electoral votes, is a must-win state.

Since the debate, Bentsen has campaigned primarily in Texas. On Friday, he said during a Dallas speech, "This race is going to be close; it's going right down to the wire. If we can put Texas in that Democratic column, and I'm convinced we will, then we're going to win this election."

Cosgrove asserted Dukakis has been picking up momentum in Texas since before the first presidential debate Sept. 25. At that time, polls placed the Massachusetts governor four to 11 points behind Bush.

"People want to see issues debated on their economic future," said Cosgrove. He summed up Bush's campaign, saying, "He thinks we ought to have a referendum on gun control, abortion and the Pledge of Allegiance."

And Democrats say the vice presidential debate was a knockout win for Bentsen. Bentsen's "Senator, you are no Jack Kennedy" putdown of GOP vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle was the kind of tough jab that plays well in Texas, they said.

On the heels of both debates, Democratic Party pollster Al Quinlan said the ticket has improved. "It's a combination of doubts about Quayle, and partially the fact that Dukakis has put the campaign on track. The Bush onslaught seems to have worn thin about eight to 10 days ago. There are a lot of Reagan Democrats that are coming home."

A poll of 842 likely voters in Texas the weekend prior to the vice presidential debate showed Bush-Quayle with 49 percent and Dukakis-Bentsen with 44 percent in Texas, an improvement for Dukakis over some earlier surveys.

The poll by Mason-Dixon Opinion Research Inc., a Maryland-based media polling firm, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percent.

State Republicans discount that poll, saying there is no erosion in Bush's support.

"The numbers that we are seeing is that he (Dukakis) is continuing to slide. Fifty percent have a negative opinion of Michael Dukakis. That's up from 22 percent six weeks ago. Texans just don't like Dukakis," Sanders said.

Thursday, Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater boasted that Bush would face little difficulty in Texas. "I don't think it (Texas) is particularly competitive. If we continue to do what we've been doing there's no way we can lose it."

While confident state Republicans are more cautious. "We're taking nothing for granted," said deputy campaign director Reggie Bashur. "We've got to run hard each and every day. We've got to continue to beat the drum. What they do, that's their business."

Bashur said Bush will stick to his major theme. "The basic message is that George Bush is a conservative Texan contrasted by a liberal politician from Massachusetts."

Yellowstone Park fire duty recalled

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — Alan Huggins says it was kind of like M.A.S.H., only the war was against the fire blazing through Yellowstone National Park. Huggins, a paramedic supervisor for the Orange County Ambulance Service, spent 16 days in September at Mammoth Hot Springs, working as a paramedic for firefighters in Yellowstone.

"The chance for a change of scenery and the feeling that you're helping with a national problem is incredible," Huggins said.

"We were a triage unit, more or less like M.A.S.H.," the Mauriceville resident said. "For more serious injuries, we were supposed to stabilize them and take them to the outpatient clinic in Mammoth Complex."

He was working in one of three first aid stations in the area of the Wolf Lake and North Fork fires, located about 50 miles north of Old Faithful, he said.

"The main problems we had were blisters and smoke inhalation, and a lot of sinus problems," he said.

Huggins said he would volunteer again if the opportunity came up.

"I've already been in contact with some people who handle these situations and if it comes up again in northern California or Oregon next year, I'll definitely go back," he said.

Huggins said he was touched by news reports that the fires were threatening Old Faithful in early September.

"When it got to threatening Old Faithful, it was like it was a threat to a part of me."

When the opportunity came up a few weeks later to go and help, Huggins said he was the first to sign up.

An expanded dispatch program was used by the U.S. Forest Service to contact as many fire departments and paramedic services as possible across the country, he said.

The Orange County service was indirectly contacted by Henry Porterfield, a native of Bridge City, who had also volunteered.

"They only needed one more paramedic and I wanted to do it. I called him Sunday morning and he said he would check on confirmation; I talked to him later that evening and left at midnight," he said.

"I drove straight from Mauriceville to New Mexico and then slept for three hours. I slept another three in Wyoming and got there at 8 p.m. Tuesday," Huggins recalled.

Global warming scenario bad for coastline

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Gulf coast could suffer significant flooding and disastrous hurricane strikes if the greenhouse effect causes global warming and a rise in sea level, experts say.

The Texas coast is particularly vulnerable to rising seas for a number of reasons, largely related to its flatness and location in the path that hurricanes take, said Stephen Leatherman, director of the University of Maryland's Laboratory for Coastal Research and chairman of the Climate Institute.

"Essentially, the Texas coast is one of the most vulnerable," said Leatherman, a coastal geologist and a leading authority on sea level rise. "The only other coast more vulnerable is Louisiana, because of its land-subsidence problems."

Warmer ocean waters resulting from higher air temperatures are likely to produce hurricanes that are stronger and more numerous, Leatherman said. "On top of that, as the sea heats up, the area where tropical storms originate will move northward and closer to Texas," he said.

The greenhouse effect is the term used to describe the warming of the Earth's atmosphere by the accumulation of carbon dioxide and other air pollutants.

One widely expected impact is rising seas, as water expands and melting occurs in polar regions. However, scientists say specific coastal changes from rising seas hinge on many variables, such as the amount of greenhouse gases that man continues to pump into the atmosphere.

Leatherman says some sea level rise is inevitable because of the lag between past and present emissions of those pollutants and the greenhouse warming they will produce.

"The direction is set, although we don't know how far the sea will rise," he said. "The point is, it's going to go up. If there's anything hot-wired to temperature increase, it's sea level."

"It's hard to envision a lot of benefits for Texas" from higher oceans caused by the greenhouse effect, agreed Jim Titus, the EPA's project manager for sea level rise.

"Projects to prevent or mitigate some effects of rising seas are all going to cost money," Titus told the Houston Chronicle. "People will have to ask, would we rather avoid global warming than have all these costs."

Leatherman's study covered the northern third of Galveston Island, the top of Bolivar Peninsula and a mainland area encompassing Texas City, La Marque and San Leon. Projected consequences of higher seas included:

- With a sea level rise of 7.8 feet by 2075, flooding now associated with a 100-year storm would occur at 10-year frequency with catastrophic damage.
- By 2075, a rise of three feet would place 94 percent of the study area in the 100-year floodplain, and a 7.8-foot rise would increase that to almost 98 percent. About 60 percent of the area is now considered susceptible to a 100-year flood.
- The 15-year floodplain, which now covers a fourth of the area, would grow to a third of the area with a three-foot rise in sea level. Half the area, including as much as four-fifths of Galveston, would be included with a rise of 7.8 feet.
- Virtually the entire San Leon peninsula, a residential area, would erode by 2075 with a 7.8-foot rise. Six percent of the whole study area would be lost to erosion by 2075 with a three-foot rise in sea level, and 12 percent would erode with a rise of 7.8 feet.

Titus noted in a 1984 book that the most obvious consequence of rising seas would be inundation of low-lying areas, accompanied by temporary flooding elsewhere, intrusion of salt water into some underground water supplies and a retreating shoreline.

Basically, Leatherman said, only three things can be done in response: People can move back from the coastline, letting it erode. They can armor the coast with structures such as the seawall built to protect Galveston. Or they can replenish beaches with extra sand, pumped from offshore to keep pace with the rising sea.

Brandley awaits court action

DALLAS (AP) — It has been a year now since a Galveston courtroom erupted in euphoria at the words of a state district judge presiding over a hearing in the case of Death Row inmate Clarence Lee Brandley.

"I shall recommend a new trial for the defendant," said Judge Perry Pickett of Midland, who a month later outlined his reasons in findings of fact delivered to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which had ordered the 10-day evidentiary hearing.

"The court became convinced that Clarence Lee Brandley did not receive a fair trial, was denied the most fundamental rights of due process of law and did not commit the crime for which he now resides on Death Row," Pickett wrote.

But Brandley still sits in prison waiting for Texas' highest criminal appeals court to act on the recommendation for a new trial.

Pickett went on to point an accusing finger at two men who have long figured in the case and who appeared before him at the hearing.

"The testimony unequivocally establishes that Gary Acreman and James Dexter Robinson are prime suspects and probably were responsible for the death of Cheryl Dee Ferguson," Pickett wrote.

The absence of any detectable action has led to speculation that the delay has somehow been politically inspired and that no ruling will take place until after next month's elections.

But a year is not a long time to wait for a ruling from the Court of Criminal Appeals, particularly in a case as complex as Brandley's, said Rick Wetzel, the court's chief administrator.

"The record in this case is mammoth. The transcript of the evidentiary hearing in Galveston was longer than most trials. There's no telling when they're going to act," he said.

Senate race shapes us as close rematch

TYLER, Texas (AP) — State Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, has learned Tyler businessman Richard Harvey can be a formidable opponent.

Four years ago, Harvey, 54, nearly unseated Lyon when the Republican challenger garnered 49.4 percent of the vote in the District 2 race. This time, Lyon, 40, isn't taking any chances.

In one of the most closely watched of seven contested state senate races, Lyon and Harvey are replaying the national presidential contest, labeling one another "right-wing extremist" and "liberal spendthrift."

"Richard Harvey is a right-wing extremist, and I think the people of District 2 should know that," Lyon told about 50 senior citizens attending a debate at a Tyler retirement center last week. While his supporters distributed copies of a newspaper editorial by Harvey suggesting the Social Security system be scrapped, Lyon told the crowd, "Richard Harvey makes Genghis Khan look like a liberal."

Meanwhile, Harvey has painted Lyon as a classic tax-and-spend liberal who is out of touch with the conservative mainstream of East Texas. A newspaper advertisement for Harvey features pictures of Lyon with former Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. The ad suggests Jackson was supported by communists and homosexuals, then notes Lyon said before the Democratic National Convention that he would support whomever his party nominated for president — even Jackson.

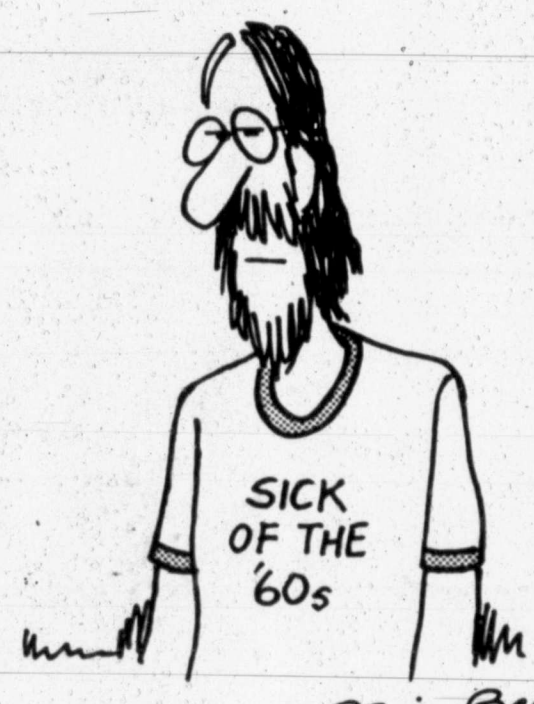

While Democrats have criticized the ad as racist — and Harvey hasn't used it recently — he still defends its content.

"It just stated the facts," Harvey said. "There were no misstatements in the ad, and the reaction to it has been very positive for my campaign."

Lyon, a lawyer and former police officer, was first elected to the Texas Senate in 1982, after serving two terms in the House.

Harvey, a businessman and rancher, has not held public office.

Bryant's has served Snyder for 11 years

Bryant's Carpet Cleaning has served Snyder over 11 years. They have used or seen every type of carpet cleaning and even though Mr. Bryant could use a cheaper method, he prefers the steam extraction. This method extracts the dirt and stains, whereas other methods leave the dirt in the carpet. For a clean and safe carpet cleaning, steam extraction is by far the best method.

Some carpet cleaners leave the carpet wet, but Bryant's leaves it only damp and it will dry in a few hours. This is because they have the latest truck mount unit with more power than smaller units. This unit stays in the van and only the cleaning head goes into the house thus eliminating spills in the home.

Most carpets need to be cleaned within a year, depending on the traffic because not only do they get dirty normally, but walking on the carpet can wear the carpet protector off. Bryant's can clean the carpet and replace the carpet protector which is similar to Scotch Gard. In some cases they can actually clean the carpet professionally as cheap as you can rent a machine and do it yourself. Many times when people try to do it themselves, the carpet won't come clean and they keep adding detergents to the machine. As a result the carpet gets too wet and they leave a residue in the carpet which causes the carpet to get dirty quicker. Bryant's doesn't leave residue because they prespray with cleaners and use only soft hot water.

Carpets are a big investment and a wise person will maintain them, so trust your carpets to the professionals. Bryant's has cleaned thousands of carpets and can furnish references. For a limited time they can clean a living room for $25.00 and a bedroom for $20.00. If you want clean and disease free carpet call Gary at 573-3930 or Jack at 573-2480. Your satisfaction is guaranteed.

NEW YORK (AP) — It was not a day for the beach, but Luz bowed, she walked slowly on Coney Island Beach, picking up bottles, straws and plastic rings that once held together six-packs.

Maldonado said she had long wanted to help clean the shoreline, so Saturday's Beach Cleanup Day was her chance.

Thousands of people hit the beach in New York, New Jersey and Oregon on Saturday. The states are among 24 participating in a two-month project to assess the extent of beach pollution.

"I have three kids and they all use the beach," Maldonado said, shivering in the wind, rain and 45-degree temperature. After syringes and AIDS-tainted blood in vials washed up on East Coast shores this summer — New York alone has collected 4,000 needles and syringes — she tried unsuccessfully to keep her children out of the water.

"My kids are very daring," the 39-year-old Brooklyn resident said. "I couldn't stop them. ... It's
