

J. T. Wills Takes Off First Honors In Fiddlers Contest

Last December J. T. Wills came all the way from Memphis, Texas, to compete in the old fiddlers' contest, and at that time he was a favorite with a large percentage of the audience for a place well up at the top. However, the judges in the contest failed to give him anything other than favorable comment, but on last Friday night Wills staged a comeback. He again journeyed from Memphis to enter into the competition in the contest, and was acclaimed the best fiddler of them all by the audience, which jammed every available inch of space in the city hall auditorium. In fact, it was evident when Mr. Wills did his turn at fiddling, down toward the end of the contest, that the audience was immensely impressed with his effort, and this was more evident when the various contestants appeared before the audience and were judged by applause.

There were eight contestants this year, which was the seventh annual contest to be held in Munday, as follows: Noah Tinker, Munday; T. J. Bigbee, Paducah; Elmore Morrow, A. N. Morrow and Jewel Morrow, all of Munday; J. T. Wills, of Memphis; U. R. Houser, of Munday; and W. F. Case, Munday.

As has been stated before, the judging this year was by applause from the audience, which proved very popular with the contestants, and the awards were made as follows: first—J. T. Wills, Memphis; second—Elmore Morrow, Munday; third money was divided equally between Noah Tinker of Munday and T. J. Bigbee of Paducah, while fourth prize was awarded to Jewel Morrow. The prizes were $35.00, $20.00, $15.00 and $5.00, which included all of the receipts of the door except minor expenses of holding the contest.

Again this year the Morrow family proved to be most pleasing attraction. Mr. A. N. Morrow, his five sons and one daughter constitute an organization of musicians that would prove a real attraction anywhere, and their contribution to the programs on these occasions are always a most enjoyable feature.

And too, the old-fashioned square set was a most enjoyable feature again this year, and was put on to perfection by J. W. Brogden and party. They know the old steps and can execute them to the delight of old-timers who themselves have stepped lively to the familiar old tunes that were played in years gone by.

Bigger and better than ever was the verdict of all the fiddlers, some of whom have participated in the contest each year for the past seven years, and they all stated that they would be here and in the competition again next year, if it is possible for them to do so.

FORMER MUNDAY PASTOR SUFFERS NEUROUS BREAKDOWN

The Rev. Hamilton Wright, who has reported the annual conference of the Methodist Church at Lubbock for the daily press, inserted the following paragraph in his account, which is of interest to Munday citizens by reason of the fact that the Rev. R. R. Gilbreath was formerly pastor of the Munday circuit, and was transferred from the work here to Jayton:

"A small mountain of greenbacks grow on the secretary's desk when members of the conference filed to the chance to contribute to the Rev. R. R. Gilbreath, Jayton pastor, who is taking the superannuated relation due to bad health. The Rev. Mr. Gilbreath is leaving for a year to recuperate his voice and health. The sum was $208."

"The many friends of the Rev. Gilbreath will regret to learn of his illness, and will join us in wishing for him a speedy and complete recovery."

Rev. R. B. Freeman Returns to Munday Church As Pastor

When the assignments were read at the annual conference of the Northwest Texas Methodists at Lubbock on Sunday it was learned that the Rev. R. B. Freeman has been here he has shown himself to be a real live-wire for the church and for all movements that have for their purpose the betterment of the town and community.

Dixie Oil Company Will Drill Well Nine Miles West

Materials are being placed on location for a test for oil on the John Smith farm nine miles west of Munday, which is to be drilled by the Dixie Oil Company. Golden & Cochran of Wichita Falls are the contractors and the test is to be drilled with rotary tools and will be drilled to a depth of 3500 feet.

The location is to be 300 feet from the east line of section 46, block 2, D. & W. Ry. survey, and 300 feet from the north line of said section 46.

For some time the Dixie Oil Company has been leasing in that section of the county and it is estimated that they now have approximately four thousand acres under lease in the vicinity of the proposed test.

No Contamination In City Water Says State Board of Health

D. T. Mauldin, city secretary, has received a report from the State Board of Health upon a sample of the city water submitted to the department for analysis in which it is stated that the water shows no contamination whatever.

This report should set at ease any uneasiness that the city's water supply is in any way contaminated, and Mr. Mauldin is to be congratulated upon keeping a close watch upon the water supply, having an analysis made at regular intervals for the safety of the citizenship, and at no time has the bacteriological examinations revealed any contamination.

Suit Over Cost Of Negro Burial Will Be Brought

(Wichita Daily Times)

Suit will be brought before the end of the present week by a local undertaking company against Wichita and Knox counties after six months of negotiations have failed to settle a controversy as to which should pay the expense of the burial of a penniless negro woman, according to a notification said by Wayne Somerville, county attorney, to have been received by him.

He will contend on behalf of Wichita county, Mr. Somerville stated, that Knox county is alone liable for the claim, which amounts to approximately $75.

Presumably, he said, Knox county authorities will contend that Wichita county is responsible for the debt. The suit will be brought in justice court, the county attorney was told.

The controversy originated last spring when a negro woman, who had been wounded in Knox county, died in a Wichita Falls hospital after money for the expense of sending her here had been raised by popular subscription, at Knox City.

Mr. Somerville contends that Knox county authorities when asked as to what disposition should be made of the body, requested that it be buried here and that the bill be sent there. The alleged instructions were followed. When the bill was forwarded, the Knox county commissioners court declined to pay it on the grounds that the body had not authorized the expenditure, according to a notification to Mr. Somerville.

Contractors Start Work On Ice Plant Here First of Week

Murphy & Murphy, general building contractors, of Mineral Wells, arrived in Munday the first of the week to start work on the ice plant to be built here for E. J. Roberts of Fort Worth, and workmen are now engaged in laying the foundation for the building, which will be located on the block just north of the square, and will be completed in time to operate for the opening of the spring season.

Mr. Roberts, before locating the plant in Munday, had extensive tests made of the water here and found the water in the north part of the city most practical for the manufacture of ice, and immediately purchased lots and had a well dug, which will provide water for the plant.

Murphy & Murphy are building contractors doing a wide range of work; but who specialize in the building of school and other public buildings on a large scale, and they came to Munday from Olton, Texas, where they have just completed a modern two-story brick business house.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Heard, went to Wichita Falls Sunday, where Mrs. Heard underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils, and are pleased to report that she is getting along nicely.

LOCAL FIDDLERS WILL BE ON AIR MONDAY EVENING

Elmo and Jewel Morrow, local fiddlers, will be heard over radio station K. G. K. O., Wichita Falls, Monday evening in an old fiddlers' contest that is to be conducted over that station, and in which fiddlers from all sections of Northwest Texas will be represented. The program is being sponsored by the Orient Oil Company, and local radio fans will enjoy tuning in and getting the old time tunes that will come through the air. Another fiddler who will be heard at this time is J. T. Wills of Memphis, Texas, who was the winner in the local contest here last week. He and his son will enter the contest from Memphis.

Snyder's Variety Store Will Open Here on Saturday

Snyder's Variety Store is the newest acquisition for Munday. The new business will open on Saturday morning, December 1st, in the building that has been occupied by C. B. Jones as a grocery store for the past two years.

The new store is operated by Mr. Paul Snyder of Stamford, who has for some years had a desire for a store in Munday, and embraced the opportunity to establish a business here when the opportunity offered for the securing of a location. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder operate variety stores in Stamford, Albany and Rochester, and the addition of the Munday store will give them four stores, thereby enlarging their buying power and enabling them to buy in quantities that will mean a substantial saving.

The Munday store will be operated under the management of Mrs. Paul Snyder and Mrs. E. Rhodes, who are here from Stamford arranging the stock and fixtures, and will open on Saturday morning with a full and complete line of Christmas Holiday goods.

MOTHER OF MRS. GEO. ISBELL DIES AT SPRINGDALE, ARK.

Mrs. George Isbell received a telegram on Tuesday morning advising her of the death of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Coan, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fitzgerald, at Springdale, Ark. The message did not come as a great surprise, as Mrs. Isbell had been advised of her critical illness, but was unable to go to her bedside. Mrs. Isbell visited her mother during the summer.

Deceased was a resident of Munday for many years and she and her husband were well known to many of the older residents of Munday. Mr. Coan died in Oklahoma about a year ago.

The many friends of Mrs. Isbell will deeply regret to learn of her great sorrow.

COTTON REPORT REVEALS DECREASE IN PRODUCTION

The November 1st report of W. H. Griffin of Goree, special agent for the department of Commerce, indicates that there were 18,964 bales of cotton ginned this year, as compared with 31,847 on the same date last year, a decrease in the county of 12,383 from last year's report.

Rebekahs Entertain On Monday Evening For R. G. M. Eiland

The Munday Rebekahs entertained the members of the Odd Fellows and a few friends on Monday evening at the hall in honor of the Rev. R. G. M. Eiland, who is approaching his 78th birthday, and who for many years has been a faithful member of the Rebekah and Odd Fellow orders, and has been a regular attendant at practically every meeting throughout the many years that he has been associated with these orders. The outstanding feature of the evening was the presentation of a Past Master emblem of the Rev. Eiland, which was made by Mrs. W. S. Edwards in behalf of the Rebekah lodge in a very impressive manner.

In responding to the beautiful tribute paid to him Rev. Eiland stated that in being faithful to the lodge he had always felt that he was only doing his duty, and that he had derived much pleasure from his fellowship with the members of the fraternity, and expressed himself as being very grateful to the members of the lodge for their kind thoughts and the expressive manner in which they expressed them.

A very interesting and instructive talk was made by the Rev. W. H. Albertson, pastor of the Baptist church, who talked along the line of Thanksgiving, and who at the conclusion of his address paid a very beautiful tribute to Bro. Eiland.

The members of the Rebekahs were dressed in regalia of the order and the scene was a very impressive one, with Mrs. A. J. Bunts presiding as Noble Grand, supported by the various subordinate officers of the order. There were a number of interesting features on the program and the various numbers were interspersed with music furnished by the Munday Chamber of Commerce Band.

We wish to add that among those present, as a member of the band, was Peter Loran, who, upon being advised that the occasion was to do honor to Brother Eiland, braved the rain and drove in to assist in the program in honor of his friend for thirty years.

An interesting feature of the evening was a talk on the Odd Fellows Orphans Home at Corsicana and the home for the aged Odd Fellows and Rebekahs at Ennis, by Miss Annie Munday, who has visited both of the institutions, and who gave a detailed account of the systematic manner in which the homes are run and the tremendous amount of food, clothing, etc., that are required for the hundreds of inmates. These homes are the pride of every Odd Fellow and Rebekah in the state, and they have cause to feel proud of the fact that they contribute toward their maintenance when they are doing.

A most enjoyable feature of the evening's entertainment was a reading by little Gayle Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reynolds, and the song, "The Old Rugged Cross," sung by Miss Eunice Perdue.

On the conclusion of the program the Odd Fellows and members of the Rebekah orders together with members of the band were ushered to the waiting tables which were loaded with good things to eat, and when we say good things to eat we mean that there were good things in a variety and in abundance, and we know that many of the Odd Fellows did their full duty when they reached the table, and the editor of this paper will vouch for the fact that they ate to their heart's content, and we had to explain that the reason we were the last to leave the table was due to faulty dental work—but we didn't make it stick with those close by.

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES
Acts 24-27, 28:19-29
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
Group hatred strengthens every participant. More than 40 in Jerusalem vowed they would never eat until Paul had been killed. This plot was discovered by a lad who gave the information to Paul and the authorities.
Then the prisoner was sent north-want to Caesarea under a heavy guard. The governor there was fair and said the case would have due attention when the accusers arrived.

Ananias, the high priest, came with Tertullus the lawyer. Felix soon discerned that it was a question of isms and not a lawlessness against the constituted authorities. Paul would have been acquitted except that there was a fine possibility of obtaining a bribe for his release, for the man was well related in friendships as well as personally. Freedom of approach was granted, among whom must have been Phillip the evangelist who resided at Caesarea (Acts 21:8-9). Read Acts 24-27 for all the details covering these two years.

It was a formal occasion when Felix, with his wife, Drusilla, invited Paul to present his case. Though Drusilla was the daughter of the Herod who killed James the brother of John and later put Peter in prison there was no fear as the most was made of this fine opportunity to tell "concerning the faith in Jesus Christ".
Both the governor and his wife needed
all that was said about "righteousness, self-control and the judgment to come." Though Felix trembled he merely said "Go thy way for this time."

Porcius Festus went to Jerusalem within three days after he succeeded Felix. At once the accusers of Paul urged that the prisoner be sent back to Jerusalem for trial; their purpose being to kill him en route according to the old plot. "No," said Festus,
"the case must be continued at Caesarea."
Bribes had doubtless been offered and shortly after the case had started Festus proposed that there be an adjournment to Jerusalem.
Paul fully sensed the situation and knew the sure outcome. Then he exercised his right as a Roman citizen and declared "Caesarem appello."
Festus, though he took up the matter with the council, had no alternative and said "Thou hast appealed unto Caesar and unto Caesar thou shalt go."

But what was he to write in transferring the case to Nero? He had nothing to declare against Paul that would be the basis of a case in Rome.
In fact, he felt that the whole matter should be dismissed at once. A way out came in his quandy when company arrived in the persons of king Agrippa and Bernice his sister, though living with him as wife. It was with much pomp that the company of titled men and women assembled the next day. Paul was not disturbed when the call came to present his argument of defense. This was just another fine opportunity of exercising his office of Evangelist which had been denied him in recent months.

The situation became intense when Paul said "Agrippa, believest thou the prophets?" The reply was in sarcasm: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." and is the way that many seek to dismiss a matter when under conviction. The conclusion announced by Agrippa was that Paul might have been freed if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

And, as the bright sun glorifies the sky
So is her face illumined by her eye.
—Shakespeare.

I cannot tell you how it distresses me to see the neglect to which most American women subject their eyes.
Great thought is given to the complexion, the slender silhouette, the throat-line; but the eyes—they are quite forgotten.

Do you know the sum of a woman's birthdays is written in her eyes, and after twenty-five life begins to catch fine lines around them, to slightly alter the smoothness of the lids?

Intelligent care—and only that—can keep eyes ageless. And I, your beauty specialist, will gladly teach you how to give them what they need —if you will promise to be faithful and follow instructions!

Morning or evening, bathe the eyes,
with warm water containing a pinch of boric acid. Relax; saturate pads of cotton in the boric solution and place over the eyes, renewing several times. Then lightly film eye-lids with a soothing cream and with finger-tips pointing downward, "comb"
the upper lids with upward strokes.

You can successfully combat lines and crowfeet by bathing the eyes as directed; then spread a nourishing cream beneath the eyes and at the temples; "comb" the upper eyelids;
pat gently under the eyes as if "finger-printing"; and always pat from the temples toward the nose.

To relax muscles and stimulate circulation of the eyes, rest the elbows on a table, supporting the chin with the thumbs. Move the third finger across the upper eyelids in light rotary strokes from the inner corner of the eyes outward—then inward on the lower lid. Beginning between the brows, run the fingers in firm, gentle strokes over the eyebrows to the outer corner of the eyes and finish with a light circular movement.

When years of neglect have left their imprint it is usually necessary to give the eyes a more elaborate treatment. After cleansing the face, clear the eyes with a good eye lotion and lay upon them a pack of soothing herbs dipped in water as hot as can be borne. Repeat two or three times, then film the eyelids with cream and proceed with the special treatment.

But try these simple rules for keeping eyes forever young and you will not regret the ten or fifteen minutes a day required to apply them.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crank-shaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour.
Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles.
This has been made easy in the new Ford through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Ford and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Announcing -

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

- a Six in the price range of the four!

The Chevrolet Motor Company announces The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History... a Six in the price range of the four!

Spectacular as Chevrolet's achievements have been in the past... notable as its engineering triumphs have proved themselves to be—this remarkable new car dwarfs every previous Chevrolet accomplishment. Not only does it introduce into the low-priced field an entirely new measure of performance, comfort, beauty and style—but it is sold at prices so low as to alter every previous conception of motor car value.

The new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine—developed from more than a hundred motors designed especially for this sensational car—stands out as an engineering masterpiece. With a power increase of approximately 32% over the previous Chevrolet motor, with sensationally greater speed and faster acceleration—it offers a type of performance that is literally astounding... even to those who have been driving cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

Throughout the entire speed range, it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that have never before been approached in a low-priced automobile. At the slower speeds of city traffic it idles along with wonderful silence and ease. On boulevards and country roads it responds with an eagerness that is a constant delight. It takes the longest and steepest hills with an abundant reserve of power that is a source of pride to the driver. And its economy of operation averages better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

This revolutionary performance has been achieved as a result of the greatest array of engineering advancements that Chevrolet has ever announced. A high compression, non-detonating cylinder head... a new heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced... automatic lubrication of the entire rocker arm mechanism... semi-automatic spark control... hot-spot manifold... gasoline pump and filter... new and larger carretor, with automatic acceleration pump and improved venturi choke... fabric camshaft gear... heavier driving gears... heavier differential gears... improved crankcase breathing system... improved lubrication... new 4-wheel brakes that are powerful, safe and quiet under all conditions—these indicate the importance of a group of engineering advancements that embrace every major unit of the entire chassis.

In appearance, this Outstanding Chevrolet is destined to become an automotive sensation—so smart, so stylish and so distinctively appointed that it rivals the costliest custom creations. The new Fisher bodies are longer, lower and roomier with adjustable driver's seat in all closed models—and reveal the matchless artistry of Fisher designers.

With their modish new colors, their smart dual mouldings and their distinctive concave pillars, they achieve a degree of original beauty that has seldom been equalled in motor car design.

You are cordially invited to visit our showroom and secure complete and detailed information on this sensational new car which will be ready for delivery beginning January 1st.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE mean anything—if the people spoke in this election—they proclaimed in If the November election results an unmistakable and audible tone their approval of the Eighteenth Amendment, and if there be enforcement officers so dumb that they cannot understand, they in time will be made to know that they are expected to enforce the laws of the land or make way for those who will.

That prohibition was the principal contributing factor to the Republican victory is an undeniable fact. From all corners of our great country came the echo on November 6th that prohibition is here to stay, and those who would destroy it or in any way weaken the enforcement of it are on a cold trail with had tracks, for despite the fact that thousands of dry Democrats remained loyal to their party and voted the ticket straight; the Republican nominee made unprecedented inroads upon their strength—north, east, south and west—and by their vote the people of this great nation have said in thundering tones that they are completely and entirely satisfied with our prohibition laws—and they want them enforced.

The claim of the Republicans that Texas has permanently been placed in the doubtful column is without foundation and fact. Texas is dry, and so long as the Democratic party is dominated by wags just that long will Texas and a number of other Southern states remain in the doubtful column, but when the party is restored to leadership representative of Democratic ideals then Texas will again take her place with other states that compose the "solid south."

DR. FRANK CRANE SAYS WHY GIVE UP?

I have received a very pitiful letter from a woman out west. She has had a hard time all her life. She has raised three children, who do nothing for her support. When her husband died he was found to have been improvident and left her no money. She has gone stone deaf. On top of this she has just had a very serious operation in a hospital. She can see no way out. Nothing presents itself to her but continued suffering, privation and dependence. She is about ready to give up. What should she do?

Why give up?

Of course it is difficult for any one in comparative health and well being to give advice to sufferers. One is always open to the imputation of being supercilious. It is always easy for the philosopher to bear the toothache patiently when some one else has it.

At the same time and at the risk of being called hard names, I repeat the question, "Why give up?" Suppose you do give up? Will life be any easier to bear? It is just as well to look squarely at the alternative.

When some one tells Tolstoy that many kind, virtuous, and honest people had a very hard time, he replied, "What about those that are unkind, not virtuous, and dishonest? Look about you. Do the people like that whom you know have any easier time?"

The Church in the Middle Ages is often accused of being very cruel. But what about the people outside of the Church? Were they any less cruel?

Life may be hard at best, but it is easier and pleasanter all around if we keep a stout heart and do the best we can under the circumstances.

Whatever may be in store for this woman, whatever deprivation and suffering, we can be sure that she will get along better if she meets her fate bravely, and smilingly and does not give way to despair.

Whatever happens to us we are better off if we battle on and keep our chin up.

Despair is nothing but a bog, a quicksand, that engulfs the soul. It leaves us no spirit with which to fight.

When a Persian soldier told a Lacedaemonian that in battle the Persian arrows would be so thick they would darken the sky, "then," said the Lacedaemonian, "we will fight in the shade."

Our standing this year was as follows: Won five games, tied two, and lost three.

This record has not been beaten for several years, and may be a good or better than any in our football history.

We out-played Crowell in every way, except in scoring touchdowns. They admitted themselves that they got the breaks of the game, and every one who saw the game will say so. But the score is what counts these days, and that's why they won the

THE LAST OF THE DUANES

by Zane Grey

Illustrated by Verne C. Christy

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Buck Duane, quick on the draw, kills Cal Bain in self-defense and finds himself an outlaw. Flying from pursuit he meets another outlaw, Luke Stevens, and the two become pals. Luke narrowly escapes capture and Duane is shocked to find that his brother's outlaw is severely wounded. Duane buries Stevens. Then he goes on to Bland's camp, where he gets into a fight with a man called Bosomper and wounds the latter. He makes friends with an outlaw at Bland's called Euchre, who tells him of Mrs. Bland and the girl, Jennie.

Duane meets Jennie and promises to try his utmost to get her away from Bland's camp. To avert suspicion, it is planned that he pretend to care for Mrs. Bland. Euchre introduces him to the latter and he engages in conversation with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Evidently, the outlaw's wife liked Euchre, for her keen glance rested with amusement upon him.

"As for Jen, I'll tell you her story some day," went on the woman. "It's a common enough story all along this river. Euchre here is a tender-hearted old fool, and Jen has taken him in."

When Euchre had shuffled into the house Mrs. Bland turned to Duane again.

"I'll tell you, Duane," she said earnestly. "I'm sure glad if you mean to hide away. I'm a miserable woman, Duane. I'm an outlaw's wife, and I hate him and the life I have to lead. I come of a good family in Brownville."

"Never knew Bland was an outlaw till long after he married me. We were separated at times, and I imagined he was away on business. But the truth came out. Bland shot my own cousin, who told me. My family sent me off, and I had to flee with Bland."

"I was only eighteen then. I've lived here since. I never see a decent woman or man. I never hear anything about my old home or folks or friends. I'm buried here—buried alive with a lot of thieves and murderers. Can you blame me for being glad to see a young fellow—a gentleman—like the boys I used to go with?"

"I tell you it makes me feel full—I want to cry. I'm sick for somebody to talk to. I have no children, thank God. If I had 'd not stay here, I'm sick of this hole. I'm lonely—"

There appeared to be no doubt about the truth for all this. Genuine emotion checked—then halted the hurried speech. She broke down and cried. It seemed strange to Duane that an outlaw's wife—and a woman who fitted her consort and the wild nature of the surroundings—should have weakness enough to weep.

"Would Bland object if I called on you occasionally?" inquired Duane.

"No, he wouldn't. He likes me to have friends. Ask him yourself when he comes back. The trouble has been that two or three of his men fell in love with me, and when half drunk go to fighting. You're not going to do that."

"I'm not going to get half drunk, that's certain," replied Duane.

Without any solicitation or encouragement from Duane, the Bland woman fell passionately in love with him. She launched it herself. It took no great perspicuity on his part to see that.

He was playing a game of love.

Playing with life and death! Some times he trembled, not that he feared Bland or Alloway, or any other man, but at the depth of life he had come to see into. He was carried out of his old mood.

Not once since this daring motive had stirred him had he been haunted by fancies of Bain beside his bed. Rather had he been haunted by Jennie's sad face—her wistful smile—her eyes.

He never was able to speak a word to her. What little communication he had with her was through Euchre, who carried short messages. But he caught glimpses of her every time he went to the Bland house. She contrived somehow to pass door or window, to give him a look when chance afforded.

And Duane discovered with surprise that these moments were more thrilling to him than any with Mrs. Bland. Often Duane knew Jennie was sitting just inside the window, and then he felt inspired in his talk, and it was all made for her. So at least she came to know him while as yet she almost a stranger.

Jennie had been instructed by Euchre to listen, to understand that this was Duane's only chance to help keep her mind from constant worry, to gather the import of every word which had a double meaning.

Euchre said that the girl had begun to wither under the strain, to burn up with intense hope, which had flamed within her. But all the difference Duane could see was a paler face and darker, more wonderful eyes. The eyes seemed to be entreating him to hurry, that time was flying, that soon it might be too late.

Then there was another meaning in them—a light—a strange fire wholly inexplicable to Duane. It was only a flash, gone in an instant. But he remembered it because he had never seen it in any other woman's eyes.

Inside Duane's body there was a strife; his heart panted, his blood raced, his breast bore a heavy pang. Something hot had dug into his vitals. And the pain remained. In the depths of his mind, his soul, there was chaos. He felt something dying in him. Despair had seized upon him and was driving him into reckless mood when he thought of Jennie.

He had forgotten her. He had forgotten that he had promised to save her. He had forgotten that he meant to snuff out as many lives as might stand between her and freedom. The very remembrance sheered off his morbid introspection. She made a difference. How strange for him to realize that! He felt grateful to her. He had been forced into outlawry; she had been stolen from her people and carried into captivity.

They had met in the river fastness, he to instill hope into her despairing life, she to be the means, perhaps, of keeping him from sinking to the level of her captors. He became conscious of a strong beating desire to see her, talk with her.

These thoughts had run through his mind while on his way to Mrs. Bland's house. He had let Euchre go on ahead because he wanted more time to compose himself.

Darkness had almost set in when he reached his destination. There was no light in the house. Mrs. Bland was waiting for him on the porch.

She embraced him, and the sudden violent, unfamiliar contact sent such a shoke through him that he all but forgot the deep game he was playing. She, however, in her agitation, did not notice his shrinking.

"Duane, you love me?" she whispered.

"Yes—yes," he burst out, eager to get it over, and even as he spoke he caught the pale gleam of Jennie's face through the window.

He felt a shame—he was glad she could not see. Did she remember that she had promised not to misunderstand any action of his? What did she think of him, seeing him out there in the dusk with this bold woman in his arms?

Somehow that dim sight of Jennie's pale face, the big dark eyes, thrilled him, inspired him to his hard task of the present.

"Listen, dear," he said to the woman, and he meant his words for the girl. "I'm going to take you away from this outlaw den if I have to kill Bland, Alloway, Rudd—anybody who stands in my path. You were dragged here. You are good—I know it. There's happiness for you somewhere—a home among good people who will care for you. Just wait until—"

His voice trailed off and failed for excess of emotion. Kate Bland closed her eyes and leaned her head on his breast.

Duane felt her heart beat against his, and conscience smote him a keen blow. If she loved him a smuch! But memory—understanding of her character hardened him again, and he gave her such commiseration as was due her sex, and no more.

"It's Bland!" whispered the woman, grasping Duane with shaking hands. "You must run. No, he'd see you. That'd be worse. It's Bland. I know his horse's trot."

"But you said he wouldn't mind my calling here," protested Duane. "Euchre's with me. It'll be all right."

"Maybe so," she replied, with visible effort at self-control. Manifestly, she had a great fear of Bland. "If I could only think!"

Then she dragged Duane to the door and pushed him in.

"Euchre, come out with me, Duane, you stay with the girl. I'll tell Bland you're in love with her. Jen, if you give us away, I'll bring your neck."

The swift action and fierce whisper told Duane that Mrs. Bland was herself again. Duane stepped close to Jennie, who stood near the window.

Neither spoke, but her hand was outstretched to meet his own. They were small trembling hands, cold as ice. He held them closely, trying to convey what he felt—that he would protect her. She leaned against him, and they looked out the window.

The approaching outlaws, halted a rod or so from the porch. Then Mrs. Bland uttered an exclamation, ostensibly meant to express surprise, and hurried out to meet them.

She greeted her husband warmly, and gave welcome to the other man. Duane could not see well enough in the shadow to recognize Bland's companion, but he believed it was Alloway.

"Dog-tired we are and starved," said Bland heavily. "Who's here with you?"

"That's Euchre on the porch. Duane is inside at the window with Jen," replied Mrs. Bland.

"Duane!" he exclaimed. Then he whispered low, something Duane could not catch.

"Why, I asked him to come," said the chief's wife. She spoke easily and naturally, and made no change in tone. "Jen's been ailing. She gets thinner and whiter every day. Duane came here with Euchre one day, saw Jen, and went loony over her pretty face, same as all you men. So I let him come."

"Kate, you let Duane make love to Jennie," queried Bland, incredulously.

"Yes, I did, despite the wife stubbornly. 'Why, let? Jen's in love with him. If he takes her away and marries her, she can be a decent woman."

Bland kept silent a moment, then his laugh peeled out loud and harsh. "Jennie," whispered Duane, "that was clever of Mrs. Bland. We'll keep up the deception. Any day now he's ready."

She pressed close to him, and barely audible "Hurry" came breathing into his ear.

Then he stepped out to the porch. Then he stepped out into the moonlight and spoke. Bland returned the greeting and, though he was not amiable, he did not show resentment.

"Met Jasper as I rode in," said Bland presently. "Duane, I want you to stop quarreling with my men. If you were one of us—that'd be different. I can't keep my men from fighting. But I'm not called on to let an outsider hang around my camp and plug my rustlers."

"I guess I'll have to be hitting the trail for somewhere," said Duane.

"Why not join my hand? You've got a bad start already, Duane, and if I know this border you'll never be a respectable citizen again. You're a born killer. I know every bad man on this frontier."

"More than one of them have told me that something exploded in their brain, and when sense came back there lay another dead man. It's not so with me. I've done a little shooting, too; but I never wanted to kill another man just to rid myself of the last one."

"My dead men don't set on my chest at night. That's the gun-fighter's trouble. He's crazy. He has to kill a new man—be driven to it to forget the last one."

"But I'm no gun-fighter," protested Duane. "Circumstances made me—"

"No doubt," interrupted Bland with a laugh. "Circumstances made me a rustler. You don't know yourself; you're young; you've got a temper; your father was one of the most dangerous men Texas ever had. I don't see any other career for you. Instead of going it alone—a lone wolf, as the Texans say—why not make friends with other outlaws? You'll live a while longer."

Euchre squirmed in his seat.

"Boss, I've been givin' the boy exactly the same line of talk. That's why I took him in to bunk with me. If he makes pards among us there won't be any more trouble. An' he'd be a grand feller for the gang. Slickest of all the gun-throwers I ever the southwest!" (Continued Next Week)

HERBERT HOOVER

Easily the "biggest man" from a small town at this moment is Herbert Hoover, who has been elected by the people of America to the highest office in the land by the largest popular vote ever cast. Our next president's career is exceedingly interesting, for it shows very clearly the vast opportunities open to the small town boy. Hoover was born at West Branch, Ia., in 1874, the son of a blacksmith. He was orphaned at 9. He worked his way through college, beginning his industrial career as a laborer with a pick in the mines—yet today he is the chosen leader of the nation. Hoover's progress in engineering and mine work was rapid, until he became the head of varied mining enterprises in various parts of the world. His ascent to this height alone is remarkable. But Hoover only began where others stopped. At the age of 40 he entered public life, and won recognition as chairman of the Committee for Relief in Belgium. During the war he was the Food Administrator of the United States, and after the war Chairman of the Supreme Economic Council of the Allies. He organized the American Relief Administration to save lives in Russia. Since 1921 he has been Secretary of Commerce, and has handled a multitude of other tasks, such as directing the Mississippi Flood Relief.

Our next president is six feet tall and powerful in physique, an impressive speaker and a quiet, modest, almost shy man, who is very easy to access despite his great number of activities.

New Six Cylinder Chevrolet To Sell At Same Price Four

Sensational New Valve-In-Head Motor and Other Improvements Reveal in Car An Outstanding Value

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—Motoring America was on its tip-toes tonight as two of its large metropolitan centers were viewing for the first time the sensational new valve-in-head six cylinder Chevrolet, which was announced November 16. Interest was keyed up to a high pitch in New York and Detroit as the financial and motor capitals of the country respectively, prepared to greet this most advanced offering of the world's largest automobile producer for 1928.

The two advance showings opened simultaneously at noon Saturday, November 24th, the New York premiere taking place in a brilliant setting in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and the Detroit debut in the Auditorium of the General Motors Building. Both showings are to continue up to and including Thursday, November 29th.

Meanwhile the gigantic Chevrolet manufacturing organization is applying itself to a heavy production program so that cars may be shipped to dealers starting December 15 and deliveries to the public may begin promptly January first.

Chevrolet's dealers are in readiness to take care of a deluge of advance orders. For several days prior to the announcement the sales division of the company, under the direction of E. H. Grant, vice-president in charge of sales, made use of every information medium available in promoting

LET US BE THANKFUL

While we are enjoying a big turkey with its cranberry sauce and the good things that we have to eat, and when we are yelling for the winning team in a football game, let us stop and think what we are to be thankful for. Observe this day as a day for thanking our Heavenly Father for the many blessings that He has bestowed upon us, as well as a day for having a good time.

We have lots of things to be thankful for. Think of the many blessings that our God has bestowed upon us in the last year. Think of the many dangers that he has kept us from in the last year. They are numerous, considering the few that he gave our Pilgrim Fathers. Should we not be more thankful than our forefathers?

Let each student observe the holidays in thanks to our Maker. However, enjoy the holidays and have a big time but remember—it was HE that made it so you could enjoy these holidays. It was HE that kept you from the many dangers that surrounded you in the last year.

We get Thursday and Friday as holidays and we surely do intend to do "dirty work" to the turkeys and cranberry sauce and the numerous other good things that one has on Thanksgiving day.

The entire student body is going to observe the holidays in thanks to our God for the many blessings that He has given us this year. Many expect to be out of town on this day, but they will keep in their minds the spirit of the day.

Mr. Kunkel said he was thankful for one thing on this day of eats and of course you want to know. He said he was thankful that he could sit down at a table and enjoy a meal and give thanks that he was not the turkey on Thanksgiving day.

We are now receiving the Post High School paper, "The Addax," in exchange for the "Tom-Tom". We surely enjoy getting this paper as it is a real paper and one that few schools put out to equal it.

SENIORS

Well, folks, it's Monday again, and the end of another six weeks. Don't the days fly? Why, it seems but a few days since we were issued our books and began school life anew. And here we are well into our final roundup. Drink deep and long to our success!

The Seniors won't forget Thanksgiving, for, among other things, we are thankful for two days holiday and the fact that we aren't turkeys.

That ship wreck was plenty bad—it reminds me of most of us just before and during exams.

"Magazines! Magazines! McCall's, the best for your money!" These words, or some similar, are familiar to most of the citizens of Munday. If you haven't bought a magazine during the last few days, it's not the Seniors' fault. They have given you plenty of opportunity. (Amen!)

Newton and Goeth wrote Elmer Gantre in three days which is quicker than the reflex action of Plato's theory of the irregular verbs conjugated, expatriated, and exterminated because evolution had failed to provide five reasons why Socrates drank hemlock without ginger ale, the gang's all here we have Napoleon's army across the channel from the English IA-IB (3...3) either half year, or approximately seven months in Ecuador, Peru and Chile, where they encountered storms and the breaking waves dashed high on a stern and rock-bound coast n just a few hours by air mail.

The football season came to a clashing close Friday afternoon. We would like to report a victory for the moguls, but truth hurts. Our boys proved their generosity by merely "handing the game to them on a Silver platter." It's nice to be generous, but it makes the folks back home feel bad. The good ole basketball season starts today, so begin to prepare for those Friday night games. Save your pennies.

Junior Flashes

"I've got so much to be thankful for. That never should I complain; On the books of friendship as charged today.

Large debts of kindness I can not pay.

So what is the present pain. And what are the woes of today compared To the joys I've had and the joys I've shared?"

The following article taken from the C. I. A. paper, portrays our sentiments concerning Thanksgiving: "November has a day sacred in the calendar history. It is on this day that the harvest of crops and the harvest of friendship or good will are celebrated. Such an occasion was suggested in the time of Moses in the command of Leviticus, 'When ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the Lord.' In the verses and chapters following, a spirit of thanksgiving is shown like that which the Pilgrim fathers had in their hearts on the first authentic Thanksgiving day in America.

"The custom of a harvest festival grew little by little until President Washington expressed its true sentiment in his Thanksgiving proclamation in 1789. His recommendation that we assign Thursday, the last one in November, to be devoted by the people of these states to the service of that great and glorious being—that we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks," was endorsed by the government of each state. The celebration then became a national custom.

"Truly all true and loyal hearted Americans gather around the loaded family table to remember the pilgrim, who sought peace, and to offer as did he, thanks to God. Pleasant greetings and kindness are in the air; no drowsiness in the day can expel the cheer and Thanksgiving in the heart of man."

Below I have listed some of the things for which the Juniors are especially thankful:

Chan has two things for which he is especially grateful. First, the improvement of our classmate, Earl, recovering from the fever, and second, for having seen the flag of victory wave over the field in the K. C. Munday game on November 12.

Fern would insist on saying that she is most of all grateful that she isn't a turkey.

Especially am I thankful for the gratitude that we have here on earth. The following quotation from Shakespeare is true: "Blow, blow, thou winter wind! Thou art not so unkind as man's gratitude."

"Gratitude is simply an acknowledgment of kindness, friendliness, or sacrifice done for someone else, in which you do not expect a reward in turn. This gratitude is found in the human heart and is reached through the current in the realm of love.

"Love includes all the virtues, and gratitude is from the heart, where love dwells."

Sad, but true! 'Tis the end of the football season and the last game... We lost. But there is no use to cry over spilt milk, although we hated the defeat. But, Team, you're "keen" and you have broken the record for the last few years, so with this signing off, "You played those games, as a whole, and we are indeed proud of you."

'Tis the end of a six-week semester and a few juniors have realized this fact—but here's to luck, success, and happiness.

Might As Well Be Thankful

When Thanksgiving time comes around it is time for us to put away all prejudices, and bad luck stories to join in the national celebration of a year's prosperity in whatever degree. Forget them all for one day, at least. If you can't be thankful for something you have been unselfish and be thankful for something someone else has, and surely, surely, there are "umpteen" reasons why anyone, no matter who or where, should be thankful to such an extent as to join wholeheartedly in festivities on that day.

MOGULS LOSE LAST GAME TO CROWELL, 19-13

The Moguls journeyed over to Crowell last Friday and handed them over the game in a "Silver platter". Crowell recovered the ball on the first kick, due to a fumble, close to our goal line, and with some hard fighting, made a touchdown in the first three or four minutes of the game. But this made the Moguls battle twice as hard, and by the end of the first half they had succeeded in scoring two touchdowns and one extra point.

The third quarter was played in Crowell's territory and several times the Moguls came near scoring again, but failed as Crowell stiffened their defense. In the fourth quarter the Moguls took to the air more than they had in the other three quarters and were gaining nicely, until one of Crowell's men snatched a pass and ran about sixty yards for a touchdown, and then passed for the extra point. This tied the score at 13-all.

Again the Moguls began to pass and when there was only minute to play, Crowell again intercepted a pass and ran about forty yards for another touchdown. They failed to make the extra point. After that the Moguls pulled end runs and line bucks and (Continued on Page 5)

Ours Are The Blessings For Which They Journeyed Far!

Three hundred and eight years ago, a group of travelers known to history as the Pilgrims landed on "the rock-bound coast" of New England. They endured many hardships during their journey—but the Spirit of Freedom that animated them drove them forward to success in their undertaking. They founded a colony where they were free to worship as they pleased, and where they were able to rule themselves according to the tenets of their own conscience.

Their attainment of their desire is today celebrated throughout the country on Thanksgiving Day. And indeed their venture struck the keynote of the true American Spirit, and all of us today are basking in the sunlight of their pioneer accomplishment.

They have made it unnecessary for us to journey to strange lands, as they did, in the quest for happiness. Our happiness is available to us RIGHT IN OUR OWN HOME TOWN.

We have the sort of community for which the Pilgrims strove. Ours are the blessings for which they journeyed far!

Let us nurture these blessings by upholding and supporting OUR HOME COMMUNITY to the greatest extent in our power. Let us MAKE OUR HOME by contributing to its general welfare through the medium of PATRONIZING OUR HOME TOWN MERCHANTS, whose success means the success of the community.

The business growth of our town means the growth of our recreational, educational and social activities.

When you make your purchase out of town, you are fighting against the COMMUNITY SPIRIT which animated the Pilgrims and which is the mainspring of all American progress!

FARMERS TRADE HORSES IN ON TRACTORS

(Special to Star-Telegram)
Mereta, Nov. 25.—Thirty farm tractors have been sold in this section since the first of the year. There will be more tractors in use next season than ever before. While most farmers are keeping at least one team of horses on their place, there are some who have discarded them entirely, and are doing all farm work by machinery. Several carloads of horses and mules, which were traded in to dealers for tractors have been shipped out of Miles this Fall to points in East Texas where there is a better demand for them. Prices for draft animals are lower here now than they have been for years. While a surplus exists of horses and mules, dairy cows are very scarce with a strong demand. From $125 to $150 is being paid for good cows, even without registration papers. By the use of farm tractors the feed formerly fed to the work animals is now used in feeding high bred dairy cows, and marketed throughout the year through the sale of milk products, such as cream and butter. More of the latter products are being produced in the section round Mereta than formerly, and this fact has been a great factor in stabilizing farming conditions in this section generally.—Star-Telegram.

Tractor Farming Is Modern Farming

Everywhere farmers are taking to the idea of power farming, and in a vast majority of cases they are finding this method of farming economical and profitable, and especially will they find it economical in a year when feed is as high as it is at the present time and as high as it will be during the coming year.

To the farmers who own teams we wish to announce that we will for a time take in good saleable horses and mules on the sale price of a Farmall Tractor, and now is the time to make a change in your method of farming.

The Farmall does everything on the farm, from the time the land is broken until the crops are laid-by. They will break the land, do the planting and cultivating—all at a less cost per acre than it can be done by horses or mules.

We will be glad to talk to you about the Farmall Tractor, and we believe we can show you where it will be profitable to you to own one. Come in and let's talk it over and see if the Farmall will not materially reduce the cost per acre in making a crop.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

When planning the table decoration for Thanksgiving do not forget that fall fruits and vegetables are as decorative as flowers for the occasion—and far more expressive symbols of harvest time.

One of the most beautiful Thanksgiving tables I have ever seen had for its centerpiece a large flat bed of amber glass holding a small pumpkin, a purple egg plant, an ear of corn, a tiny winter squash and apples, plums, oranges, purple and white grapes. Tall cones of white and glass filled with small fruits and grapes were placed at either side of the large bowls. Amber goblets and ivory-bodied china in a colorful pattern were used for service.

Altho the table was planned for a sophisticated New York home it seems to me it bears a special message for all who live far from post florist shops.

Turley-Field-Allison

On Monday evening Miss Leta Turley-Field and Mr. E. D. Allison, both of whom reside at Bule, were united in marriage at the Baptist church, the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Albertson, officiating. They will make their home in the Pukerton community.

Reed-Morrow

On Thursday evening of last week Mr. Elmo Morrow and Miss Jewel Reed motored to Haskell, where they were united in marriage, and since they have been receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Reed of the Thorp community, where she has been a most popular member of the younger set, and numbers her friends by her acquaintances.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Morrow, who have resided here for a number of years and who are well known all over this section of the state as being gifted musicians.

The Times is pleased to join with their many friends in wishing for them a long and happy married life, and our wish for them is that they may live long and enjoy a full measure of happiness and prosperity.

Ledbetter-Crowley

On Thursday morning of last week Miss Katie Ledbetter was united in marriage to Mr. John W. Crowley, of Midland, Texas, at the Baptist parsonage, the Rev. W. H. Albertson officiating, and immediately after the ceremony the young people left for Midland, where they will make their home.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ledbetter of this city and was practically reared in Munday and vicinity. She is a graduate of the Munday High School of the class of '21, and following her graduation she attended Draughon's Business College at Abilene, and was graduated from that institution.

The groom is a son of a prominent ranchman of the Midland country, and is a graduate of the Midland High School, and he too attended and graduated from Draughon's Business College, and it was while they were in the business college that they met and their friendship ripened into love—and hence the old, old story. He is employed in clerical work in one of the business offices of Midland, and holds a position of responsibility and trust.

The Times joins the many friends of Miss Katie in Munday and vicinity in wishing for them a long and happy married life.

Brown-Paulsel

A pretty autumn wedding was that of Miss Lera Brown and O. B. Paulsel, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brown, at 9 o'clock Monday morning, with Rev. W. H. Albertson of Munday reading the ceremony in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

The living room was artistically decorated with chrysanthemums and other foliage suggestive of the autumn season.

The bride, who entered on the arm of the groom, wore a gown of tan satin trimmed in harmonizing canton, and beautifully embroidered in gold and brown with accessories to match.

Miss Brown's sister, Mrs. O. K. Davis, played Lohengrin's "Wedding March" throughout the ceremony. The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brown, a sister of Mrs. Chester Bowden, an old-time and prominent family of Knox City is a graduate of Knox City High school. She has also attended Simmons University at Abilene.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Paulsel of Alice, Texas. He was formerly employed by the W. M. Cameron Co., of Knox City, and is now engaged by the same company in Olustee, Okla.

The young couple left for their new home at Olustee immediately after the ceremony.

Miami's Prettiest

Miss Helen Briggs has been named "Miss Miami." She is considered to be the prettiest and shapeliest girl at the famous Florida resort. That's no small honor, for Miami is noted for the pre-eminence of its feminine population.

VERY LATEST

beige fur lapels is a scarf of new blue matching the lining of the coat. The same blue is repeated by the felt hat and ties threaded through dark beige orfords worn with the costume.

A most attractive compromise between the costly fur coats and the coats of cloth—these chic costumes!

Higher Lines for Shoes

No—high shoes, as we used to know them, are not yet on the way back. But very latest LOW shoes are usually given by straps that ride high over the instep, but frequently counters are cut higher, too.

Moire a Popular Silk

Since the first of the season moire has been prominent among evening silks in pastel shades from the velvets and satins, it makes its appearance in colors appropriate for afternoon wear.

There is a richness and distinction about moire that makes it a favorite whenever featured and we are glad to see it announced for practical as well as formal use.

Princess Silhouette

In coats, in frocks, evening gowns and long tunic effects the princess silhouette appears with its suggestion of naturalness and grace. One should study carefully the new models however. Although they answer to the general name of "princesses," they are widely different from those styles that have gone before.

THANKS CITIZENS FOR SUPPORT OF TEAM

Because of so great a number, it would be practically impossible for me to see you individually and offer thanks for your loyal support. Because of this fact, speaking in behalf of the Mogul Football team, I wish to thank the citizens of Munday for your faithfulness in supporting the Moguls during the past season. Your acts of kindness in furnishing transportation to games played away from home was splendid. With but one or two exceptions the transportation problem was solved without difficulty. Especially does the team wish to thank Dr. Farrington and Dr. Burns for their services rendered. Boosters man's inhumanity to man still causes much needless suffering. At least we have emerged from barbarism and there is more of sympathy and charity and helpfulness in the world than ever before. The working man today has luxuries not dreamed of in the past. He has ample clothing, shelter and food; many have automobiles and a radio set; he may enjoy the movies and other amusements; books, newspapers and magazines are within his reach. As a recent writer has said, "the truth is we are all of us living in luxury, a very grand form of luxury, as compared with conditions in every other country, or with conditions that existed in this country even a few decades ago."

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

The great part of all the mischief in the world arises from the fact that men do not sufficiently understand their own aims. They have undertaken to build a tower, and spend up more labor on the foundation than would be necessary to build a hut.—Goethe.

Such announcements as the sudden death of a neighbor, often sets us to wondering whether we are not harboring some hidden enemy that may strike us down without warning—and we shudder a little, and disperse the unpleasant thought from our minds as quickly as possible. Now, listen: There is no fatal ailment that strikes us without warning. Bear that in mind. The fellow that dropped dead at his work bench, had plenty of warnings, but he ignored them. He neglected that little keen pain that he felt in the left breast from time to time—that always went away so quickly. He didn't heed the "dizzy spells" or the misty spots before his eyes when he ate pretty freely of fresh meat or veal loaf for supper. He was too absorbed in his work to attend to a bowel that had been clogged for years; he saw no more than just annoyance, when his kidneys got him out of bed five or six times each night. No, my dear sir and madame—you are always warned—warned plenty—before a sudden attack strikes you down. Heed the warnings, however slight, if you do not understand symptoms perfectly. It will pay in length of days, maybe. If you do not understand, go to the physician who does. A visit to the doctor is many times cheaper than a funeral! The capable physician will tell you that neglect in matters that pertain to life and health is simply inexcusable—worse than the height of folly. It doesn't cost much to have the urine analyzed—and may be the means of prolonging that very delightful sojourn of yours in the land of the living.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physical and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1902 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colic and fevers. Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous ladies. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.
