 Well, here is the ole gossip gal again from Baird Hi.
 By this time Doyle, you should know better than to go into dressing rooms or such without knocking.

Monday morning I heard a story which impressed me. It seems a man was tired of "bearing his cross" and visited the maker of crosses. The man lifted several, then found one he considered lightest. The cross-maker said, "That which you chose is the cross you had before."
 Most of us have tired in our journey down Life's highway and have said, "I'm weary of the cares and worries on my shoulders. Why do I have a heavy burden when my neighbor is so carefree?" If we look into the matter thoroughly we will find

As the time of our Pep Squad banquet rolls around it seems quite a touch proposition for some of the girls to get dates. Is it the nerve you need or the technique?
 A group of mischievous boys and girls stormed Betty Jo Warren last Thursday night. From what I hear one car was particularly crowded in the back seat.
 Billy Gray aren't you keeping rather late hours these days?
 We were all wondering if Louise was really sick or just stayed home to wait the arrival of her brother. Coach White set us straight on that matter.
 Honestly Reba, we didn't know those in-laws of yours really cared!

 The agriculture boys are rather mean these days. $7.00 worth at that!
 Some pictures were made on the campus this week. There were some pretty good poses so I hear. Even a bit of campusology was practiced. Eh! B. L. H. I don't know what Baird High would do if we didn't have Maurice around to throw cough drops at Corky in study hall. You'd better watch out!
 Some people wonder why Nell Farmer never says anything about her boy friend. Well most of us know she has one anyway.
 These Sophomores are regular aerobatics. Why exert all the energy girls?
 Jerol Price had better watch a certain senior boy. Isn't that right, Annie Jo?
 Valentine is just around the corner. That candy sounds pretty good to a couple of girls!
 Polly, I hear you really got it bad these days. No-not two at once! That will only lead to disaster.
 James and Reba M. are still seen together. Is it that serious?
 That was a pretty good picture made in the gym the other day, Corky. We must all see it.
 Ruby Joyce is still seen with that certain ex. Oh boy!
 Jimmy Roy and Carlene had a great time at the party; at least that's the way it got around.
 Gemetha, we know you didn't want to get in the car but we can sympathize with you.
 Bobbie Jean and Billie Jean sorta switched around, didn't they?
 Rosa, you and Ed seem to be the only ones with the ture basketball spirit. What about those tears and hamburgers?
 Garland seems to be beating the Sophomore's time. Isn't that right Elsie?

 Say Hugh S. why weren't you at school Monday morning?
 There were some pretty hard falls at the skating party Monday night. Some of the boys feet were sore too.
 The Senior girls could learn to count!
 WHAT IF
 James Dyer didn't have to shut the Study Hall door for Mrs. Mac?
 E. J. Hill didn't have so many suitors?
 The name Bobby seems to be quite popular with a certain Senior girl, 2 Bobby's at that. What about that Rosa?
 Let this be a warning to all drivers to make sure you know car lights from those on a motorcycle and don't try to go between them, for it just doesn't pay to head down the wrong highway.
 (Too late for publication last week.)
 J. C. Koen, a former teacher in Baird High School, presented a program of "chalk talks" Tuesday morning in the auditorium. His words of encouragement and wisdom were gratefully received and appreciated by an audience of grammar and high school students and teachers.

 (Part 2)
 One Junior boy wasn't satisfied with a simple apology, Tuesday afternoon. So sorry!
 Why did so many seniors just barely drag to school Tuesday? (The bigger they are, the harder they fall.)
 Thanks to Jerry Loper, several students may have long fingernails after a short time.
 For shame, R. J. A. Such jokes to tell to a teacher!
 Who are the pep leaders for 1946? Just between you and me I'll tell you after the banquet.)
 MORON LAUGHS
 HORRIS BAINS: "Go ahead; I'm all ears."
 SUE EDWARDS: "You're telling me!"
 DOYLE: "I'm going to eat a dark supper."
 BETTY: "A dark supper?"
 DOYLE: "I ate a light lunch."
 LOON: "Remember that guy who stole my yo-yo?"
 GOON: "Yeah, why?"
 LOON: "I got even with him. I died and they buried him."
 "Business is poor," said the beggar. Said the undertaker, "It's dead." "Falling off," said the riding-school master. "Picking up," said the beach comber.
 "My business is sound," quoth the musician. Said the athlete, "I'm kept on the jump." "It was corking," said the driller. The parson, "It's good," said he. "I make ends meet," answered the butcher. "It suits me," replied the tailor.

CHARLES WINNINGER IN WILL ROGERS' ROLE

Life plays funny little tricks on people and you can count Charles Winninger in on the receiving end.

Currently, Winninger is playing the role of Abel Frake in 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor musical, "State Fair," which opens Thursday and Friday at the Plaza Theatre.

Some years ago the late Will Rogers essayed the same part but the earlier production wasn't a musical and lacked the score which was written by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II of "Oklahoma" fame.

On the set, Winninger got to talking about his friend Will Rogers and remembered that he directed Rogers in his first straight legitimate role on the stage.

Rogers had been a success in the Follies with his rope act and dry wit, and Winninger got him for a role in "The Wall Street Girl" which ran from 1910 to 1912.

"I'll never forget the day that Rogers came on the stage to report for rehearsals," Winninger recalled.

"I handed him a script. 'What's this thing?' he asked me. 'I told him it was to be used to study his part.'"

"'Aw shucks,' Will told me, 'I don't want to read that thing. Just tell me what it's all about and we'll get along right well.'"

They did get along right well as the play was a big success and enjoyed three seasons on Broadway.

Others in the cast of "State Fair" with Winninger are Dana Andrews, Jeanne Crain, Dick Haymes and Fay Bainter.

Miss Ida Louise Fetterly of Midland spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fetterly.

GEORGE SANDERS KNOWN AS UNPRETENTIOUS STAR

Known in Hollywood as the screen's most unpretentious star, George Sanders could, if he wished, boast one of the most colorful backgrounds of any cinema celebrity. The actor's mother, for example, is regarded one of the world's finest horticulturists. She has won national prizes for her flowers and for her beehives. She is an ichthyologist, too, breeding rare fish.

Sanders, whose current film, Universal's "Uncle Harry," at the Plaza Theatre, was born in St. Petersburg, (now Leningrad) Russia. His birth was registered with the British Embassy, which made him a British subject. His father, an Englishman, owned a rope factory in the kingdom of the Czars.

The revolution drove the family from Russia, and young Sanders was sent to Dunhurst and Bedales schools, and college at Brighton, England. He studied to become a scientist, and as a youth patented three water toy devices. Because of his mechanical bent he switched to Manchester Technical school, specializing in textiles.

Six feet, three inches tall, and weighing 200 pounds, he became an outstanding athlete. He won the interscholastic boxing championship and became a star swimmer. The British Humane Society awarded him a medal for saving a man from drowning in the Thames.

On completing school, he began working in Haslam's Textile Co. in Manchester, doing technical research in the foreign department. Oddly, in "Uncle Harry" he portrays a textile worker.

Geraldine Fitzgerald and Ella Raines are his co-stars in the sensational new drama. Robert Siodmak directed and the film was produced by Joan Harrison with Milton H. Feld as executive producer.

Margaret O'Brien, Edward G. Robinson Co-Star in New M-G-M Hit

Edward G. Robinson and Margaret O'Brien are co-starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," the new attraction at the Plaza Theatre. Heading the imposing supporting cast is Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, with important roles played by James Craig, Frances Gifford, Agnes Morehead, Morris Carnovsky, Sara Haden and Dorothy Morris among others. "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" is a true-to-life drama, one of the most gripping and compellingly human films to come out of Hollywood in many years. It is the stirring story of a little girl who taught a whole town the meaning of humanity, a youngster who alone recognized the path that was leading to the destruction of a population. "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" is Margaret O'Brien's first picture since "Music for Millions."
