ds sweetheart and Cecil Underwood, and Barbara was angry at him for his ton.

"He has no sensibility," she said to Cecil.

One wild day when the wind cried through the tree tops and the water ebbed along as if in stress of pain, Cecil Underwood came to her in an imperative mood.

"You must come walking with me," he said. "The day expresses me. I've come to speak of the torment of my art and I will keep still no longer on at your bidding."

Barbara went out with him. They liked under the pines whose roof fills the world with their languid language were silent conscious of the rain within their souls.

Let us take a boat," said Barbara, as they had reached the river.

"No," he protested, but she seemed to hear him, and untied her feet and leaped into it.

"Come," she said. He hesitated, but went. As the little boat felt the ebb of the waves the pain in her heart was to be forgotten, and she forgot her own being along with the passage of time. Suddenly Cecil cut out.

"Be rapid, Barbara! The rapid that you have taken out!" She looked behind her. It was true that the white man of the water was not more than half a mile and the boat was quivering in the grip of their great power. Barbara a little—it would not matter so much, she reflected, if the problem were to be solved that but still, it was cowardly to let her see any strength to dance, rowing up stream, and the boat toward the south.

She observed was she in the it did not notice the man until she heard him crying with sobs to his Maker.

Barbara, row! Row, girl!" crying at him, she saw his face, so white and quivering with the next moment, he sank, and at the bottom of the boat she commanded, "and take Get up instantly!" He lay, shaking and sick with

When Maj. March's battalion of the Thirty-third infantry went on its wild chase up in the North Cordillera mountains after the flying Aguinaldo, his footmen men there came across some new and strange specimens of humanity.

These strange mountain people of Luzon are known as the Igorrote. This word Igorrote was originally the name of a single tribe, but for some reason or other has been extended in modern times to include all the head-hunting savages of Luzon. Of late "Igorrote" has become synonymous with "wild" and the word is now applied to the different hill tribes of the latter independent of their race or descent.

With the Igorrote it is said to be impossible for a young man to find a bride until he has at least one head to his credit. They are a fierce-looking folk with long, black hair, and go about the same ground, hurry as they might. Yet these wonderful Igorrote mountain runners had actually covered the distance in less than eight hours. Just how they did it no white man has ever discovered. It has been supposed that they have some secret signal service of their own by means of which they can flash messages from mountain peak to mountain peak. But even where an individual runner has been distinguished to deliver a message in person he has arrived at his destination in a wonderfully short space of time.

They have, of course, a thorough knowledge of all the forest paths and numerous mountain passes. This means a great deal, as a journey that might be made in a day by a white man with a guide will often take at least a week if attempted without the necessary man to vote if she tried. Her attempt at emancipation has taken the form of what is called the military exemption tax. The government says if a man has money to spend for coffee, beer or liquors he must also have money enough with which to pay his debt to the state. The law cannot prohibit a person from obtaining liquor through the intervention or help of a friend, but the privilege of dropping into favorite resorts and bobbing about with friends is a custom which is dear to every Swiss must be foregone.

MRS. BUGGINS' PALMAMAS.

She is Having a Hard Time Tasting Them.

Mrs. Buggins has gone in for the emancipation of her sex, says the Philadelphia Record. She doesn't exactly want to run the universe, and she confesses she would not know how to vote if she tried. Her attempt at emancipation has taken the form of raising against the conventionality that has bound her to the robe de nuit, and she has cast envious eyes at the silk pajamas worn by Mr. Buggins. "I don't see why we women can't wear them," she said the other day. Then she went to a Chestnut street haberdasher's and asked to be shown pajamas for boys. "How old is the boy?" asked the salesman. "Fifteen." "I don't know," replied Mrs. Buggins. "I don't mind with any child" of her own. And then, with a sudden inspiration, she asked: "I think he wears a collar, if you can tell me." The salesman told her that one size runs were not kept in stock, and would have to be made to order. "You had better bring the boy here, and then we can tell better about the size," he said. Mrs. Buggins promised and left the store, greatly dejected.

Old Ring Comes Back.

Sixteen years ago W. P. Bishop of Chicago Law lost his wife's wedding ring while feeding his horse in a barn out in Iowa. A thorough search was made, but the missing ring could not be found. Mr. Bishop left his name and address with the owner of the structure, with the request that in case the ring should ever be found down a final search should be made. He returned home and the lost ring was replaced by a new one. So many years with naked, tattooed bodies. When March and his men swept up the mountains on the heels of Aguinaldo and his little army, these Igorrote were astounded at the sight of the American soldiers. What surprised them most was the soldiers' "boom, boom, fire alikes"—for such they termed the modern army rifle. These mountain folks are no friends of the Tagals, and were glad enough to point the "Chinon" packers, and they begged the modern army rifle. These mountain folks are no friends of the Tagals, and were glad enough to point the "Chinon" packers, and they begged the modern army rifle.

There were just 100 picked men in Maj. March's pursuing party, together with the "Chinon" packers, and they followed them as they had Aguinaldo in a tight box, when, lo and behold, just as they were on his heels the slippery Filipino turned down some unknown trail and most mysteriously disappeared. This was in the wildest and most inaccessible country of all the island, far up among the interior mountains tops. When Maj. March's battalion arrived at Cervantes, it was found that the insurgent leader had fled two days before, making for Boston, and other towns up among the clouds, three days' march from Cervantes.

It seems that six Igorrote mountain runners had been posted by Aguinaldo near the summit of Tlad Pass to report the result of Gen. Gregario del Pilar's last desperate attempt to drive back the Americans. These mountain runners had returned to the news of Pilar's utter rout of the rear very day the battle was over, and March's men two

Last week, however, Mr. Bishop received word that the old barn had been torn down to be replaced by a new structure, and that the ring had been found and would be forwarded at once. DECIDED BY DEWEY

The Admiral Reconsiders His Previous Decision

Same Should be Treated Him-Details of Chief Magistracy that as intricate as the Tawney Thought

New York, April 4.—A special to the World from Washington says: The admiral Dewey authorizes the World to announce to the American people after mature reflection and in response to the earnest entreaties from all parts of the country, his former decision not under existing circumstances to run for the presidency is void.

World correspondent says the admiral at his home at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, Admiral Dewey said to the reporter that the time has arrived which he most definitely desires to have passed.

I arrived in this country last week I said then that nothing would induce me to become a candidate for the presidency.

Then, however, I have had the opportunity to reach a different conclusion, inasmuch as so many Americans have come to me from all parts of the country and have expressed their desire that I would be accepted as a candidate for the presidency.

CULBERSON SPEAKS

The Junior Senator From Texas Makes His First Address

Washington, April 4.—

Before an unusually large audience of senators, with many of whom he had given respectful attention and galleries crowded with a fashionable gathering of people, Senator Charles A. Culbertson in his maiden speech made the principal closing argument today for the minority in the memorable debate on the memorial of the Puerto Rican people. The surroundings were exceptional, and he was in every respect equal to the opportunity. The way in the voice and easily proceeded with the careful and exhaustive argument of an hour or more which followed his recognition by the majority. Owing to the agreement that after 2 o'clock all speeches should be confined to fifteen minutes the senator did not have time to complete his remarks as he had intended. He got the floor at 1:10 and closed at 2:15. Competent judges pronounced the senator's effort as one of the strongest of the entire debate and he was generally congratulated by his colleagues on the minority side.

In the beginning of his argument Senator Culbertson attacked the contention of Mr. Parker that the doctrine, that the constitution extended over the territories, was invented in 1840 by Mr. Calhoun in the interest of human slavery. AWFUL AMBUSCADE

Three Hundred and Fifty of John Bull's Soldiers

GO DOWN TO THEIR DEATH.

It is Given Out that the Sole Cause Was Owing to the Liability of French to Let Off Oliver's Comrades.

London, April 3.—The war office reports that Col. Broadwood lost seven men and all his baggage in an ambush laid for him by the Boers on Saturday. The casualties numbered 230. His war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 1:

"I received news last yesterday evening from Col. Ervine that he was en route from the north and east of here, that information had reached him that the enemy was approaching in two forces from the north and east. He stated that if the report proved true he would retire toward the waterworks, seventeen miles north Bloemfontein, where we have had a detachment of mounted infantry for the protection of the works.

"Broadwood was told in reply that the ninth division, with Martyr's mounted infantry, would march at daylight to support him, and that he considered it necessary would there from the waterworks, and attacked. He was then shot and killed by the Boers. He was immediately shot and killed by the Boers.

"Some two miles from the waterworks the road crosses a deep nullah or spruit, in which during the night a force of Boers had concealed themselves. So well were they hidden that our leading column passed over the drift without discovering them, and was not until the wagons and guns were entering the drift that the Boers showed themselves and opened fire. Many of the drivers of artillery horses were immediately shot down at short range, and several of the guns were captured. The remainder galloped away, covered by Roberts' horse, which suffered heavily.

"Meanwhile Lieut. Chesters Master of Remington's scouts found a passage down the spruit unoccupied by the Boers, by which the remainder of Broadwood's forces crossed. They returned with great steadiness, notwithstanding all that had previously passed.

"Broadwood's report, which has just reached me, and which contains no details, stated that he had lost seven men and all his baggage. He estimates all his casualties at about 350, including 200 missing.

"On hearing this morning that Broadwood was hard pressed, I ordered Gen. French, with two remaining cavalry brigades, to follow in support of the ninth division. The latter, after a magnificent march, arrived on the scene of action shortly after 2 p. m.

"Broadwood's force consisted of the royal household cavalry, the 1st Buffs, and U batteries of the royal horse artillery and Picher's battalion of mounted infantry.

No credence is given to reports that the Boers numbered between 800 and 10,000 men. The general belief is that there could not have been more than half that number, but the mere fact that even so many as half that number could not have been collected so near Bloemfontein without the knowledge of the British commanders creates the disaster is regarded as a direct result of the liability of Gen. French to cut off the commando of Gen. Olivier and the other commandos from escaping from the Orange River.

GRAND JURY.

The Grand Jury of New York City

Frankfort, Ky., April 3.—

The Franklin county grand jury for the April term, which will investigate the assassination of Gov. Goebel, was announced today by the following: Frank Stratton, Republican; Geo. Brock, Democrat; Wm. Graham, Democrat; Lewis Lynn Gaines, Democrat; W. H. Green, Democrat; F. M. Featherstone, anti-Goebel Democrat; Robert Suter, Democrat; Chas. Bridgford, Populist; Geo. Bernack, Democrat; John R. Deane, Democrat; H. Carter, Democrat; D. S. Cain, Democrat.

Judge Cattrill after a very short session delivered a grand jury charge, in which he said: "Gentlemen: There is one thing in particular to which I desire to call your attention, and that is the present condition of affairs that exists here just now. It is the desire of the court that you make a thorough investigation. I hope and believe that you will discharge it impartially, fairly, fearlessly and importantly. You will find this court ready to assist you at any and every stage of the proceedings. The grand jury will be with you frequently to advise you as to the law. You must not deviate in any way from what you are told in the grand jury room. If anyone approaches you in regard to the case before you, don't report him to the court. Campbell of New York, who will assist in the prosecution of these charges, as accessories to the murder of Gov. Goebel, was introduced by Commonwealth Attorney Franklin and was sworn in, so that he could practice in the court. After receiving the oath from Judge Cattrill, named Robert Suter as foreman, and the grand jurors retired to their room to begin work.

"Talbot Dick" Coombe, colored, charged with being an accomplice in the Goebel assassination, was placed in jail here at 2 o'clock Tuesday.

While nothing was said by Judge Cattrill in his charge concerning it, it is understood that Commonwealth's attorney Franklin will recommend the removal of the indictments against the Republican Gov. Taylor and all of the other Republican state officers on the charge of usurpation of office after the trial of the grand jurors. During the preliminary trial of James Andrew Scott, for the Democrats, 8000 an additional petition in the cases of the Democrats and Lieutenant governor, in which damages for alleged usurpation and unlawful retention of the offices in dispute are asked.

The suit of Almon Walker against Gov. Taylor and Ad. Gen. Collier for $50,000 was called, but the defendants did not show up and the case was postponed. Walker was arrested by the militia while serving a civil process on Gov. Taylor a few days after the assassination of Goebel and was held as a prisoner several days.

St. Louis, Mo., April 3.—Three masked men looted the Star brewery office at Belleville, Ill., Sunday after first capturing and confining the manager, and then the freeman in an empty refrigerator nearby. As the robbers were preparing to open the big safe in the office, the manager, Hartman, was seen near the brewery, accompanied by his brother, Hans, entered the room. They were promptly covered with three revolvers and the manager was held. The situation, were marched to the same car in which the freeman and watchman were confined.

This gave the crackmen undisputed possession of the plant. After drilling the safe they applied charges and the outer and inner compartments were blown completely open. The robbers were seen to enter. It is not thought the robbers escaped in excess of 1000.

The act enlarging the powers of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf Railway Company has been signed by the president and will soon become a law.

San Francisco, April 3.—The military authorities notified Sheriff Butler that he has his deputy enter the capitol grounds for the purpose of seeing to the removal of a civil nature, but that they would not be permitted to serve any of a criminal nature. The guards at the gate said they were seeing under order, and inspected the sheriff's papers to see if any warrants of arrest were among them before he was allowed to enter.

Washington, April 3.—Advocates and opponents of the Puerto Rican treaty and government bill waged vigorous war in the senate for more than three days. The senate floor was crowded, and so remained until 10 o'clock. Those who listened to the debate were good and the sun set about unusually bright and lively. The senate adjourned at 11 o'clock, the first in its history, the latter adjourned.
