Protest Will Be Made On Gas Rate

Towns Throughout This Section Will Seek Reduction In Gas Rates To Conform With Neighboring Towns

A movement was started some weeks ago by the Lions Club of Haskell with a view of protesting to the Stamford & Western Gas Company against the proposed rates to be charged by that concern in the various towns in which it is to operate. A committee of this club was appointed to make an investigation into the rates charged by other gas companies throughout this section of the state, which revealed that the proposed rates are higher and the deposit required is out of proportion.

In response to a call for representative citizens of the various towns in this immediate section to meet and discuss the problem, a meeting was held on Monday evening with representatives present from Haskell, Seymour, Goree and Munday, which was attended by H. K. Jackson and George Plants of Seymour; E. L. Covey, Marvin Chamberlain and Tom Isbell of Goree; J. L. Tubbs and N. I. McCollum of Haskell and the following Munday citizens: E. W. McGlothlin, Tom Haney, Dr. E. J. Burns, G. A. Elland and J. A. Kennedy.

The various phases of the proposed charges to be made by the gas company were discussed from various angles and it was the consensus of opinion of those in the meeting that some action should be taken to rectify the rates to harmonize with those charged in other towns throughout West Texas. The principal objection heard to the proposed charges of the Stamford & Western Gas Company being the $10.00 deposit required on all meters for domestic purposes, the $2.00 minimum charge per month, and the industrial rates which provide for minimum monthly charges out of proportion to those charged in other towns located in like proximity to the source of supply.

Gas Rate for Munday

The domestic rate for Munday, and other towns to be served by the Stamford & Western Gas Company, as far as was known to those present, are as follows: 85c per 1000 cubic feet of gas, 10c off of bill if paid by the 10th of each month, $2.00 per month minimum charge including service charge of 50c per month. $10.00 required as meter deposit paying 4 per cent interest per annum. The industrial rate for gins, etc., is as follows: 50c per 1000 cubic feet with a scale down to 25c per 1000 cubic feet.

Comparisons Made

These rates were compared with other towns throughout this section of West Texas, which are located in similar proximity to the source of supply and it was pointed out that the rates were uniformly higher in the towns to be served by the Stamford & Western Gas Company. The information concerning the rates in the various towns had been compiled by the Lions Club of Haskell, and their investigations revealed the following rates:

Gas Rate for Quanah.

75c per 1000 cubic feet of gas, 10 per cent discount if paid by the 10th of each month, $1.00 minimum charge per month. A scale for industrial consumption to 20c per 1000 cubic feet, depending upon the amount used.

Gas Rate for Lubbock

67 1/2c per 1000 cubic feet of gas, $1.50 per month minimum charge, 10 per cent discount if paid by the 10th of month.

Wichita Falls Rate

The domestic rate for Wichita Falls is 75c per 1000 cubic feet of gas 10 per cent discount if bill is paid by the 10th of the month, 50c per meter service meter charge, 17c with scale down to 11c per 1000 cubic feet for industrial purposes, according to amount used.

Resolutions Passed

After discussing the various angles of the gas situation, the following resolution was passed at the meeting:

Whereas, an investigation of the proposed rates to be charged

Prof. O'Banion Here In Interest of Garner For State Supt.

Prof. J. W. O'Banion and family were through Munday on last Sunday and stopped for a brief visit with a number of his pupils of former years, including Harvey Hill and others. Prof. O'Banion was enroute to Abilene where he was scheduled to make an address in the interest of the candidacy of W. F. Garner of Nacogdoches for State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Prof. O'Banion was superintendent of the Munday schools for four years, having left here about nineteen years ago. He was superintendent at the time the older brick school building was erected and many of Munday's citizens today were his students in days gone by.

For the past few years Prof. O'Banion has been superintendent of schools at Ennis, Texas, but stated that he would not teach for the coming year, but would make an effort to catch up with his fishing.

Mr. O'Banion stated that he was engaged in campaigning for his good friend W. F. Garner, who he believes will give the state a better administration of educational affairs, and he asks that his many friends in Munday give their support in the run-off primary to Mr. Garner.

Commissioner's Court Makes Division In Munday Voting Boxes

An order was passed by the commissioner's court on Monday dividing Munday into two voting precincts. The division was made with Earnest street running east and west on the south side of the square, and the two precincts will be designated as No. 6 and No. 6A, the north part of the town will be designated as No. 5.

The division has been made by reason of the fact that in primary elections the task of handling approximately 700 votes has become cumbersome and the division will greatly facilitate the work of counting ballots and holding the elections more rapidly than in the past.

Kingsley Davis Is Times Subscription Solicitor; Pay Him

The Times has engaged the services of Kingsley Davis in soliciting and collecting subscriptions. Kingsley is a University of Texas student and is anxious to make a little money during vacation period to help in paying his expenses through school, and since we have a large number of subscriptions that are due and past due, we have engaged him to work on our list. Incidentally, we need the money to meet our obligations, and will appreciate any courtesies shown Kingsley in making his rounds.

Pat Cooper, who has been associated with the Loveless Drug Company for the past few months, left the latter part of last week for Galveston, where he will re-enter the medical school of the University of Texas. Mr. Cooper made many friends during his brief stay in Munday who will be glad to welcome him back at some future time. He has been succeeded here by R. L. Ballinger, who was a schoolmate with Mr. Cooper, and whose home is in Plainview, Arkansas.

Munday Fishing Party Enjoys Outing In the Interior of Mexico

A fishing and camping party composed of Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Dee McStay, Mr. and Mrs. McCombs of Denton, Misses Kathleen and Thelma Atkinson, Lorena Wilson, Faye Briggs, Messrs Palmer Barton, Ike Huskinson, Irvan West and Carl Mayhan returned the latter part of last week from a two week's trip into old Mexico, and they report a most enjoyable trip.

Carl Mahan in discussing the trip stated that they were received most cordially by the native citizens, who are still talking of the friendly visit made by Charles Lindbergh, and still have his pictures displayed in public places, and they leave nothing undone to make American visitors feel welcome in their country. Mr. Mahan was a visitor to the same section some five years ago and states that they have undergone a wonderful change in their attitude toward the American visitors.

The Munday party went some 35 miles into the interior and fished in the San Diego river, which Mr. Mahan describes as a beautiful stream which abounds in fish—catfish and game fish, and the party state that they had an abundance at all times.

While there they visited a couple of the Mexican towns, Villa Acuna, which is on the border, and San Carlos, located about 15 miles north of the point where they camped on the river. The Mexican people in these towns extend the most cordial treatment to American visitors and that section will likely in time become a great resort spot for Americans, for there is an abundance of fish in the streams, since the Mexicans are said to have no inclination to fish, and few Americans have yet crossed into the interior to enjoy this great sport.

J. E. Edwards received a message Sunday afternoon advising him that his sons, Fayette and O. C., had been injured in an automobile accident near Mason. He left immediately for Mason and returned first of the week with the boys who had been pretty badly bruised up. They were enroute home and were riding in a Moon car with several other persons when the car turned over and was badly wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McGlothlin were here first of the week visiting relatives. They have just returned from a visit to Galveston and other points in south Texas, where they spent their vacation.

Revival At Gillespie Begins Friday Night

A revival meeting will begin at the Gillespie Baptist church on Friday night of this week, in which Rev. Shade Stevenson will do the preaching, and the song services will be conducted by the Rev. Claude Stovall, pastor.

Both the preacher and the singer are what might be termed home "boys," they having begun their careers here, and are both preorganized as able ministers, and we are sure that the people of this section will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear them in this meeting.

Mrs. Savage, President Rebeckah Assembly, Is Given Welcome Here

Mrs. R. A. Savage of Dallas, president of the Rebeckah assembly of the state, was here Saturday evening as guest of the local Rebeckah lodge, and stated that the welcome she received in Munday was one of the most cordial that she has ever received in her travels over the entire state.

Mrs. Savage gave a most inspiring talk to a large number of members of the order, and in addition to local members there were a number present from Vera. While here Mrs. Savage was a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bunts.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Campbell and children motored to Abilene Sunday to visit relatives. The family returned home Sunday afternoon except Tom, who will spend the week there.

Funeral services for Richard Earl Gray, 23 years of age, who was killed on the highway near Plainview last week, was held on Monday at Johnson cemetery, the Rev. P. D. O'Brien officiating. Gray is alleged to have come to his death when he went to sleep on the highway and was struck by a passing automobile. He is survived by his parents and several brothers.

W. R. Moore Purchases Interest of R. D. Bell In Chevrolet Agency

A deal was consummated some days ago wherein W. R. Moore became the sole owner of the Chevrolet agency in Munday, and the name of the firm has been changed to the Moore Chevrolet. At the same time G. W. Tillinghast purchased Mr. Bell's interest in the company at Haskell and the agency for this popular car there has been changed to the M. & B. Chevrolet Company.

Mr. Moore has been in active charge of the business in Munday since the firm was established and has made a great success of the business here, and at the same time has supervised the business at Haskell, which is now under the direction of G. W. Tillinghast, who for some years was associated with the agency here as salesman.

Injunction Case Glasgow vs. City To Be Heard Sept. 10

The case of A. J. Glasgow vs. the City of Munday has been set down for trial in the District Court at Benjamin on September 10th.

This case is of much local interest, as Mr. Glasgow is seeking to enjoin the city from further use of the sewage disposal plant in its present location upon the contention that it is detrimental to the health of the residents of that section of the city located near the plant. M. F. Billingsley is representing the complainant in the case by City Attorney J. S. Kendall and Judge Joe A. P. Dickson of Seymour.

Mrs. U. S. Rogers returned Tuesday afternoon from Chillicothe, where she has been at the bedside of a sister-in-law, who is reported to be in a critical condition.

Mayor C. L. Mayes is in New Mexico this week on business.

Band Members and Friends Give Surprise Party to Peter Loran

"When with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing

If you like him or you love him tell him now. Don't withhold your approbation 'till the parson makes oration. And he lies with snowy lilies on his brow."

—and the beautiful little poem goes on and urges an expression of our appreciation of those who contribute toward our happiness and warns us that it will be impossible for him to know of our appreciation unless expressed while he lives, "for he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead."

A beautiful sentiment indeed, and it was exemplified on Thursday evening when the members of the Munday band, together with a few of their friends journeyed out to the beautiful home of Peter Loran and gave him a surprise party.

The members and others in the party gathered at the home of Prof. John Hoffman in Rhineland at 7:00 o'clock, and at 7:30 the caravan drove up in front of the Loran home and began honking the horns of their cars to warn the "Sage of Rhineland" that they were on the premises. Mr. Loran, who was in the act of getting into his overalls to do his evening chores was dumfounded when the members of the band alighted from the cars, unpacked their instruments and began preparations for a concert, and he and Mrs. Loran came out and welcomed the party.

In the cars were large quantities of ice cream and cake, and after the band had rendered several numbers the ladies of the party served cream and cake to the numerous members of the party.

At this point of the program J. A. Kennedy made a brief talk stating the purpose of the little visit was to express the appreciation of the Munday band for the many kind deeds that Mr. Loran had done for that organization, and to express to him their sincere appreciation and high esteem, which is shared by our entire citizenship.

In responding Mr. Loran stated that his heart was full of gratitude for this manifestation of esteem, and coming as a great surprise to him, he stated that he was almost too happy over the event to talk, but expressed his gratification at having made so many good friends in his association, and stated that it always afforded him great pleasure to assist in carrying on in band activities, and that he had derived as much pleasure from his co-operation as had any member of the band.

Following the talk by Mr. Loran a brief talk was made by Prof. John Hoffman, who expressed his appreciation for the citizenship of Munday and his deep desire to build up a band here that will be a credit to the town, and assured the members of the band and others present that he would do everything in his power toward the upbuilding of the band.

Several others present would have gladly responded with talks had it not been for the fact that a threatening cloud came up and it was deemed advisable to make our way homeward, which was regretfully done.

Those enjoying the evening's festivities were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Benge, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chapman and son, Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Elliott, Prof. and Mrs. John J. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Guinn, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Billingsley and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hill and daughter, Billie True; Mr. and Mrs. Ep Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Foy Easley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Loran, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kennedy, Misses Christine Chapman and Mary Hope Smith and Messrs Chas. Mayes, John McKenzie, Sidney Lee and Leonard May.

Truscott Stages Big Celebration Marking Opening of New Hotel

Truscott staged a real celebration on Wednesday of last week marking the opening of the new Truscott Hotel, recently completed, and representing an investment of approximately $30,000.

That the citizens of that thriving little city are proud of their new hotel was evidenced by the vast throngs that were in attendance at the opening ceremonies. And that they have cause to be proud of this modern hotel was the opinion expressed by all who inspected it on this occasion. Finished on the exterior with attractive white brick and the spacious lobby and each room is furnished and finished in just such a manner as are the rooms in the very best hotels of Dallas and the large cities. The rooms are provided with private bath, hot and cold running water and possess every comfort that can be found in the most modern hotels.

And the beautifully appointed coffee shop adjoining the lobby is of the type that one would expect to find only in the large cities. In fact, the hotel is modern and complete in every detail and will doubtless be a mecca for the traveling public by reason of the fact that their every comfort has been provided for in its construction.

The celebration, which began at 4:00 p. m. Wednesday afternoon, consisted of brief talks by representative citizens of the various neighboring towns, with a special musical program later in the afternoon and a dance for the younger folks at night.

The hotel will be operated by Mrs. Edna Brewer McGraw, which insures the traveling public that the hostelry will be operated upon the very highest plane, and Munday extends its congratulations to our neighbor town upon the acquisition of such a modern institution, and would add its praise to the progressive citizens whose faith in the future development of their home town has made this worthy undertaking possible and have transferred a dream into a reality that will mean much to the future of Truscott and its citizenship.

Judge Burette W. Patterson of Cisco was here the latter part of last week in the interest of his candidacy for Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals. Judge Patterson expressed his sincere thanks to the citizens of Knox county for the excellent support given him in the July primary and also pointed out with pride the fact that he had received a majority of 1640 votes in Eastland county over his opponent who is also a citizen of that county.

Many Mundayites have been attending court at Benjamin this week.

VARIOUS PLANS TO STEAL TIME AND MONEY FROM THE UNWARY

Bankers Association Official Tells How Young People Are Fleeced in "Hokum Pokum" Movie Schemes—The Investor Loses Savings by Listening to Messrs. Slick and Smooth.

By W. R. MOREHOUSE
Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

THE fabulous salaries paid stars of the first magnitude, and the publicity of the "movies" naturally create longing in the breasts of thousands of our young Americans to get into motion pictures. Because so many are ready to leave home, and risk everything on a fling at motion pictures, unscrupulous persons have devised ways of fleecing these ambitious young people out of their savings. "Hokum-pokum" schemes of various kinds are used with great success. Fake contracts in the art of acting before the camera, fake courses on how to make-up, fake registration gags and screen tests are among the schemes used to separate those thousands of young people from their cash.

The pilgrimage to the motion picture centers by thousands of novices usually ends disastrously for the pilgrims. Naturally a few are successful, but only a very, very few, the ones and nine meeting with disappointment. The truth is, the number of persons who seek to "break into" the movies exceed the number of available positions by one hundred to one, while in the realm of popular stars it is thousands to one.

Don't be misled by the promises of promoters of hokum-pokum schemes that they will look for all business this year and next year. They would rather pocket the money for themselves and leave you to find your own way. Consult your banker or address the National Better Business Bureau, New York City, for information or advice regarding any enterprise that seeks to gain possession of your money. They will give disinterested counsel before it is too late.

Also let every investor approached by either Mr. Slick or Mr. Smooth with a proposition yielding big dividends remember that such assurances always spell financial danger ahead. To every investor who is inexperienced in making investments, in other words perhaps just a little green and perhaps a little too easy, any offer coming from this source should be like a red flag warning to come to a complete stop.

Such investments as Mr. Slick or Mr. Smooth offer are too good to be true and therefore they are not true. Slick, Smooth and Company are not miracle workers although from their sales talk you would infer that they could make you rich as if by magic. No, they are not miracle workers—just slick and smooth.

The Estate Gag
Twenty-four "estate" representatives $15 billions of dollars have been used as bait to interest a lot of savers and finally bleed them of their savings. The scheme is built around a supposed search for the heirs to certain phantom estates. At all costs these heirs must be found. Every person who can by any hook or crook, figure it out that he is in any way related to the deceased are urged by some shyster lawyer or genealogist to send in their names and their life history.

Soon they receive glad tidings telling them that their family tree can be traced back to the deceased. In fact, they are a direct descendant and as heirs at law.

Like fake offers everywhere who responds to the search is "found" to be a winner—in other words a loser. Here is where the rainbow chaser gets trapped. Before his claim to the mythical thousands can be proved so as to receive money a demand is made on him to advance attorney's fees and pay the expense of tracing through his genealogy.

"I don't suppose you don't know of nobody what don't want to hire nobody to do nothing, don't you?"
"No, I don't."

Tom: "If you won't marry me I'll commit suicide."

May: "Well, clear out. I won't have you hanging around here."

American typewriter companies report that more than one-third of their output is sold abroad.

LIVESTOCK SITUATION

Los Angeles, August 8.—A rather unusual situation has developed in connection with beef cattle, so far as the Pacific Coast and Los Angeles supply is concerned. During the average year, the Los Angeles market draws from a territory including several of the Western States, but during the summer months, California herds are relied upon for a substantial part of the supply.

At this time it is indicated that we are encountering an exception to the rule and there is a possibility of a gap in supplies between the time the California supply is "coming out" and the Northern cattle start. To a large extent this may be attributed to the fact that the crop in many sections of California, and for this reason, many cattle fallers in California are being forced to sell their cattle at a high price. This has been the case in the Imperial Valley which has been dependent upon a great extent to the Imperial Valley for its cattle supply. The result is that the Imperial Valley is not entirely in receipt of replacement stock, it is a milk-cow country and the cattle are not entirely in receipt of replacement stock, it is a milk-cow country and the cattle are not entirely in receipt of replacement stock.

Ordinary intermountain cattle feeders begin shipping fat cattle to the Coast markets early in September. However, feed conditions are unusually good in that section, and there seems to be no tendency on the part of feeders to market their stock early, most of them evidently preferring to hold for greater gains at comparatively little cost, in the face of what appears to be strong market during the next few months. This naturally may result in receipts from the intermountain section not reaching their volume until late in the fall.

Feed lot supplies adjacent to Los Angeles are somewhat larger than usual and this will be an important factor in the supply to date.

ply during the time immediately following the grass cattle shipping season. There is some difference of opinion as to the number of cattle in the smaller feed lots, but some venture the opinion that there is a smaller number than a year ago, due to high prices for cottonseed products. Cottonseed cake quotations at this writing are fully $16.00 per ton higher than a year ago.

A great deal of interest is being evinced in the Missouri River markets, as the belief prevails that there will be active competition between the Coast and Middle West for cattle from the Intermountain states. This situation has been evident in the past five years, when at certain seasons the Los Angeles demand has had to reach as far east as Colorado for cattle supplies, but it is likely to be particularly noticeable this season.

It would appear that those who have fat cattle on hand are in a strong position. Supply and demand, of course, will establish values, and these values should be most satisfactory to the producer and the only thing that might upset the healthy condition of the market might be selling ahead or contracting ahead of cattle supplies, which, of course, creates the "available supply" which in the past at different times has proven demoralizing to the markets both from the standpoint of the producer on the one hand and the packing, wholesale and retail trade on the other.

I must be an unusually good oil to have the unqualified endorsement of the designers and builders of engines used in 207 automotive vehicles.

But no wonder these experts favor Conoco Amalie! Made from Pennsylvania Crude and made a better way, Conoco Amalie does a 100% lubricating job.

It retains its viscosity under practically all operating conditions—thus sealing the pistons and greatly reducing crankcase dilution—the cause of so much costly wear and tear on the motor.

If you really want your motor correctly lubricated, Conoco Amalie will do the job.

Thinking Out Loud!

Personally we think it is rather unkind of Mr. Mayfield to point the finger of scorn at Mr. Connally for being away from his post of duty for some weeks, during which time, according to Mr. Mayfield's figures, the government paid him something like $2,000, especially in this criticism somewhat inconsistent when it comes from Mr. Mayfield, who, as a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, campaigned for the senate while drawing his salary as such until he went to Washington. In fact, Mr. Mayfield has been holding offices in Texas for many years and has made a number of campaigns, and we've never heard of him resigning to make any of his numerous campaigns.

And, furthermore, the $2,000 which Mr. Mayfield alleges that Mr. Connally drew from the government is somewhat small as compared with the $30,500 of the government's money which was paid to Mr. Mayfield's attorneys in the litigation which followed his election. Of course lawyers come high, but it would seem that a man of Mr. Mayfield's popularity would have lawyer friends who would make some sacrifice in the matter of fees in order that their good friend might take up the duties of the office to which he was elected. Anyway, it's hardly possible that the lawyers who enjoy such practice will appeal to Mr. Mayfield for lawyer relief legislation should he again be elected.

But, speaking of inconsistencies, and strange bedfellows which develop in politics, none can compare with that of the present campaign. When radical wets like Ferguson and Jeff McLemore declare for Mayfield who is politically dry and whose political ideals are as far from theirs as the east is from the west, there are influences at work of which the people know not.

It is while we're talking politics let us all keep cool. It will soon be all over, and regardless of who is elected, we will all continue to work for our ham and eggs, and the election of no man will make our job materially different from what it is and has been.

One of our good farmer friends cautioned us a few days ago about publishing encouraging reports on crop conditions, stating that exaggerated reports had a tendency to run the price of farm products downward. Personally, we've always tried to avoid exaggeration in all things. We have always been deeply interested in the development of our town and country, but we have never felt that it was necessary to deviate from the cold, unvarnished facts in extolling their merits to the world.

HONORING SCHUBERT

In commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Franz Schubert, "greatest song writer of all time," more than 150,000 members of choral societies from all over the world gathered in his beloved Vienna to sing his matchless melodies and honor his genius. The American delegation numbered more than 3,000.

Vienna's famous concert hall in the Prater, seating 70,000 persons, was unable to hold one-third of the auditors, so the crowds were shifted at intervals as well as the orchestra and conductor were continuous for four days. The city was crowded to overflowing, and 60,000 beds were lent by Poland, while hundreds of locomotives and passenger coaches were drawn from that country and Germany to handle the throngs of visitors.

At this in honor of a composer whose short life of 31 years was spent in poverty, and whose property at his death was officially appraised at the equivalent of about ten dollars. Schubert left to posterity more than 600 songs, 10 symphonies, 24 sonatas, 18 dramatic pieces, 8 sacred compositions and many other miscellaneous works, all written during a period of about 18 years, beginning when he was 13 years of age. Of all his works, the immortal "Serenade" is the most widely known.

GLOBE-CIRCLING RECORD

Nearly five days were clipped from the former world record by Captain C. B. Collyer and John Henry Mears, who have completed the circuit in 23 days, 15 hours and 21 minutes. Ship, train motor and airplane were employed by the globe-trotters, the great record set being chiefly due, of course, to the airplane.

The first human beings to circumnavigate the globe, the crew of Magellan's ship, Victoria, were three years and nearly a month in making the journey. When Jules Verne wrote his "Around the World in Eighty Days" in 1873 it was regarded as a fantastic idea that the earth could ever be girdled in such a short time. The latest record of less than 24 days is certainly remarkable but it is doubtful that it will stand very long.

It is not stretching the imagination too much to predict that with the development of more powerful and more efficient motors and larger planes, with means for re-fueling in the air, a non-stop flight around the world may yet be accomplished. Already a non-stop flight of about one-fifth of the distance has been made. The goal for the near future, then, may be "around the world in eight days," instead of 80.

SIDELIGHTS

Anyway Tunney has a more active conscience than some of our other great and hear-great. He does not smoke, but was offered $10,000 by a manufacturer to sign an advertisement saying: "This must be a good cigarette because all my friends use it." The champion refused to allow his name to be used.

Cardinal Lucon, archbishop of Rheims, aged 86, recently flew over the city and viewed his famous cathedral from the air. Afterward he said: "I would not have risked it before the war. People would have gossiped."

Monkeys figured in two recent court cases. In New York, former governor Miller secured acquittal of a client who shot a monkey. In Colorado Springs a jury awarded Malcolm McConnell $10,000 damages against a hotel man, whose monkey had bitten McConnell's nose.

The story is told of a recent graduate, highly impressed with his own importance, who asked his prospective employer, "Will you pay me what I am worth?" The boss man generously replied, "I'll give you a small salary to start with."

O. O. McIntyre, who records interesting bits of Broadway gossip, believes he has found New York's best sport. A fellow who must pay $400 a week alimony sends the check each Saturday in a box of roses.

Candidate Hoover held in his arms but refused to kiss a Nevada baby, saying, "I will kiss no babies for publication." Candidate Smith refused to be photographed laying bricks, saying, "I can't lay bricks, and any bricklayer who saw it would know I couldn't. That's a baloney picture and I'm not going to stand for any baloney pictures in this campaign."

PROTEST WILL BE MADE ON PROPOSED GAS RATE

(Continued from front page) ed by the Stamford & Western Gas Company has revealed the fact that these rates are higher than those being charged in other towns and cities served by other companies throughout this section of the state, and Whereas, an investigation of the proposed rates to be charged by the Stamford & Western Gas Company has revealed the fact that these rates are higher than those being charged in other towns and cities served by other companies throughout this section of the state, and Whereas, we feel that the proposed rates of the Stamford & Western Gas Company will prove detrimental to the towns served by said company by reason of the fact that the gas rates are higher.

Therefore, be it resolved that we, the citizens of Seymour, Goree, Haskell and Munday, urge that the citizens in our respective towns, and in other towns to be served by the Stamford & Western Gas Company, withhold making connections with the gas mains until a conference can be held with officials of the company to a view of procuring a reduction in the monthly minimum charge of $2.00 per month on each meter and in the meter fee or connection fee of $10.00 as required by said company as a deposit and such other relief as the citizens of said towns may deem just, and equitable to the citizenship of said towns.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the newspapers in each of the towns to be served by the Stamford & Western Gas Company with the request that they publish same and assist in such other ways as they deem best in procuring rates that will prove beneficial to the various towns and aid in their future development.

Another Meeting Soon It was decided that another meeting would be held at some date within the next few days at Haskell to be participated in by citizens from all the towns to be served by the Stamford & Western Gas Company, and that an invitation be extended to the officials of the company to be present and an effort made to adjust the rates in a manner satisfactory to all concerned.

Believe In Fair Play Let it be said that the sentiment of all present at the Munday meeting was that the gas company should receive fair play, and if they can show cause why they should receive a higher rate than is charged by the other companies throughout the state that the efforts of the citizens toward procuring a reduction should be withdrawn, but it is the aim of those interested in the proposition to make an effort to procure such reductions as will place the towns on an equitable basis with others in West Texas, and while all are glad to have the advantages of the natural gas and commend the promoters for their pluck and confidence in the resources of this section, it is essential that the interests of the towns be protected if they are to continue to grow and prosper.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO YOU

There's a sweet old story translated for man But writ in the long, long ago— The Gospel, according to Mark, Luke and John, Of Christ and His mission below.

Men read and admire the Gospel of Christ, With its love so unending and true; But what do they say, and what do they think; Of the Gospel "according to you?"

'Tis a wonderful story, that Gospel of love, As it shines in the Christ life divine. And O, that its truth might be told again In the story of your life and mine.

You are writing each day a letter to men, Take care that the writing is true, 'Tis the only Gospel that some men will read, That "Gospel according to you."

PAUL CARRIES THE GOSPEL INTO EUROPE

Acts 16: 6-15.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D., Associate General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association.

With the very best intentions it can be hard to know just what is right to do. This problem is intensified when one seeks to do only the will of God. Paul was eager to render service in Kingdom-building.

It was not long before Paul felt impelled to undertake another missionary journey and proposed the matter of Barnabas, who was eager to go forth again but insisted that John Mark be taken along. Now this young man began the first journey with them but became a quitter after leaving Cyprus, and Paul insisted that he was not dependable. Then a real argument arose between Paul and Barnabas. It was splendidly settled by both agreeing to disagree. Whereupon Paul took Silas as a team worker and Barnabas chose his nephew Luke was now with Paul, as can be noted from the "we" passages that began here. Luke is the historian of Acts as well as of the Gospel that bears his name.

It was always Paul's method to first seek out the Jews in any new locality. They with him were equally strong in their belief in Jehovah. Then he would follow the well-known law in pedagogy, after making his point of contact, of proceeding from the known to the unknown. He found that there was a place of prayer by the river side on the first Sabbath went there that he might meet those who would come together to worship God. It looks as if the group that day was made up of women only. One was a business woman of marked ability, Lydia of Thyatira, who was a seller of purple dyes. She was an eager listener as Paul enlarged on the truth that had come to him by revelation, which he had worked out experimentally in his own life and had seen multitudes of others accept and practice, too. Lydia Recourse was constantly had to prayer for daily direction. "This is not the place to abide" seemed the repeated answer until Paul was on the very threshold of Europe. At Tarsus another major vision was given by way of definite instruction. A man from Macedonia was seen who besought Paul: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." At once Paul understood that he now had certain marching orders and forthwith took ship and soon reached Philippi in Europe. Dr.

believed that Jesus was the Messiah and sealed her new faith by baptism as a further act of obedience. Her household was equally impressed and declared their belief by accepting baptism. The grace of hospitality was exercised as Paul and his party of co-workers were invited to make her home their headquarters while in Philippi.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

In Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not grip. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he has seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin.

AS SMOOTH AS SILK

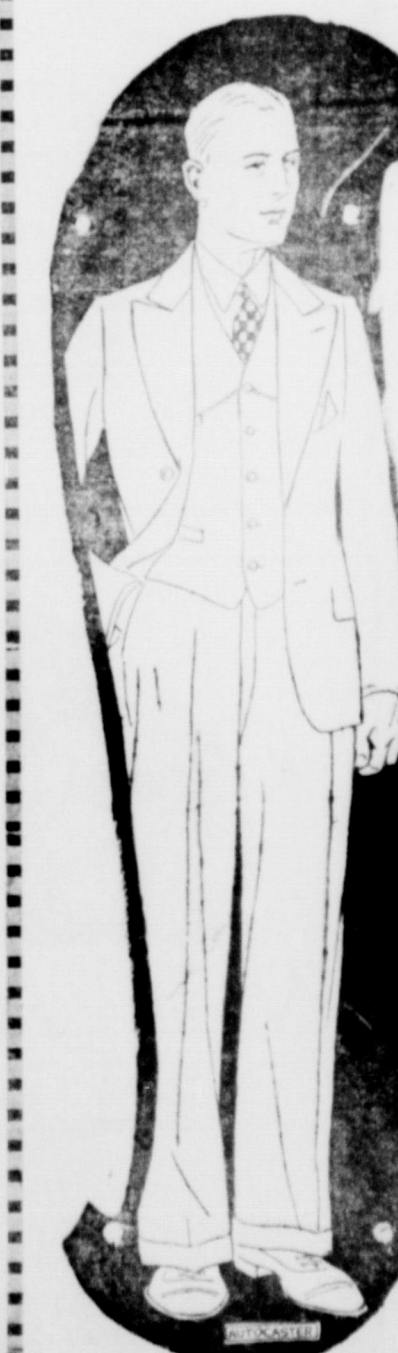

That's the way some have described our new bread. Its just the same as the bread we've been making all the time, but is worked differently on a new machine which we have just installed. Nothing but the highest grade of flour and purest of ingredients go into bread made here, and it is fine for toast and sandwiches. Good for the kiddies.

We believe that the best is none too good for our patrons, and we're always striving to make a good product a little better.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 25
"Once in a blue moon," as the saying goes, can you find a hand that illustrates as many good points of play as the following. The writer played A's hand and was so interested in the play that he made a note of it for use in these Articles. There are seven good points of play that come up and all are important and interesting. Note every point carefully for your use constantly.

Example Hand
Hearts—7, 4, 3, 2
Clubs—8, 6
Diamonds—K, Q, J, 5
Spades—10, 8, 3

Hearts—K, Q, 10, 9, 8
Clubs—J, 9, 7, 6
Diamonds—10, 9, 3
Spades—K, Q

Hearts—A, 5
Clubs—A, Q, 7, 4, 3
Diamonds—A, 7, 2
Spades—A, 5, 4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. All passed and A opened the king of hearts. Y played the deuce and B the jack. Point No. 1. When your partner leads the king of a suit at no-trump, the lead indicates a combination of three honors. If this honor combination is the king queen ten, your partner wants to know at once where the jack is. For that reason, B's proper play is the jack. Point No. 2. Z should play the five of hearts, refusing to win the first heart trick in the hope that B has only two hearts, and that it will be impossible for him to lead the suit to A when and if B gets the lead.

Point 3: B can now play either the king or a low club. If the former, Z should let him hold the trick for such a play by B is an apparent effort to set on a club re-entry in A's hand. Point 4: If B plays a low club, Z should play the seven in the hope that the king of clubs is in B's hand. The play of a lower card of a suit than an outstanding card in an opponent's hand is a "stealing" trick. The trick is called a "steal." Point 5: When the queen of clubs wins the trick, Z must not lead hearts. If he does, B can save the queen by playing the king, thus making it possible for A's jack to win the third club trick. Point 6: When the queen of clubs holds the trick, Z should lead his first diamond. If he wins the trick in A's hand, Y's hand now contains a thirteenth diamond but, if it should be led, B can save the game by discarding the king of clubs. Thus again we see A's jack of clubs a "steal" and thus save game. Point 7: Z should count his tricks when he wins the third diamond trick. Y's hand and notice that he can make game without leading the best diamond. He should then lead the best club from Y's hand and B again can play either the king or a low club. If the former, Z should play the king to hold. If the latter, Z should play the ace and a low club, forcing B in the hand. In either case, Y-Z must win four club tricks, three diamond tricks, the ace of hearts, and the ace of spades—two aces odd at no-trump; game, rubber and 100 aces. Quite a hand, don't you think?

Answer to Problem No. 26

Hearts—A, K
Clubs—A
Diamonds—A, 9, 7, 5
Spades—A, J, 10, 7, 4, 3

No score, rubber game. What should Z as dealer bid with the foregoing hand? The 100 aces are tempting, but the only sound bid is one spade. If partner has anything at all, a game in spades is certain. On the other hand, a game in no-trump is doubtful, particularly with a club opening.

Answer to Problem No. 27

Hearts—A, 3
Clubs—K, Q, 7, 6, 2
Diamonds—A, 9, 8, 7, 4
Spades—A

Rubber game, Y-Z 18; A-B 0. Z dealt and bid one spade. What should A now bid with the foregoing hand? A has a two suiter and should arrange his bidding so that, if possible, he can show both clubs and diamonds. The best way to obtain this result is by bidding the higher value suit first, in this instance, diamonds, and then, if overbid, to show the clubs. In this way, it is possible to bid both suits and give partner a chance to show his preference without increasing the contract. A no-trump with this type of hand is unsound. A spade lead is certain and opponents will undoubtedly save game. On the other hand, a suit lead from with the partner's hand, is very probable.

Answer to Problem No. 28

Hearts—A, K, 9, 6
Clubs—8, 5, 3
Diamonds—10, 7, 4
Spades—7, 6, 4

No score, rubber game. What should Z as dealer bid with the foregoing hand? At this strength, the dealer should show his strength at once and bid one heart. If the opponent A wins the bid, the dealer wants hearts opened. Any other opening probably will lose game. Don't hesitate to bid this type of hand.

THE TIGER TRAIL

by Edison Marshall Illustrations by PAUL FREHM

"He knew he couldn't kill the Haywards. That was murder, and would defeat their own ends in that it might draw attention to the past life of Southley. He knew that Southley couldn't satisfy their rapacious appetites. They would cling and suck till the last cent was gone. Southley bought those clothes—paid for their cars. Other things were planned for this winter. So Ahmad Das conceived of the desperate scheme of scaring the Strumburgs—or the Haywards—as they called themselves—from the estate by means of the tiger legend.

"Ahmad Das had all the material in the world to work with. He knew it when he thought out the plan. This jaguar—a tawny streak in the jungle, and leaving its tracks in the mud—was of course his greatest card. His own natural feline grace and Hayward's naturally superstitious nature were cards, too. Wicked men usually are superstitious. Of course Ahmad couldn't get the jaguar into the house; but it was a simple matter to rig up that tiger skin. Every day he put a piece of meat out on a certain flat rock on the hillside. It wasn't human blood and flesh you saw there. It was good red beef; and Ahmad Das god blood stains on his shirt carrying it down there. And it wasn't any time at all until they got that big cat so that he stayed around the jungle at the base of the hill. The inside work couldn't be done in the bright light, so it was necessary to pretend that the lighting plant was broken. The faint light of candles gave just the proper atmosphere.

"I'm crazy about the whole scheme, Long. It worked out to perfection except for one thing. Nobody had counted on the jaguar killing Hayward."

"What were you doing with that shirt—and the beef blood?"

"Simply making the necessary tests—so to prove my story to the jury tomorrow. If I hadn't Freeman would have had poor Ahmad—the most faithful soul in the world—conflicted and hung for murder by now—mentally, at least."

"And, lastly, how did you come to be involved in this affair at all? Did you come just because I sent for you?"

"I'm a private detective, Long," was his quiet answer. "I don't work for the State, although the State employs me sometimes. Southley himself wrote me to come—to help him out. I told him I couldn't at first—that was some weeks ago—but I knew a young man that would be the greatest assistance to him in the hour of need. That young man—had been in two or three bad messes before—the affair at Wildmarsh, and the story of the cobra curse, and the Mole. Southley had met the young man in a visit in Tampa, and he liked him. So the next day this young chappie—and what a bone-head he has been—got a letter from Southley asking him down for a week's shooting, fishing, and rest. He was a doctor, and his name was Long."

Vilas left on the night train. He packed his bag in silence, and was rowed over to the railroad track, whence he could go to the station.

When midnight hung still and mysterious over the water world, Josephine and I found ourselves alone on the great veranda.

"Let's walk down to the water's edge," she suggested. "It's drying up so quickly. It will be gone in a few days more."

"And I will be gone, too," I told her.

She walked in front of me, down the narrow path. And I was struggling for words that wouldn't come.

"Did you know, Miss Southley, that Alexander was responsible for my invitation here?" I asked her at last.

"I found it out tonight," she said. "Do you see what that means? That I was sent here to serve. And all I did was make mistakes."

"They started on the day we met—when I let you go without providing means of ever seeing you again," I went on. "Fate protected me then. I wonder if I can ask it to protect me now—after all the other mistakes I've made. And the worst of them all—the ones that hurt most—are the things that I said and thought of you."

Her voice was scarce more than a whisper when she answered me.

"They hurt me, too," she said. "They showed me up as the poorer clay," I told her sadly. "They exposed me—a doubting and scrupulous man, and a blind man, too. One who is unable to help in his finer instincts. Of course, I see now why you brought the pistol in your vanity bag. Tell me, Josephine! It was for no other reason than to protect yourself from Vilas Hayward, if worse came to worst?"

"I don't believe you are done doubting yet, or you wouldn't ask," she said. "That was just part of the reason, Dr. Long. The other was that I was so afraid—so afraid, all the time."

"You were with Vilas always as part of the blackmail your father paid. You were part of the price of silence, and you submitted because you realized something of the power that the Haywards held over your father. What your father told the detective—that you were to be Vilas' wife—was from compulsion, not from choice."

She nodded.

"And for the same reason you couldn't come to my defense that night in the den—when I had struck Vilas. And the reason that you told the detective of my quarrel with Hayward that day as I was leaving was not that you were afraid Vilas would be implicated, but why was it, Josephine?"

"I don't think you should ask me that. You've thought it of me—so many times. The reason was—"

"Yes."

"That I wanted you to stay, Dr. Long?"

We were silent a long time.

And all the while I was searching about in a mind suddenly gone empty for the words I wanted to say. They simply wouldn't come.

And then I became aware of something rapturous past words to tell. Something was stealing along my arm, so light that I could hardly feel it through my coat sleeve, and finally it nestled at the hollow of my elbow. And then I found myself whirling, and speaking breathless words.

"You'll forgive me, Josephine—all those things I said—and did?" I pleaded. "Oh sweet-heart—"

And no mortal eyes could believe the change in her that came when I spoke these words. It was one of the miracles of these latter days. At first she simply waited—as if for me to continue. And then, after a while, she made me an answer. Part of it was just words. Part was the look that the moonlight showed on her face. But what was by a thousand times the biggest part, the part no human being could have been hopeful enough to believe, was a thin ghat her arms did. And then—

What happened then is a secret between us and the marshes; and the marshes are famous for not telling their secrets. One of their secrets is a ring that Vilas had given Josephine; and it lies in the mud of their bottom today. After a while a great owl hooted and called from the island, hoping to repeat his triumph of a few night before. But Josephine turned her face just long enough to laugh at him.

By Cecile

Skirt trimmings run to the side for the fall season—and usually it's the right side.

In the photograph one of the more conservative treatments is shown in the form of a soft side drapery dipping below the hem in a decided point to accent the uneven hemline and furnish the one-sided motif for the costume.

The frock, which is an excellent type for afternoon and semiformal wear, is developed in a deep beige tone of crepe satin, made with a picot edge and shows both satin and crepe surfaces of the fabric as its points swing below the hem.

New Fall Colors and Fabrics

Vivid reds, soft, melting browns and a rich wine shade are important contributions to the new color group for fall. Black and printed satins will be much used. Canton crepe returns to favor—either alone or in combination with velvets—and its newest interpretation is patterned in metal threads which dimly trace an all-over design. Prints contrary to expectations—have not "died out" but have become as much of a staple as plain colors and are splendidly represented in fall fabrics.

Practical—the Feminine

New fall frocks indicate a return of quite practical semi-tailored styles for daytime wear. All the flattering feminine touches are there—but there is an added trimness, an efficient, well-tailored "something" about these newer frocks that sets them apart from the compromise styles of

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Macaroni Salad

Cut fine a cup of cold cooked macaroni and add to it a half cup each of shredded cabbage, diced celery and green pepper; season and mold the mixture in lemon-flavored gelatin. Serve with mayonnaise and garnish with stuffed olives.

Jam in a Jiffy

When you hear a home-maker boast that she made raspberry jam in less than fifteen minutes from the ice box until pans were washed and put away you will know she used a short-process recipe and the natural jellifying agent of liquid pectine instead of the long-cooking method used by old-fashioned cooks.

A Hint for the Hostess

It is a nice courtesy to keep on the pantry shelf a small supply of decaffeinated coffee or a cereal beverage for guests who do not use stimulating drinks. The personal thought pleases them immensely, and adds much to their enjoyment of the meal.

To Whip Cream Rapidly

Wrap the jar in a wet towel sprinkled with salt; keep close to the ice for a short time before whipping, and add a pinch of salt to the cream.

Makes Them Like Carrots

Have you ever tried mashing and beating carrots as you would mashed potatoes? It makes them delicious, and even those who think they do not like carrots find them acceptable when prepared this way.

other seasons. Watch for this characteristic in choosing fall frocks—if you would have the very latest.

The In-Between Hat

Just about now you are seeking a fresh, trim little hat to bridge the gap between summer and autumn styles. Choose either a soft felt in a medium shade, with a suggestion of form to shade the eyes, or a light-weight silk velvet shaped much like the felts, perhaps with rows of silk stitching by way of trimming. The latter hats come in soft shades of medium green, amethyst, raspberry, chamois, black, shades of medium blue, sapphire and navy.

When Custards Curdle

Do not be alarmed if the custard curdles in cooking. If the saucepan is placed in cold water and the custard beaten briskly with an egg beater the texture will become smooth again.

Removing Tea or Coffee Stains

An easy way to take out tea or coffee spots is to apply a little glycerine to the spot as soon as possible. Then when washed the stain will come out easily.

To Peel Onions Quickly

If you will drop onions into scalding water for a few seconds before peeling the hard outer skin will come off very easily.

To Clean Piano Keys

Discolored piano keys disfigure the instrument and give an appearance of slipshod house-keeping. To bleach them, cover with a paste of prepared chalk and alcohol and when dry, remove, rub keys with alcohol and dry with soft cloth.

Protecting the Egg Beater

Put only the ends of the rotary egg beater in water, being careful to keep the cogs and wheels dry, or they will rust.

Cleaned Smoked Ceilings

Painted ceilings that have become smoked may be cleaned by washing with cloths wrung out of water in which a piece of washing soda has been dissolved.

Glycerine Removes Coffee Spots

Delicate material that has been spotted with coffee may be restored by brushing the spots with pure glycerine and rinsing in luke-warm water.

In almost every home there is an old treasure or two, but proud as we are of these possessions, they do not always have a place of honor in the home.

Bookshelves always welcome bits of colorful old glass or pottery among the books. On the sideboard or console a piece of old silver gives a suggestion of luxury that is subtly convincing; old pewter plates on the mantel shelf—such well-chosen ornaments often give a more atmosphere and individuality to a room than many dollars spent on new furnishings.

Remember This When Preserving

In choosing fruit for preserving, remember that slightly under-ripe fruit is usually best because it contains more pectin, jellifying substance than ripe fruit. If modern short-process preserving rules are followed, however, this point may be disregarded, as these recipes secure uniform jelly textures through the use of liquid pectin.

The day was splendid, as brilliant as a day on Long Island can be, and that is brilliant indeed.

The great square house with its mansard roof and many wings and additions and the great pillars of the veranda that gave it a certain nobility was glistening white, for it had just been painted. The painters, as a matter of fact, were still at work on the rear of the house. They were working over time this Saturday afternoon, hurrying to finish the job. John Drane had complained to the paint odor, saying it gave him a headache.

The Drane place, although it had been given no particular name, was as good as any in Westcote. Real estate dealers roughly estimated it to be worth a hundred thousand dollars and pointed to it as an example of how prices in Westcote had improved; Drane had paid fifteen thousand for it in 1892 and had spent some twenty thousand in improving the place, having the pillared veranda built on and so on, so that the whole cost to him had been only thirty-five thousand.

This was mentioned as a sample of the good fortune John Drane had in all his investments. No one knew just what he was worth but he was reputed to be worth at least a million dollars, possibly a great many millions.

On this Saturday afternoon he sat on his veranda just as he had seated himself on his return from his office in the city. He sat in one of the wicker chairs, a wicker stand beside him, and on this he had placed his hat and cane, and he leaned back in his chair with his eyes closed in the attitude of a very tired man. One of the hands that grasped the arm of his chair twitched slightly; it was the slender aristocratic hand of a man of seventy. Presently Norbert, the colored houseman, came through the door carrying a tray of which were a glass of milk, a plate of crackers, a napkin and several dainty sandwiches. He moved the wicker stand a little closer to John Drane's chair, removed the hat and cane, and placed the tray on the stand. John Drane opened his eyes.

"All right, Norbert," he said.

"I'll just put this hat and cane in the hall, Mist' Drane," the negro said. "I thought how maybe you might like them sandwiches."

"Perhaps! Perhaps!" Drane said.

"An' Miss Amy say I should ask you is you goin' use the car any more this aft'noon. She say if you ain't maybe she go ridin' aw-hiles."

Drane dipped a cracker in milk and ate a little without apparent appetite.

"I don't feel well, Norbert," he said. "I certainly don't feel well. Take this stuff away will you? I can't eat it. I'm not going to use the car; you may tell Amy she can have it. There's nobody come?"

"Only Mist' Carter," the negro said. "Him and Miss Amy is playin' tennis out back in the tennis court."

"Alone?"

"Couple o' young folks."

"Yes. When you go out there, Norbert, tell young Carter I want to see him. No hurry—tonight or tomorrow will do; whenever he has time. And tell Mrs. Vincent to see that the yellow guest room is ready for a guest. I'm expecting a man to stay a few days."

"Yes, sir," Norbert said, and he took up the tray and went. He coughed as he reached the door, coughed so hard that he had to pause with the tray resting on a ledge. It was the distressing cough of a man suffering from tuberculosis.

"You want to be careful of that cold of yours," John Drane said, as if the cough had annoyed him. "How is Mrs. Vincent?"

"Yes, I'm bein' careful of it," Norbert said and added, as he opened the door, "Mis' Vincent she's jus' fairly; she ain't no more than fairly. No, sir."

John Drane's fingers tapped the arm of his chair nervously. He frowned as his eyes rested on the long tree-studded lawn that ran down to the road. This nervousness was unusual with him, ordinarily he was so calm and cold and unmoved by even the most exciting events that in the district surrounding Wall Street he was called the Human Sphinx—silent, stern, unfathomable.

To the town of Westcote John Drane was not a sphinx. In Westcote he had made his home some twenty-five years earlier, a bachelor of forty-five who preferred a home in the country. His purchase of the old house and his considerable expenditures for repairs had been a seven day topic and then he had been accepted as a silent man, possibly suffering from a chronic indigestion that made him a little cranky, but not such a bad sort at that. He took no part in the town affairs that called for mass meetings and service on committees but he gave with fair liberality when he approved a cause; he received those who came to him on such affairs and listened to them, silently but with keen attention. Sometimes, without a word, he wrote a check; sometimes he merely said, "I am not interested."

He took no part in social affairs. As time passed he did become interested in some of the financial concerns—he became a director of one of the banks, and was a regular attendant at its board meetings—but he was known mainly, in the neighborhood, for his fine horses. His coachman always drove him to the trains and met him on his return until the time came when he bought an automobile; after that his chauffeur always drove him to his office just around the corner from Wall Street on Broadway. He was not so much a peculiar man as a self-sufficing one. In the deals he made in Wall Street he played a lone hand. He never took part in syndicates, never allied himself with groups. And some of his deals were sensationally profitable. It was the amazing effrontery of some of these deals that had attracted attention to him sufficiently to warrant his being given a sobriquet of his own—The Human Sphinx. He would not talk of his deals or of the market or of anything. The moment he reached the city he was, for all practical purposes, mute.

It was not long before Westcote knew he was an extremely wealthy man. Solicitors for a new hospital, going to John Drane in the hope of getting him to give some hundreds of dollars or perhaps a thousand, came away from the house with a check for an even hundred thousand. There had been no wasted words. "Yes, I approve of it; I will give you something," he had said and, turning to the desk, he had written the check. The solicitor, glancing at it, had thought it was for a thousand dollars and had been profuse in his thanks; not until the check was turned in to the treasurer was it discovered that it was for the amazing hundred thousand. The check went through the bank and was paid without question.

"Well, the bony old son-of-a-gun!" the treasurer of the hospital exclaimed. "He must have a heart in his dried-up carcass after all, even if he don't look it!"

At seventy John Drane was still as bony as ever, but "dried-up" did not describe him, nor had it ever. He was thin almost to emaciation, but it was a soft thinness; his skin was not dried nor leathery, and his face had not so much wrinkled as fallen into jowls and folds. His cheeks were drawn down below his cold gray eyes and when he removed his eye glasses the hollows below the eyes were almost ghastly, but even at seventy he was minutely careful of his body and dress, almost dandified. He shaved twice a day, once in the morning and once at noon, for he had a complete shaving outfit at his office. In a small dressing-room there he also changed his linen at night; he could not bear soiled linen.

He was a tall man, or his thinness made him seem tall, and now he arose from his chair as one of the nondescript black taxicabs of the town entered his driveway.

"Ah!" he exclaimed, and then frowned, because a second taxicab had followed the first.

The two cabs, following the wide sweep of the drive, one cab following close on the wheels of the other, drew up before the veranda and their doors opened simultaneously. From the second the passenger was quick to alight, a small man all in black, and he glanced toward John Drane. The millionaire, still frowning, raised a finger and touched his lips—a gesture so brief that it was hardly observable, but the man in black caught it and nodded that he understood. From the first cab the passenger had considerable trouble alighting. He was a huge man, broad of shoulder and hip, and he was trying to bring with him a huge yellow oilboard suitcase, in size proportioned to himself. He had the awkwardness of a man not accustomed to the frequent use of cabs and when he finally stood on the gravel his face was red and perspiring and he wiped his forehead with the back of his hand before he dug into his pocket for the cab fare.

"Black my cats!" he cried. "Come mighty near never gettin' out of your shebang, son. Half a dollar, hey? 'Tain't bad; here's a dime for you."

He picked up his suitcase and turned to the steps.

"Well, black my cats!" he cried. "You durned old John Drane! If you ain't just as bony and skinny as you was when we was kids! Well, now who'd have thought I'd ever be shakin' hands with Skinny Drane! Well! Well! Well!"

"Simon, I'm glad to see you," John Drane said, taking the fat man's hand. "I gave your language there, my man will take care of it. It's good to see you again. Since I never see anyone from Riverbank—none of them ever come east. Yes, it's good to see you."

He turned then to the smaller

"Dat" he said, "I'm 'Tud like you, an' I'm an old friend of mine, a man I haven't seen for—how long is it since? Twenty-five years?"

"Black my cats, no, John! Thirty-five, anyway. I wasn't to hock when you was there twenty-five years ago," the fat man said. "I'd gone down to Kansas City to try to find that boy of mine, but you wouldn't remember that, I guess. Thirty-five years!"

"Simon Judd, from my old home town of Riverbank, Iowa," John Drane said, completing the introduction. "And my good friend William Dart," he added. "You've heard me speak of Riverbank, Dart."

"Quite frequently; quite frequently," Dart said. "I'm very glad to know you, Mr. Judd. Any friend of Mr. Drane's, of course—yet, indeed, I've heard Mr. Drane speak of Riverbank! Yes, frequently."

They were interrupted by a young girl who came hurriedly and merrily around the house, half running and carrying a tennis racket in her hand. She evidently had expected to find Mr. Drane alone and had been eager to say something, but now she put it off, seeing that Drane had visitors.

JOHN ED JONES, Secretary-Treasurer
PHONE No 109 MUNDAY, TEXAS

To the Voters of Knox County:

Having known Thos. R. West, candidate for County Clerk, and knowing him to be a young man worthy of the confidence of the people and competent in every respect to discharge the duties of the office, we wish to publicly endorse his candidacy and ask that the voters of the county give his candidacy serious consideration.

He is a native of Knox county, having been born at Vera 34 years ago, he being a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. West, pioneer and highly respected citizens. He grew to manhood on the farm and is still engaged in farming.

At the outbreak of the World War he volunteered his services to Uncle Sam, enlisted in Company G, 359th Infantry, 90th Division, and saw fourteen months active service on the battle front in France. Tommy West is too modest to even mention this service in meeting the voters of the county, and he would not seek one vote in consideration of this service, but we, his friends, believe that this fact should be taken into consideration, and all things being equal, the boys who gave their services in the trying days of the war should be given preference, and for this reason we are pointing out this fact to our friends over the county. He entered the service as a private and when he was discharged had been promoted to sergeant.

We, the citizens of Vera, who know him, are glad to give our endorsement to the candidacy of this young man, and believe it but just to point out that here in his home town he received 183 votes in the first primary as against 36 for both his opponents, both of whom are excellent citizens and good men.

Let it be understood that we are making no effort to discredit the opponent of Mr. West in this election. We would not ask for a single vote for him upon the demerits of his opponent, if indeed he has any, but we are asking that the candidacy of Thos. West be given due consideration, and have pointed out the several merits which are to his credit, believing that the people are entitled to these facts in making a decision as to who will be their public servant, and we most respectfully ask that you give him your vote and lend to him your influence at the August primary, and assure you that you shall never have cause to regret having imposed this confidence in him.
