WASHINGTON (AP) — A crucial test for mandatory drug testing in the American workplace is before the Supreme Court in a pair of cases involving railroad workers and U.S. Customs Service employees.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, in an unusual move, was representing the Reagan administration personally today in arguing that such tests do not violate individual privacy rights.

Solicitor General Charles Fried, the administration's top courtroom lawyer, also was to participate in the two-hour argument session.

Benjamin Civiletti was the last attorney general to argue a case before the justices when he appeared in 1980 to present the Carter administration's side in a case involving the deportation of an alleged Nazi.

Thornburgh last argued a case before the high court in 1977 when he headed the Justice Department's criminal division.

In today's cases, the justices agreed to decide whether the nation's railroads may require all employees involved in accidents

Dukakis says race still open

By The Associated Press
Michael Dukakis visited his hospitalized wife today and told supporters millions of voters are still "thinking and listening," keeping the presidential race open. George Bush, with a solid lead in national polls, was campaigning in Illinois where the race is considered a tossup.

Democrat Dukakis spoke at an early hotel rally in Minneapolis, where he had flown Tuesday night to visit his wife, who was hospitalized with a viral infection.

He spent 40 minutes with her after the rally, and they waved from her 6th floor window. When he came down, he said, "She's a good deal better."

Dukakis urged the crowd at the rally to "keep pouring it on and pouring it on. ... This is one election where millions of people are going to be looking and thinking and listening and they're not going to be making up their mind until very close to the moment when they go into that polling booth."

He was joined by Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and by Hubert H. Humphrey III, the Democratic candidate for the Senate seat his father once held. Dukakis said the two men's presence "reminds us of some very important elections."

He went on to cite John F. Kennedy's presidential victory in 1960 and Humphrey's closing drive that nearly caught Republican Richard M. Nixon in 1968. Dukakis also mentioned, as he does frequently, Harry Truman's upset victory in 1948.

With the race for the White House in its final week, President Reagan was getting in some campaigning today with a stop on behalf of the vice president in Ohio, one of the battlegrounds. Before leaving California on Tuesday, the president derided Dukakis as "no Harry Truman, and he's no FDR."

New polls released a week from Election Day showed the Republican presidential nominee still leading solidly.

A CBS News poll conducted Saturday through Monday showed Bush ahead by 12 percentage points, 53-41 percent — virtually the same as the 13-point lead a CBS poll had shown a week ago. But fully one voter in five said they could still change their minds before Election Day. The survey was of 1,066 probable voters and had a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

An ABC News-Washington Post poll done Wednesday through Monday gave the GOP nominee a 13-point lead over Dukakis, 55-42 percent. The survey of 1,099 probable voters had a margin of error of four percentage points.

Dukakis aides contended their own private polls showed the Democratic presidential nominee gaining on his Republican rival in battleground states. Privately, some Democrats expressed doubts.

Ask Us

Q. — Are new curbs built at the expense of the homeowner?

A. — Yes, either directly or indirectly. City subdivision rules which date to the mid-1960s state that the developer of real estate property for residences is responsible for curb and gutter, paving and all utilities to each lot. This cost is then recovered in the price of the housing. When individual lots are sold, one or the other, the buyer or the seller, is required to provide the same facilities.

SHS vote in favor of Bush

Snyder High School seniors left no doubt about their preference for George Bush in a mock election held Tuesday at the school, giving Bush 113 votes to Michael Dukakis' 44.

Voting on the entire Nov. 8 ballot as a project of SHS social studies teacher Peggy English, the students made it closer in the United States Senate race, with incumbent Democrat and vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen receiving 85 votes to Republican Beau Boulter's 74.

The results were tabulated with an official vote-counting machine Tuesday afternoon in English's classroom by Deputy County Clerk Mildred Hollis.

Totals in uncontested races and for most minor candidates were not part of the project.

Results in Texas Railroad Commission races were 74 for Republican Ed Emmett and 61 for Democratic incumbent Jim Nugent and 113 for Republican incumbent Kent Hance and 38 for his opponent, Democrat Clint Hackney.

Texas Supreme Court race results included 87 for Republican Tom Phillips to 60 for Democrat Ted Z. Robertson, for chief justice; 80 for Republican Paul Murphy to 71 for Democrat Lloyd Doggett, 91 for Republican Nathan Hecht to 58 for Democratic incumbent Bill Kilgarlin; 80 for Republican Charles Ben Howell to 59 for Democratic incumbent Raul Gonzales; 81 for Republican incumbent Barbara Culver to 65 for Democrat Jack Hightower; and 87 for Republican Eugene Cook to 60 for Democrat Karl Bayer.

Court of Criminal Appeals races included Democrat Mike McCormick 74 and Republican David Berchmann Jr. 70; Democrat Charles Campbell 92 and Libertarian Egon Tausch 14; and Republican Tom Rickhoff 81 and Democrat Chuck Miller 58.

For the State Board of Education, Republican Monte Hasie of Lubbock got 79 votes, to Democrat Paul Dunn of

Attendance effort draws 96.7 percent

The attendance drive for the month of October in Snyder public schools has ended with an average daily attendance (ADA) of 96.7 percent.

This "push" for enrollment may have saved the district as much as a $279,000 drop in state funding for next year, it was noted Wednesday.

In October, the ADA figure for all Texas school districts is used as the basis for state funding for the following year.

For September of this year, Snyder's ADA was 3,163 students, and October's attendance drive managed to raise this to 3,351.

School officials point out that this increase of 188 students to the ADA, when applied to the state formula for school financing, equals $279,000 in state money.

The final results were just short of the district's goal of 98 percent attendance for October and were approximately the same numbers as reported for October last year—the first time an organized effort was implemented to increase school numbers.

For October last year, the ADA for Snyder ISD was 3,357.

To keep enrollment numbers high this year, each campus stressed attendance to students with rewards offered for perfect attendance.

Parents were asked to cooperate also by keeping their child in school unless illness absolutely prevented it.

The effort had its greatest attendance during the early phases and dwindled slightly as the month passed. For the first week, attendance here was at 97.2 percent. It dropped to 97.1 percent for the second week, then to 96.3 percent for the third week and to 96.2 percent for the fourth week.

The following lists the attendance percentage by campus for the fourth and final week in October. The figure in parenthesis shows the same campus percentage for the second week of the drive.

- Snyder High School, 93 (96) percent.
- Snyder Junior High, 93.6 (96.1) percent.
- Central Elementary, 96.3 (95.8) percent.
- East Elementary, 97.2 (97.9) percent.
- North Elementary, 96.8 (97.2) percent.
- Northeast Elementary, 97.8 (97.3) percent.
- Stanfield Elementary, 97.6 (98.2) percent.
- West Elementary, 97.4 (98.3) percent.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A great virtue of democracy is that only one of the candidates gets elected."

It's just like we always suspected. Aggies tell more Aggie jokes than anyone else.

We were told about the Aggie who was in search of a church. He went to a Baptist church and told the preacher he was looking for a church home.

The Baptist preacher told the Aggie that he had to answer the question of where Jesus was born before he could join the church. The Aggie answered "Lufkin," and the preacher told him to go home and study the Bible if he wanted to become a member.

The Aggie then visited a Methodist Church with almost similar results. The minister told him he would gladly be accepted as a member if he was able to answer the question about Jesus' birthplace. The Aggie responded, "Nacogdoches."

The Aggie gave up on the Protestants and went down the road to the Catholic Church where the priest answered the Aggie's knock on the door. The Aggie was told the church was ready to help someone convert and that they had several classes underway where he could learn.

The Aggie said, "Now wait a minute. I have just one question for you. Where was Jesus born?"

The priest answered, "Why Palestine, of course."

Spoken like a true Aggie, he responded, "Gee, I knew it was one of those East Texas towns."

Football is no joke in College Station. Economists estimate that the A&M home games generate $24.8 million into the local economy.

According to a survey, restaurants get 19 percent, motels get 17 percent while retail shopping gains 14 percent of that amount with the remainder spread between night life, food and beverage, auto expense and other.

There's a lot to be said for getting visitors into town.

Ag exemption ruling causes value protests

Harold Lacik, review board member for the Scurry County Appraisal District, spoke to the district's board of directors Tuesday night concerning recent problems with ag use exemptions for county farm land and how the review board has been affected.

Lacik commented that the review board is seated to hear taxpayer appeals, but in recent sessions concerning agriculture exemptions, the board could offer no relief.

When land changes ownership, the buyer must file a new ag exemption in order to receive a tax break. Lacik pointed out there is no way around state laws and rulings concerning this, and those who fail to file are charged the higher tax rate.

The appraisal office sends out notifications to land buyers, but these are apparently overlooked or ignored, he said. Lacik and Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler urged taxpayers to take advantage of the exemption by filing this year.

In old business, the directors considered two bids for interior painting at appraisal offices. Wesley Dabney was approved for the job at a bid of $1,000. The other offer quoted a price of $1,173.80.

Jerry Vestal, C.P.A., presented his audit report of appraisals and collections with no adjustments to district records.

Proposed plan said criticized

KEMAH, Texas (AP) — The president of the Texas Oyster Association says a proposed plan to allow the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to determine when and how oysters are harvested is "frightening."

Tom Hults, a Kemah oyster wholesaler, used the occasion of the first day of the 1988 Texas oyster season Tuesday to criticize the proposed oyster management plan that the commission will vote on later this week.

The plan is expected to be adopted after a public hearing Thursday in Austin and is the final step toward giving the commission regulatory power over when and how oysters are harvested.

Hults said he will testify against the plan at the hearing, but said he expects that the commission will ignore the pleas of the oyster industry.

"It's like they became God overnight, and it's frightening, frightening to the people in this industry," Hults said.

Hults, who said the association represents about 1,000 people in the industry along the Texas coast, said the management plan is too vague and ambiguous for oysterermen to know what it will bring.

"We in the industry have a real problem trying to endorse a plan when we don't know what they're proposing," Hults said. "This plan could help us tremendously or it could shut us down tomorrow."

The commission last year banned oystering amid fears that the oyster reefs were overworked and damaged and that oyster populations were in danger of depletion. A court order lifted the ban after a month.

Students elect Bush during mock presidential election

NORTHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Michael Dukakis beat George Bush in his hometown, but it was all downhill from there in a mock election that might make some Dukakis boosters happy the torch hasn't yet been passed to a new generation.

High school students nationwide Tuesday chose Vice President Bush for president by a 2-1 margin, prompting observations that the tally is a clear signal the Old Guard has overtaken the New Frontier among the nation's youth.

"One person put it rather succinctly: The young people have grown up under the Reagan administration and they are rather complacent," said Kim Robert Nilsen, a spokesman for the Northfield Mount Hermon School.

"Issues do not tend to surface and be debated in any great fashion," Nilsen said. "With no burning issues, there's probably no real reason to contemplate going in another direction."

Northfield, a private, 1,160-student school in northwestern Massachusetts, coordinated what it called the first nationwide presidential election run by high school students.

Casting ballots a week before the real election were ninth-through 12th-graders at two schools in every state, from 25-student Weiser High in Idaho to 1,900-student Brookline High in Massachusetts, the alma mater of Dukakis, the state's Democratic governor.

In early returns, Bush, the Republican candidate, received 24,758 popular votes and 315 electoral votes, while Dukakis won 12,682 popular votes and 73 electoral votes, said Nilsen.

Eugene McCarthy winning 161, Nilsen said.

In Dukakis' hometown of Brookline, the Democrat received 1,008 votes to 289 for Bush. In Northfield, where all the results were phoned in, Dukakis took 518 votes while Bush won 207.

Nilsen said he was very encouraged by the total student turnout, which he said was a 71 percent response at the schools with a total enrollment of 75,000 students.

"That's really heartening. ... I think we're going to be in good hands some time in the future," he said.

He said the mock election was designed as a civics lesson for students who will be old enough to make their votes count in the real event in 1992.

In a room he called "Election Central," students manned five phone lines, taking the tallies and running them upstairs to a staff member at the controls of an election computer that tabulated the popular vote and the electoral college winner.

"We know mock elections are held in schools all over the United States, but they've never been tied together before," Nilsen said.

Some of the 150 Northfield Mount Hermon students who volunteered to work on the project operated a mock television anchor booth, posted results on a huge map of the United States and hung bunting and balloons.

The election, which cost $6,000, was financed by $50 fees from each school and donations ranging up to $500 from alumni of Northfield Mount Hermon.

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO VOTE FOR PETE GREENE as 132nd DISTRICT JUDGE?

In response to the following political advertisement

To The Voters of Scurry and Borden Counties

Yes, I have had and do have a regular practice of mailing congratulatory letters to various individuals in Scurry and Borden Counties as stated by my opponent in a recent ad attacking me.

99% of these letters are to children and youngsters who have excelled scholastically or in extra-curricular activities. These letters have been written to children who show their animals at Four H activities and/or are engaged in AJRA rodeo events.

The letters are in no way political and are a public service from a public official. Copies of these letters are in my office available to anyone who wishes to see them. Our young people are our greatest resource. Indeed they are the future of our state and nation and I believe their accomplishments should be recognized. I am very proud of them as I am sure are the citizens of Scurry and Borden Counties.

Over the four-year period I have been in office, this public service I have rendered to our youth could not have cost more than $25.00.

I plan to continue this practice after I am returned for a second term.

Gene L. Dulaney
Judge, 132nd District Court

Pd. Pol. Ad. paid for by Gene Dulaney, Snyder, Texas

I would like to state that I do not object to anyone congratulating children and youngsters who have excelled scholastically or in extra-curricular activities.

I do feel that if the District Judge or any other elected official or public servant wants to personally congratulate someone they should either:

1. Pay for it out of their own pocket; or,
2. Pay for it out of their political campaign funds.

Judge Dulaney apparently does not feel that there is anything improper about spending the taxpayer's money for this purpose.

I do not know how many letters were written or how much money has been expended by the Judge for this purpose. The Judge has emphatically stated, "The letters are in no way political and are a public service from a public official."

My questions are:

1. How did you determine the value of the "public service I have rendered to our youth" as not costing more than $25.00? Could it have been more?
  - a. How many postage stamps were used?
  - b. How much printed stationery and envelopes were used? At what cost?
  - c. What hourly rate did you use for the court co-ordinator who typed the letters? Was it based on the same rates that a private company would have to pay for temporary help in Snyder, Texas?
  - d. How much time did it take for the secretary to type each letter?
  - e. What is the rental value of the typewriter?

2. Who did benefit from sending the letters? The tax-payers or Judge Dulaney?
3. Should the tax-payers in Scurry County pay the expense of congratulating individuals living in Borden County?
4. I understand one of the letters was written to an individual who was appointed to the U.S. Naval Academy, was he of voting age? Were he and his family Democrats or Republicans?
5. As District Judge, did you ask the tax-payers whether they wanted to send the letters and to whom?
6. Should every elected official or public official be permitted to send congratulatory letters?
  - a. How many letters may each one of them send?
  - b. Who determines who should receive one?
  - c. Should the costs be allocated in their budgets?
  - d. Can you send consolation letters to the losers?
7. Would this be official business and has the Texas Legislature given District Judges "franking" privileges? If so, when?
8. Have you gotten a legal opinion from the chief law enforcement officer of the State of Texas, Democrat Jim Mattox, the State's Attorney General, as to whether the letters are "in no way political and are a public service from a public official"?
9. Can the hospital administrator send get well cards to the patients?
10. As a Judge, did you use good judgment printing the above referenced advertisement in the local newspaper and in stating "I plan to continue this practice after I am returned for a second term" in light of the following section of the Texas Penal Code?

1. Validity of prior laws

General theft statute under § 31.03, rather than official misconduct statute, under § 39.01, is more specific statute applicable to criminal conduct of any person stealing money of value of $10,000 or more, and thus it was not error to prosecute county treasurer under theft statute rather than official misconduct statute. Garza v. State (Cr.App.1985) 687 S.W.2d 325.

2. In general

Although proof of defendant's involvement in alleged acts of bribery was not necessary in order to affirm his racketeering conviction, acts charged in indictment against defendant, who alleged that charged acts actually were acts of official misconduct and that such acts, since misdemeanors, could not serve as predicate crimes for his racketeering conviction, did appear to fall within provisions of Texas bribery statute (§ 36.02); even if offenses were acts of official misconduct, inclusion of such charges in indictment and the evidence produced at trial to support these charges was not so prejudicial as to require reversal of defendant's racketeering conviction. U. S. v. Welch (C.A.1981) 656 F.2d 1039, rehearing denied 663 F.2d 101, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1767, 1768, 456 U.S. 915, 72 L.Ed.2d 173.

A member of the house of representatives who intentionally or knowingly charges expenditures

(2) misapplies any thing of value belonging to the government that has come into his custody or possession by virtue of his office or employment.

(b) An offense under Subsection (a)(1) of this section is a Class A misdemeanor.

(c) An offense under Subsection (a)(2) of this section is:

- (1) a Class C misdemeanor if the value of the use of the thing misapplied is less than $20;
- (2) a Class B misdemeanor if the value of the use of the thing misapplied is $20 or more but less than $200;
- (3) a Class A misdemeanor if the value of the use of the thing misapplied is $200 or more but less than $750;
- (4) a felony of the third degree if the value of the use of the thing misapplied is $750 or more but less than $20,000; and
- (5) a felony of the second degree if the value of the use of the thing misapplied is $20,000 or more.

Amended by Acts 1983, 68th Leg., p. 3241, ch. 558, § 7, eff. Sept. 1, 1983.

to the state in excess of the amount authorized by H.S.R. No. 4 could be subject to prosecution under this section. Op. Atty. Gen. 1975, No. H-666.

Use of a county courthouse for partisan campaign purposes not related to holding of an election constitutes private use of county facilities, an act not sanctioned by law, and answering published courthouse telephone line "Democratic Party Headquarters" and hanging "Democratic Party" banners over entrances to a county courthouse are indicia of private use of the courthouse and may be a violation of both the Election and Penal Codes. Election Law Opinion No. DAD-24 (1982).

Although a special discount or travel bonus resulting from a public servant's travel on official business, paid for by public entity, is a "thing of value" under subsec. (a) of this section and belongs to the government; if the financial management division of the public entity determines that the travel discount or bonus could not be used for the business of the public entity, the discount or bonus may be used for personal purposes. State Ethics Advisory Commission Opinion 1984-6.

5. Scope of official duties

Although a legislator's staff's services, the legislator's office facilities, supplies, and equipment are things of value belonging to the government that have come into the legislator's custody or possession by virtue of the legislator's office, efforts to solicit support among voters for a constitutional amendment is an activity connected with the legislator's office, and, thus a legislator may use his or her office facilities, supplies, and equipment to support or oppose the adoption of a constitutional amendment when the amendment becomes a ballot issue. State Ethics Advisory Commission Opinion 1984-10.

8. Taking or misapplying thing of value—In general

Incidental use of state telephones by state employees to make local personal calls does not violate this section, such use of telephones not being a "misapplication" as contemplated by this section, provided such use does not result in additional costs or damage to the state and generally will not hinder the day to day operation of government. State Ethics Advisory Commission Opinion 1984-9.

Office-holder commits offense under subd. (a) of this section if, with intent to obtain benefit, he intentionally or knowingly uses his office stationery, secretary, and typewriter for letter of application seeking appointment to another office outside state government, but misapplication does not occur when he writes recommendation for any person, including himself, to another state office. State Ethics Advisory Commission Opinion 1984-20.

13. Conflicts of interest—In general

Officers and employees of a public entity are not absolutely barred from serving as directors of an affiliated private nonprofit foundation. However, where the same persons serve in similar capacities with both agencies, the ability of the state agency to contract or otherwise transact business with the private entity is severely limited by common law principles guarding against conflicts of interest. Op. Atty. Gen. 1978, No. H-1309.

1983 Amendment. In subsec. (a), in the introductory language, deleted "for himself" and inserted "with intent"; deleted subs. (1), (2) and (3), renumbered former subs. (4) and (5) as (1) and (2), respectively, and in subd. (2) deleted "takes or" preceding "misapplies any thing", substituted "has" for "may have", inserted "office or", and deleted ", or secretes" with intent to take or misapply it, or pays or delivers it to any person knowing that such person is not entitled to receive it"; deleted former subsec. (b); relettered former subsec. (c) as (b) and therein in the first sentence substituted "Subsection" for "Subsections", deleted "through (a)(4)" following "(a)(1)" and deleted the second sentence; and added a new subsec. (c).

For applicability of change in law made by 1983 amendatory act to offenses committed before effective date of Act, see note under § 36.01.

Specialized ads set for some key states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrat Michael Dukakis is running television ads that tout his home ownership plan and trash his rival's trade record, but only for the benefit of viewers in the key electoral state of Ohio.

The Ohio campaign, aimed at stretched working families, is one of several specialized television and radio appeals mounted by Dukakis and Republican George Bush in states critical to their presidential ambitions.

The crossfire has been particularly heavy in California, Texas and Ohio, and in states with large Hispanic voter populations. A blitz of state-specific advertising is expected in the few days before the election, with New York, New Jersey, Illinois and Pennsylvania among the candidates for a final fusillade. One of the premier battlegrounds is California, with 47 electoral votes and an electorate deeply concerned about the environment. Bush jumped on that concern early, trying to alert voters with the specter of Boston's polluted harbor.

"Michael Dukakis says he wants to protect our environment. But the EPA called Boston Harbor the dirtiest waterway in America," says an ad for the vice president. "And now, Michael Dukakis says he wants to do for America what he's done for Massachusetts. California can't take that risk." Variations on the spot are also running in New Jersey and Washington.

Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, is countercharging in California that Bush's administration cut funds to clean up the state's coast — from San Francisco to Southern California in one ad, from San Diego Harbor to San Francisco Bay in another.

The ads say Bush opposed a crackdown on polluter corporations, twice supported a veto of the Clean Water Act and end by saying, "That's why the non-partisan League of Conservation Voters has endorsed Michael Dukakis."

California Democrats have been among the most active in the nation in creating their own ads. The state party is hitting two vote-Democratic ads running the GOP record on education and the environment, as well as three "Dukakis is on your side" spots taped last week at a raucous Dukakis rally in Los Angeles.

DR. GOTT

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any danger of choking on one's mucus? I seem to have a lot.

DEAR READER: Any foreign material that enters the trachea (windpipe) can cause respiratory distress. Thick mucus will, too, because it behaves like any fluid and can cause blockage.

If you have an excess of respiratory mucus, with or without a cough, check with a doctor to discover the reason for your problem.

DR. GOTT: I could start a drug store with all the pills I take for blood pressure: Blocadren, probenecid, Dyazide, hydralazine, Capoten and Micro K. I think 12 pills a day are too much.

DEAR READER: Twelve pills a day does seem like a lot. Probably some could be combined or eliminated.

Although I believe that many doctors overprescribe (and patients would be better off with more parsimonious practitioners), patients with hypertension do need treatment. Uncontrolled high blood pressure is a major cause of cardiovascular disease and stroke.

In your case, not all your medicines are for your hypertension. For example, Micro K replaces excessive potassium loss and probenecid is used to treat gout. Blocadren (a beta blocker), Capoten (an inhibitor of angiotensin converting enzyme) and hydralazine are anti-hypertensive drugs, each one having a different mode of action. Dyazide (a combination of two diuretics) is used to treat high blood pressure, it is also prescribed to rid the body of excess fluid accumulation caused by Blocadren. Dyazide can cause gout and, occasionally, potassium depletion.

As you can see, some of your medicines are being used to treat the side effects of your other drugs. Draw this fact to your physician's attention. Therapeutic doses of one anti-hypertensive might be preferable to taking sub-optimal doses of three.

Furthermore, by using drug substitutions, your doctor might be able to reduce side-effects, thereby enabling you to eliminate some other pills.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicines." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A group of us walk for an hour after work. My friend and I cover about three and a half miles, the others about two miles. They say they burn up just as many calories as we do. Are they correct?

DEAR READER: You and your friend are covering more territory in your one-hour walk; therefore, you are burning up more calories than are the slowpokes.

Caloric expenditure is a function of time and level of activity, not just time alone. People will consume more calories in an hour of strenuous activity than they will during an hour of moderate exercise.

S&L losses lower

HONOLULU (AP) — Losses by the nation's savings industry dropped sharply last summer as the government transferred to its own books billions of the industry's accumulated red ink, a government economist said.

Final figures for the July-September quarter aren't due out until next month, but James Barth, chief economist of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said Tuesday that the nation's 3,048 S&Ls lost about $2 billion.

That's substantial, but it's down significantly from losses of $3.6 billion in the previous quarter and $3.9 billion in the first three months of this year.

S&Ls, hard hit in depressed oil regions of the Southwest, are suffering their worst year since the Depression. The industry last earned a small profit in the first three months of 1987.

Barth, speaking at the U.S. League of Savings Institutions annual convention, attributed shrinking losses to regulators' stepped-up pace of S&L rescues and closings, totaling 137 so far this year.

"Losses, rather than being reported on the books of the institutions, are being transferred to the books of the (deposit) insurance fund," he said.

Also, because most of the rescue packages guarantee restructured institutions against future loss as well as taking away past loss, there is no way of telling from industry numbers if losses in those institutions are continuing.

R. Dan Brumbaugh, a private analyst and former bank board economist, said the new loss number does not necessarily indicate the cost of cleaning up the S&L mess, estimated by regulators at $45 billion to $50 billion, is getting better.

Public, politicians all polled out with seven days to go

NEW YORK (AP) — Political pollsters have plied their trade in stormy weather in the presidential election's final weeks, buffeted by complaints that their work is distorting the campaign and alienating voters.

Democrat Michael Dukakis has led the criticism — not surprisingly, for he's trailed George Bush in the polls. But Republicans also have questioned the effect on the race of the emphasis on poll results.

"The question is whether these polls are giving the impression to the American people that their vote doesn't matter," Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr., the Republican Party chairman, said Tuesday. "There is that danger."

The public, as well, is down on the polls. In recent Gallup surveys, 45 percent said reporting who's ahead in polls is bad for the country. And many said polls do not improve press coverage of the election. And even more said polls should not be reported in the final weeks of a presidential campaign.

The sentiment likely reflects disquiet with the way polls have muscled in on the political discussion this year. Bush and Dukakis have been scored in more than 90 major national surveys, six times the number in the 1964 election.

"I think people are a little tired of all the horse race polls," said Andrew Kohut, president of the Gallup Organization. "They want to know what the state of the race is and they're interested in public opinion. But there has been such a barrage of polls that they're saturated."

That certainly is true of the candidates. Dukakis, trailing for months, has begun to express frustration. Saturday, he declared that voters were "not going to let the pollsters or anyone else make their decisions for them."

Poll-takers agree. While reporting on polls may shape public perceptions of who's ahead, they said in interviews this week, poll results themselves disprove the suggestion that surveys influence voter decisions.

"Every time people complain about the polls they talk about it leading opinion," said CBS News pollster Warren Mitofsky. "If that was the case, the polls would never change except to go up for the leading candidate."

"I don't know of a single pollster or political analyst who believes that the polls are creating a bandwagon effect," said Everett Ladd, head of the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research at the University of Connecticut.

"There's a lot of evidence that people reach their voting decisions for deep and very substantial reasons," Ladd said. "They have interests and identifications that they bring to bear on the process. They aren't tossed around because of what a poll finds."

Supreme Court hears arguments in case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas could be forced to refund $2.5 million in taxes collected on sales of books, newspapers and magazines if the Supreme Court rules a now-defunct law that exempted religious publications was unconstitutional, an attorney says.

Roger James George Jr., an attorney representing Texas Monthly magazine, told the high court Tuesday that the law discriminated on the basis of content and amounted to an unconstitutional promotion of religion.

"The problem is intrusiveness," he said. "The problem with this exemption is that it focuses on the message. Someone must determine what message is appropriate."

At issue is a Texas court ruling that said the sales tax on publications other than religious periodicals neither violated equal protection rights nor breached the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

From October 1984 through October 1987, sales of books and newspaper subscriptions were subject to the Texas sales tax. But "periodicals published or distributed by a religious faith that consist wholly of writings promulgating the teaching of the faith" were exempt from the tax.

However, in October 1987, the Texas Legislature reinstated the broad exemption for publication sales that had existed prior to 1984.

Texas Monthly, a general interest magazine with a circulation of about 280,000, challenged the law after paying $149,107 in sales taxes in 1985.

George told the court Tuesday that the exemption results in a subsidy of religion because religious organizations don't have to pay the same tax as newspapers or magazines.

George argued that under the law, religion did not get special treatment for other sales, "except for the message." A church's sale of candles or a crucifix, he said, are subject to taxation.

While sales taxes now do not apply to magazine subscription sales, George argued there was nothing to stop the state Legislature from imposing them during another session.

Officials discuss illegal alien plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans who oversee youthful lawbreakers are discussing, with their counterparts in other states and Mexico, a way to establish procedures for returning illegal alien juvenile offenders to Mexico.

"Instead of Americanizing Mexican nationals, let's work with them in Mexico," said Mario Garza, commission liaison with Mexican officials and assistant superintendent of the West Texas Children's Home in Pyote.

Mexico would "within their value system and their traditions and their culture to be able to meet their needs appropriately," Garza said Tuesday.

Garza and other commission staff members met with Mexican juvenile services officials Tuesday and have been discussing with representatives from other U.S. states an effort to establish procedures for returning juvenile offenders.

Ron Jackson, commission executive director, estimated Tuesday about $2 million a year in state funds is spent on Mexican juvenile offenders. In fiscal year 1988, 150 of them were committed to the commission, Garza said.

There are now about 50 Mexican youths under the commission's authority, with 40 of them in the West Texas Children's Home and the remainder in various facilities, Garza said.

Each offender has an average stay of six months at a cost of about $72 per day, he said.

"Why should we keep a Mexican national child in our institution when they have one in Monterrey?" Jackson asked. "We obviously spend a substantial amount of state dollars taking care of Mexican nationals."

Mexican officials also are interested in the return of youthful offenders to that country, said Jackson.

A treaty signed in 1979 by President Carter enabled the legal return of adult and juvenile illegal aliens and immigrants. But procedures never have been put in place for juvenile offenders, according to the commission.

"We believe that to serve their population best, we would be doing both countries a service by returning their kids home, and also (sending) American juvenile offenders in Mexico back to the United States," Garza said.

"We feel that both of these client populations can be best served in their natural habitat, with their supporting family structures and within the community they'll be reintegrated back into," he said.

Garza did not have figures on the number of U.S. juveniles who are in Mexican facilities.

Better follow-up supervision also would be available to Mexican juvenile offenders if the program was put into place, added Garza and Emily Helm, commission legal services director. Such offenders would then be in the Mexican juvenile justice system.

"Many of our wards who are Mexican nationals are returned home with no ability by this agency to monitor their activities or assist in their reintegration back into society," Jackson said.

The commission is working with officials from other states toward developing a letter to the U.S. Department of Justice endorsing the project, Garza said.

Details of the program would be worked out with Mexican officials, he said.

Negative campaigning law sought

AUSTIN (AP) — A state senator fighting for re-election says there ought to be a law against all this negative political campaigning.

Sen. Robert "Bob" Glasgow said he will introduce that legislation.

Deceit, deception and lies are becoming campaign staples, causing "good, moral people" to steer away from politics, the Stephenville Democrat said.

"The state of political campaigning in Texas is absolutely at an all-time low, and it's absolutely disgraceful. It's Republicans, it's Democrats. It has got to stop," said Glasgow.

He faces Republican Jesse Coffey in the District 22 race in North Central Texas. Glasgow said if he wins, he will introduce comprehensive election reforms to regulate campaign ads and other public statements by politicians and their media consultants.

An attorney, Glasgow acknowledged it would be tough to draft such legislation without interfering with the First Amendment right to freedom of speech. But he said it can be done by setting the standard that the person knew a statement was false when he made it.

Though Glasgow denounces "negative" ads, one of his radio commercials attacks Coffey's record of losing elections.

The advertisement uses music and sound effects to tell the story of a would-be politician who keeps running into walls — bonk!

"But after five races and five losses (Bonk! Bonk! Bonk! Bonk! Bonk!), the only thing you can really say about Jesse is he's a man who loves contact," according to the ad.

The senator has complained of his own opponent's campaign tactics.

A consultant for Coffey dismissed Glasgow's protests.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for seven years, have two children, ages 2 and 6, and have a wonderful life together. However, I am at a loss to understand this problem, and I'm too embarrassed to discuss it with anyone.

I am reluctant to hire a baby sitter so that my husband and I can go out. Every time an event comes up that requires our attendance without the kids, I experience tremendous anxiety. I have even lied to my husband several times, telling him I wasn't able to get a sitter when, in fact, I didn't even try to get one.

It is now 1 p.m. and we're invited to a 7 p.m. dinner, and I am very upset because my husband is pushing me to get a sitter and I don't really want to go out. I am educated, intelligent, over 40, and I just don't understand why it's so difficult for me to leave my children for even a few hours.

We can't afford psychiatric help, so I'm hoping that you can throw some light on my problem. I am a homemaker who is perfectly happy to remain inside my house. I even dislike going outside to do yard-work. Abby, can you help me?

HOMEBOY IN IRVINE, CALIF.

DEAR HOMEBOY: I am not qualified to diagnose your symptoms, but they would suggest that you are "agoraphobic" — you have a fear of leaving your house. You must talk to your doctor about this. It is far more common than most people think, and you can be helped. (There are support groups in your area!)

Please don't ignore these signs. After you've seen your physician, write again and let me know how you are. I care.

daughter who is a credit-card junkie. She's divorced, has one child, gets child support, has a good job, but we have to help her out every time she's in debt over her head because she has no one else to turn to. (This is the third time.) We can't understand how she got into the habit of charging things she can't afford. She wasn't raised that way. We never bought anything we couldn't afford.

She asks us to love her as she is. We do love her, but we can't afford her. She's a beautiful, generous, sensible person, but this one fault is getting us down. How can we help her?

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

DEAR SLEEPLESS: First, tell her that she is not going to have her parents around forever to rescue her when she gets in a jam. She needs professional counseling now to teach her how to budget her money and live within her means. Credit unions, family service centers and some religious groups offer some kind of free or low-cost credit counseling.

Advise your daughter to write to: National Foundation for Consumer Credit Inc., 8701 Georgia Ave., Suite 507, Silver Spring, Md. 20910. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and she will be told where counseling is available in her area.

Your daughter should also inquire about behavior modification therapy, available through her county mental health clinic. Irresponsible spending has become a national epidemic. Your daughter is not alone. Good luck.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

DEAR ABBY: At 60, I need your advice. My husband is disabled and retired, and I am facing retirement soon. Our problem is a 35-year-old

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An Ohio man is charged in connection with a pipe bomb blast that left one boy dead and five other children injured, authorities say.

Myron Fenton, Owner

Dear Friend:

Four years ago I wrote to you asking you to vote for me as your District Judge. Now I am writing you to ask you to return me to that office for a second four-year term.

During my term of office I have endeavored to the utmost of my ability to be fair to all those who came before me, to be fair to the victims of crime as well as the criminals. I have favored no one above another. I have been tough on crime, but with equal justice for all.

I have reduced the operating budget of the District Court, set more rigid standards for the plea-bargaining process, greatly accelerated the progress of cases through my court, and have a very small number of cases on my docket to be tried this year.

Most-important, every person who comes before me, whether criminal or victim, civil complainant or defendant, is treated with courtesy and justice in accordance with the laws of the great State of Texas.

I am a full time, hard working judge who keeps regular working hours. I am proud of my record as your District Judge, and proud to stand on my record as a judge for all the people as I ask you to return me for a second term.

My $1,200.00 filing fee was paid by me out of my own pocket. No one has given me an exorbitant amount of money to run. I am and have always been independent. I do not and have never belonged to a clique of any kind, for any reason. I am obligated to no one. As your District Judge, I serve only one master, and that is Justice.

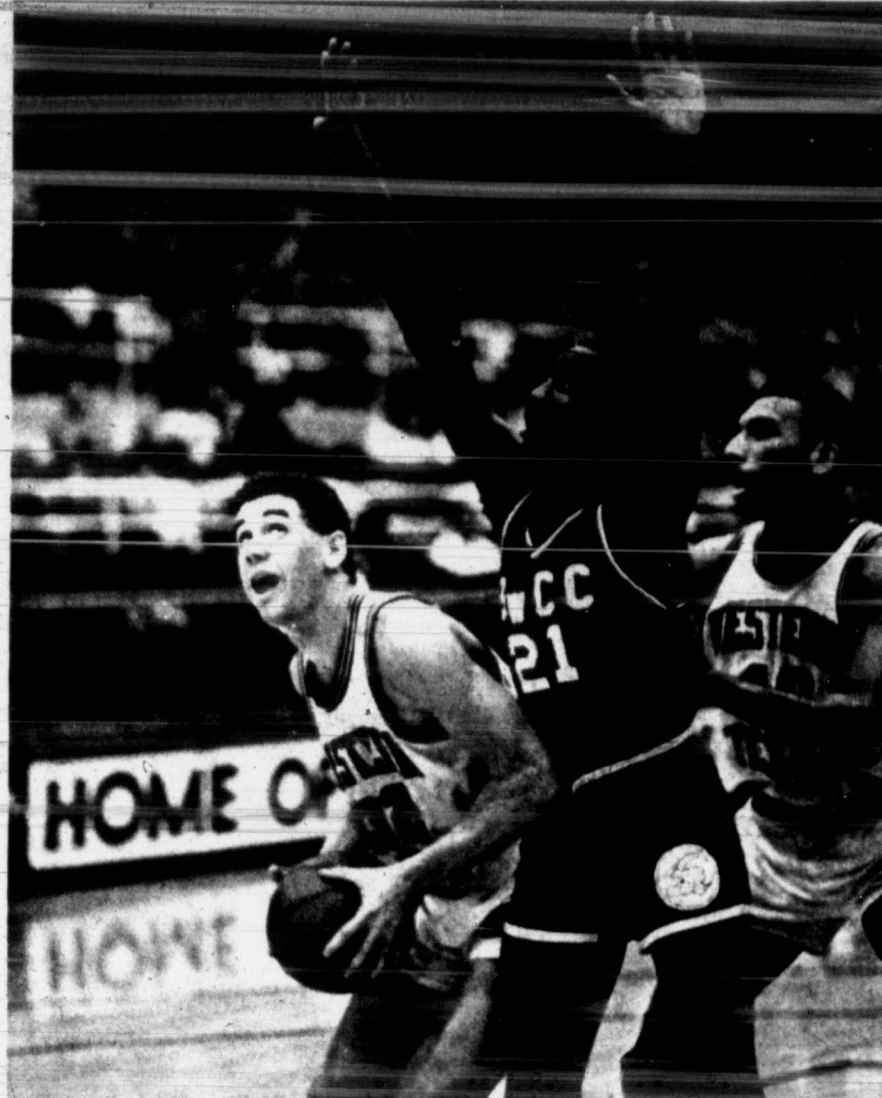

My opponent has stated repeatedly, publicly and privately, that he does not want the job of District Judge and that he is running only because certain people are financing him.

I do want the office of District Judge. I love the job and am proud to stand on the record I have made for our court. I am dedicated to preserving the freedom and rights of every citizen of our county and pledge to hear from both sides of every question before rendering a decision.

Thank you for your consideration.

Westerners outlast Southwestern Christian

Western Texas College overcame a slippery first half to defeat Southwestern Christian's Rams in its first home game of the season here Tuesday night, 107-96.

The victory gives the Westerners a 2-0 record heading into their next outing, which will be Monday, Nov. 7, in Ranger.

Hounded by Southwestern's full court press, Western had trouble holding on to the ball early here Tuesday. Seventeen first-half turnovers helped feed the Rams' fast-break offense.

"We were beating ourselves," said WTC Coach Tony Mauldin. "We weren't doing the things we were supposed to do. We were panicking and we let them force us into a running game."

Western scored first, but Southwestern went in front less than three minutes into the game and led by as many as 8 midway through the half. Darrell Jordan keyed the effort, scoring the first 11 Ram points.

Western battled back, however, and regained the lead on a basket from Vladimir McCrary with 3:59 left, 37-36.

Southwestern answered on a goal from Briant Collier and the teams traded the lead four more times before David Smith aced two free throws to put WTC in front 49-48 at intermission.

"In the second half we tried to play solid man-to-man defense and not take chances, plus, we wanted to slow it down a little," said Coach Mauldin. "We wanted to go inside and take advantage of our height. We thought we might be able to get them in foul trouble."

Western cut the turnovers from 17 to 14 in the second half, and four of those came after the game was all but played out.

The Westerners led the entire second half, but never by more than 9 points until Smith's soft touch made it an 81-71 game with 8:17 to play. Smith, a 6-4 freshman from Garland, came off the bench to score 6 unanswered points and help ignite the team.

Southwestern stayed within striking distance for five more minutes, but some strong finishing touches—offensively from Bobby Spear and Kenneth Critton put the game away. Critton knocked down a pair of free throws with 2:54 to play and Spear added two more with 2:29 left. Critton followed with a field goal. Southwestern's Robert Bennett answered with a basket for the Rams, but back-to-back 2-pointers from Spear gave Western a 105-91 lead with 90 seconds on the clock.

Spear, a sophomore from Albuquerque, N.M. who earned conference honorable mention honors last season, led all scorers with 25 points. He pulled down 12 rebounds and had 2 steals. Crit-ton also had a strong all-around game. The 6-8 first-year player from Dallas scored 12 points and led on the boards with 13 rebounds - 11 in the second half.

Both teams put five players in double figures. McCrary, 6-8 from San Antonio, camped on the rim for 24 points and 9 rebounds while Critton and Bernard Williams scored 12 points each and Smith added 11.

In all, 11 Westerners scored and three others saw action.

"I think we were able to pull ours (starters) out and give them some rest more often," said

Mauldin. "We got a lot of help from a lot of players."

Western shot a hot 37 of 45 from the free throw line, paced by Smith's 6-for-6 effort. In contrast, Southwestern Christian hit only 19 of 34 attempts.

The Rams, 0-1, got 20 points from Charles Bailey, 18 from Collier, 13 from Lincoln Browder, 12 from Bennett, 10 from Jordan and 9 from Melvin Oliver.

"We're pleased with the win but we know we're going to have to get a lot better," Mauldin said. "We have to cut down on our tur-

Lady Dusters getting ready for tournament in Levelland

LEVELLAND -- It's Western Texas against Western Oklahoma as Coach Kelly Chadwick's Lady Dusters jump back into roundball tournament play here this week.

The Dusters, 2-1, battle Western Oklahoma at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Texan Dome on the South Plains College Campus.

"We really don't know anything about them but we expect a tough tournament," said Coach Chadwick.

Western also plays Barton County College at 6 p.m. Friday and Tyler Junior College at 4 p.m. Saturday in the classic-style format. Other teams involved are tournament host South Plains, Northern Oklahoma and Howard College.

Tickets will be $2 for adults and $1 for students at the gate.

"What we're hoping is to just get experience and playing time and naturally we're hoping to win the games," said Coach Chadwick. "In the past, Western Oklahoma has had some kids that have been pretty good players but they've had a lot of inconsistency when we've played them. I don't know what kind of recruiting year they had or anything. I've heard Barton County has some big kids and of course Tyler traditionally has always been very, very strong in women's basketball."

"What we want to do is get three good ballgames and get the kids some playing time to try to start eliminating some of the things we're making mistakes on. We're missing a lot of free throws and making a lot of turnovers. That's what I'm going to concentrate on this week," he added.

Chadwick said at least two players are questionable for the Thursday's game, Julie Roewe (back) and Elayne Maddox (pulled muscle).

Landry wants 'Pokes to win 'em all but he'll take Aikman if they don't

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Tom Landry doesn't want a ticket to the Troy Aikman sweepstakes but if fate hands him one he'll take it and Aikman.

Aikman is the UCLA quarterback considered by scouts as the most likely to be the top pick in next spring's NFL draft. Of course, the worst team in the league gets first choice.

"I'd like to finish winning everyone of our games," Landry said. "Some of us may not be here next year if we don't win some."

However, Landry said if Dallas does finish as the worst team then he'd pick Aikman.

"I don't care how many quarterbacks you have, you would want one like him," Landry said. "He might be able to make an impact as a rookie."

Landry has strongly endorsed quarterback Steve Pelluer despite the Cowboys' five-game losing streak, predicting "he'll blossom out and make the keys plays to make a difference."

Landry said Pelluer is "tough mentally and will fight back. Of course, the supporting cast has to come along, too."

Backup quarterback Kevin Sweeney will get a chance only if Pelluer is not operating "effectively," Landry said.

Landry said "I can't predict when that would be. It would have to be from a feel I have in the arena."

He said Sweeney, who has looked good in practice, can't handle as much offense as Pelluer.

"We would have to work from a restricted game plan for him although he (Sweeney) is well trained," Landry said. "He has spent his life in football. I still won't do anything that I don't think is in the best interest of the team to win."

Landry said Pelluer should bounce back from his worst performance of the year. Pelluer suffered two interceptions in a 16-10 loss to Phoenix and completed only 9 of 31 passes.

Dallas made only 1 of 13 third-down situations. Pelluer suffered a sore shoulder during the game but should be ready to start against the New York Giants on Sunday.

Bears Ditka hospitalized

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka suffered chest pains today at the team's training camp and was taken to Lake Forest Hospital, officials say.

Ditka was in serious condition, said hospital spokeswoman Nancy Herman. He was being seen by staff cardiologist Dr. Jay Alexander, she said.

"We don't know anything more," Ms. Herman said.

She would provide no additional details, referring all calls to the Bears' training camp, also located in this north Chicago suburb.

Ditka was taken to the hospital by private vehicle from Halas Hall at the camp, said Lt. Brian Wilson at the community Fire Department.

"He was taken about an hour ago with chest pains," accompanied by a couple of the team's assistant coaches, team receptionist Louis Johnson said about 9 a.m.

She said Ditka normally reports to the camp at about 4 a.m.

Cats prepare for Thursday

Snyder's younger football squads square off against Big Spring on Thursday.

At home, the local eighth graders entertain Big Spring at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. at Travis Field. The Tiger junior varsity will host Big Spring at 7 p.m. at Tiger Stadium.

Snyder seventh graders play in Big Spring at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. The local freshmen also play in Big Spring, at 6 p.m.

4-4A ladies begin playoffs

District 4-4A volleyball representatives Pecos and Fort Stockton begin post-season action Saturday.

Pecos, 28-2 and defending state champion, will play Hereford at 5 p.m. in Seminole. Fort Stockton, which defeated Sweetwater and Andrews in a district playoff for second place, will play Dumas at 2 p.m. in Lubbock Coronado Gym.

Oilers hope to halt history; stop Browns' 7-game string

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers are going against recent history when they host the Cleveland Browns Monday night in the Astrodome.

Cleveland has won seven consecutive non-strike games over the Oilers and eight of the last 10 meetings.

The Browns came into the Astrodome last year under identical circumstances and blasted the Oilers 40-7.

Oilers flopped.

Both teams had 6-3 records prior to last year's game.

"I don't even remember that game," Childress said. "I don't know of any problems with Cleveland, okay? I see Cleveland as just another team. They're a great team and we need to play great to compete with them."

The Browns will present a greater challenge because of their ball control tactics, Childress said.

The Browns in the past five years were 34-27 in 1983 and last year's 15-10 victory by the replacement Oilers.

The Oilers, 4-0 at home this season, were beaten at home by the replacement New England Patriots, 21-7 last season.

"We need to approach it as a business game," Oiler safety Keith Bostic said. "We have to keep doing the things it takes to beat a good team, fewer penalties, no mental errors. We have to do those things we did against Washington."

The Oilers have been on a roller coaster ride the entire season.

They won back-to-back games to open the season, then lost to the New York Jets and came back the next week with a 31-7 victory over New England.

The Oilers dipped again with a 32-23 loss in Philadelphia, followed up with victories over Kansas City and Pittsburgh and spiraled to a 44-21 loss at Cincinnati.

The Oilers dipped again with a 32-23 loss in Philadelphia, followed up with victories over Kansas City and Pittsburgh and spiraled to a 44-21 loss at Cincinnati.

The Oilers careened back to the top Sunday night with their best game of the season, beating Washington 41-17 and making it look easy.

Houston and Cleveland are tied for second place in the AFC Central Division race with 6-3 records behind Cincinnati, 7-2.

of 24 writers, two from each NL city. First baseman Mark Grace of the Chicago Cubs was second with 61 points, followed by right-hander Tim Lincecum of the Los Angeles Dodgers with 35.

Sabo hit .312 through the All-Star Game with 32 doubles and 10 homers. He was the only rookie in the All-Star Game, stealing a base before a Riverfront Stadium crowd that chanted his name.

Sabo earns honors as Rookie of Year

CINCINNATI (AP) - Chris Sabo is taking nothing for granted.

The Cincinnati Reds' third baseman completed an improbable major-league arrival Tuesday by receiving National League Rookie of the Year honors. The award, voted by the Baseball Writers Association of America, topped a season in which he went from unknown backup infielder to All-Star to local hero because of his gritty style of play.

The only thing he didn't do was convince himself he's an entrenched major leaguer.

"I don't feel secure at all," he said Tuesday. "I've always felt that way. As far as I'm concerned, I've got to win a job in '89 like I did this year."

"My dad always said, as long as you produce, you'll be wanted. When you stop producing, you're gone."

He produced well enough at the season's start to make veteran Buddy Bell expendable, earn a backup spot on the NL All-Star team, and win recognition as the Jackie Robinson NL Rookie of the Year despite a poor second half.

Sabo, 26, received 79 points and 11 first-place votes from a panel

Sports briefs

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) - Top-seeded Martina Navratilova needed just 47 minutes to complete a 6-3, 6-0 victory over South Africa's Karen Schimper in the first round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of New England tournament.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - Four backcourt stars - Dave Bing, K.C. Jones, Earl Monroe and Lenny Wilkens - were among 16 players, coaches and contributors nominated for the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Brown upset over sanctions imposed on former program

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Larry Brown, who coached the Kansas Jayhawks to the NCAA basketball championship last spring, says the NCAA went a long way to find a violation in his program and is upset university officials continually have criticized him.

Brown, who now coaches the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA, said Tuesday he was upset about sanctions imposed on the basketball program by an NCAA Infractions Committee, which penalized the university for recruiting violations.

Brown says he gave a student-athlete $364 for a plane ticket to see his dying grandmother and later told the NCAA about the payment.

He said he later talked with NCAA officials and did not believe sanctions, if any, would be major and said he would not have left Kansas if he believed the penalties would be so severe.

"The bottom line is we know what expense (the NCAA) went to and how much time they (spent trying) to figure out the things that we were doing and to see if there was any pattern and they couldn't find anything,"

Brown said.

"That makes me feel good, but it hurts us all because there are new kids in that program and a new coaching staff and they are going to suffer."

"I just know that we ran a clean program and I know the expense the NCAA went to try to investigate our program," he said.

Kansas on Tuesday was put on a three-year probation for recruiting violations and will not be allowed to defend its title.

It will be barred from postseason play in the first year of the probation and will not be allowed to give paid campus recruiting visits in 1989 and will be stripped of one scholarship during that period.

Reports have linked former Memphis State guard Vincent Askew to the probe although the NCAA announcement did not identify anyone. Askew was recruited by Brown and spent the summer of 1986 on campus. He then returned to Memphis without playing for the Jayhawks.

Incumbents hold financial big edge over challengers

WIN DRAWING—These two students won jamboxes at Northeast recently. The names of all students who had not been absent during the month of October were placed in a container from which two winning names were drawn. They are Kimber Beck, a second grader in Willita Farmer's class, and Monica Barboza, a fifth grader in Rebekah Thornton's class. (SDN Staff Photo)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen have built formidable campaign war chests that exceed their challengers' fund raising by tens of thousands of dollars, a study by Common Cause shows.

The citizens' group studied the 789 major party candidates seeking a House seat nationwide and found incumbents have a nearly 6-to-1 edge over their opponents in fund raising, including a twelvefold advantage in contributions from special interest groups.

"We must restore competition and accountability to our political system by fundamentally reforming the way our congressional campaigns are financed," said Common Cause president Fred Wertheimer.

Wertheimer criticized the system of political-action committees financing campaigns and said it is "creating a challenger-proof House of Representatives."

"When House incumbents can't lose, regardless of performance, and House challengers can't win, regardless of talent, then we don't have real elections and we don't have representative government," he said.

Two Texas candidates, Democratic Reps. John Bryant of Dallas and Mickey Leland of Houston — rank among the top 30 House office-seekers nationwide in PAC receipts, Common Cause said, basing its findings on reports filed with the Federal Election Commission for the period beginning Jan. 1, 1987, through the end of September.

Bryant placed 17th with PAC receipts of $334,258; Leland was in 24th place with receipts of $321,425.

Bryant also placed 16th nationally for total receipts, at $781,649. His opponent, Republican Lon Williams, has raised $132,002, of that $8,626 in PAC money, and has spent $120,801. Bryant had $415,175 cash on hand going into the final weeks of the election; Williams had $11,200.

Only one Texas incumbent, Republican Rep. Bill Archer of Houston, did not accept contributions from PACs, according to the Common Cause study.

The ranking GOP member of the powerful tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Archer cannot allow "any false impressions regarding the decisions he makes and the actions he takes," a spokesman said.

A Bryant spokesman said the congressman tries to raise as much money as possible "in case he has a stiff opponent," and supports legislation to minimize the role PACs play in shaping campaigns.

When it comes to spending, House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth leads the Texas delegation at $685,720, putting him in 14th place nationally.

Wright has no opponent but spends a substantial part of his war chest helping the campaigns of other Democrats, said his spokesman, George Mair.

"We didn't know we didn't have a challenger until Jan. 6 and money might have been spent before a campaign," Mair said. "And there are two write-in challengers so that suggests we might do something — an ad here, a placard there, a lawn sign. There are all sorts of reasons."

Another big spender in the Texas delegation has been Republican Rep. Steve Bartlett of Dallas, who has put $648,301 into his race against Democrat Blake Cowden, to earn a 17th-place national ranking.

Cowden has spent $6,500, raised $9,214, and has $2,713 in his war chest. Bartlett has $346,013 cash on hand and has raised $590,870. While Cowden has received no PAC money, Bartlett's campaign has taken in $169,938 in contributions from the committees formed by companies, labor unions and other special interest groups.

The slimmest fund-raising margin between a Texas incumbent and challenger is between Republican Rep. Mac Sweeney of Wharton and Democrat Greg Laughlin, a West Columbia attorney, the study showed.

Sweeney has raised $411,127 and spent $333,496 to the $359,686 raised and the $260,756 spent by Laughlin. The challenger, however, had more cash on hand — $65,864 — than Sweeney's $32,853.

In Texas' only open seat, Republican Larry Milner is out-raising and out-spending his Democratic opponent, state Sen. Bill Sarpalius, the study showed. Milner has raised $321,311 and spent $292,392; Sarpalius has raised $212,695 and spent $186,952. Sarpalius, however, has received more PAC money, $115,150, to $68,600 for Milner.

Common Cause found incumbents nationwide had raised $136.9 million to $25.3 million for challengers. That included a $62.4 million to $5.3 million margin in PAC funds.

Incumbents had not only outspent their opponents by $92 million to $20.9 million, but they also had a dramatic $79.3 million to $3.6 million advantage in cash on hand for the campaign's final weeks.

Vacant apartment buildings razed in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Three vacant and dilapidated buildings said to be havens for drug dealers have been demolished, marking the end of a one-year campaign by Dallas Police.

Bulldozers demolished a 24-unit apartment complex, a 10-unit building and a duplex Tuesday.

"We started trying to do something about these places a year ago today," said Lt. David Goelden, a police patrol supervisor. "These are so far gone that no amount of money could improve them."

"They've been a haven for drug dealers to smoke and sell their dope. We can't keep closing our eyes to this."

Joe Johnson, who owns 100 apartment units in the same neighborhood, also said he was happy to see the buildings demolished.

"We're fighting crime," Johnson said. "They have a serious drug problem here in south Dallas, and we're doing what we can to try to stop it."

Judge Howell is reprimanded

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas appeals court Judge Charles Ben Howell, a Republican running for the Texas Supreme Court seat held by Democratic Justice Raul Gonzalez, has been publicly reprimanded by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The reprimand issued Tuesday referred to a lawsuit that a jury found Howell filed "in bad faith," and said that means it was filed "with the knowledge that his actions were wrong and in intentional disregard to the rights of others."

"The commission recognizes a judge's right as an individual to pursue or defend litigation. However, a judge should not disregard the rights of others by bringing lawsuits in bad faith," the commission said in the reprimand.

"At a time when the courts of this state are burdened by heavy caseloads, a judge above all other persons, must not initiate litigation in bad faith," it said.

Howell, a judge on the 5th Court of Appeals in Dallas, did not return a phone call from The Associated Press. Gonzalez is running for re-election against Howell.

A spokesman for Howell, who refused to allow his name to be used, said Howell would discuss the reprimand at a Wednesday news conference.

Howell violated provisions in the Code of Judicial Conduct and "acted in a manner that brought discredit to the judiciary" by filing a lawsuit in bad faith, the commission ruled. The lawsuit was filed against Homecraft Land Development Inc. and others.

Tom McCorkle, lawyer for Howell, said in an Oct. 18 letter to commission Executive Director Robert Flowers that the matter was "beyond the jurisdiction of the commission" and "nothing more than a retaliatory attempt to stir up trouble for Judge Howell with charges of no substance."

A public reprimand is the most serious action the commission can take short of filing a formal proceeding to remove or censure a judge, Flowers said.

Howell sued Homecraft and others regarding a Dallas real estate title, the commission said. He later amended the action to include claims under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act. He appeared as a plaintiff and served as attorney in the case, the commission said.

Homecraft counterclaimed for a bad faith filing, the commission said. A jury found Howell had brought the suit alleging deceptive trade practices against Homecraft and U.S. Home Corp. in bad faith. The court found Howell's suit under the act was groundless, the commission said.

"The commission also noted that the discredit to the judiciary was so evident as to result in the presiding juror writing the trial judge after the case had ended, stating, 'The reason I am taking the time to write to you now is because the behavior of Judge Howell greatly disturbed me during the trial,'" the reprimand said.

"I honestly feel he has abused the system by bringing these ridiculous charges against the defendants..." the presiding juror wrote.

Howell was ordered to pay $87,000 to Homecraft after the jury said he sued in bad faith. The judgment was reduced to $75,000 by an appeals court.

Howell then appealed to the Texas Supreme Court and demanded that the nine justices disqualify themselves from the case. They refused and twice rejected his case.

The provisions of the Code of Judicial Conduct that the commission said were violated by Howell include one that says, "A judge should participate in establishing, maintaining, and enforcing and should observe high standards of conduct so that the integrity and independence of the judiciary is observed."

The other says, "A judge should respect and comply with the law and should conduct himself or herself at all times in a manner that promotes public confidence in the integrity... of the judiciary."

Howell declined to appear before the commission to discuss the circumstances surrounding the case and asked that his written response be considered instead, the commission said.

The commission made its findings after considering the evidence, including his written replies, according to the reprimand, which is signed by Flowers.

Duck now, pay later

By James Jacoby

Dick Pavlicek suffered the irony of making a great defensive play in a losing cause when his team lost the semifinal match in the summer Spingold Teams to the eventual winners. The actual bidding has been slightly altered, since North and South were playing a complicated system involving some artificial responses to the forcing one-club bid. Suffice it to say that one club showed 16 or more high-card points, after which the final three-no-trump contract was reached.

After the opening lead of the three of diamonds (fourth best), Pavlicek, sitting East, knew that declarer held five diamonds, since he could see the deuce in dummy. He obviously had to switch to a heart, but which one? When declarer has A-J-9, his correct play when a low heart is led is to put in the 9, which proves effective whenever his right-hand opponent holds K-10 or Q-10, twice as likely as K-Q. But what would declarer do if East led the king of hearts? No doubt he would believe that East held K-Q and play accordingly. And that is just what happened. When Pavlicek led the king of hearts, declarer ducked smugly and on the heart continuation confidently put in the jack. But West won the queen and cleared the suit. When East won the spade ace, he cashed another heart to set three no-trump. Bravo, Pavlicek, and of course, condolences on the match.

Russian criticizes political reform

By The Associated Press

Soviet activist Andrei D. Sakharov lashed out at Mikhail S. Gorbachev's plan for political reform, saying it was a "time bomb" that would give the Soviet leader a dangerous monopoly of power, published reports said.

Sakharov, the Soviet Union's most prominent human rights advocate, on Tuesday strongly criticized parts of Gorbachev's proposals as a return to centralization that could augur a new age of Stalinism.

"A head of state with such powers in a country that does not have a multiparty system is just insanity. This is practically boundless power," he said. "Today it is Gorbachev, but tomorrow it could be somebody else. There are no guarantees that some Stalinist will not succeed him."

The Nobel Peace Prize-winning physicist made the comments to reporters.

VOTER TURNOUT

Percent of American adults voting in 1984

Source: Committee for the Study of American Elections/World Almanac NEA GRAPHICS
 IN THE 1984 presidential election, according to the federal government, 59 percent of eligible voters went to the polls. This year, experts believe, turnout could be even lower. (The figures on this chart are from a private study.)

Election '88

Fewer Americans go to the polls

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If the experts are correct, voter turnout this November will be among the lowest recorded in any recent presidential election. This is in keeping with a trend that has developed over the past decade and has led some experts to talk about the "disappearing" American electorate.

The roll of registered voters is constantly changing. Large numbers of people die or move between elections. Therefore, if the percentage of the eligible electorate that is registered and able to vote is to remain the same from election to election, large numbers of voters must register.

In 1984, 68.3 percent of the eligible electorate was registered. This was partly because massive voter registration efforts resulted in 11 million new voters being added to the rolls. Most of that gain was wiped out by the mid-term elections in 1986. Now, by one estimate, for the percentage of the registered electorate to remain at 1984 levels this year, 14 million new voters will have to be registered.

1988 has not seen the kinds of massive voter registration efforts that marked the 1984 election. Unions, not-for-profit organizations and foundations did not undertake or fund the kinds of registration efforts that they did in 1984. The two political parties have not undertaken general registration drives, but instead they have concentrated on specific areas where they think they can register people who will vote for them.

Without massive voter registration efforts, most experts believe far fewer than 14 million new voters will be enrolled.

One tip-off was the highly publicized "Super Tuesday" primaries in 16 states. One purpose of holding so many primaries on one day was to whip up voter interest and bring more voters to the polls.

Not only didn't Super Tuesday draw large numbers of new voters, registrations actually fell off, relatively speaking, in the 11 Southern states that voted that day. Prior to Super Tuesday, there was a gain of about 250,000 registrations in the 11 states. This compares to a gain in the 11 states of about 1.5 million voters prior to the 1984 primaries. Six Super Tuesday states actually suffered a net loss of registered voters.

As every politician knows, the fact that a voter is registered does not mean that he or she will show up at the polls on Election Day. This is why campaigns and political parties spend so much time and money on get-out-the-vote efforts.

In 1984, 59.9 percent of America's voting age population went to the polls. This is almost identical to what it was in the presidential elections in 1980 and 1976. But it was considerably lower than in either 1972 (63 percent) or 1968 (67.8 percent).

At the same time, the makeup of the American electorate is changing.

Levelland's 74. Democratic incumbent State Sen. Steven Carraker of Roby was a favorite with the students over Republican Bobby Albert of Wichita Falls, with 89 for Carraker to Albert's 63.

Local Republican state representative candidate Rod Waller got 118 votes to Knox City Democrat David Counts' 38.

In the 132nd District Court judge's race, incumbent Republican Gene Dulaney received 92 votes to Democrat Lealand "Pete" Greene's 64.

A number of students skipped the proposed constitutional amendments, but they all passed, Proposition 1, to dedicate federal highway fund reimbursements for highway purposes, by 35 to 8; Proposition 2, to establish a state economic stabilization fund, by 25 to 13; and Proposition 3, to create a Texas Growth Fund, by 33 to 7.

to take drug tests; and whether the Customs Service may impose the tests for those seeking drug-enforcement jobs.

Both cases involve governmental authority to test workers for the presence of drugs.

The eventual rulings by the court, expected sometime in 1989, will not deal with drug tests for private employees. But the decisions could have an important psychological impact on whether businesses will demand that their workers undergo such tests.

Tests conducted by federal, state or local governments will be affected directly by the court's action.

In the railroad case, the Federal Railroad Administration issued regulations in 1985 aimed at alleviating "a significant safety problem" caused by alcohol and drug use among employees.

Bentsen's coattails make Texas winnable

AUSTIN (AP) — Supporters of Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis are buoyed by a poll that shows Republican George Bush's lead narrowing in Texas, but Republicans say the Democrats are whistling in the dark. "A lot of us working in the campaign have been feeling movement. And the good news is, it wasn't just a feeling. It turned out to be a hard fact," said state Land Commissioner Garry Mauro on Tuesday. Mauro said Texas is within the grasp of Dukakis because of the "coattail margin" of his running mate Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. Bentsen's coattails, he said, "made this a dead-even race." Mark Sanders, a spokesman for the Bush campaign, said the Republican nominee maintains a solid lead in Texas. "The Dukakis campaign is about to swallow the bitter pill of defeat," Sanders said. An ABC News poll taken Saturday and Sunday showed Bush with a 52 percent to 45 percent lead, a considerably smaller margin than previous polls have indicated. Classified Ads Call 573-5486
