FSA Workers Meet Plan For Better Help To Farmers

Plans for giving more effective ervice to Texas low-income farmers will be made July 31 to August 4 in College Station at the annual state conference of Farm Security Administration workers, J. S. McKnight, Callahan county supervisor said today.

Theme of the meeting is "Helping Worthy Farmers Help Themselves.

Mr. McKnight estimated that 107,500 state farm families are receiving incomes of less than $500 year, including all feed and other goods produced for home use. "Nearly half of this group had annual family incomes of less than $250," he said, "which means that they are trying to exist on about $1 a week per person, and this dollar is not in cash bnt partly in home-grown products." FSA has made 56,500 small oans in Texas to these farm fami lies to help them buy seed, tools livestock, canning and other equip meent needs to give them a "toe hold" on the land. A recent survey showed thatt these farmers have increased their net worth by $266 per family and at the same time are paying off their loans"

"Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has reported," the supervisor continued, "that the program for lending worthy tenant farmers money to buy their farms is be-Barstow, California where he had yond the experimental state, that it is ready for a sound and reasonable expansion. In Texas 507 farmers have been helped in the past two years to buy their farms and to date have repaid more on their loans than has become due. An increased appropriation by Congress has recently been announced which will permit us to practically double the number of counties in which farm purchase loans will be made this year." Every one of these loans is secured by a first mortgage on real estate, conservatively valued both by government appraisers

You won't hear that wail after you install that new Servel Electrolux. Your food is always in the safe zone. Meat and milk keep many days. Vegetables "freshen up" in your Servel Electrolux.

What you now waste will probably pay for a Servel Electrolux. No more food spoiled. No more leftovers to throw out because they won't keep. Buy week-end specials and buy large quantities -because you can keep this food until you need it. And think of the savings on ice or power! ... For just a tiny gas (or kerosene) flame is all it takes to keep steady, constant cold in your Servel Electrolux. No moving parts in its freezing system. Nothing to

... but anyway, we're thinking that a lot of folks are going to find it mighty comfortable to break their vacation trips this summer with stops at Humble Service Stations ... What with the two Fairs' and all, we're expecting a lot of vacation travelers, and we've provided everything we can think of to make their trips more comfortable . . . You know what a Humble Service Station is: you've heard how clean the restrooms are-maybe a neighbor told you, if you haven't found out for yourself: anyway, they're reason enough to plan your stops where you see the Humble sign . . . But they're not everything, not by a jugful! There's an abundance of refreshing ice water waiting for you. There's cool shade, a stretch of green lawn, a glimpse of bright flowers . . . And last, but far from least, there's a friendly greeting and a cheerful goodbye from a neatly uniformed, courteous station salesman who renders you a service that's prompt, trained and genuinely helpful . . . So, when you plan your vacation trip this summer, also plan to stop and stretch your legs where you see the Humble sign!
