

POULTRY

POULTS MUST HAVE PROPER ATTENTION

Several Valuable Pointers by Poultry Expert.

By C. C. Ufford, Extension Poultryman, Colorado State College—WNU Service.

The raising of turkey poult is different in some respects than raising baby chicks, and there are a number of pertinent points that should be carefully considered. Suggestions to turkey raisers are:

1. Baby poult are much slower in learning to eat than chicks, and a great deal of patience has to be practiced sometimes in order to get them started. Ordinarily a good mash placed before them will attract them. When milk is used as first feed, young poult will not readily take to other feeds.

2. Plenty of hoppers or feeding space is essential.

3. Poult are rapid growers and require a ration that will analyze 25 to 30 per cent protein. They require a great deal more green feed right from the start than do chicks.

4. Any skimping of rations to poult is a mistake. There is a close relationship between the amount and kind of feed a bird consumes and its growth and condition at market time.

5. Poult are apt to crowd and pile up in corners at night and must be watched. A light in the brooder house will help in keeping them spread out.

6. Burlap sacks spread around the brooder at night for poult to roost on, and removed in the morning, are a great convenience in keeping the brooder house clean. Young poult will start roosting at about three weeks of age if low roosts are provided.

Housed Birds Eat More Feed and Lay More Eggs

Experiments conducted in several sections of the United States indicate that if housing conditions, rations, and management are satisfactory, higher egg production might be expected from confined layers than from those given free range. Birds that are housed will eat more grain and mash which are necessary for high egg production.

The eggs produced by confined birds will probably have paler yolks than those laid by birds on free range. Green feed adds color to the egg yolk. The egg buyer in the city prefers eggs with pale yolks.

Then, too, if the birds eat an excess amount of green grass, the flock may lay what we commonly call "grass eggs." The yolks of these eggs have a green cast and are rejected by the critical buyer, explains C. O. Dossin, poultry extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

To Control Chicken Pox

Where chicken pox is present, all birds having the trouble should be immediately isolated, the house and utensils thoroughly cleaned, and a good germicide kept in the drinking water as long as new cases appear, advises an authority at the North Carolina State college. The entire flock should be given one dose of Epsom salts at the rate of one-half pound to three gallons of water. Vaccinate the well birds with pigeon pox virus, as this material will not produce as severe a disturbance as chicken pox virus in the laying flock. Where a large per cent of the flock has the disease or it has been present in the flock for some time it is unnecessary to isolate the birds. All other precautions should be taken for control.

Poult on Range

After poult are put on range, management consists mainly of keeping the hoppers full of mash and grain, the watering tanks full of water, and watching for signs of disease, advises an authority in the Missouri Farmer. A good growing mash with a protein content of approximately 25 per cent should be supplied, together with a grain ration consisting of one-half cracked corn, one-fourth whole wheat, and one-fourth whole barley. Droppings under the roosts should be inspected each morning for signs of worms and disease.

Sanitation Important

Long use of ground and buildings by fowls brings about contamination by disease germs of various kinds and sickness breaks out in the flocks. The diseases so brought about are best kept in control by the measures known under the term sanitation, this meaning removal from time to time to new ground, or that which has not been occupied by hens for several years, best on a clean grass sod, and the thorough cleaning up of quarters used for housing.—Rural New Yorker.

Cobs for Chick Litter

Ground corn cobs may be used successfully for small chick litter, according to experiments conducted by Iowa State college. Since they are absorbent and easily handled, they make a good litter when spread on the floor of the brooder to a depth of about two inches. Only fresh, clean cobs should be used. Under no circumstances should the used cobs be taken from the feed lots, since they may introduce some disease into the brooder, and cause additional trouble.

Washable Silks of New Importance

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WASHABLE silks have a new importance because of the wide variety of types which are fashion firsts. No longer is it simply a decision between a tub silk crepe and a washable silk shirting, now that so many new and intriguing weaves have entered the field of silks that launder.

First in the present fashion ranks are the new silk linens and the silk shantungs in versatile weaves. The silk linens closely resemble linen except that they have more luster, but being made of silk they have the natural elasticity of silk and therefore are easier to keep fresh and unrumpled. Then too, the new silk linens have the advantage of taking strong dyes easily and are at their loveliest in the vivid peasant colors which are so voguish this summer. They also come in some very smart modernistic prints. The latter favor bold plaids and geometric treatments, the technique radically different from that used on silk crepes. For sports hats, beach and daytime bags, for belts and for separate scarfs, the checked and plaided silk linens are doing things with a dash and go that fits right in with the spirit of summer gaiety.

Silk linen is particularly to be commended in all white. Its smartness is evident in the two-piece suit to the left in the picture, which has a black skirt and a jacket-blouse of white silk linen. A polka dot silk ascot is worn with it.

The very attractive two-piece sports dress centered in the group is fashioned of a gold colored silk linen. The accordion pleated skirt allows for motion. The top is bloused and has alternate pockets, with mother of pearl buttons and a wide attached belt presenting chic style accents.

The oriental influence which is so apparent in the new mode is reflected in the popularity of silk shantungs for sportswear. The very newest shantungs are heavily ribbed. Both solid color and printed version are shown in these sturdy shantungs especially for strenuous outdoor wear, while the softer types of prints a very supple light shantung is being used. See the effective model to the right in the illustration. It is made of a greenish yellow silk shantung, with a shantung coat in orange and red regimental stripes.

A surprise entry in the washable field is mousseline de soie. One can find no prettier material than this sheer and dainty weave. While all mousselines are not washable, some very new versions just put on the market have been specially processed for washability. They come in plain weaves, also in types with delicate shadowy self-color patternings, the latter proving irresistible when once you glimpse them.

Silk broadcloth is also a washable fabric that is being enthusiastically used in better-type active and spectator sportswear.

A revival of interest in the lovely washable silk damask and silk Jacquards is also noted. Entirely new patterns are available this season, stressing especially clever nautical motifs, and a series of sports patterns showing different games.

Washable silk crepes now showing are enlivened by amusing little patterns in vivid colors on light grounds, showing articles of sports equipment such as golf tees, polo mallets, beach umbrellas and so on. As to the very fine-quality plain washable silk crepes they are made in well-tailored shirt-waist types with embroidered monograms on the scarf, bosom or sleeve.

SILKS DE LUXE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The sentiment for high-quality fabrics is notably on the increase among women. This trend is particularly reflected in the demand for grand and stately silks reminiscent of the days in the long ago when silk was really silk. The beautiful lady pictured is wearing gorgeous silk taffeta in a wrap print. If one were not told, one might think, at first glance, that this garment of queenly grace was one of the new full-skirted evening gowns such as Paris proclaims to the world this season. In reality it is a most glamorous bouffant evening wrap, which goes to show the out-of-the-ordinary things which designers are doing in way of formal fashions.

Strong Favorite of Quilt Makers

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

The "Irish Chain" quilt can be found in almost every collection, and quilt makers will make at least one of these simple chain patterns. The single, double, or triple Irish Chain has one, two, or three blocks in the chain. The background is white and the squares are a solid blue, red, or other dark mixed colors to give contrast. The squares in this quilt measure 1 3/4 inches without seam, and they are applied on two different nine-inch blocks; one all checked, the other with a square in each corner. These are assembled alternately to give above effect. Seven 9-inch blocks are used across top and nine blocks on side. With a 6-inch border quilt will measure finished about 72 by 90 inches. This quilt is simple to make but cutting of patches and blocks must be accurate to produce good results.

This quilt is one of the 33 popular quilts shown in book No. 23, which will be mailed to you upon receipt of 15 cents. Cutting charts, instructions, and valuable information for quilt makers will be found in this book.

Lacks Glamor

Ancient Greece's High Stage of Civilization

New discoveries in Athens besides being of scientific value start thoughts that show the comparative unimportance of the recent revolution in Greece, says Pathfinder Magazine. A cemetery dating back to 1500 B. C. and containing numerous undisturbed and perfectly preserved skeletons was uncovered 50 feet below the ancient Athenian senate adjoining the Acropolis. Two thousand years before the burial of these bodies, which had been interred for 2,500 years, Greek civilization emerged from the Stone Age. By the time these particular old Greeks lived civilization in Greece had struggled upward against countless reverses to a high stage. The ruling class of the time lived in well-made, sanitary buildings, with both chambers, windows, and sliding doors. They rode horse-drawn chariots on paved streets, and were entertained by bull-fights, boxing, and armed combat. Art had risen to a high level and close commercial intercourse was carried on with Egypt. And about three centuries after these now skeletonized men and women had ceased to live came the war with Troy. Then came the Dorian invasion at the beginning of the Iron Age—more wars—ups and downs in civilization—conquest by Rome, and the following collapse. Thus the recent revolt was hardly an incident in Greek history.
