The total value of the sale held following the Briscoe County Livestock Show held here week-end before last was $46,482.50.

Premiums totaled $40,500, add-ons amounted to $4,725 and products were given in the amount of $1,257.50.

This money helps defray the costs of the 4-H and FFA projects fed-out by the boys and girls of Briscoe County.

I was visiting with Tommie Rice the other day about the antiques and crafts shop he is planning to open here soon.

He is planning to accept crafts consignments from artisans, in addition to offering a variety of merchandise. This will be a nice addition to our business community. It will be located in the building recently vacated by John White.

It is hard to realize that a year has gone by since Tommie's retirement from the Postal Service.

Numerous door prizes plus $25.00 cash will be given.

There is no admission charged for the show. Bring a folding chair, if you have one, but if you don't bring a chair one will be provided for you.

Leadership Class Gives Concurrent Student Credits

A leadership course dedicated to a man who wants to make a difference in the lives of young people seated its second class Thursday.

James Doucette, First National Bank of Lockney's board chairman and owner of several cable television systems, is paying the tuition and fees for the students from Kress, Lockney and Silverton High Schools to enroll in Wayland Baptist University's program.

The students receive concurrent credit at their schools and the university as they participate in the James Doucette Leadership and Scholastic Associates program, which is an extensive leadership and economics program.

The students met January 29 as the leadership class begins its second semester of operation.

"You are the best and the brightest," Dr. Benjamin Akande, chair of Wayland's business division, told the students. "You are our intellectual dream team."

The students are enrolled in American Economics System 2304 being taught by Dr. Akande, where they will study leadership and learn how to strengthen their own skills.

"I'm a very private person," Doucette said, "but I want to make a difference in the lives of these kids. A lot of what I hear from kids today is the same stuff I heard in Brooklyn (where he was reared) 20 years ago. There is no appreciation of what an exciting world in which we live.

"I believe in the power of education," he said, "and believe we can make a difference by filling in the blanks for our youth as they begin their life journeys."

Doucette told the students that he lacked focus for the first forty years of his life. Then he laughed and said, "and just look at what I've done in the two years since."

The class will teach the students the "secret" of leadership, which Wayland President Wallace Davis told them he did not learn until involved in doctoral studies.

"If you become a leader, it will not be accidental or incidental," Dr. Davis said. "It will be the result of the preparation you have

The leadership class is built around a theme of working with students who realize that the purpose of life is a life of purpose.

Melodrama To Be Presented at Tulia

Many of Tulia's talented residents will take the stage as they present the melodrama entitled "Dirty Work at the Crossroads; or Tempted, Tried and True." The performances are scheduled for February 7 and February 14 at 7:00 p.m. in the Redmon Room of the Swisher Memorial Building.

The melodrama, written by Bill Johnson, takes place in a small Connecticut town in the 1890's. "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" tells the twisted tales of Nellie Lovelace, an innocent country girl; of Adam Oakhart, the blacksmith's son; of Munro Murgatroyd, the big-city villain, and of the lives of the people who love, hate, and love to hate them.

In response to advertisements in Tulia's newspapers, aspiring actors and actresses showed up for open auditions in August. The performances were originally scheduled for November, but were delayed until February, according to Lana Barnett, president of the Tulia Chamber of Commerce.

Pam Edwards, who has taught theater in Abilene and Amarillo, is the melodrama's director. According to Edwards, it has been difficult for the members of the cast to find time to practice. "These are real people with real jobs," she said. "Everybody has a life outside of acting."

Edwards said the cast deserves recognition for their efforts and their commitment to the project. She said, "They all went above and beyond what was asked."

Larry Simpson, a mechanic and business owner, plays Adam Oakhart. He said being in the melodrama is fun and exciting. "You get to act silly without scrutiny," he said.

Edwards agreed. "We still laugh at some of the lines in the play, and we've heard them a million times," she said.

Audience participation is an important part of the success of any melodrama, Edwards said. "Boo" and "Hiss" signs will be included in the performance, but the audience won't be able to throw popcorn at the actors, she said.

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads" is the Tulia Chamber of Commerce's fund-raising event. The Chamber of Commerce purchased the rights to the melodrama and provided the sets for the production. Members of the cast are responsible for their own costumes.

"It's been fun," Edwards said. "I've done lots of laughing, and I would do it (the melodrama) again."

Ticket prices for the shows are $7.50 for limited reserved table seating and $5.00 for general admission seating. Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce office or any of the Tulia banks. For more information, contact the Tulia Chamber of Commerce at 995-2296.

Purple Means No Trespassing

Pammy Millican

Purple paint can now serve as a warning to stay off someone's property. It's a new state law.

Judon Fambrough, a lawyer with the Texas Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University, says Texans will soon be seeing a lot more of the color purple because Texas has joined several other states in recognizing a purple paint mark as a trespassing warning. The new law requires landowners to make a vertical purple mark eight inches long and one inch wide and place it either on a post or a tree.

The marks must be three to five feet off the ground and at a frequency of every one thousand feet except in timber cutting areas--it must be every 100 feet.

acreage could be the lowest since 12.3 million acres were planted in 1990-91. According to one analyst, the next five to six weeks of price developments will be critical in determining acreage. Producers will be watching both cotton and grain prices in order to make their planting decision.

Meanwhile, cotton production in other countries could rise next season. A USDA attache' reported Brazil's 1998-99 cotton production could be 11 percent higher at 1.9 million bales. The increase is due to higher plantings, good prices and helpful government programs. This could adversely affect the U. S. export market as Brazil is a large importer of U. S. cotton.

In other news, lower U. S. cotton prices once again attracted foreign buyers, especially from the Asian regions, despite some office closures in celebration of the Chinese Lunar New Year. USDA reported net export sales of 1997-98 crop cotton increased to 87,500 bales for the week ended January 22, lower than last week's sales of 132,800 bales, but still considered a healthy figure.

Surprisingly, Asian purchases dominated this week's export sales report. China was the largest buyer of U. S. cotton with purchases totaling 17,300 bales. South Korea and Taiwan followed with purchases of 12,600 and 11,800 bales respectively. In addition, the department reported net export sales of 1998-99 U. S. cotton totaled 23,500 bales for the same period, compared with 15,400 the previous week.

Continuing currency problems in Asia so far have not substantially dampened export demand for U. S. cotton, and sales to Asian buyers should continue, some analysts said. According to a team of USDA officials, cotton and wheat exports to Asian countries may suffer the least from the recent financial crisis there. Though the economic problems in the region have resulted in projections for lower cotton consumption, some believe the lower figures are simply an adjustment, and not an out-right threat to U. S. cotton trade. In fact, sales to some financially troubled Asian countries now are expected to help maintain, perhaps even surpass, the U. S. export projection of 7.3 million bales.

On the spot cotton scene sales have remained healthy. In the five trading days ended January 29, sales of cotton on the TELCOT electronic marketing system totaled 64,797 bales, down slightly from the previous week's 65,836 bale figure.

TELCOT[®] Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS

For the Week Ending January 29, 1998

The anticipation of a lower National Cotton Council (NCC) acreage estimate for the 1998-99 U. S. crop boosted New York cotton futures resulting in mostly higher closes this week. The market also gained support from a strong export figure and reports of an improving Asian financial situation.

NCC's first acreage estimate for the 1998-99 U. S. cotton crop is slated for release after the close of the cotton market on January 30. A bullish figure is expected by most analysts as unattractive cotton prices continue to discourage producers. The council's planted acreage survey, conducted earlier this year, could confirm that a significant number of producers plan to sow grain crops on land formerly reserved for cotton as grain prices may be more attractive.

Many in the industry envision a large drop in cotton acreage, perhaps as low as 12.5 million acres from 13.82 million in 1997-98. Consequently, U. S. cotton

County Youth Entered in Houston Livestock Show Feb. 20 - March 8

Seventeen 4-H members from Briscoe County and eight FFA members from Silverton will be joining other 4-H and FFA members from throughout Texas for intense show ring competition at the upcoming Houston Livestock Show February 20 through March 8 in Astrohall.

These FFA and 4-H exhibitors showcase their animal projects during the second week of livestock competition--the junior show. The first week of competition, the open show, features professional ranchers and breeders from throughout the country exhibiting their breeding stock.

Entries in both the open and junior shows combine with horse entries to make the Houston Livestock Show the world's largest.

Briscoe County 4-H members have entered seven market steers and thirteen market barrows. The exhibitors are Teal Bennett, Tate Bennett, Molly Brooks, Donny Burson, Zack Burson, Dusty Burson, Jared Francis, Andrew Francis, Caleb Francis, Ory Johnson, Amanda Kernell, Thor Patton, Kelby Phillips, Kenda Wood, Leland Wood, Monty Wood and Trey Ziegler.

Market barrows have been entered by Silverton FFA members, Jay Arnold, John Arnold, Molly Brooks, David Gamble, Jay Hicks, Michelle Warren, Julie Weaver and Max Whitworth.

Representing approximately 930 Texas 4-H clubs and FFA chapters, the junior show will have close to 15,000 entries this year. A variety of animals is shown in the junior and open divisions of livestock competition.

"Undoubtedly, we have the most generous buyers anywhere. They understand and appreciate that the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo shows kids . . . and we simply allow those young people to bring an animal along with them," said John Sykes, assistant general manager/Agricultural Exhibits and Competition Department. "We are always proud to annual present to the City of Houston thousands of Texas 4-H'ers and FFA members. They have worked countless hours on their projects learning specific life skills such as responsibility, time management and financial management. Our Show will forever encourage such growth in young people."

In addition to world class livestock competition for two weeks, superior horse show competition also is on the event's agenda. The Houston Livestock Show Cutting Horse Contest kicks off horse show competition beginning February 18. The National Cutting Horse Association World's Championship Finals are scheduled for February 19-22. The 1998 horse show also features competition in seven different breeds.

Brucellosis Vaccine Shows Promise For Bison

Pammy Millican
County Extension Agent

A new vaccine to prevent brucellosis in cattle is showing promise in protecting bison as well. A positive result could save more of American's vanishing herds.

Texas A&M researchers are vaccinating a herd of more than 50 pregnant females and will know later this year how effective the drug is.

Texas A&M wildlife biologist and disease specialist Dr. Don Davis says bison are much more susceptible to brucellosis than cattle are. He compares them to American Indians who were killed off in droves as European settlers introduced new illnesses to North America. The native population had no natural immunity to the new diseases.

Davis says at first researchers deduced that bison and cattle were close enough relatives that Strain 19, the original cattle vaccine, would work. But it caused a high rate of abortions in the bison. So now testing is done with a vaccine called R-B 51. What researchers at Texas A&M and at other test sites determine could have a profound effect in Yellowstone National Park. Davis says nearly half of the bison there are infected with brucellosis. That makes people in the brucellosis-free states of Wyoming, Idaho and Montana worry that the infection will reach their cattle and put a cap on trade. So cattle owners shoot the bison when they wander out of the park. As you can imagine, that causes an uproar from animal welfare groups, American Indians and others.

David says the Texas A&M bison herd will be monitored to determine the number of abortions that may be caused by the vaccine. The calves that are born will also be tested for brucellosis. In a companion study, researchers are also testing elk since they, too, keep the disease alive in Yellowstone.

Reduced - Risk Pesticides Help The Environment

Pammy Millican
County Extension Agent

Reduced-risk pesticides do precisely that. They reduce the health risk to humans and the pollution risk to the environment. They are most effective when used with other types of controls.

At a greenhouse growers conference sponsored by Texas A&M, Dr. Michael Parella detailed what those other controls are. Parella heads the entomology department at the University of California-Davis. He's a proponent of I-P-M, integrated pest management. He says reduced-risk pesticides work best when coupled with I-P-M practices such as using pest-resistant plants and monitoring for infestations.

He offers the analogy that if you have mosquitoes in your backyard, spraying may not take care of the problem. You need to look for the source which could be something like an old tire near your house that serves as a breeding ground. He also explains that an infestation of damaging insects must have a starting point that you can catch if you're closely monitoring your plants.

Treat that hot spot and you avoid a broad pesticide application later. Parella predicts more reduced-risk pesticides will be phased in as traditional chemicals are outlawed. That means all of us need to learn about I-P-M to protect our homes, yards, gardens and crops against insects.

Be Good Stewards Of Your Resources

It seems that nearly every day, we are getting requests either in the mail or by telephone, for donations to some organization. Most are worthwhile and depend upon our support for their existence; however, telemarketing and solicitations through the mail have become so widespread that it is virtually impossible for anyone to support all of the requests they receive. God wants us to be good stewards of our resources, and we should be selective of what we support with our funds. Impulse donating is sometimes like impulse buying; later on we may regret our actions. Before donating to any unfamiliar organizations, we should not only take time to investigate who we are contributing to, but also take time to pray and ask our Lord for His guidance. In the Bible, the importance of supporting the poor and needy is mentioned many times. Jesus said, "what you do for the least of my brothers, you do for me."

The King will reply, I tell you, whenever you did this for one of the least important of these brothers of mine, you did it for me!"
