VOLUME 90 NUMBER 45

Jimmy Burson's Country in the Swing band has recently performed for a week at Branson, Missouri, and he says this is definitely the time of year to go to Branson. He had been there before when it was very hot and uncomfortable, but he said it is very nice now.

Jimmy said that performing at Branson is a very humbling experience because he sees a lot of talented musicians there who can't find jobs elsewhere.

Jimmy's group will be going to Austria for concerts soon. I don't know if Jimmy was 100% serious, but he said he was asked if they could play "Home on the Range." He grinned, and said he thought they could manage that.

People need to remember that one of Jimmy's favorite numbers is "Cattle Call," and he does it very well.

More Ozark Trail history:

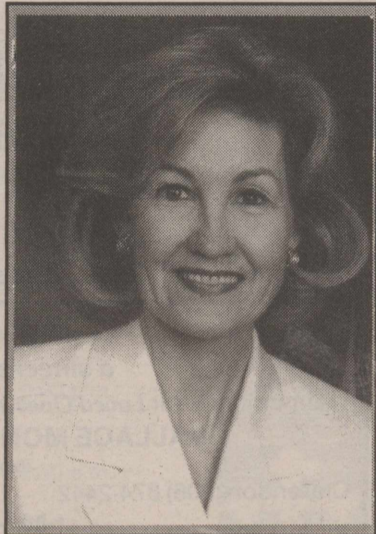

The two important issues to be decided were the location of the next convention and the official route. Arguments and demonstrations were presented on routes still competing for designation. A route to El Paso via Portales and Roswell was proposed, but not seriously considered because it was already being assisted by the government.

Many towns sent brass bands; the Hobart band again presented conductor James Murphy's "Ozark Trail March," which had been introduced at the Oklahoma City convention. Also in attendance were the "Clovis Girl Band" and the "Chickasha Red Cross Girls," who wore their uniforms to sing "Colonel Harvey's Road Brigade."

Several speakers emphasized the importance of their scenery to tourist travel. Others stressed the quality of their roads.

At some point between the Amarillo convention in 1917 and the Miami Convention in 12918, the OTA obelisk was born. Ostensibly used at junctions to give travel directions, the "pyramids" (as they were usually called) were in fact most often erected near or in towns, and they were used more to boost communities than to aid travel.

The obelisks were a departure from the traditional Ozark Trail markings--when such markings existed. In theory, routes were to be logged and marked. They were logged first, and the earliest guide book published by the OTA was the 1918 log book. It gave mileage and landmarks to enable travelers to find their way over an unmarked route: "34.9 Gate, following winding road with fence on right. 35.5 Gate, turn left. 35.8 Gate and bridge, straight ahead to 36.3." Such sets of travel instructions were common in the early twentieth century. They were published by other highway associations as well as by businesses serving tourists.

Several log books were distributed featuring descriptions of cities and points of interest as well as the usual mileages and driving directions. Following a log, however, was difficult. Winifred Hawkrige Dixon, driving across the country in the early 1920s, relied primarily on such logs. Her friend, who navigated, had a "peculiar gift at reading guide-books, whereby she selects a page at random, regardless of our route, telescopes paragraphs together, skips a line here and there, and finishes in another state." Even without such a "peculiar gift," the most careful reader can make mistakes, and the slightest misprint in the book can result in a wrong turn.

Aware of the difficulties with log books, the OTA, like other highway associations, aimed to mark the route. They all used paint on trees, fenceposts, and rocks. At first just a color or combination of colors was used--white for the Ozark Trail; red, white and blue stripes for the Lincoln Highway; orange and black for the Midland Trail; other highway associations had their own color schemes.

The OTA used a white background with a green "OT" in the middle and a green stripe at top and bottom. Tentative routes may have been marked with white paint, the green stripes and "OT" added once the route was formally adopted. Sometimes the green stripes and "OT" were never added. People in the westernmost states (Texas and New Mexico) remember, or remember hearing about, fence posts painted white.

The OTA obelisks must have been built on site. Twenty feet tall, according to official specifications, they would have required several cubic yards of concrete and weighed over four tons. It would have been impossible in the 1920s to move a completed marker into place. Forms must have been built, reinforcing rod put in, and the concrete poured in bucket by bucket.

The first mention of OTA "pyramids" was in the May 10, 1918 Miami Record-Herald. Harvey had attended a special meeting of Miami's Business Men's League and reported on his road-marking activities with field secretary R. H. Evarts: "The green and white signs of the association are being placed on posts, buildings and large stones . . . and at each main crossroads a concrete and frame pyramid is being erected, bearing instructions to travelers.

Harvey encouraged Miami businessmen to aid farmers in improving the road from Narcissa and suggested that a "twenty-foot pyramid" be built at the intersection of Main Street and Central Avenue. The businessmen agreed, so long as it could be built of stucco. "Miami is stuck on stucco," explained W. H. Seed, secretary of the club.

News & Notes

by Nina Martin

Honey, I'm home! Yes, I have been on my fall vacation to see the kids. I drove to Oklahoma City to see Ninette and Joe Zorger. We went south to Krum, Texas to visit daughter, Celia, Marshall and Brenna. Son Stan Martin and family came from Grandview, Texas on Saturday night. We really had a good time. I stayed several days at Celia's, then we went back to Ninette's. Joe went to Salisaw, Oklahoma to prepare their houseboat for their vacation. We girls spent all day Friday at the Affair of the Heart Craft Show at the fairgrounds.

Eudean Crow, Juanita Stephens, Lallie Patton, Elsie Cornett, Rosalie Chitty, Pauline Chitty and myself met Wednesday at Ruby Brannon's to play "42".

The Friendship Quilters met Thursday. Present were Wanda Strange, Juanita Howard, Joy Stodghill, Marie Rogers, Nadyne Childress, Bobbye Bean, Sybil King, Nelda Jasper, Ruby McWaters and myself. We quilted on Marie's Tumblers, and Juanita's Nine-Patch which was pieced by Juanita's Grandmother Edwards.

Nadyne brought a quilt pieced by her Grandmother Gamble, who has been dead for 40 years. There is no telling how old the top is. Nadyne had quilted it years ago. I did not recognize the pattern.

Bobbye brought a quilt in for our advice on how to correct severe damage. It was a beautiful butterfly pattern pieced by Mrs. Clay Mercer. Bobbye's sister had quilted it for her granddaughter. The black sashing stripes are deteriorated.

Nelda Jasper's granddaughter, Amy Jasper, from San Angelo is visiting this week.

Maebelle Francis and Sylvia Walls recently attended a Christian Women's Retreat at Amarillo.

Catalog Shopping

Pammy Millican
County Extension Agent

Most people wouldn't dream of starting their Christmas shopping this early. But what if we told you there's a way to shop without fighting the hoards of shoppers at the mall? No we aren't talking about the home shopping network. We're talking about catalog shopping. It's a way to beat the holiday rush, but you need to start soon if you want your Christmas gifts delivered on time.

Most catalog companies will tell you four to six weeks for delivery so you have to plan ahead.

Extension family economics specialist Dr. Joyce Cavanaugh says also take into account that Christmas is an exceptionally busy time for mail order companies and the delivery services.

Cavanaugh says catalog shopping allows you the convenience of ordering at any time of the day or night right from the comfort of your own home. But you need to read the fine print to make sure you don't have any surprises when the bills come in.

Varsity Owls Make It a Clean Sweep Over the Cotton Center Elks Friday

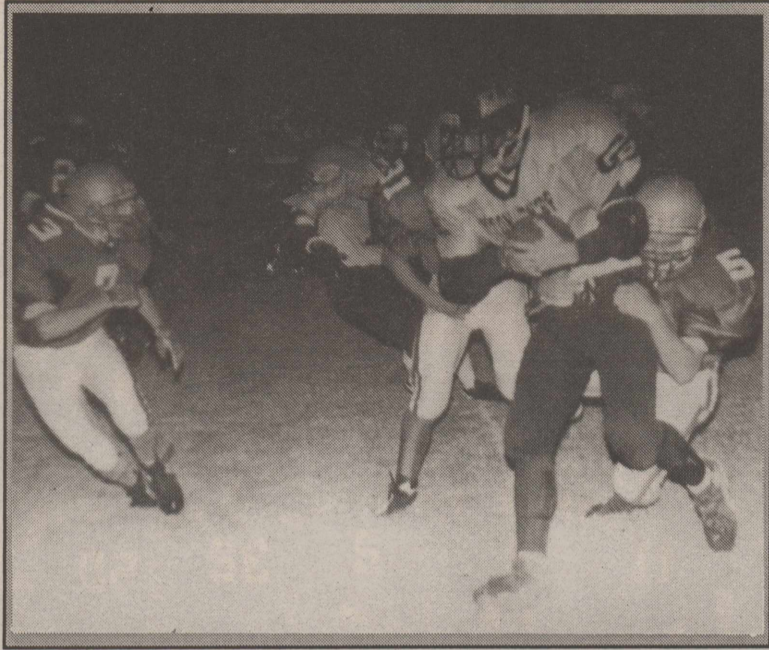

After the Junior High and Junior Varsity Owls had driven to Cotton Center and earned victories over the Elks on Thursday, the Varsity Owls made it a clean sweep by taking a big 63-16 decision here Friday night. Actually the Owls ended the game with 7:53 remaining in the fourth quarter under the 45-point rule.

At this point, Whitharral is in first place in the district, followed by Amherst, Silvertown, Lazbuddie, Three Way and Cotton Center.

Cotton Center kicked off to open the game on a very foggy night. The inside kick didn't go far enough, and the Owls took possession where it lay. Nathan Francis completed a pass to Jay Arnold for a first down on the 20-yard line. Nathan passed to Jared Holt for a four-yard gain, after which runs by Jeremy Holt picked up a first down on the two. The Owls lost the ball on a fumble on the next play, and Cotton Center mounted a drive that resulted in a punt to the Silvertown 15.

Jeremy Holt scored on the next play, kicked the PAT, and gave the Owls an 8-0 lead with 6:17 remaining in the first quarter.

Jared Holt kicked off, and Cotton Center controlled the ball at their 30. The Elks picked up eight yards, stopped by Adrian Ramirez, and ran for what would have been first-down yardage,

Putting the defense on Cotton Center were Owls Donny Burson (3), Bert Garza (31) and David Gamble (5). The Owls endured fog and wind to win the 63-16 decision. Briscoe County News Photo stopped by Jay Hicks. A penalty against the Owls gave them their first down, and the Elks marched on toward their first score which came with 3:52 remaining in the first quarter. They kicked the PAT, and knotted the score at 8-8.

Cotton Center kicked off, and Jeremy Holt took the inside to midfield. Nathan Francis passed complete to Jeremy, after which he passed complete to Jared Holt for a first down on the Elk eight. Jeremy Holt scored with 1:06 still to be played in the first quarter, but his PAT kick was blocked, and the score reflected a lead of 14-8 for the Owls.

Jared Holt kicked off once again and it went into and out of the endzone for a touchback. The Elks made a first down near midfield, stopped by a shoestring tackle by Donny Burson as the quarter came to a close.

Fog was deepening over Payne Field as the second quarter got underway. It was four plays and out for the Elks, and when Jeremy Holt touched the ball again he carried it all the way for another touchdown for the Owls. He kicked the PAT, and moved the Owls into a 22-8 lead.

Jared Holt kicked off once again, and Cotton Center brought it out to their 15. Defense by Ramirez, David Gamble, Matt Martin and other Owls held the Elks, and the ball went back to the Owls on downs with 6:10 remaining in the first half.

Jeremy Holt carried a first down before going over for another score. There was no PAT, and with 4:53 still to be played before halftime, the Owls led 28-8, and the fog was so deep that you couldn't see any player numbers and could hardly see the scoreboard.

Jared Holt kicked another touchback for the Elks, and on first down Cotton Center lost the ball on a fumble on the 17. Clint Ivory ran to the five-yard line, after which Jeremy Holt scored with 3:24 still on the second-quarter clock. Jeremy Holt passed complete to Ramirez for the PAT, to give the Owls a 35-8 lead.

Jared kicked another touchback for the Elks, and the Owl defense was back in business, led by Bert Garza and Gamble. The Elks scored with 29 seconds remaining before halftime, kicked the PAT, and narrowed the score to 35-16.

The Owls started with a touchback, and Jeremy Holt ran for a first down on the first play. Nathan Francis passed complete to Jared Holt for the touchdown with six seconds remaining. There was no PAT, and the Owls moved ahead 41-16.

Following halftime, Jared kicked another touchback for the Elks, and Cotton Center was back in business with only Martin, Ramirez, Garza and other Owls to contend with. Hicks recovered a Cotton Center fumble, to give the ball back to the Owls with 7:21 remaining in the third quarter.

Nathan Francis passed to Jared Holt for a first down, after which Jared carried a touchdown. Jeremy Holt kicked the PAT, to give the Owls a 49-16 lead with 6:24 remaining on the third-quarter clock.

The visibility was better in the second half, and fans didn't have such a hard time seeing the action. Jared Holt kicked off and Cotton Center brought it out to their 33. Ramirez, Gamble, Garza, Hicks, Martin and other Owls were doing a good job against the Elks, and the ball went over on downs to the Owls on the Silvertown 35 with 3:05 remaining in the third quarter.

Ivory carried to the 38, after which Jared Holt made a first down on the 31. Jeremy Holt picked up 10 yards and Nathan Francis passed complete to Charlie Bomar for a touchdown with 1:37 still showing on the clock. Jeremy kicked the PAT, and gave the Owls a 57-16 advantage.

Jared Holt kicked off again, and Cotton Center came back with a passing first down at midfield, but lost the ball on downs early in the fourth quarter.

Nathan Francis passed complete to Arnold to move the ball to midfield, and passed to Arnold for the touchdown which gave the Owls the game, 63-16, under the 45-point rule with 7:53 still remaining to be played.

Jeremy Holt rushed the ball 14 times for a gain of 207 yards; Jared Holt made 40 yards on four tries; Ivory, 38 yards on four rushes.

Nathan Francis hit 10 of 12 passes for a gain of 179 yards with no interception.

Arnold caught four passes for a gain of 86 yards; Jared Holt made 50 yards on three passes; Jeremy Holt made 21 yards on two passes, and Bomar picked up 22 yards on one pass.

Hicks recovered two fumbles for the Owls.

"Their offense is so explosive that if you give them a little crack, they're going to score on you and they're going to score quick," said Cotton Center Coach Bret Tyler after the game.

Jeremy Holt found several "cracks", averaging better than 14 yards a carry and five touchdowns on the ground.

"He's just an outstanding ball player," said Silvertown Coach Larry Mantle. "He could play for any school in the state. He blocks well, he runs well, he catches the ball well, he's tough and he's hard to tackle."

"We actually played pretty good," Coach Tyler said. "I think Silvertown is one of the best six-man teams in the state."

This week the Owls will travel to Whitharral for the last regularly-scheduled game of the season. Kickoff will be at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a Junior High game here at 5:00 p.m. today followed by a Junior Varsity game at 6:30 p.m. The concession stand will be open with lots of good things to eat. Plan to be there!

New Underground Storage Tank Regulation Deadline

Pammy Millican
County Extension Agent

If you own property with an underground storage tank on it, you may be facing a compliance deadline from the Environmental Protection Agency. Owners of underground tanks used for storing petroleum products and chemicals have until December 22 to make their tanks environmentally friendly.

Corroded tanks can leak and contaminate surrounding water supplies. That's why in 1988 the Environmental Protection Agency set up tough anti-corrosion standards. The EPA gave owners of existing tanks ten years to upgrade, remove or properly close them. But Nathan Weiss (WYS) of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission says a lot of owners have let the time slip up on them.

The TNRCC estimates only half of the owners have complied with the new rules. In Texas, that leaves at least 33,000 tanks that do not meet EPA requirements. Why have so many owners waited so long? In a word: cost. Upgrading or removing an underground storage tank is not cheap. Weiss says the cost of removing a tank ranges upward from $3,000. But noncompliance could be even more expensive.

Tank owners face possible fines of $11,000 a day if they don't meet the new standards. So Weiss encourages owners to do everything they can to meet the deadline. Owners can ask for an extension if they simply cannot get it done. Weiss stresses that his agency which enforces the EPA regulations would rather help then punish. If you want more information, call the TNRCC at (512) 239-6718.

Poor Early Quail Hunting Season Has Been Predicted

Pammy Millican
County Extension Agent

Deer season will be good this year, but quail season will not. The drought kept quail from reproducing this year, so there will not be many to hunt.

Extension wildlife specialist Dr. Don Steinbach predicts the first half of the season is lost. He says the only bright spot is that quail tend to nest a second time if they fail the first time.

Steinbach says that's the case in South Texas, but the birds will not be big enough to be hunted until January. A cold snap in November or December could wipe out the population too.

Steinbach says the rains this fall have brought on weed growth that will provide seeds for quail to eat, but when they're very young they require insects for protein. As the weather cools, that insect population will dwindle.

Cotton News

from Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The United States Department of Agriculture began disbursing $2.8 billion in supplemental Agriculture Market Transition Act (AMTA) payments November 3. The payments also are known as Market Loss Assistance (MLS) payments.

MLS payments will equal 49.72 percent of the 1998 AMTA payment rate. For cotton the MLS payment rate will be around four cents per pound.

All recipients of the MLS payment should be aware that the income it represents CANNOT be deferred and will be taxable on 1998 tax returns. Producers who want, or need, to limit their 1998 tax burden should look for ways to defer other areas of expected income to offset the taxes payable on the MLS payment.

Additional information about MLS payment rates for other crops can be obtained from local USDA Farm Service Agency offices.

Negotiations continue within USDA as to the method for dispersing the remaining funds approved in the recently-passed ag disaster assistance package. Additional details will be published as they become available.

Paymaster Cottonseed and the Monsanto Corporation announced two new programs for cotton growers who purchase and plant stripper varieties of Roundup Ready® cottonseed.

The new programs apply only to PM 2326RR, PM 2200RR and PM 2145RR cottonseed. The programs will provide a grower the opportunity to receive free seed for replanting or provide a rebate up to $17.50 per bag of seed purchased if initial acreage is lost and the grower opts to switch to an alternate crop.

"PCG continually works with the companies that provide the tools grower use to grow their crops. The announcement by Paymaster of their 1999 Replant and Crop Destruct programs will provide growers with an economically viable option for incorporating a new technology into their farming operation," says PCG Executive Vice President Steve Verett.

"We strongly support new programs and services, no matter who provides them, that benefit the grower and provide them with useful new tools."

PCG has been working with Monsanto and Paymaster for several months and has encouraged them to develop programs that will make new technology available to more cotton growers.

PCG efforts to obtain a deviation from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation for 1998 boll count appraisal methods were successful and that success has helped spur further changes effective for the 1999 crop year.

For the past several years the FCIC has used a boll count factor of 250 green and unopened bolls per pound when adjusting damaged cotton before bolls are open. If the changes currently contemplated go through, this factor will change to 350 green and unopened bolls per pound of lint for 1999.

The change is good news for producers. PCG officials believe the change more accurately reflects the boll sizes of today's most popular cottonseed varieties and will give a more accurate measure of the crop's yield potential when it is utilized.

Work is currently being done to gather data about boll size and yields from a number of varieties to confirm the change in the boll count procedure.

Researchers with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are gathering and extrapolating the necessary data for this purpose.

A series of educational meetings has been scheduled for cotton growers in the Western High Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone.

The educational meetings will be focused on getting information about the upcoming referendum on starting boll weevil eradication activities in the five county zone.

TELCOT[®] Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS

For the Week Ended October 29

In a week that provided little news for the market to trade on, speculative and fund selling were met by several attempts at a corrective rally, forming a mixed cotton market that traded higher two out of the five trading sessions. Decertifications of about 11,000 bales and positive consumption data supported the market at the first of the week.

The National Cotton Council (NCC) reported October 23 that U. S. textile mills used cotton at a seasonally adjusted annualized rate of 10.66 million bales in September, down from a revised August figure of 10.76 million but still above the current USDA forecast of 10.60 million bales.

On Monday, USDA denied reports that an adjustment to its Step 1 program would be made. Any adjustment would have made more cotton available in the market, the department stated, putting pressure on already low prices.

According to USDA, U. S. cotton exporters and mills have requested $517.3 million in Step 2 certificate payments as of October 23. USDA had budgeted to spend $701 million on the program between 1996 and 2002, but now only $184 million in funding remains.

December cotton fell to new lows this week, forming a double bottom that some traders view as major market support. Prices may be ready to rise going into the next week, though bearish sentiments persist, and clear upside action will be needed to persuade speculators to head up.

Harvest continues in areas of West Texas, where rain accumulations during the week added up to anywhere from a trace to more than an inch. Weather forecasts call for rain into the next week in some areas, posing a possible threat to cotton quality and yield if the storms dump large amounts of water. Harvest progress is expected to increase heading to wards the first freeze of the year.

Although USDA's weekly export sales report showed an extremely high level of sales activity, it was largely ignored by a market that had previously been been anxious for its arrival. In the report, the department said net U. S. export sales of 1998-99 crop cotton were 208,200 bales for the week ended October 22, an incredible increase from the previous week's sales of 26,300 bales and the highest weekly number yet seen in the 1998-99 marketing year. The last time a number was reported that high was in December 1997. Mexico again was the featured buyer of U. S.

cotton followed by Canada and Taiwan. The U. S. now has sold 3.19 million statistical bales of cotton for the 1998-99 season, more than 70 percent of the 4.5 million projected by USDA.

Although the purchases by Mexico are indicative of a healthy market there, it is viewed by some cotton analysts more as an attempt by merchants to get cotton across the border to Mexico in order to receive certificate payments under USDA's Step 2 export program before funds run out, rather than a boost in demand.

Looking at the spot cotton market for the five trading days ended October 29, sales of cotton on the TELCOT electronic marketing system totaled 30,369 bales, a nearly two-fold increase from the previous week's 15,670 bale figure. Average daily prices received by producers on TELCOT ranged from 55.16 to 60.23 cents per pound during the week.

Whatever Works For You

When a man and a woman marry, their lives change and they must begin working as a team to make their marriage successful. No two marriages are the same and each one is unique in its own way. Each couple must determine what is right for them. God wants us to be happy and successful in married life, and the Bible is there as a guide to help make marriages work. Loving each other, being patient, kind, and considerate, and always wanting what is best for your marriage will help to bond a couple together. Your spouse should not only be your helpmate and companion, but also a true friend whom you can depend on and confide in whenever you need support. God has called us to live in peace with love and understanding. Praying together and staying together through good times and bad builds character and strengthens marriages.

Therefore a man leaves his father and his mother and cleaves to his wife, and they become one flesh.
