'Making It Legal," the woman who the second one. had been living with her boyfriend for 11 years, had two children with him and a third on the way. You agreed with her fam-

Then you were bombarded with letters saying, "You were wrong why shouldn't she have the kind of wedding she's always dreamed of?" So you flip-flopped. You blew it, Abby - you were right the first

The sad fact is, we are living in a tasteless society. People accept invitations and don't show up. Others fail to RSVP, then show up bringing extra guests! Also, there's a new bit of comedy at the wedding dinner - the bride and groom grind wedding cake in each other's faces. (Shades of the Three Stooges!)

I don't fault the clergy for per forming these farces in their churches. They probably hope that some of their errant flock will return to the fold. But, if sanctifying their marriage in the presence of God was what couples such as "Making It Legal" have in mind, they should confine their weddings to family members and intimate friends.

I suspect that what they really have in mind is showing off, and garnering wedding gifts, such as they would have received had they done it right in the first place.

These "after-the-fact" weddings are reminiscent of the old vaudeville days when the big, boffo, hilarious skit consisted of the bulging bride, her white satin gown straining at the seams, followed by Pappy with his shotgun. It was a burlesque of the rites of holy matrimony. It still is. Do you have the courage to print this?

DEAR ABBY: I don't usually write letters, but I had to write this one. My husband and I went down to the Detroit Animal Control the other day to check on a dog we adopted. While we were there, a lady came in with a beautiful little mongrel mutt that appeared to obey her very well. She said she wanted to turn the dog in because it had chewed up her shoe! They told her that they would probably have to put the dog to sleep because they had all the dogs they could handle, and not enough people are adopting pets these days. Abby, that lady actually left the dog there and walked out! The poor little thing got a death sentence for chewing up a shoe! When I see all those sad, homeless animals in cages, pleading with their eyes for someone to take them home, I could just cry. Please print this. It may be an incentive for someone to adopt a homeless animal.

JANE LA ROSE, MICHIGAN

DEAR JANE: The problem goes beyond providing an incentive to adopt a homeless animal. Pet owners should have their animals spayed or neutered to prevent them from breeding indiscriminately.

Every year an estimated 7.5 million dogs and cats are "put to sleep" (a gentle euphemism for "killed") because their owners do not want to be bothered feeding and caring for them. How much more humane it would be to have prevented their births.

'No fault' libel trial recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major study of libel laws today recommended sweeping changes designed to resolve disputes quickly through "no fault" trials deciding the truth of disputed statements.

No damages would be awarded in such trials.

The changes were proposed by the Washington-based Annenberg Washington Program of Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., after a study begun last winter by 11 lawyers, judges, journalists and others.

"Libel suits tend to drag on interminably, are enormously costly for both sides and very seldom clearly resolve what ought to be the heart of the matter: the truth or falsity of what was published," said the report of the Libel Reform Project.

A major change from current law in the proposal would be elimination of the requirement that public figures suing for libel prove that defamatory statements about them were published with "actual malice," that is, with knowledge that they were false or with "reckless disregard" of whether they were false or not.

There was a rule passed in 1978 against unfair crowd noise in college football but it has been difficult to enforce.

Stimulates Injection Wells When Acid Treatment Fails

An Innovative Onstream Process Easy Stim is uniquely designed to eliminate deposits of sulfides, biomass, polymers and other oxidizable plugging agents associated with water injection and disposal wells that do not respond to traditional acid stimulation techniques. The Easy Stim treatment is applied onstream and typically results in increased water flow and/or lower line pressure.

Fast, Safe, Focused Treatment

The Easy Stim process uses a mobile, truck-mounted unit to generate the stimulation chemical that is immediately pumped into the well at system pressure Easy Stim's unique inhibitor package is safe and effective in limiting corrosion to levels acceptable during acid jobs.

Cost Effective, Turn-Key Operation

An Easy Stim treatment typically takes six to eight hours with no time lost in well shut-in; no work-over rigs and no extra pump or transport trucks.

spot-cards. South saw that if the defense played with reasonable accuracy, he wouldn't have time to set up the hearts. The defenders would get at least two spades, three hearts and two diamonds. Even if South were able to set up the hearts, his diamond entry would probably be

Declarer therefore looked elsewhere for tricks. If he could get three clubs, he would have six tricks, for one down. Since playing on hearts could lead to three down, declarer decided to hold his losses

This was excellent thinking. Faced with a nearly hopeless contract, South didn't charge ahead blindly but considered possible goals and selected a practical one.

Declarer won the spade lead and played the ace and jack of clubs. East did his best by holding off with the king. South's instinctive move at this point was to play his low club and hope West would capture the jack. If West had started with doubleton king, he would have to take it. But with more than two clubs, West could duck if he wished, and South knew that West was good defender who would do just South had one last option. He overtook dummy's jack with his queen and East's king - an exciting six tricks for down one

What South did was to weigh the chances of West's having doubleton king against the chances of East's having tripleton king. Since a 4-3 split is more likely than a 5-2 split, South's play was correct.

Woman enjoys leading the Salvation Army youth group

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — Sur- love of children — and her ability rounded by shouting, screeching, shrieking children, Brenda Teal calmly smiles and softly suggests reasons Salvation Army Capt. that her "young adults" tone it Bruce Williams nominated her as down a bit.

In an instant, the roar melts to a murmur.

Mrs. Teal, 34, is in charge, and head of the girls' youth program at the Salvation Army.

"I was in the same group, the Sunbeams, when I was their age," she said. "This is my neighborhood. I was born here, and I know so many of them."

For three years, she has ridden herd on the Sunbeams, firstthrough fifth-graders, and Girl Guides, sixth grade through highschool age, enrolled in the Army's youth programs - weekly meetings, special parties and pageants, and the Dallas youth camp.

And she's done it as a volunteer, without ever seeing a paycheck.

"As a kid, I was a babysitter for a family down the street, and then I was a Sunday School riage to Leo Teal - and several teacher," she said. "Then I worked for the Mother's Day Out program. I guess I'm just kidoriented."

She doesn't know it, but her

According to Williams, Mrs. quite obviously in her element, as Teal "is an exceptional woman" who "makes it a point to know (the girls) personally so she can help them through their difficult times. Usually when a child is unruly or sad, there is a good reason and we have found that Brenda usually knows where the problem lies. Whether it is a home breaking up, financial difficulties, abuse or other problems, the children trust her.

> Mrs. Teal said children have always been important to her, never more so than when she believed she could not have them. "We tried adoption, through a we've got to have respect for lawyer. But just two months that," she said. before we were supposed to get the child, the couple decided to keep it."

It was six years after her marearly-pregnancy tests later that Mrs. Teal became pregnant.

"The first thing I did was to go out and buy a fifty-cent pickle,"

Her daughter, Kim, is now 8, and the Teals have a second daughter, Brandi, 4. When Mrs. Teal thought it was time "to help Kim get adjusted to other kids," she headed back to the Salvation Army." But she wasn't there long before she decided they could use some help. "The captain's wife was doing it all alone," she said.

Mrs. Teal is still at the Salvation Army. Her love of children does not extend to a carte blanche for in-decorum, however. "Kids need discipline," she said. "If one child is too rowdy, it hurts the others. We can't have outings if you don't have discipline. You can't talk down to kids. Besides, she said, the Salvation Army is also a church. "We meet in the back of a church, and

With several regulars from both teams nursing injuries, the Bears scored all their points in the second quarter and held on for a 17-7 victory to take a twogame edge in the NFC Central

Leading Chicago were rookie free safety David Tate, starting because of injuries to Shaun Gayle and Dave Duerson, and veteran quarterback Jim McMahon, healthy most of this season despite a career filled with medical setbacks.

"I made a few mistakes, but overall I was pleased," said Tate, who picked off two Danny White passes. "I can't say I expected two interceptions, but I thought I would get one."

Philibosian also criticizes his successor, District Attorney Ira Reiner, for waiting until the end of the preliminary hearing in 1986 to dismiss charges against five former teachers.

Reiner, who had said evidence against the five was "incredibly weak," has declined to discuss the case until the trial is over.

The chief prosecutor, Deputy District Attorney Lael Rubin, says the trial has been worth the effort and its $10.5 million cost. She said the testimony of nine children who took the stand and medical evidence showing "significant genital scarring" in seven of those children helped her case.

"I can think of many other things I might rather have done over the last 41/2 years. But you have to have a more global perspective. If nothing else, the public is now more aware that these kinds of things have occurred and unfortunately continue to occur," she said.

Buckey's attorney, Danny Davis, says his client is "an American hero" who has endured a media blitz that declared him guilty.

'The case was lost when I was hired," said Davis. "If I read the newspapers and didn't know Ray Buckey, wouldn't I have thought he was guilty?"

BOSTON (AP) - Vice President George Bush has portrayed Boston as a hotbed of left-wing intellectuals who don't respect rituals like the Pledge of Allegiance. But scholars say the pledge was born here.

What's more, the Baptist minister generally credited with composing it was a socialist.

"Most people don't know anything about the history of the pledge ... and if you tell them, they don't want to believe you," said Louise Harris of Providence, R.I., who has written two books on the subject.

The Pledge of Allegiance was surrounded by controversy and hucksterism after it first appeared in a Boston magazine, The Youth's Companion, on Sept. 8, 1892.

The magazine had pioneered the sale of subscription "premiums," such as school uniforms and silver tea services. But it achieved its greatest commercial success, and its enduring legacy, with a drive to put a flag in every school.

Sandwiched between a presidential proclamation and an ode to Columbus, both long forgotten, was the original pledge: "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands: one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

At the words "my flag," the students were instructed to stretch out their right arms to the flag, similiar to the Nazi salute.

It was not until 1923 that the words "my flag" were replaced by "the flag of the United States of America" out of concern that immigrant children might think they were pledging allegiance to their native lands.

Thirty-one more years passed until "under God" was inserted at the the behest of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said that "in this way we shall constantly strengthen those spiritual weapons which forever will be our country's most powerful resource in peace and war.'

Oil prices leap again

NEW YORK (AP) - Oil futures prices have leaped again in reaction to speculation that OPEC oil producers would reach an agreement on production cuts at meetings this coming week.

The November contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark grade of U.S. crude, rose 71 cents Friday to settle at $14.92 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Since Tuesday, the November contract has leaped $1.37 a barrel, reflecting a sharp tur-naround in the mood of the market.

A proposal on the table would cut production by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to between 18.5 million and 19.5 million barrels a day, said Peter Beutel, assistant director of the energy group at Elders Futures Inc.

OPEC's production recently has been about 21 million barrels a day even though the official ceiling is about 19 million bar-

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Mayor Henry Cisneros' wife, Mary Alice, says she is coping with the strain after her husband's revelations of his close relationship with another

"I'm not falling apart. I'm not in tears," Mrs. Cisneros said. "I'm standing strong in my faith."

In her first public discussion of last week's reports linking her husband with his former political fundraiser, Linda Medlar, Mrs. Cisneros said her faith has enabled her to deal with the crisis.

She and her husband, who is serving his fourth term as mayor, have said they have had marital problems, complicated by the health of their 16-monthold son, John Paul Anthony, who suffers from a congenital heart defect.

Mrs. Cisneros and her three children attended Sunday services at Alamo City Baptist Church, where the congregation was asked to pray for the family so that it could be spared a divorce.

"We ask you for a miracle to save this home," the Rev. David Walker said. "Keep it together." Walker, who has counseled

Mrs. Cisneros the past several months, also asked the congregation to pray for Cisneros, 41, and Mrs. Medlar, 39.

"He is a good man in many, many senses of the word. We pray for him," Walker said. "We also pray for the other woman. We pray for Linda.

The mayor said last week that he does not intend to get a divorce and marry Mrs. Medlar, who has said she will support the whatever decision the mayor makes about their relationship.

Mrs. Cisneros said Sunday she had not read all news reports on her husband's relationship with Mrs. Medlar, who is married, but separated. 'It doesn't matter," Mrs. Cisneros said told the San Antonio Light. "I'm fine. It's going to be all right. I'm going through this and I know in my heart that the Lord is with me.'

Can patients see medical records?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was hospitalized for a major depressive episode. Why is a patient not allowed to see his or her own medical records? DEAR READER: To begin with, you can force your doctor or the hospital to release your records to you. This may require the services of an attorney, but it can be done.

However, such a confrontation may not be in your best interests.

The information contained in medical records is ordinarily unintelligible to the average layman. These records are full of technical facts, medical words and abbreviations that usually make sense only to another doctor. Even with resource material, you are unlikely to understand the total record, You may get bits and pieces, but you will miss a lot, and this could give you an incorrect perspective.

Medical records are really not magic. They are a technique by which doctors keep tabs on their patients. They are shorthand notes that describe, in a unique language, what happens to people who are sick or injured

Also, they are the property of the doctor or hospital, not of the patient. When a doctor releases his records to a patient, the MD is showing enormous respect and concern, as well as showing the doctor's very private mental processes that are necessary. for satisfactory diagnosis and treatment. The doctor is vulnerable when he releases records; vulnerable because, in some cases, the information may be incorrectly interpreted. The medical records of a patient right for you. with an emotional illness are particularly difficult for a non-medical person to understand. In addition, rehashing this material will invariably produce a lot of pain and anguish, the antithesis of good medical care. Reviewing the record might unnecessarily open up wounds and undo some therapy that the patient has received.

You would be better served by asking your doctor for a verbal summary of your depression. This way, you can get the information you want and it can be part of your ongoing treatment.

For more information, I'm enclosing a copy of my health report, "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since I was a child I've had painful stomachaches every few months. My food does not digest or pass out of my stomach. The only way to clear it up is to regurgitate everything. DEAR READER: The sequence you describe suggests that you are suffering from a periodic partial intestinal obstruction. This may be due to muscle spasms in the stomach or small intestine. Such an ailment can be successfully treated under medical supervision.

I think that you should see a doctor because the exact nature of your problem should be clarified. Also, the medicine used for this type of muscle spasm is available only by prescription. I do not believe that you are safe taking your cousin's medicine: Despite the initial benefits, it may not be

You can visit here, a small farm community just west of Beaumont, where scientists clad in mud-caked bluejeans and sweat-soaked bandanas till the soil on experimental plots.

For years, foreign ambassadors, agricultural ministers, scientists and other visitors with an agricultural bent have come to the 910-acre Texas A&M University Agricultural and Extension Center to learn from the work being done in rice

In turn, scientists from the center have visited every major rice-producing country in the world, bringing back ideas to improve the production of Texas

The walls of his office are covered with plaques and pictures, each highlighting a different agricultural achievement, either personal or part of the center's accomplishments.

In the center's main office, glass-enclosed cases along hallway walls are filled with baby food jars, pancake mix boxes, beer cans and other consumer products all made with rice.

Pamphlets on microwave cooking with rice litter the coffee tables, along with new rice recipes, "If you don't eat rice, you might as well drink it," Stansel said, explaining that to disturb the seedlings like a some beer brewers use broken grains of rice to create a smoother taste.

"Lodging," the term for rice being blown down in the day, scientists and researchers are out in the fields or in their field, was a major problem for laboratories searching for clues on how to solve the latest disease Texas farmers until Lemont was problem or get a higher crop developed, Stansel said.

> Currently, Bollich is working on developing specialty rices to capture some of the import market. About 80,000 tons of specialty rices are imported from Thailand annually to satisfy the tastes of Asian immigrants.

About two acres of "Jasmine," a rice with a natural aroma and flavor similar to that of roasted popcorn or nuts, is being harvested for the first time. If taste tests prove acceptable to Southeast Asians, scientists will release the rice to interested producers next year, Bollich said.

Ironically, although the station's scientists now are trying to please the Asian palate, about two decades ago scientists at the center participated in U.S. military experiments designed to kill Asian rice crops.

In the late 1960s, the China center was one of 19 different germ warfare sites where secret research was done on ways to kill rice crops in Asian countries, according to an Army report.

But germ warfare was never the main focus of the centerwhere Texas rice research began. In 1909, the state Legislature established an experimental station at Amelia on 100 acres donated by the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce.

In 1945, the center relocated to its present site on Imes Road off Highway west of Beaumont. Today, the center's $3 million annual operating budget and 70 employees, including 14 scientists, are funded by Texas A&M, the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Texas Rice developing almost all of them.
