Hope Is In East Lubbock

THERE IS HOPE FOR EAST LUBBOCK: After hearing those young high school students of Estacado High School in a panel discussion on Monday evening, November 9, 2015, at the Dunbar Preparatory Collegiate School auditorium talk about their concerns about East Lubbock, it reminded all East Lubbock residents, there is HOPE for East Lubbock.

The poster above, with one of our local leaders, LACARL RICHARDSON, President of My Brother's Keeper, was developed and made possible by EAST LUBBOCK PROMISE NEIGHBOR-HOOD (ELPN). Hopefully, this poster will remind all EAST LUBBOCK RESIDENTS they do matter and there is so much we can do.

In other words, all EAST LUBBOCK RESIDENTS have something they can do for the betterment of the entire area. Let's quit saying what we don't have or they won't help us, and start making things happen by ourselves.

THERE IS HOPE FOR EAST LUBBOCK, and let's not forget what we have going on in EAST LUBBOCK!!! WILL YOU HELP SPREAD THE POSITIVE WORD? WE HOPE SO!!!

has been 106 years since the inception of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People when concerned citizens answered "The Call.' The organization was founded by American citizens of the Black and White races to help to guarantee equal rights to people of color whom had gained freedom by law, but denied it in reality. Each year the organization sponsors a Freedom Fund Banquet which is conducted in all of its branches in the United States and elsewhere. The Fort Worth/Tarrant County Branch held its 38th Annual Dr. George D. Flemmings Freedom Fund Banquet was held on Friday, October 23, 2015 at the Will Rogers Memorial Center. Approximately 500 freedom fighters were expected to grace this banquet and it had no cooperation from the weather as rain flooded parts of the city. Nonethe-less, the banquet hall was packed with members and friends of the NAACP. I was happy to be a part of that group as a Life and Supporting member of the NAACP and a member of the church with the largest attendance at the affair: Baker Chapel A.M.E. Church.

An award was given to the largest group attending and thus my Pastor, Reverend Walter Mc-Donald, who is also celebrating 13 years as the Pastor of Baker Chapel A.M.E Church in Fort Worth, received the NAACP award for member attendance.

Everyone in attendance enjoyed the menu food delicacies as well as the inspirational message of the keynote speaker, the Reverend Dr. William Barber II from Goldsboro, N.C. who has been an elected officer of the North Carolina State Conference and National Board Member. He is the Pastor of Greenleaf Christian Church Disciples of Christ since 1993.

Dr. Barber spoke about "NO TIME FOR FOOLISH-NESS." He briefly carried the audience through tragedies of the past which garnered national attention and gave rise to a need to spring into action to secure freedom. He spoke on items which he felt that as a people that needed more attention and a push for equality. He listed: 1. Housing, 2. Education-college, 3. Health care: Medicare and Medicaid, 4. Fairness and Equality, 5.Expanding Voting Rights and Equal Protection of the Law, 6. We need the items which the Constitution should provide: justice, provisions for common defense, general welfare and domestic tranquility. He went on to say that the South in the United States has the most poor people and states which have not extended the Medicaid provisions of the Healthcare Law have denied one million people and have caused the deaths of 56,000 people, simply because there is a Black man in the White House.

Dr. Barber suggested that we: 1.Build membership in the organization. 2. Mandate pressure on Congressmen. 3. Make members be heard; know what it is that you want and say something; 4. Mobilize and build forces to push for equality. After elaborating on his points, Dr. Barber gave a spiritual arousal to the audience and had everyone on their feet swaying with Amens, Halleluiahs and "Yes Lords" to end his message. It is so hoped that members in attendance will get 'in cinque' and spread the word to give more impetus to the organization.

So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to everyone, and especially to those

Beyond The Rhetoric by Harry C. Alford

Life can change quickly. All of a sudden the simplest things started becoming complicated. My logic and rationale were rattled. Headaches and bewilderment started zigzagging my mind. It wasn't long before my wife Kay decided to take us to my primary care doctor. Within 5 minutes, he tested my knees with a hammer for deep tendon reflexes. My left knee did not react. He ordered me to go to the nearest hospital (John Hopkins). He called ahead to the hospital and got me priority in the Emergency Room. It became apparent to the Emergency Room doctor that I was showing signs of pressure on the brain. A CT scan showed blood shifting my brain.

The medics turned me over to Dr. Thai. We would later find out that Dr. Thai is a highly competent brain surgeon. In fact, he was the senior resident for the honorable Dr. Ben Carson. This > calmed my concerns. He told me that we would go into surgery next morning. Many of my concerns were removed as it became obvious that I was in gifted hands. We settled into Intensive Care Unit and began preparing for my surgery. Dr. Thai said that he would be in the next morning before dawn. The staff of the hospital was congenial and obviously well trained. Realizing that my life was now on the line I tried my best to fight off fear as it tried to break through my mental door. I could see fear in Kay's eyes and knew that I had to become a "rock". We told no one at the time but eventually our twin sons would recognize the signals.

Midnight would come soon. The thought of such sensitive surgery made me contemplate my demise. The nurses told us that Dr. Thai prefers to do surgery around 7am and would first appear at 5am. As we sat in the ICU, time became evermore precious. I decided to console myself by silently repeating The Lord's Prayer over and over. Fortunately, my faith remained strong. The staff of the hospital was very well organized and professional. They were truly a team as the night ticked by in anticipation of the surgery. There must have been a team of 30 people. Forty percent of whom were Black with the sole mission of my operation. It was so impressive and assuring to Kay and me.

At 4am, we became aware of the surgical staff mingling together in a waiting room. They were huddling in preparation of the big operation of the day. At 5am, there was plenty of small talk and then it was announced that Dr. Thai was in the building and would be coming in for the big moment. Around 7am, I was taken to the operating table and heard those impressionable words: let's apply the propofol. That is when they put you to sleep. This is the anesthesia that was involved in Michael Jackson's quest for sleep. I knew that whatever was about to happen I would find out about it later if I survived. Propopyl is the best sleep one can experience.

devoted wife Kay Kay. It wasn't long before Dr. Thai came and talked to me in a very simple manor.

Kay would tell me later that Dr. Thai spoke with her and our sons and that I had done well. That was so relieving for her. Three days later, as predicted, I left the hospital. Medicine has come a long way. My physical faculties were slow but surprisingly intact. I thank our Lord in so many ways and couldn't wait to arrive home and be surrounded by my wife and sons.

Reflection of that experience and my life were cause for a philosophical review. It occurred to me that so many people were depending on my duties as a leader in various facets of Black life, education, leadership, economic development, policy, calling a wicked man wicked and marching our multitudes to a better way of living. There was a great need for me to recover quickly even though it has only been a few days there would be thousands waiting for me to continue my work. I cannot let them down. So begins my road to

I was dressed in my old raggedy bathrobe, a sort of comfort piece of clothing when I am not feeling well. I have had it for 197 years and it looks like it. When I am sick is the one piece of clothing that I can wrap around myself and feel some semblance of comfort.

Later on, I heard some mumbling rumbling sound. It has a familiar ring to it but I really could not place it at the time. I slowly opened my eyes and there was my wife looking at me and saying, "You remembered that tonight was trick-or-treat night for the children?'

Not wanting to start up the tom-toms in my head again, I whispered very delicately,

Gus Savage, Ex-Lawmaker, Dies at 90

Chicago, Illinois -- Gus Savage, a civil rights activist and journalist who represented a district on the South Side of Chicago in Congress for 12 years, died on Saturday, November 7, 2015, at his home in Chicago, a day after celebrating his 90th birthday.

His son, Thomas, confirmed his death.

During Mr. Savage's time in Washington, Congress passed a measure requiring the Defense Department to set aside military procurement contracts for minority-owned businesses, according to the House of Representatives website.

"He never wavered in the fight for fairness and justice, no matter the foe or the arena," his son said.

Mr. Savage's record was marred by an ethics investigation in 1989. He was rebuked by the House Ethics Committee on accusations that he sexually harassed a Peace Corps volunteer while he was on an official visit to Zaire.

Mr. Savage lost the Democratic primary in 1992 to Mel Reynolds and stepped down from Congress the next year.

Augustus Savage was born on Oct. 30, 1925, in Detroit. He moved to Chicago with his family when he was 5. He served in a segregated unit of the Army during World War II.

He founded Citizen Newspapers, which became the largest black-owned chain of weekly community newspapers in the Midwest.

He sold the chain in 1980 and was elected that year to represent Illinois's Second Congressional District.

Besides his son, he is survived by a daughter, Emma Savage-Davis, and three grandchildren.

The late Eddie P. Richardson, Co-Publisher of the Southwestt, was a friend of Savage. He would say, "Gus was a fighter, and refused to stop when he was seeking something good for people.

Mike Tyson Endorses Donald Trump For President - Says, "He's Not a Racist"

Nationwide — Former champion boxer Mike Tyson has officially endorsed billionaire Donald Trump for the next president of the United States. He made the announcement recently during an interview with the Huffington Post. "Let's try something new," Tyson said. "Let's run America like a business, where no colors matter. Whoever can do the job, gets the job."

Tyson even defended Trump's controversial comments about Mexican immigrants. He commented, "He didn't know how to say it. It was really crude, and he needs somebody to work with him on how to deliver his messages and stuff. But as far as what he did, he's an average guy like everybody else. He needs time to grow too. I don't think he thinks of Latinos in that way."

Regarding democratic candidates Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders, Tyson said he doesn't support them, and then quickly reiterated his endorsement for Trump. He said the polls indicate that most Americans want Trump in the White House.

Do they even know each other?

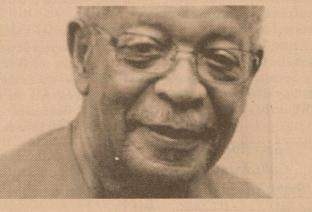

Actually, they do. Way back in 1988, Trump promoted Tyson's title fight against Michael Spinks in Atlantic City, and the fight itself was even held at Trump Plaza (one of Trump's casinos). Although the fight lasted less than two minutes, before Tyson knocked out Spinks, it is still regarded as the highestgrossing boxing match in history Ironically in the past, Donald Trump has also endorsed Mike Tyson.

Anders comments, "I became convinced that spotting a lost or dropped penny was an additional God-given incentive reminding me to always be thankful. There have been days where I failed to pray and more often than not, a lost or dropped penny would show up to remind me."

He added, "If I was at someone's house and I found a penny, I would pick it up and I would keep it. I will always tell the person that if it was a quarter, I would give it back, but since it is a penny, I'm keeping it."

Small adjustments to your daily routine can have a big impact on your monthly utility statement.

Ceiling fans can save you money. Turning your certing fan to a low speed during the winter months will help to circulate the warm air that collects near the ceiling back down around the room.

Saving money is as simple as turning on the television. Most newer TV's are set to 'store mode', a high-energy mode used for the showroom. Switch your television to 'home mode' for a better at-home picture and up to 30 percent energy savings.

Closing doors of unused rooms saves you money. Close doors and vents of unused rooms in your home. Use less energy by focusing warm air in the rooms enjoyed most by your family.
