Thoughts roam to faraway places. Who hasn't placed himself on a desert island? Soft winds—palm trees—lazy waves lapping on smooth sand—a little grass hut. The only contact with the outside world would be the allowed ten books that everyone seems to pack when seeking his island. Besides a Bible and Webster's Dictionary and eight personal preferences, I think every person should be allowed one magazine (delivered monthly—via waves, of course). My choice would be made with no hesitation—The Reader's Digest.

Ed Doolittle Brung up the subject of brains.

Ed Doolittle brung up the subject of brains. He said he took a trip last week end as he was riding along the road he was struck with one fact. The barns is getting smaller and smaller. Ed allowed as how it used to be that a barn was really somepun to look at but now the new ones ain't big enough to hide a good-sized heffer. Zeke Grubb blamed this sad state of affairs on the wimmen. He said he'd heard his Grandpa claim many a time that when you come to a place where the house was bigger than the barn you was looking at a place where the wife was the boss. There ain't no place like the country store, Mister Editor, fer learning these little inside facts of life.

Zeke Grubb was in favor of making diplomats git a year's advance training working with a balky mule. Zeke claims after a feller learns how to handle a stubborn, balky mule he'd be just right to take on Russia. I think that's good advice, Mister Editor. Incidental, I've even heard that experience with mules is mighty good training fer gitting along with wimmen. But I ain't endorsing it fer publication on account of my old lady might see this piece.

In these last days when men's hearts are failing them for the things that are coming upon the earth. When men are seeking for bomb shelters to hide them, the evils that are falling out of the heavens. Where are we looking for our protection? To whom are we seeking for help? Not in our government, or our riches, or temporal things. We have only to turn our faces toward God, and listen to what He has to say to us out of His Word. "He is great and Mighty who hath measured the waters in his hand." His promise to His own is, "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall greatly lead those that are with young." "These are words of God that the spirit is crying to a world of flesh, this is as grass, and all the goodness there of is as the flower of the field." We have known these things all the days of our life, we have heard these truths from our youth; now, the beginning of a New Year is the time for us to seek them with all our hearts. When you do you will be found of Him with Streams of His power flowing into your believing heart.

DON'T WORRY WE CAN FIX IT

Sterling Lewis, owner of Lewis Deluxe Paint and Shop, is shown above estimating the damage to Ford. Although damaged extensively, the car will be delivered to its owner "just like new," when Lewis hands the car over to him.

"We hope your car doesn't get damaged or in this manner," Lewis said, "but we can rebuild any car just like new."

"You are invited to visit our body shop at an early hour to see for yourself the quality work we can do," Lewis says.
