WHITE'S Wagging Tongue by Cynthia

Three professors (a physi cist, a chemist, and a stat istician) are at a meeting when a fire breaks out in a wastebasket...

The physicist says, "I know what to do! We must cool down the materials until their temperature is lower than their ignition temperature and then the fire will go out."

The chemist says, "No! No! I know what to do! We must cut off the supply of oxygen so that the fire will go out due to lack of one of the reactants."

As the physicist and the chemist debate what to do, the statistician actually does something -- he runs around the room lighting more fires.

The physicist and the chemist yell to him, "What are you do-

The statistician replies, "To figure this out, we're going to need a larger sample size!"

Unhappy with her doctor's prognosis of her failing eyesight, Mrs. Pettiworth went for a second opinion.

Shocked at how bad her eyes were, the optometrist asked, "Tell me, have your eyes ever been checked?"

After a few moments, the confused woman shook her head and said, "No, Doctor ... they've always been brown."

A four year old was in the doctors' office for her annual checkup. As the doctor looked down her ears with an otoscope, he asked, "Do you think I'll find Big Bird in here?" The little girl stayed silent. Next, the doctor took a tongue depressor and looked down her throat. He asked, "Do you think I'll find the Cookie Monster down there?" the little girl was silent. Then the doctor put a stethoscope to her chest, As he listened to her heart beat, he asked, "Do you think I'll hear Barney in there?" "Oh, no!" the little girl replied. "Jesus is in my heart. Barney's on my underpants.'

A teacher observed a little boy entering the classroom - his hands were dirty. She stopped him and said, "Johnny please wash your hands. My goodness, what would you say if I came into the room with hands like that?'

With a smile, Johnny replied, "I think I'd be too polite to mention it."

Breath of Fresh Air

By Ken Nietenhoefer

"Since God made us to be originals Why stoop to be a copy?"-Rev. Billy Graham

I think it's appropriate for Easter to occur during the spring season. Birds are singing sweeter, wildflowers are covering the countryside with their brilliance, and trees are beginning to show off their brightest green-and Christians around the world are celebrating the resurrection of Christ.

Our hemisphere has rested, the earth has been silently rejuvenated, and good things are beginning to happen. The land is bursting with fresh life, renewed energy and new excitement. One can almost sense the awe--and the promise--that they must have experienced 2,000 years ago when the news rang out, "He is risen!"

So, are you excited about life and your future? Unfortunately, many are not, but instead are condoning a minimal existence. Many have discovered that their adrenaline has ceased flowing, and that their lives are beginning to deteriorate.

In our fast-paced world, it's all too easy to become entangled in the web of despair. Many are walking backward on the treadmill to nowhere, with no hope for the present and little faith in the future. It's called "being in a rut."

Fear and worry can occupy a disproportionate amount of one's time, especially during trying times such as economic downturns, business failures, or family crises. Unfortunately, fear is the great negative motivator, the great compeller, the great inhibitor. It's a strange and sobering fact that what we fear the most, we ourselves often bring to pass. That's why dwelling on the negative is so dangerous.

"Well," you ask, "What can I do about it?" Glad you asked. It's time to re-establish your dreams, doubt will render you old and weary.

eddy Roosevelt proclaimed, "Far better it is to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs, even though checkered by failure, than to take rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much; because they live in the great twilight that knows neither victory nor defeat."

Life is self-fulfilling prophecy. You won't always get what you WANT in life, but you will usually get what you EXPECT. In order for you truly to anticipate the future with eagerness, you must not fear it, but instead, embrace it. Prepare yourself today for tomorrow's opportunities.

Dr. Denis Waitley, in his book, "Seeds of Greatness," reveals that all of the successful individuals he has studied believe that they are an integral part of God's plan. He certainly didn't put us here on earth to fail.

What better time than right now to re-dedicate yourself to your future success and happiness? What better time than right now to make a daring commitment to yourself or to your loved ones? What better time than right now to establish written goals and the strategies for their achievement?

High expectations, with the burning desire to achieve them, must so thoroughly dominate your life that fear and worry are totally squelched. Too late? Never! Oliver Wendell Holmes stated, "The greatest thing in the world is not so much where we are, but in what direction we are moving."

Just as Easter celebrates life's triumph over death, it can also symbolize a new beginning for your life.

Democratic governor's candidate makes history

By Mike Cox Texas Press Association

AUSTIN-Whether Tony Sanchez' nomination as the Democratic candidate for governor will amount to a footnote or a full chapter in Texas history won't be determined until November, but the March 13 primaries clearly marked a turning point in state politics.

Never before in Texas has a Hispanic gotten the electoral nod to run for governor. If the Laredo businessman can defeat Republican incumbent Rick Perry this fall, Sanchez would become Texas' first Hispanic governor since statehood in 1845.

If you spent all week enjoying spring break in a remote mountain cabin somewhere or on the beach, Sanchez received 60.99 percent of the vote in the Democratic primary against former Attorney General Dan Morales, who got 32.80 percent of the votes cast.

In real numbers, of 1,024,814 votes cast for governor in the Democratic primary, Sanchez got 624,991 votes to 336,102 for Morales.

Republican Gov. Rick Perry, of course, had no opposition in his party's primary.

The other big contest in the Democratic primary was the race for the U.S. Senate nomination. Former Dallas mayor Ron Kirk, the perceived frontrunner, came in a close second to Victor Morales, putting them in a runoff. Morales got 325,896 votes (33.45 percent) to Kirk's 320,576 votes (32.91 percent.)

Though every major Texas office holder is a Republican, the state's Hispanic population may be poised to swing Texas back to its Democratic roots in the future.

Hispanics accounted for more than a third of the votes cast in the Democratic primary, possibly as high as 36 percent.

"This is a real trend-setter," political analyst William C. Velasquez told the San Antonio Express-News after the election.

Beyond that, it means a dozy of a political campaign over the next 33 weeks.

And neither candidate wasted any time in getting down to cases.

"He's very experienced at being a professional politician," Sanchez said of Perry. To that he added that Perry has "never made a sincere outreach to the Hispanic community the way I believe it should be made."

To that, Perry countered: "I disagree greatly. I've got a track record."

Between now and Nov. 5, the date of the general election, both candidates will be disagreeing greatly.

In other news...

The election results got most of the attention last week, but two environmental matters have plenty of long-range significance for the people of Texas.

For the first time since 1996, natural gas drilling soon will resume on the Padre Island National Seashore.

There's been drilling on the barrier island since the 1930s, but those who like to get away from it all on the beach have not had their solitude spoiled by large vehicles and drilling rigs for nearly six years.

That is set to end soon, as drilling by BNP Petroleum Corp. of Corpus Christi gets under way.

The good news is that to get a drilling permit from the Park Service, stringent environmental guidelines have to be followed.

Up in the Panhandle, belowground water is almost as important as oil and gas.

Plans by Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens and others to "mine" water from beneath 150,000 acres in Roberts County made progress when the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority agreed in principle to withdraw its protest against the proposed project.

Special issue blooms with trips & tips for wildflower enthusiasts

Long known for its 16-page wildflower-photo feature each April, Texas Highways magazine has pulled out all the stops in the upcoming edition, a 68-page special issue devoted entirely to wildflowers.

"Our April issue has traditionally reigned as a reader favorite," says editor Jack Lowry. "It tends to outsell other months on the newsstand, and every spring, readers await it with anticipation. This year, we include all the usual awe-inspiring wildflower images, plus terrific stories on a range of related topics."

The lineup includes articles on the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center, Wildseed farms, wildflower festivals (at least a dozen take place in April, including two dedicated just to bluebonnets), and the state's best wildflower-viewing sites. Stories on some Texas' lesser-known wildflowers, wildscaping to attract birds and butterflies, and tips on gardening with flowering natives from the Dirt Doctor (organic-gardening expert Howard Garrett) add to the mix.

The issue also offers some unexpected delights--for instance, wildflower memories sent in by readers. And don't be surprised to see some cartoons among the coreopsis. For this issue, the editors recruited a pair of nationally published cartoonist, Katie and Pete Maratta, to explore the funny side of wildflowers.

Whether you're simply a nature-lover or an out-and-out wildflower fanatic, the April 2002 issue of Texas Highways offers a wealth of ways to enjoy Texas' wondrous wildflowers.

The special Wildflower Issue goes on sale at newsstands around the state on March 19.

Keeping an Eye on Texas

It's almost bluebonnet season

The first day of Spring is March 20. And if they are not doing so already, bluebonnets will soon be blooming all across Texas.

 "Bluebonnet" encompasses all six of the Lupinus species native to Texas and is the · Depending on the weather, bluebonnets can bloom from late March through April Although most bluebonnets are blue, other varieties exist in nature, such as maroon, white, lavender and pink.

 According to legend, pink bluebonnets were stained by the blood of Texas' defenders at the Alamo

· Texas A&M researchers confirm that the only place in the state where the original wild pink bluebonnets were found was along side the road, just south of The Alamo in downtown San Antoni

Field tours highlight

April Cattle/Crop Field Day

Farmers and stockmen can update their knowledge of wheat production, grazing and tillage systems, cool-season forages, and stocker cattle management at an April 18 field day hosted by Texas A&M's Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Vernon.

Field tours will highlight this event, which begins with coffee and registration at 8 a.m. at the nearby Texas Foundation Seed Service facility.

Participants can choose to take the morning field tour at three times: 8:30 a.m., 9 a.m., or 9:30 a.m. Each field tour will include four presentations/stops.

Bill Pinchak, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station ruminant nutritionist, will give an overview of current grazing studies at Stop 1. Jackie Rudd will cover forage and grain wheat breeding at Stop 2.

Stop 3 will feature an ongoing tillage study and information on forages. Todd Baughman, Texas Cooperative Extension agronomist, will discuss clearfield wheats at Stop 4.

"Clearfield" wheats are varieties bred for herbicide tolerance, much like Roundup Ready cotton. These varieties may give producers more, and possible more effective, weed control options in their wheat crop.

The tours return to the foundation seed facility around 11 a.m., where participants can learn about the latest options-opportunities in wildlife management and stocker cattle management and budgeting. Participants will also get and update on the mission and season-to-season activities of Texas Foundation Seed Service by touring the foundation seed facilities.

A featured luncheon speaker will present the latest information on the farm bill now under consideration in Congress. After lunch, representatives from the Texas Department of Agriculture, Oklahoma Wheat Commissioner, and the Texas Wheat Producers Board will discuss current reguations on Karnal Bunt and the possibility of deregulation of this crop disease.

There is no charge to attend, registration is free. Lunch will be served at the foundation seed facility next door to the Vernon cen-

What Does Phase-Out of Estate Tax Mean to You?

The Tax Relief Act of 2001 contains a provision to eliminate the estate tax in 2010. Does that mean you no longer have to do any estate planning?

Not exactly. For one thing, laws affecting estate taxes could easily change again over the next ten years. Furthermore, estate planning encompasses more than just taxes - so there's always something to think about.

Before looking at these other issues, however, let's see just what the estate tax phase-out means. To begin with, not everyone pays estate taxes, even under the current system. That's because every person receives what's known as a "unified credit" - an amount of money they can give away, tax-free, at death or during their lifetime. In 2001, this unified credit was worth $675,000. Under the new tax laws, it's $1 million for 2002 and 2003, and it will gradually increase to $3.5 million in 2009. Starting in 2010, all estate taxes are repealed.

So, if you are sure your estate will be worth less than these limits over the next several years, you probably won't have to worry about saddling your heirs with estate taxes. You might be surprised, however, at how attainable these thresholds really are. Keep in mind that your taxable estate includes all your liquid assets - including the value of some insurance policies — real estate, cars, property and everything else you own. Therefore, it's not totally inconceivable that you could exceed your unified credit when your estate is being settled.

Furthermore, no one can predict what will happen to estate tax laws after 2010. A future Congress, in need of money to balance potential budget deficits, may well vote to restore some version of the estate

Given these factors, it's still a good idea to create an estate plan. In the course of your planning, you may want to consider such options as a survivorship life insurance policy, also known as "second-to-die insurance." This type of insurance goes into effect after the second spouse dies, so your heirs can use the policy proceeds to pay any estate taxes. This coverage is expensive, though, and it gets more costly the older you are — so if you're going to purchase it, don't wait

Survivorship life policies and other tools are effective ways to deal with estate taxes, but these taxes are not the only component of estate planning. If, for example, you want to avoid the expensive and timeconsuming process of probate, while making sure your estate's assets are distributed precisely according to your wishes, you may want to establish a living trust. Or, if you'd like to leave a a sizable donation to a charity while simultaneously providing yourself with a regular stream of income, you may want to set up a version of a living trust known as a charitable remainder trust.

In fact, you can accomplish a lot of important goals by drawing up a well-structured estate plan. Because of the complexity of estate planning, you'll want to work with a qualified legal adviser, along with your financial professional.

And once you've got your plans drawn up, you'll need to revisit them regularly to accommodate changes in your life and in the tax laws. A lifetime of effort went into creating your estate - so do whatever it takes to preserve it and pass it on.

Prairie Pani

"This is Darian and Dane's favorite food and Grandma Mary and Aunt Mary Ann fix it all the time!' says Mary Ann Yruegas of her recipe for "Conchitas" - a shell macaroni dish that youngsters and oldsters really enjoy.

Conchitas

3 cups medium size shells 2 Tablespoons vegetable oil

4 cups water

1 small can tomato sauce 1/3 cup chopped onion

1 Tablespoon garlic powder Salt and Pepper to taste

Brown shells in the vegetable oil in deep skillet. Add onions and brown a little longer. Add water and tomato sauce, onion powder garlic, etc. Bring to a boil, lower heat, cover and simmer for about 15 to 20 minutes. Yields about 6 cups.

"Darian and Dane love to eat this all by itself but it can also be a tasty side dish with any meal," says Yruegas.

Coming from a big-time cattle state where steaks are revered and barbecue is practically its own food group, it may surprise you to note that Texas ranks first in goat meat production in the United States. We're home to some 1.25 million head of goats, and the market is wide open for Texas producers.

Goat meat is low in fat, which is one reason why demand has risen steadily since the late 1970s. Another reason for the growth comes from the diet preferences of recent immigrant populations Globally speaking, goat meat is consumed in most countries throughout the world.

Demand for goat meat is expected to rise domestically with increasing familiar ity and education. Folks prefer domestic goat meat to others when sampled, and the Texas Department of Agriculture recently teamed up with Ranchers' Lamb, producer-owned lamb and goat slaughter plant in San Angelo, to promote Texas lamb and goat meat. We're targeting major Texas grocery store chains for cooking demonstrations and advertising.

TDA also has published a Texas Livestock Directory, which provides a snapshot of the livestock industry as a whole and includes the meat goat industry. It links buyers and producers and also provides information to help ensure smooth export transactions. It's just one more tool to help grow the market for goat meat. If you would like to order a copy of the directory, call 1-800-TELL-

KNOX COUNTY SHERIFF DEPT.

Sheriff Dean W. Homstad

NOTICE TO CITIZENS OF KNOX COUNTY

In regards to the Senate Bill 1074, which prohibits racial profiling, the Knox County Sheriff's Office would like to make the following known:

This department supports the 77th Texas Legislature's mandate prohibiting racial profiling in Texas. Our Deputies work under a departmental policy that is consistent with all state and federal laws. The policy includes provisions for citizens to contact us if they have a conflict with a Knox County Deputy.

The Knox County Sheriff's Office realizes that there will be contact with our officers and employees. We realize that confusion, different perception, or possible the timeliness of information could result in information that may produce different accounts of the same incident. These disagreements between citizens and officers/employees need to be addressed. We trust that the vast majority of contacts between citizens and officers/employees are conducted in a positive. professional manner. The relationship between our community and our officers/employees is based on confidence and trust. We cannot be effective without both the community and our officers/employees working together to achieve this Citizens feeling that they have a legitimate concern may make a formal complaint to the Knox County Sheriff's Office at any time by contacting any member of this department for information on the complaint process. Additional information about this process may be obtained by calling us at 940-422-2211.

The Knox County Sheriff's Office would also like to know about the positive contacts with this office. Please write the Sheriff a letter or note to let him know about such a contact, and I will be glad to let the officer/employee know about the letter, along with placing a copy of the letter in the officer/employee's personnel folder.

We are very proud of the relationship the Knox County sheriff's Office shares with the community. Our long-standing goal is to provide our citizens with a safe community where all may live without the fear of crime.

On a personal not on behalf of the Knox County Sheriff's Office, including our Deputies, jailer/dispatchers, and myself, since becoming Sheriff in 1997, this office has never engaged in any type of profiting. If a person does something wrong, he/she must answer for it, regardless of gender, race, whatever. We all strive to treat all individuals equal in similar situations. This bill is intended to prevent/end racial profiling and may do some good in a few scattered instances, however, it seems to be costing many agencies a lot of money. The bill, in effect, requires Law Enforcement agencies to document contacts with detained individuals. There are many categories that must be documented, including gender, race, or ethnicity, location of contact, offense or traffic violation, and if so, what was discovered, etc. After that and a few other things have been documented, then a report must be made to the governing information collected in the previous year. A lot of work documenting stuff that can easily be altered and rally doesn't mean much. An exemption to this requirement would be to install video cameras in the patrol cars, at a cost of $4,000 - $6,000 per unit.

If the cameras are installed, you do not have to do the documentation collection and analysis to such an extent. The cameras can just as easily be altered to show what the officer wants it to show. The officers that I personally know do not need someone to pass another law that requires more paperwork or a video camera installed in their vehicle to do their job with honesty and effectiveness. The Department of Public Safety is in charge of possible grants to Law Enforcement Departments to fund the very expensive toys. I will agree that the car video cameras can not only increase the conviction of suspects caught on the camera, can aid in the officer's statement if discrepancies occur between the officer and someone the officer is dealing with, but I do not believe that the primary reason for the in car cameras should be related to the Senate Bill 1074. The DPS grant, if approved and the money is available, is a life saver for departments like ours, the Knox County Sheriff's Office, since such a large budget expenditure was not expected, planned for, nor are the funds available from the County Treasury. I personally do not believe that for small, rural departments like ours, the over reaction to pass the law and to comply with the Senate Bill is either necessary or warranted. The camera exemption/ requirement seems to be costing departments a lot of money, and making some people a lot of money.

This department, even though we have never discriminated in any way, required information manually, without the assistance of expensive video cameras. At this point, if the DPS grant is not available for one reason or another, we do not plan to purchase the in car video cameras. Questions or comments, as usual, are welcome. Once a gain, our phone number is 940-454-2211.
