Attendance At Revival Continues To Grow As Meeting Draws To A Close

Flowers Party Are Bringing Real Gospel Messages And Attendance and Interest Increases With Each and Every Service

The Flowers Evangelistic Party have brought a series of gospel messages to Munday that are different from the ordinary evangelistic campaigns of the present day. They are different by reason of the fact that they depend for results upon the preaching of the gospel rather than sensational messages intermingled with conformation acts. Do not take it that we are criticizing the latter method, but we just want to get over the idea that the Flowers are delivering messages confined to the teachings of the scriptures and to our way of thinking this is the kind of preaching the world is sorely in need of and which thinking people appreciate and enjoy, and from which they derive an inspiration.

Both the Rev. R. L. Flowers and Mrs. Flowers are able evangelists and their earnestness and sincerity in the work in which they are engaged is manifestly evident, and we believe that the efforts of these able evangelistic workers will be evident long after they have gone from Munday. We believe that their work will be of the more substantial character, and that the members of the churches who have attended these services will be greatly revived and more determined to do their full duty in the days and weeks and months and years to come.

The program for the remainder of the week is as follows: Friday Night—All Church night. Members of all churches are urged to be present and hear this message. It will be worth while.

Saturday Night—Farmers Night. Farmers and their families will have a section of the large tabernacle reserved for them, and five gallons of gasoline will be given to the farmer driving the greatest distance to this meeting.

The Sunday Program
A. J. Flowers will speak to the Men's Bible Class at the tabernacle at 10:00 a. m.

At the 11:00 o'clock service Mrs. Flowers will speak and her subject will be "Home." At this service three boxes of candy will be given away; one to the largest family, one to the couple who have been married the shortest period of time and one to the couple that has been married the longest period of time.

On Sunday evening Evangelist R. L. Flowers will speak, and his subject will be "Why I Belong to the Church." Don't fail to attend all of these services, for you are sure to get a great blessing out of them.

Would Organize and Build Refinery For Benefit of Citizens

R. P. Lightfoot of San Antonio, Texas, who with Mr. Corah, has been working for some weeks throughout Haskell and Knox counties with a view of organizing a company and putting in a refinery in this section for the refining of gasoline, kerosene, distillate and fuel oil and for the purchasing of lubricating oils in carload lots and distributing it through filling stations which are members of the organization, and to individuals who are also stockholders in the company.

Mr. Lightfoot in outlining his plan states that it is not his purpose to cut the retail price of gasoline, but they plan to sell their products at the regular retail prices demanded by other dealers, and the profits that accrue from the sale of the products manufactured and handled by the company will go to the members or stockholders of the company.

Following a survey of the territory embracing the towns of Haskell, Rule, Knox City, Rochester, Munday and Weimer a meeting was held at Haskell recently, where the proposition was fully discussed and recommendations made by those present. These recommendations will be found in an ad on another page of this paper and we request that you turn over the pages and find it, read it carefully.

CARD OF THANKS

From the depth of our hearts we wish to express our appreciation to each and every one who in any way, by thought, word or deed, remembered us in our dark hours of sorrow in giving up our darling Betty Lou. May God's richest blessings be upon you and may you be spared such sorrow as our prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Eiland and family.

Hot Check Artist Falls Into Strong Arms of Law Here

A man giving his name as Luther Rubio was arrested here Saturday after he had given two worthless checks to business concerns, and is now confined to the county jail at Benjamin to await the action of the grand jury.

The man entered the Baker-Campbell Company store and made purchases of dry goods aggregating $30.00 and the store of A. J. Birdsong, where he made purchases amounting to $10.00, and at both places of business he tendered checks in payment for the goods purchased on the First National Bank of Benjamin, at one place signing his name as J. H. Brown and at the other he signed as M. H. Brown.

Shortly after he had left the Baker-Campbell store Garland Burns, who had made the sale and had accepted the check in payment therefore, became suspicious and upon investigation found that the check was worthless. He immediately instituted a search for the party, and with the assistance of Lee Haymes, located the man in a negro shack in the south part of the city and brought him to the store, where Marshal C. R. Elliott was summoned and he was lodged in the city jail after practically all of the merchandise had been recovered, and was later turned over to county officials.

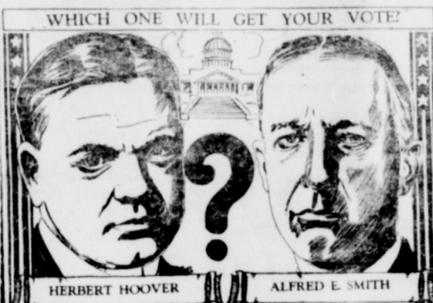

The man appears to be white but states that he is half negro and half Mexican.

After his arrest it was ascertained that he had defrauded the Bryant-Link Company at Knox City out of merchandise to the extent of $32.25 about a month ago by the same method, and it is said by officers who have been investigating his activities that he procures the merchandise in this manner and sells it to negroes.

Officers are investigating his activities with a view of connecting him with the burglary of a store at Bomarton

THE MUNDAY TIMES JOINS IN NATION-WIDE STRAW VOTE ON PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES; RESULTS TO BE PUBLISHED

PRESIDENTIAL POLL

My CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT IS

HERBERT HOOVER

ALFRED E. SMITH

(Put an X before the one you intend to vote)

After filling out this Trial Ballot, please Mail or Bring it to the office of This Newspaper

What TICKET Did You Vote Last Presidential Campaign?

Republican—Democrat

The coming presidential election will be the most interesting, perhaps ever held in the United States.

The names of Hoover and Smith are on the lips of everyone.

Do you want to know what is the trend of political thought throughout the country? Which has the best chance of winning?

If you do, cooperate with The Munday Times in its nationwide presidential poll which is inaugurated with this issue. The results of this straw vote will be a straw showing which way the political wind is blowing.

In conjunction with more than 2,000 other weekly and daily newspapers published in representative towns in every state in the nation, the Munday Times will conduct this poll. The voting will be concluded on October 11. The final vote will be announced in the Munday Times shortly thereafter.

In the meantime, week's reports will be made of the progress of the voting. The report from other states will be forwarded to this newspaper through the Publisher's Autocaster Service of New York, through which national news organization this newspaper is served.

Vote for your favorite now—today—at once. Show your fellow voters of the same faith in other states what YOU are going to do at the polls. To pile up votes for your candidate in the early weeks of voting will have its effect on sentiment. This newspaper is neutral and independent in regard to this poll. This poll is conducted in the interests of ALL VOTERS. The votes as received at this office will be accurately tabulated and the voice of Munday and community as expressed in that vote will be forwarded to the New York headquarters to be tallied in the nationwide returns.

Any industrial or mercantile organization in this community which wishes a poll taken of its workers may write or telephone the editor of this newspaper and he will cooperate in taking that poll.

Clip out the same ballot below. Mark an X before the name of the candidate for which you intend to vote. Also indicate, if you care to, the party for which you cast your ballot in the last presidential campaign. Mail or bring it to the Munday Times office. Vote today!

No matter what your political beliefs may be, there is no voter who will not be interested in knowing the drift of the vote in this exciting campaign.

Hoover or Smith? Which one will get your vote? Let us know!

will compare favorably with the first term of any previous administration in the history of the county, and ask your vote and support upon this basis.

Thanking the public for the generous support I received in my first race, and begging to assure you of the highest confidence and assurance upon my part, in a similar verdict at our hands Saturday, I beg to remain,

Yours to command,
OLIVER W. LEE.

KNOX COUNTY CHRISTIAN CHURCHES PLAN MEETING

Benjamin, Texas, July 24—Christian churches in Knox County will meet in all-day meeting at the Knox City Christian church July 29. Services will be held at 11 o'clock, morning and at 8 o'clock, evening.

The administration of county affairs during this, my first term, has been fairly satisfactory, and

REVIVAL GROWING IN INTEREST

Those who have heard the Rev. and Mrs. Flowers are saying might nice things about the messages from day to day. If you have been kept away or neglecting to attend, get in yet. You can't help from receiving a blessing from the gospel sermons.

The Flowers Party are not sensational, emotional or "whoop-em-up" evangelists, but preach God's word and are indeed in earnest about His business, and so impress all who hear them. Regardless of what church you belong to or whether you are connected with any, you are welcome. Put God First in your life and your business and you will win. May God give us even greater victory these last days.

R. B. FREEMAN, Pastor.

Good Rains Aid To Crop Prospects

Week of Rain and Damp Weather Puts New Life in Community As Prospects Brighten

A week ago crop prospects over the Munday section were anything but promising. All early feed that had not already been ruined by the prolonged dry weather would have been in a few days had the hot winds and sunshine kept on. Cotton was also beginning to show the need for moisture, and would have been cut materially short had not the good old Jupiter Pluvius visited this section in the niche of time and relieved the situation.

While the rains over the Munday section have been somewhat spotted, it is believed that in most localities they have received a sufficient amount of moisture to carry the cotton and young feed stuffs to near the point of maturity, yet there are some sections, especially to the south and east of Munday, that have not yet had sufficient rainfall to last long.

Possibly the heaviest rainfall in this immediate section has fallen in the Rhineland community, where several heavy showers have fallen during the past few days, one of which was estimated to be about two inches.

Gas Mains Being Laid In Munday

Atex Construction Crew Laying Pipe Over City and Gas Will Be Available Soon

It won't be long now! Munday within a few days will have natural gas, and with the addition of this modern fuel, Munday will have every convenience that our city neighbors enjoy, and will be provided with a fuel that will doubtless prove a great saving to our citizenship.

The laying of the pipe throughout the city has begun and the crew of the Atex Construction Company, which has maintained headquarters here for some time, is here ready to begin ditching and welding, and it is expected that gas will be available to Munday citizens in a few days.

That our merchants are prepared for the coming of the new fuel will be seen by visiting our stores, for they all have a full and complete line of gas ranges to offer to the public.

We are glad to welcome this new enterprise to Munday for we believe that the acquisition of this modern convenience and fuel will greatly aid in the development and future growth of our town.

Complications After Operation Fatal To Bettie Lou Eiland

Our citizenship was greatly shocked on Sunday morning when it became known that little Bettie Lou Eiland, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Eiland, had passed away at 3:00 o'clock in a Wichita Falls hospital, where she was carried in a critical condition on the previous day.

Some few weeks ago she underwent an operation for appendicitis at Wichita Falls, and while her recovery seemed slow and for a time following the operation she did not make satisfactory progress in recovering, she had recovered sufficiently to be brought home and it was thought by her parents and attending physicians that she would soon regain her health, however, some few days ago her condition seemed to grow more serious and on Saturday afternoon she was carried in a critical condition by her father, C. A. Eiland and Dr. Wm. P. Farrington, to Wichita Falls, where, despite the most skilled medical attention, she succumbed within a few hours.

The remains were shipped to Munday, arriving on the afternoon train Sunday afternoon, where a large concourse of friends gathered to pay their respects to the sweet little girl and her grief-stricken parents, and funeral services were held at the Methodist church on Monday afternoon, with the Rev. R. B. Freeman officiating, assisted by the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, and following the impressive service at the church the remains were conveyed to Johnson cemetery for interment.

Active pallbearers were Cecil and Aaron Blanton and Chase Eiland, cousins of deceased, and Tom Campbell, while the honorary pallbearers were the Rev. R. B. Freeman, Dr. Wm. P. Farrington, F. L. Grider, J. Horace Bass, J. E. Rhodes, George Spann, J. C. Campbell and D. C. Fritz, all of whom were especially loved by Betty Lou.

Little Bettie Lou was just eight years and two weeks of age at the time of her untimely death, having been born on July 6, 1920, and for the past two years had attended the Munday public school, where she had endeared herself to the many little schoolmates by her kind and lovable disposition. She was by the same token a favorite in the home—with her little sisters and brothers and doting parents, who in this dark hour drink of the bitter cup of sorrow, and the only word of consolation that could bring relief to their broken hearts is in the knowledge that this happy home and the Heavenly home above where little Bettie Lou will await their coming, and where the infinite mind of man can understand all of the sorrows and heart-aches that come to them in their journey homeward, where grief and sorrow are no more.

Election Returns To Be Received From Over State Saturday

As stated last week, arrangements have been made with the Texas Election Bureau of Dallas for furnishing complete election returns on the primary election Saturday night. These bulletins will be received at intervals until near midnight and will come from all sections of the state, and will be of sufficient volume to be decisive by that hour except in case of close races where a total count may be necessary to determine the winners.

This service is being provided by the business concerns of Munday and will be posted upon an electrically lighted bulletin board where all may see. The street will be roped off from automobile transportation and there will be ample room for all to view the board at the returns are received.

County returns will be received and posted as rapidly as the counts are given out through the assistance of Jack Mayes, who has been chosen by the Texas Election Bureau to furnish returns from Knox county for that organization.

Mrs. E. E. (Jake) Morris was stricken critically ill last week and was carried to a sanitarium in Abilene, en route from there on Wednesday were to the effect that she is somewhat improved but is still in a critical condition.

"But it seems you trusted every one else," I glanced toward Southley and his daughter.

"Naturally. Mr. Southley knew it. I came at his invitation—and Miss Southley learned the truth just this evening, and I consider it a distinct reflection on the ability of her father and myself to judge character that we waited so long in making her an ally. But I will say—its more her father's fault than mine."

"You must remember that my acquaintance with my daughter was somewhat slight," Southley explained. "She has been away to school so much—only here a few weeks. Besides—she did know a few things. I'm sorry I didn't tell her more."

Father and daughter exchanged smiles. Josephine herself seemed changed. It was curious that I had not noticed the moment I stepped into the room. There was a new light in her eyes, a rising of the delicious color that played ever in her cheeks. Again I saw the smile that I had marveled at that night in the drawing-room long ago. Evidently there had been developments in the mystery of which I was not aware.

"Remember, we will need your son too," Alexander told my host.

Alexander and I walked together into the drawing-room, and we had a minute's talk at the foot of the stairs.

"I'm going to my room now," he explained. "It's a maid's room on the third floor, but it fits my purpose perfectly. I have a few chemical experiments to make."

"Of course, it was you who destroyed the evidence on the white stone."

"Not destroyed it. Merely gathered it up. I wanted to make some blood tests. And it pained me to cause you and the inspector so much disappointment."

"I imagined it would!"

Then we had a little laugh together. It was all too plain that a deep professional jealousy existed between such freelance experts as Alexander and staff detectives like Inspector Freeman.

"But why in the world did you tear that piece from Ahmad's shirt?" I asked.

Alexander laughed again—a boyish, joyous sound that died quickly in the silence of the room.

"I'm afraid that is evidence of my autistic nature," he said. "But I had to have a sample of the bloodstains and I knew it would break Freeman's heart if I took the whole shirt. So I just tore out the piece."

He sobered and became very businesslike. That was one of the marvels of the man. One minute he was the best of comrades—boyish, laughing, irresponsible. The next, he was the cool-headed, tireless sleuth with every nerve and muscle alert.

"There's work for to-morrow," he went on swiftly. "You'll have your part to do. So will Southley have his part, and his two children. Tomorrow I'm going to take the boat on a little expedition—over to the plateau. You are to meet me on the path at my return—just after midnight. You can have the inspector with you if you like. Southley and his daughter will be close about, and they will know their parts. The hour to strike is almost here."

"And Vilas? What about him? And Ahmad?"

"Ahmad is the suspected murderer. I'm afraid Vilas won't do."

"But Josephine Southley would think otherwise," I told him with some bitterness. "You must know—that they are allies. You couldn't have missed that point."

"Allies?" he echoed coldly. "What do you mean?"

"She's going to marry him—that's what I mean. And she's bitterly against me. Thinking that her lover might be accused of the murder of his father, she told the detective things that implicated me and got him to hold me here."

"Sometimes, Dr. Long," he told me slowly, "your mental grasp is quite astonishing—for its perfect and abounding aptitude to make a fool of yourself."

And he left me to ponder in the halls below.

Inspector Freeman—who had learned the truth at last—and I walked down to the shore with Pierce at eleven o'clock the next morning. The rowboat waited for my friend, and in it were two strong covered men to row. Alexander had put on his hip-boots and was armed with a heavy rifle. And it was plain to see that Freeman was entirely contemptuous of the whole proceedings.

"You're a funny one, Pierce," he spoke jokingly—and at the same time meant every word he said. "In the first place, coming with all that stage scenery on yourself. It takes one of you correspondence school detectives to do stunts like that. I suppose you thought that the murderer would recognize your determined face from your picture in the newspaper—and make himself scarce before you could get out the handcuffs."

"Rather a different reason, my dear inspector," Alexander answered him as he began to slip the great cartridges into the magazine of the heavy rifle. "It wasn't the murderer or I was so frightened of him that the first place I didn't want to you to leave the scene in disgust, as you might have done upon recognizing me. You were doing too good work."

"You needn't have been afraid of that. The man was already in my hands. And I'm glad you appreciate the work I have done."

"Perfectly, Freeman, perfectly. It was particularly clever the way you found the shirt."

"Of course, you were in the hall all the time."

"Of course, I wondered what you and my good friend Long were going to do."

"I suppose you know that the shirt is going to put the noose about Ahmad's neck?"

"One can never tell, inspector."

"It's a piece of evidence that cannot be questioned—although I admit the final tests as to the authenticity of the stains has not yet been made."

"And besides, Freeman—there are other reasons why I thought it best that certain occupants of this house shouldn't recognize me," Alexander went on seriously. "It would help out in the end. I confess, I don't care for disguises as a rule. And now I must bid you good day, and go search your good jungle for the murderer of Hayward."

Freeman laughed uproariously. "With a rifle, too?" he exclaimed. "I'd think you were going elephant hunting. Of all the exotic enterprises! You can't believe that the murderer is still at large, when I have him under my constant supervision in the house! Pierce, I have every admiration for your qualities, but I assure you you are making the mistake of your career."

"Everyone has to make mistakes sometimes," inspector. "Besides—I don't suppose you remember about the breaking of the levee—how the murderer would have time to cross the isthmus to the plateau, but couldn't possibly go farther?"

"I remember that perfectly. But the real murderer didn't try to cross at all. He came back into the house."

"Then there's the matter of the scratches—and the legend, and the rest of it. None of those things must be overlooked, Freeman. And I'll meet you both soon after dark."

"We watched the negroes row away across the dark swamp water. He was gone all afternoon. Once it seemed to me that I heard the far-off caw of his rifle shot, but I couldn't be sure. Freeman continued his investigations. Vilas walked about on the grass hillside like a hunted man. The long afternoon waxed hot, the shadows lengthened, the sun cast its glamor over all the waste of the marshes. Twilight dropped like a white mist, and the stars began to crop out of the sky. The night life of the marsh awakened—insect and wind and bird had their chorus.

I don't know where my thoughts were that long afternoon. I tried to read for a while. It wasn't a success. I know that my stay at Southley Downs, so often threatened, was at its end at last. Tomorrow we would all cross the marsh to testify at the owner's inquest; and I would never return to Southley Downs again. The mystery and the charm would go out of my life to stay, as the swampwater glided beneath the boat.

It was after nine when I saw the flash of a lantern across the water. Thin clouds were in the sky, and the moon had not yet risen. The whole wilderness world was lit by the shadow, and the soft light over the water brought a queer flood of thoughts. I welcomed its approach. At the moment it seemed the only reminder that life still existed about this bleak estate of the Southleys. Without it, it might have seemed a realm of death, where human beings never came. And besides, the great Alexander Pierce was returning from his expedition, and I did not know but that this gleam across the water was the breaking of the light of truth in the darkness.

I heard a step behind me. It was Inspector Freeman. "I see he's coming just at the time he promised," he said with a note of wonder.

The boat drew up to the shore and the colored men got out to make it fast. The lantern light was dim, and I could not see plainly. It seemed to me that something was huddled in the bottom of the boat—something rather large—but I couldn't see what it was because a rubber tarpaulin had been thrown over it. But I did see Alexander's face. He held the lantern up to look at us, and it showed his features plainly. He seemed curiously intent.

We walked up the path and three shadows made black streaks across the light that the lantern threw. They were of the three Southleys, who had come out of the house to meet us. They also seemed grave, determined. Something gleamed in the old man's hand. As Alexander held the lantern high, I saw what it was. It was a pistol.

"What's this?" Alexander asked.

"Vilas' pistol," Southley replied. "You told me to get it."

"How did you do it without arousing suspicion?"

"Took it from the drawer in the library table. He keeps it there in the daytime. Usually carries it at night. Ernest and I left him with the excuse that we had to talk to some of the colored laborers at their cottages. Josephine just slipped away."

Alexander turned to Ernest. "How about the candles?"

"Two burning in the library. All the others have been misplaced, as you directed."

"And the servants?"

"No one in the house but Ahmad."

The inspector suddenly gasped. "But I tell you that isn't safe," he cried. "He'll get away. Alexander, you promised to keep a watch out for him. He'll be gone when we get to the house."

"I promised I'd see that he didn't run away," Alexander answered wearily. "He'll be there when we come. Don't fear, inspector. He turned to the others. "Then everything is ready. Miss Southley—if you will go with Inspector Freeman. His arm is strong and his aim sure. Southley, you and Ernest can take the south windows. You, Long, will be an unprejudiced witness. But you've got to know how to walk silently."

"I know how. I've stalked deer in the West."

"Good. Then you'll come with me. And now—out goes the light."

He lifted the lantern and turned down the wick. Then he blew out the flame. Of course I understood. In our present position at the base of the hill, it would not be visible from the windows of the house. It would be visible as we approached the house.

And just as the shadows fell a hand touched mine. It was a warm hand, and soft, and the fingers rested a single fluttering instant in my palm. It was a little hand, too, and I had in a single instant of never-to-be-forgotten knowledge of its power to soothe and hold, and a tenderness beyond all reckoning. And I knew whose hand it was.

"Maybe you can understand after this," she whispered. "Perhaps you won't condemn me so."

Then like a squad deploying in battle, we started climbing up the slope of the hill.

We soon left the others in the darkness. Alexander and I crept to the postern door.

"One sound will spoil the play," he whispered to me in the instant that we waited at its threshold. "Keep your ears and eyes open."

Then we crept through into the little hall. The door into the library was open, but scarcely any light came through. So deep was the shadow that Alexander was at once invisible.

"I promised I'd see that he

We lay down on the opposite sides of the hall, so that we could look through into the library. But we left the passage open, as Alexander had instructed. The reason was simply that he thought the man we had come to watch might want to make an escape through the doorway, and it would have spoiled the plan for him to see us on the way out. Lying close to the walls, it was likely he would pass us by. But after one glance through the doorway I felt sure that such an attempt would be made. The darkness of the hillside where Hayward had died would, in this man's mind, seem more terrible than the room itself.

The library at Southley Downs was tremendously long. It had rows of windows at one end, and the other opened into the hall. The tapestries and furnishings were rather dark, after the manner of Victorian libraries. At one side was built the great fireplace, now cheerless and cold. There were rather many curtains that waved when the wind blew. The wind was blowing now. We could feel it, damp and strange from the marsh, against our faces.

When I say that Vilas Hayward sat alone I do not mean that there were no other occupants in the room. There was one other, and it is true that at first I didn't see him at all. He kept at the very edge of the candlelight, and he moved so softly, so unobtrusively that it was very easy to ignore his presence. It was Ahmad Das.

I white face is always comparatively visible in dim light. That is why soldiers going on to No Man's Land at night darkened their faces with lamp-black. But Ahmad's face was naturally dark, and it blurred in our sight. Sometimes I saw the whites of his eyes when the candlelight shone on them. Vilas Hayward was not trying to read; and the fact that the light was too dim for easy reading had nothing really to do with it. He was watching Ahmad Das out of the corner

At Your Command---

Merely by pressing a button the electric generating stations and the 1,900 miles of transmission lines of this company are at your command—without an instant's notice.

This could not be if this company's generating and distribution systems did not grow faster than the customer's demands.

Keeping ahead of West Texas' growth and helping West Texas to grow by offering every facility for exceptional electric service at reasonable rates is the policy of this company.

Through your patronage and good will the West Texas Utilities Company has been able to carry out the policy. We appreciate that patronage and good will; too, we hope, through continued good service and by improving it where possible, to merit your patronage and good will in the future.

BANKER-FARMER MOVEMENT GROWS

Funds Supplied by Banking Organizations in Many States to Finance Studies and Contests.

The nationwide movement being conducted by county and state bankers' associations and the American Bankers' Association in cooperation with the state agricultural colleges and county agents for the purpose of bringing about both local and national solutions for farm economic problems has shown notable results during the past year. A review of these activities in the Bulletin of the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, summarizes some of the chief points as follows:

In Missouri a meeting was held at the College of Agriculture at which the bankers again appropriated $1,600 for boys' and girls' club work. Saline county bankers have raised $500 to stimulate beef club work and report definite results obtained in getting farmers to lime their soil and grow alfalfa. County "key bankers" to promote banker support of farm betterment projects are being appointed in another Short Course in Agriculture for bankers is being planned.

In Kansas no less than fifteen counties are reported by the Extension Service as engaged in definite banker-farmer work. County key bankers attended four district conferences during the year. The Louisiana bankers' agricultural committee met at the College of Agriculture in connection with a bankers' farm course. The bankers are thoroughly aroused to the wisdom of the eradication and are cooperating in the purchase of selected and county meetings with a bankers' farm course throughout the state will be arranged.

Results Shown

In Kentucky key bankers have been appointed in each county with the result that the bankers of the state are cooperating with the College of Agriculture more specifically than any other group of business men. Some of the fruits of this cooperation is demonstrated by the fact that the number of dairy cattle in the state has increased seven per cent and the production per cow twelve per cent. Three counties in the state have eliminated all scrub bulls.

In North Carolina the outstanding accomplishments have been the honoring of "Class A Farmers," that is, those attaining a degree of proficiency in a well balanced and sound system of farming as indicated by a score sheet prepared by the College of Agriculture and the Bankers Short Course given there. Future plans provide for the continuation of the county key banker system and the arrangement of county banker-farmer tours.

In Virginia $15,000 has been raised by subscription for boys' and girls' club work, largely from bankers. A group meeting was held at the College of Agriculture with two hundred bankers in attendance. The Committee on Agriculture of the State Bankers Association voted to continue and check up on the county key banker work.

The reports from New York on the activities for the past year included the distribution of 20,000 short form farm credit statements prepared cooperatively by the agricultural college and bankers. The bankers' agricultural committee also arranged to send suggestions to the banks of the state to aid in financing purchase of dairy cattle to replace those lost by the tuberculin test.

Bankers' Farm Schools
Bankers' Farm Schools or "Short Courses" continued popular during the year. Several colleges held such courses under the auspices of the state bankers' agricultural committees and are repeating them this year. "Minimum of Talk—Maximum of Demonstration" was the character of program put on by the Kansas Agricultural College for the second Bankers' Farm School in April. Four representatives were invited from each of twenty counties, consisting of the county key banker, the county agent, the secretary of the county bankers' association, and the president of the farm bureau. Proper farm methods were brought out by demonstrations, then tours were made to farms whose owners had followed the practices and methods outlined by the college to illustrate the lessons. Emphasis was placed on the important part bankers can play in developing agriculture.

In South Dakota specific plans for the ensuing year are the appointment of county key bankers, cooperation in boys' and girls' club projects and group meetings of county agents and key bankers. In Minnesota the county key bankers system is to be continued with special emphasis on bringing the county agent and key banker into closer cooperation.

At a banker meeting at the North Dakota Agricultural College it was decided that the key banker organization would be completed and in order to acquaint the bankers with agricultural needs county bankers' meetings were planned during the year. At a conference held at Montana State College it was reported that county key bankers had cooperated in arranging for a livestock special train which ran for seventeen days, made twenty-nine stops and came in contact with 22,000 people; that bankers had assisted in six district conferences that led to the formation of a state agricultural program, and that twenty-eight counties reported definite work under the leadership of the county key bankers such as assisting in the purchase of purchased livestock and loans to club members.

Other States in Line

Idaho College of Agriculture was the scene of a special meeting attended by thirty-five bankers and college representatives. The conference voted to join the key banker ranks.

In Oregon the first banker-farmer short course was held in January with a good attendance and marked enthusiasm. A meeting of the state bankers' agricultural committee held in conjunction with the course voted approval of the banker-farmer contest sponsored by Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, and appointed a committee to confer with college authorities on methods to prevent spread of contagion in dairy cattle.

California held twenty-two successful county tours during the year and as a result it is planned to extend the tours to every county in the state and also to arrange a state-wide tour. The county key bankers played a big part in pushing this work. At an Arizona College of Agriculture meeting of bankers county key bankers were appointed and plans made for community conferences of bankers, farmers and others where local agricultural needs will be discussed.

In New Mexico bankers and county agents met at Clovis as a step in the plan to acquaint bankers in different sections of the state with agricultural conditions and to bring about greater cooperation between them and the county agents. At the Colorado College of Agriculture plans were formulated to select county key bankers, to follow up work with key bankers and county agents and for chairman of the state bankers' committee to attend and address group meetings.

In Nebraska four "farm outlook" meetings were held, largely attended by bankers. Sixty-nine county key bankers were appointed during the year and follow-up work between them and county agents is to be pushed. For Iowa effective cooperation is reported between bankers and the Extension Service of the state college in their farm bureau programs. Every third farmer in the state is a member of the bureau. The key banker system is to be continued and special emphasis is to be placed on team work between county agents and key bankers.

Director D. H. Otis of the Agricultural Commission American Bankers Association attended many of the meetings.

LEAF WORM CONTROL

At this date almost every year there appear rumors that the leaf worm is attacking the cotton crop, and there have been occasional years in which considerable damage is done this early to the cotton in the Rio Grande Valley and the lower Coastal section, advises R. R. Reppert, Entomologist Extension Service, A. & M. College.

Knowing the cotton farmers' anxiety regarding this insect and acting upon rumors that it has already made its appearance in South Texas, we have within the last few days taken pains to look into these particular rumors and also to send out inquiries to other points which are expected to be infested first. Replies which have reached us deny all the specific rumors and do not indicate the presence of the leaf worm as yet at any point in Texas.

Farmers, we think, can rest assured that their cotton will not be seriously damaged by this insect for at least another ten days. Any infestation would normally make its appearance first in the more southern portion, progressing from that section northward. Outside of the Coastal area we would think the cotton crop reasonably safe, at least until August 1st.

Extensive damage from the leaf worm cannot with great certainty be forecast for any great length of time in the future, although as we have stated, no immediate damage may be expected. The frequent rains now being experienced, if continued, will be favorable to a rapid multiplication of the insect and farmers may do well to inquire into the supply of calcium arsenate locally available. Our information as to the present situation is reassuring. Apparently there is an adequate supply in or near Texas to begin a fight, with other quantities stored at such points that it may readily be moved to meet an emergency.

In order that we may be able to give the best service possible, we invite all parties who suspect an infestation by the leaf worm in their community to send specimens of the worm or moths to us at College Station.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

It is interesting to know that modern preserving methods have eliminated the chance for failure in making jellies and jams.

Under the old long-boiling process even experienced cooks would get fine, firm jelly one time and a syrupy failure the next. The ripper the fruit the less jelly-making substance it contained, so no accurate rule could be made to govern the exact amount of sugar or cooking time.

The new short-process rules remove this uncertainty by the use of liquid pectin, which is the natural jelly-making substance extracted from fruits and concentrated for cooking purposes.

New Recipe for Blueberry Jam

Crush well about two pounds of berries. Add juice of two lemons and grated rind of half lemon. Measure four level cups of mixture into large kettle. Add eight level cups sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Bring to full rolling boil and boil hard for one minute. Remove and stir in one bottle liquid pectin. Skim pour quickly and cover at once with hot melted paraffin.

When Frying Corn Fritters
Many cooks know only one way to fry corn fritters, and that is to drop the batter from a spoon into deep hot fat. If fried as a flat fritter-cake in butter or margarine, the corn fritters will have a decidedly different flavor—one you may like much better than that produced by the other method.

Sour Cream Cake
Half cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup sour cream, three cups prepared cake flour, three eggs, well beaten, half teaspoon lemon flavoring. Cream butter and sugar, add eggs. Add soda to sour cream; beat cream and flour alternately into sugar mixture. Add flavoring and bake in loaf pan.

Can You Make Uncooked Custard?

Into beaten egg yolk of one egg, stir a cup of sweetened condensed milk; add two teaspoons lemon juice and mixture will thicken. Then add three teaspoons water and fold in stiffly beaten white of egg. Serve as uncooked custard or pour over fresh fruit.

Shield Furniture from Summer Sun

If you would retain the soft glossy finish of your furniture do not allow the hot summer sun to beat upon it. Mahogany is especially in need of protection, as strong sun fades it.

Straw for Motor Trips

Someone suggests that we take a supply of straws on the long motor trip so a comfortable drink can be had at small springs and brooks.

MASONIC RITES TODAY AT SEYMOUR, C. W. SIDDENS FOUND DEAD AT HOME

Crowded out last week) Seymour, Texas, July 16.—Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 3 p. m. from the First Baptist church for C. W. Siddens, 48, county commissioner and candidate for the office of county judge, who was found dead at his home late Monday morning. The rites will be in charge of the Rev. J. R. Balch, pastor of the church, and of the local Masonic body, of which Mr. Siddens long had been a member.

Mr. Siddens had committed suicide by slashing his throat, according to an inquest conducted by the body by Justice of the Peace Nat G. Mitchell. Mr. Siddens had been active as commissioner for five years, and was busy preparing for the impending campaign, when he was seized with a nervous trouble about a month ago. Despondency over ill health is the sole motive for the tragedy advanced by Mr. Siddens' friends and relatives here. He was active in the Masonic lodge and a member in good standing of the Baptist church. He had lived in Baylor county for 35 years.

Surviving are his widow, a brother, J. A. Siddens, his mother, a son and daughter.

Native Texan Heads W. O. W. Hospital

Dr. Charles J. Koerth, assistant physician of the two million dollar Woodmen of the World War Memorial hospital at San Antonio, has been appointed medical director of the hospital, succeeding the late Dr. H. Phil Hall.

Announcement was made of Dr. Koerth's appointment by Sovereign Commander W. A. Fraser. The War Memorial hospital is one of the finest medical institutions of its kind in the country, specializing in the treatment of tuberculosis. It is owned and operated by the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance association. It was built in memory of the thousands of members of W. O. W. who served during the World War.

At this modern hospital, located on an excellent and beautiful site in San Antonio, afflicted members of the Woodmen of the World are given free treatment for tuberculosis and other diseases. Since May, 1923, when the hospital was opened, over 3,500 patients have been treated and hundreds have been restored to health and usefulness.

Dr. Koerth, who is a native Texan, is 32 years of age. He is a graduate of the Jefferson medical college at Philadelphia and received his bachelor of science degree from Texas A. & M. He is active in the medical field and is a member of various medical associations, including the American Medical association. His papers, written on the treatment of various stages of tuberculosis and other pulmonary diseases, have had a wide circulation.

International Sunday School Lesson for July 29th.

THE FIRST FOREIGN MISSIONARIES

Acts 13: 1-5, 13-15, 44-49.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D., Associate General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association.

All of Chapter XIII should be read as a preparation for this lesson study. The general setting must be in mind as well as the few verses that are the basis for more intensive study. After Saul had been called from Tarsus to help the growing church in Antioch there was still greater progress there. There is that in the Christian religion which always makes one desire that all others shall likewise have joy and peace in believing. While in the midst of worship there was a growing consensus of opinion that something very definite should be undertaken in telling the Gospel story more widely. Luke describes the outcome when he records the "Holy Spirit said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Preparations were made for the first missionary journey and these men were formally set apart for this service by prayer and the laying on of hands.

Three people made up the company. They were Barnabas; his nephew, John Mark; and Saul—styled the apostle to the Gentiles. Their first destination was the island of Cyprus, about seventy miles distant. Work began at Salamis. There the usual approach was made by seeking the synagogue of the Jews, for all had a common belief in Jehovah as God. Keep in mind that you are always to use your Bible as both reference and text book. At this point read the verse omitted in the lesson text indicated above. The story is told of the work at Paphos on the eastern side of Cyprus. The missionaries came into opposition with Elymas, the sorcerer, who opposed the messages they gave to Sergius Paulus, the procurator, who believed when he beheld the miracle that Paul wrought.

When the mainland was reached at Paphos in Pamphylia there was real trouble among the three evangelists. For some unexplained reason Mark determined to quit the party and returned to his mother, in Jerusalem. Some say he refused to go inland with Paul; others that he became jealous when Paul became more prominent than his uncle, Barnabas. This matter comes up again in the lesson for August 19.

Some of the hardships encountered at this time or soon are enumerated in II Corinthians 11: 24-28. Pisidian Antioch is the first stopping place of record. There the travelers attended the synagogue service and, according to courtesy custom, after the reading of the law, were invited to speak. To use modern language, they made a hit at the start and were invited to speak again the following Sabbath, "when the whole city was gathered together to hear the word of God." Many believed the teachings of Paul.

Jealousy started the trouble that followed. When the synagogue leaders saw that the strangers were obtaining such a fine following they opposed these men, and turned them out of the synagogue. Both Paul and Barnabas were bold in declaring that they could not keep silent, and since their own brethren would no longer hear them they could now give their attention to the Gentiles, for their Gospel was for all mankind. At once a multitude of those other than Jews believed the word as it was preached unto them especially. Their reaction is given in the closing verses of the lesson: "And as the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and glorified God—and the word of the Lord was spread abroad throughout all the region."

PARTY ANNOUNCES WEDDING

(Hamlin Herald)
The pretty home of Mrs. Tate May was the scene of a lovely social affair when she entertained Tuesday afternoon from five until seven o'clock, naming her sister, Miss Annie Laurie May as honor guest. The real occasion of the affair being the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss May to Frank Johnson, which will be solemnized in the Methodist church Tuesday evening, July the twenty-fourth.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with vases and baskets of vari-colored flowers, carrying out the rainbow color theme which is also to be featured in the wedding. On the dining table was a miniature wedding party including the bride and groom, with attendants dressed in the chosen colors. At one end of the living room was erected a small church, from which little Miss Mary George Howard, attired as a bride and Master James Tate May impersonating the groom, came when Miss Annie Laurie Tate read "A Dream," which was the unique announcement of the wedding.

As the guests entered they were welcomed by Mrs. J. W. Ezell, who presented them to Mrs. May, who in turn presented them to the honoree. Others receiving were Mrs. Robert May of Snyder, Mrs. M. P. May, Mrs. W. F. Johnson, Miss Aid Nicholas, of Abilene, Miss Janie May Johnson, Miss Sarah Tate, of Cuba, Alabama, Mrs. L. B. Howard of Stamford, Miss Annie Laurie Johnson, Mrs. Della McIntosh and Mrs. L. L. Moore, of Chicago, Mrs. Burns Eakin and Mrs. Garland Tumbler led the way to a beautifully decorated table where Misses Carrie Johnson and Louise Day served punch. Mrs. J. H. Littleton, assisted by Misses Annie Matt Tate and Gladys Cassie, directed guests to seats in the spacious rooms, where a delightful and appropriate program was rendered.

Mrs. L. B. Howard gave a beautiful piano solo as the opening number. Little Miss Annie Laurie Howard sang, "I Love You Truly." Miss Aida Nicholas, with Miss Carrie Johnson at the piano, sang the old love ballad, "Annie Laurie." Miss Louise Day gave a toast of good wishes to the bride, and Mrs. J. H. Littleton toasted the g'ls who are left behind. In conclusion Miss Annie Laurie Tate gave a humorous character sketch, "The Newly Weds."

The hostess assisted by members of the house party passed an attractive refreshment plate carrying brick ice cream in colors of pink and white and individual wedding cakes iced in white and centered with pink. 'A' and 'F' in Pink. They had wedding bells sprayed with orange blossoms were the flowers.

The honoree wore a becoming Landin Model of pink tulle with tight basque and full skirt which was embellished with a graceful drape of pink and pink satin which draped to the floor on the side. The only ornament was a string of pearls. Moire slippers in the same delicate shade as the gown completed her costume.

He: "Not so fast, I am the son of an American doctor."

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

J. D. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect. Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

TOM MIX STARS IN FIGHTING FILM OF TEXAS RANGER

"Daredevil's Reward," a Fox Film production starring Tom Mix, which opens at the City Hall Friday, is a story of a Texas Ranger, who kept peace with a six shooter and whose business was bagging bad men. For more than a hundred years, the name of "Texas Ranger" has stood for fearlessness in facing danger and for any uncanny skill in the use of firearms. Action is the keynote of the story and Mix, with the aid of Tony, brings to the screen one of his best fighting pictures. The manner in which Tom transports Tony around, concealed in a huge truck, is one of the humorous highlights of the picture. The rapid manner in which Tom changes from one character to another keeps the audience guessing as to the outcome. The supporting cast is exceptionally good and includes Natabe Joyce, Lawford Davidson, Billy Blotcher and Harry Corning. Gene Forde directed the production.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NUMBER 5:

As the campaign comes to a close let me say for the benefit of those whom I have failed to see that I will greatly appreciate their support in Saturday's primary, and I promise that if I am elected to the office of Public Weigher that I will devote my full time to the duties of the office and shall strive to give the service expected by all patrons of the yard, giving due attention to the protection of cotton in my charge.

Sincerely,
QUINCY C. DAVIS.

RHINELAND TEAM DEFEATS GILLILAND IN HARD GAME

On Sunday afternoon the Rhineland and Gilliland teams staged a battle on the Rhineland grounds which resulted in Rhineland taking the big end of the bill to a tune of 7-0. While the score might indicate that it was a one-sided affair, it was a hard fought battle to the finish in which August Loran pitched the Rhineland aggregation to victory, and in which he received excellent support.

The Rhineland team goes to Gilliland Sunday for a game and on the following Sunday the Weinert team comes to Rhineland.

The line-up for Rhineland in Sunday's game was as follows: A. Loran, first base; L. Kuehler, catcher; G. Rayburn, second base; McGlothlin, center field; Smith, short; C. Kuehler, third base; E. Loran, left field; J. Decker, right field and A. Loran, pitcher.

The Rhineland team has lost only two games this season, one to Trasscott and one to Weinert.

Cecil McGraw, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGraw, had the misfortune to receive a broken arm on Friday evening of last week when he was thrown from the back of a pony. Both bones of the left arm were broken near the wrist.

Mrs. R. B. Porter came in Tuesday from Cushing, Oklahoma, to join Mr. Porter, who has been here for several months. Mr. Porter is local distributor for the Continental Oil Company, and they have moved into one of the D. B. Weaver bungalows in the east part of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tyree have returned to their home at Clarendon after a visit with Mrs. Tyree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Nelson.

OUR NATION-WIDE STRAW VOTE

The presidential poll or test vote now being taken throughout the country by approximately 2,000 weekly newspaper publishers is sure to attract great public interest. The test vote will show the political thought now prevalent in communities scattered over the length and breadth of the land. Politicians have come to realize that the voting power of the great mass of the population in small towns is an important factor in deciding elections. They realize that the next president will be elected by persons in the homes and farms of the countryside where the great majority of the American people live, reflecting American thought, unmovable by unworthy motives, unaffected by the hallyhoos that attend political campaigns. These voters make their choice after careful deliberation. They think before they vote. And the big politicians are cognizant of the fact that what they are thinking will have a tremendous bearing

A REAL FIGHTER ENJOY AN AUTO NOW DISCOURAGING CRIMINAL MAN IS SELFISH

Senator Jim Reed, who says he leaves the Senate next March to practice law, should change his mind. Others can practice law as well as he. Few can put important truths in emphasis such as his.

Have you read what Reed said, denouncing the League of Nations in 1919? "I decline to set up any government greater than that established by the fathers, greater than that begotten in the blood of patriots from the lanes of Lexington to the forests of the Argonne, greater than that sanctified by the tears of all the mothers whose heroes sons have gone down to death to sustain its glory and its independence. I decline to set up any government greater than the Government of the United States of America."

Thanks largely to Reed's good fighting, the wacky-washies did not succeed in dragging this country into a European super-government. Such a man ought to be in public life, fighting to his last day.

In big cities hundreds of thousands go for their holiday in automobiles. A philosopher said, "Most of the cars are not paid for. In thousands of cases they represent money that might have meant independence in old age."

The automobiles represent money spent for health, pleasure and time saving. Now not one in ten is really independent in old age, nor was he before automobiles came. Better buy a car, enjoy it, and use the added health and time saved to work for independence. No car, wisely used, ever made a man poor.

Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske offers a suggestion to discourage criminals. "The automobile is the criminal's 'getaway.' He drives up, robs a store, shoots down obdectors, jumps into his automobile and is gone."

Rear-Admiral Fiske suggests that following an automobile hold-up all auto traffic be stopped in city streets. "I suggest that the police sound three or four whistles, all policemen hearing it to pass it along. Traffic would stop, cars would be searched. Any man ignoring the signal would be identified as a criminal."

of the result of the November elections. This test vote will be published in a great variety of papers, papers having editorial policies embracing all shades of political belief. Readers of these 2,000 papers will cast the ballots and the count will be read by Republicans and Democrats alike. Unless we are very much mistaken, the results will be significant in the extreme. The poll of the millions living in the small towns will serve to indicate which way the political winds are blowing.

VOTE FOR TOM M. ANDERSON COUNTY CLERK

He has lived in the county 41 years. He has taught school in the county 7 years. He served the county two terms as Commissioner. He has been closely connected with the farming and ranching interests since he came to the county. He has always worked for better schools and better churches. He is by education and experience well trained for the work of office of County Clerk. He promises, if elected, to devote his time to the office and give the people of Knox county the very best services possible. The people who have known him the longest are doing all they can for his election. He has the confidence of the people with whom he has associated during the time he has lived in Knox county. A vote for Tom M. Anderson will be appreciated by him and his friends. (Political adv.)

THE TIGER TRAIL

of his eyes. The lighting effect was one in which a great artist would have rejoiced. It was yellow and dim, of course; and perhaps it had a quality of unreality. The atmosphere of candles at any time is distinctly medieval. Then there was the gradation of shadows— dusky close to the fireplace, but shading off to a deep, intense black. The light from the two candles met at the very extremities, leaving a dusky path between. Vilas' head and shoulders cast a distinct shadow of the wall, blurred, however, by the effect of a candle across the room. The shadow thrown by Ahmad was something gliding and dusky and dim against the curtains of the windows. (Continued next week)

An Opportunity To Save Money and Make Money

At a recent meeting of representative citizens of Knox and Haskell counties to whom we had outlined our plan the following recommendations were made with reference to a local refinery for the purpose of refining gasoline, kerosene, distillate and fuel oils, to which we direct your attention.

Haskell, Texas, July 17, 1928. We recommend the building of a refinery for the purpose of refining gasoline, distillate and fuel oil and purchasing lubricating oil in car load lots; and that the same be established in one of the following towns (to be decided by board of directors); and that we attempt to do the same in the following manner: In as much as Messrs. Corah and Lightfoot are experienced men in refining and own necessary machinery to build a complete 500 barrel light oil refinery which they propose to put into a $25,000.00 corporation for $10,000.00, we recommend that their offer be accepted. We recommend further that shares be $10.00 each and sold to consumers and filling stations. We recommend that no filling station shall own more than 25 shares and no consumer shall own more than one share. We recommend that the above mentioned men shall never own more than 40 per cent of the capital stock. These men shall receive for their services only the dividends from their stock and shall receive no salary. We recommend that the administration be in the hands of seven directors and that five be elected by the 60 per cent and the other two by the under bond. The money received for shares shall be put in a bank in the town where received. The above mentioned men agree to build the plant for $10,000.00 and leave $5,000.00 of the $15,000.00 to make down payments on trucks, equipment and stocks and will make bond to cover the agreement. No member shall have more than one vote. The above recommendations were accepted and approved as basis of organization.

VOTE FOR S. H. TERRELL FOR STATE COMPTROLLER

We would not let the opportunity go by without saying a word in behalf of our boyhood friend and schoolmate, S. H. Terrell, who is a candidate for re-election to the office of State Comptroller, and we ask that our friends give him their support, especially those who have no personal preference between the two candidates.

As a boy Houston wasn't any different from the ordinary youth. He and the writer were about the same age, except that one was a little older than the other. We were both fortunate in that we inherited at a tender age the responsible and lucrative position of operating a grocery delivery wagon for the grocery store of which our fathers were joint owners, and so efficient were our service that we were both asked to resign for the good of the service rendered by said grocery. We were both more or less regular attendants at the town livery stable, and in reality we had both in youth entertained a hope that some day we might advance to the enviable position of brakeman, but somehow the railroad operating through our town never made a bid for our services, and hence we have both had to resort to other activities.

At the beginning of the World War Sam Houston Terrell entered the services of our country and did his bit. He has served two terms or is at present serving his second term as State Comptroller, and we are told by those in position to know that he has made a most efficient officer, hence we are not asking an unreasonable request when we ask that you support our good friend and former schoolmate, Sam Houston Terrell for the office of State Comptroller, and we shall take it as a personal favor if our friends will cast their vote for him at the primary election of July 28th.

The election of Louis J. Wardlaw as governor would again make Jas. E. Ferguson governor by proxy. Ferguson has devoted a major portion of his publication, the Ferguson Forum, to furthering the cause of Wardlaw, and he would naturally have a great influence over Mr. Wardlaw should he be elected.

Under the administration of Mrs. Ferguson the prison system lost $653,703.80 in the two years. Under Dan Moody the same prison system made a net earning of more than $7,500 in the first year. And, strange as it may seem, the prison system is not being discussed in this campaign as in practically every campaign for the past quarter century in Texas.

The state ad valorem rate for the two years under Moody's administration will be at least 8 cents lower than the rate for any preceding administration, notwithstanding the fact that the present administration has had to pay a debt of $3,685,070.96 left over by the Ferguson administration. Dan Moody should be returned to the Governor's office by the largest vote ever accorded a candidate for that office.

The Republican party in Texas is a flexible organization. Not so many years ago the party leaders formed an alliance with the anti-Klan element in an effort to defeat the democratic nominee, and even after said nominee had been duly elected they carried the fight on him to the United States Senate. But in a few short years the party leaders have changed color. They are now making overtures to the anti-Smith faction and are lining up with the Klan with a view of holding their political prestige and patronage. "The Turnouts" of the American Revolution have nothing on the Texas Republican aggregation. They can be either white or black, black or tan, Klan or anti-Klan, as the necessity may arise. But, back of it all it a desire to discredit the Democratic party and retain their political patronage.

When the Victory Six was announced six months ago it was the talk of the town. It was a great car then; it is an even greater car now. It has stood the test. Each month has seen a substantial increase in Victory Six sales.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

YOU CAN'T HIT THE HIGH SPOTS ALL THE TIME

By Dr. Frank Crane

A young lady complained to me the other day that she had periods of depression. There were times when life seemed drab and uninteresting. And she couldn't see the vision nor envisage the ideal. "Life was just plodding."

Well, why not? That is the human lot and we had as well accept it. We are fortunate if we get the vision once in a while, if occasionally we stand on the mountain top, bathed in the sunlight, and look out over the future. Most of the time we have to travel through the valley of the shadow.

In most North temperate climates rain is intermingled with sunshine and, as the poet expressed it, "Into each life some rain must fall."

Most of our course is to be made by dead reckoning. We cannot have the vision of the stars always, and life is mostly composed of future steps taken by faith in the dark. We are fortunate if once in a while the clouds sweep away and we can glimpse the goal.

Life is rhythm. It has its ups and downs and the best thing we can do is to say in the language of the old negro hymn, "I'm sometimes up and sometimes down, but still my soul is heavenly bound."

These moments of darkness, these uninteresting stretches of our life are our real test. Then is shown our staying quality and our ability to pursue a goal by faith and not by sight.

We cannot have the glory and the ecstasy every moment. We could not stand it. No man can live in a state of perpetual intoxication. He must get his feet down to the ground once in a while and just plug along.

We have the comfort of knowing that nothing lasts forever and if our mood is depressed after a while it will pass away.

You cannot hit the high spots all the time. Converts begin their religious life usually in a blaze of enthusiasm. They are keyed up to high pitch and undergo an emotional ecstasy.

It is afterward that the test comes. They are required to take up the affairs of daily life which are perhaps humdrum and uninteresting. They crave emotion, but emotion is an occasional experience and not permanent. In their daily life there must be steady application of the truths they have learned in those rare moments of ecstasy, so many of them backslide.

In quitting a bad habit very often we make a vow or sign a pledge in a moment of enthusiasm which is very hard to keep in the succeeding moments of drabness.

The best moral quality is the quality of stick-to-it-iveness, the quality of hanging on and doing right when there are no drums beating nor horns blowing.

So in the marriage relation, we begin in a burst of love and violent affection what must be kept up through days of perhaps uninteresting detail.

So the Bible tells us that it is the overcomers who shall be given the reward.

COL. EASTERWOOD WOULD VISIT MUNDAY

Munday, Texas, Munday Times.

Gentlemen: I am a candidate for a state office that does not pay a ten cent piece per year and still it is an office that I would be proud to have.

I am a candidate for State Commander of the American Legion and I am willing to devote my time and money to hold this office for one year.

If your paper will help me in this race, I will pay your post and city a personal visit in my airplane some time during the year of 1929.

Everyone knows what the American Legion stands for and it will help any community, town, city or state and will make our state a better place in which to live.

If you will be kind enough to publish this letter, I assure you that it certainly will be appreciated by the writer.

With best wishes, I am Sincerely yours, Col. W. E. (Bill) Easterwood, Jr.

TO THE PEOPLE OF KNOX COUNTY, TEXAS:

For the past three and one-half years I have served the people of this, the 50th Judicial District, including the counties of Baylor, Knox, Cottle, King, Motley and Dickens, as District Attorney. During this time I have worked faithfully to perform the duties so generously entrusted to me by the people of the district. I have at all times worked hard and have been careful to prosecute cases fairly, yet vigorously and effectively. While I do not care to be boastful of the record I have made since serving in this capacity, yet, you will be interested to know, the records of the court will show, that under my prosecution, more men have been convicted than ever before in the same length of time, in the history of the district.

I am now a candidate for reelection for this office and feel that the experience I have had in the office qualifies me to better serve the people for another term than in the past.

Due to the fact that for the past few months the District Court has been in session almost continuously and as District Attorney my attendance has been required, I have been unable to personally see many people in the interest of my candidacy for re-election. I am, therefore, taking this means to solicit your support in the Democratic Primary on July 28th. Wishing to assure you that same will be greatly appreciated, and I shall, if honored with this position again, continue to faithfully and diligently attend to the duties of the office as in the past. I am, your very truly, WILLIAM B. COMBEST.

TO THE VOTERS OF KNOX COUNTY:

It has come to my attention that reports are being circulated in certain parts of Knox county, that in case I am elected County Judge, I will urge the Commissioner's Court to proportion the tax moneys in such a manner that one part of the county would receive more benefits than another.

Nothing could be further from the fact than this report, for it was while I was serving you as County Judge that the tax funds were divided upon an equitable basis, and there is certainly no justification or reason for the report that is current in this section that I would bring about a change, and such reports are evidently circulated by unscrupulous parties with a view of doing injury to my candidacy, and I respectfully ask that the voters disregarding this, or any other last-minute reports that may become current during the closing days of the campaign, for I hereby promise that, should I be elected you County Judge, that I shall strive to see that justice is accorded to all, and shall be, as I have always tried to be, blind as a bat to everything but right and justice, and upon this platform I solicit your vote at the polls next Saturday.

Respectfully, N. S. KILGORE. (Political adv.)

"FELLOWS WE'VE MET"

An interesting picture of Tom Connally by a man who has known him all his life is set out by the Editor of the Southern Pharmaceutical Journal and Drug Price Review published in Dallas in the issue for June, 1928. Under the heading "Fellows We've Met" the Editor says:

"When a regular man, a hard rider on the trail of life, a chap who plays the game fair, with no lead in the bones, no notches in the cards and no aces in the sleeve, casies in and crosses the Great Divide where the hoof prints all point one way, it is customary to place flowers in his lifeless hands and speak kind words that his ears cannot hear. We have always vowed that if we had flowers for a fellow traveler, we would place them in his hand now and not on his bier later. Why flowers to a pile of clay? He's gone. There is nobody home. Every now and then when the weed is blowing and the pipe is drawing right, when in retrospect we glimpse in reminiscence the long trail, we expect to place in this page some flowers for fellows we've met. As we take a peek at the days that are gone, when we ride the trail a yesteryears there comes to view a leaglegged kid with keen eyes, a devilish demeanor and a left hook that was "pizen."

Tom Connally is the veteran of two wars besides the ones he had with the writer. When Tom sneaked away from the University of Texas to help lick Spain, we really felt that we should join the Spanish army in order to carry out the traditions of tenderer years. We can say with no little gratification that we have licked Tom many times during our stone-bruise period, and although we carry two bent ribs and a beautiful white scar on the windward side of our graying bean, no fairer fighter than Tom Connally ever graced the sand-lot bouts of Central Texas or the battle lines of the nation's forum in Washington.

"In farm products old McLennan County is to be reckoned with and one of these products is Tom Connally. Born a farmer, and still at it. He still thinks a span of slick mules is easier on the eyes than any tandem team that ever crashed the gates at Madison Square Garden. He also believes there is something wrong when bull dogs sell for fifty dollars apiece and hogs for three dollars and a half.

His statesmanship is characterized by two shining virtues, rugged honesty and brutal frankness. Eleven years of watching the chaplains of the national congress look around over the assembly hall before praying for the rest of the country, have not changed him in any particular. A Chesterfield in manner, an orator of superb powers, a deep thinker, a philosopher and a Southern gentleman. Tom here are your flowers, when they button you up in a wooden kimona and route you to the Great Beyond, likely as not we will not send any flowers."

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NUMBER 6:

There has originated from an unknown source a report or rumor that should I be elected Public Weigher that I would continue to hold my present position and employ someone to look after the duties of the office. This report is utterly without foundation and never have I entertained such an idea. When I announced for the office it was my desire to get work that would take me outdoors, and should the voters of this precinct see fit to honor me with this position of trust I shall give my undivided time and attention to the duties thereof.

I have endeavored to see all the voters personally, but, due to the fact that I have been compelled as a matter of necessity to stay on the job, I may have failed to see some, and I therefore take this opportunity to say that no one will appreciate your vote and support more than I, and should I be honored with the responsible position my aim shall be to discharge the duties of the office in such a manner that none may have cause to regret the imposing of the responsibilities of the office upon me.

Sincerely, LEE HAYMES. (Political adv.)

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

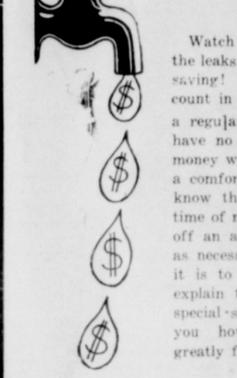

Dr. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination ofenna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

All drug stores have the generous bottles. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

FLOWERS REVIVAL A SUCCESS

The Flowers revival meetings have attracted large crowds from the beginning. The last week has been full of interest in every service. The special services have attracted large crowds. Mrs. Flowers in her messages to the ladies discussed many helpful themes. Her general theme was The Modern Woman. She said, "Women's greatest contribution to the race has been in the home. She has made many wonderful contributions. In art, literature, politics, teaching, yet in all of them her greatest influence has been in the home. You cannot say of all women that her place is in one certain place no more than you can that man's place is in another certain place. When you talk to me about women's place I always ask show me the woman. She also met with the girls and young ladies of the community and discussed with them some very vital themes.

Mr. Flowers seemed to have been at his best the last week of the meeting. He does not abuse folk but believes the preachers business is to state principles of living and how to the line. His message on, Sowing and Reaping, was heard by a good sized crowd of men. For three days this week met with the men in the business houses and spoke to them on lively up to date topics.
