CONSTITUTION DAY

September 17 marks the 144th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States by the constitutional convention in Philadelphia after nearly four months of deliberations.

In recent years Constitution Day has been widely observed through suitable exercises by schools, clubs and patriotic societies. It is only the truth to say that the average American is by no means as familiar with this great document as he ought to be.

One of the highest tributes ever paid the Constitution was by the eminent British statesman, Viscount James Bryce, who in his American Commonwealth said:

"The Constitution deserves the veneration with which Americans have been accustomed to regard it. It ranks above every other written constitution for the intrinsic excellence of its scheme, its adaptation to the circumstances of the people, the simplicity, brevity and precision of its language, its judicious mixture of definiteness in principal with elasticity in details."

Every citizen should read the Constitution at least once a year, and Constitution Day is an appropriate time to do it.

CHINA'S AWFUL FLOOD

After being ravaged for years by brigandage and revolution, unhappy China is now suffering from the most devastating flood in all history. We in America can not begin to grasp the horror of the situation, where literally millions are dead already from drowning, starvation and exposure, while other millions are doomed beyond the possibility of aid.

Even when the floods subside those who survive the initial disaster will be faced by the horrors of famine. The President of China estimates that fifty million will perish from starvation and disease in spite of anything that may possibly be done to save them.

The fall crops, never sufficient for the people's needs, have been destroyed as well as nearly all the livestock. With winter coming on there is no chance for raising new crops this year. Even where late sowing might be possible, the people have no seed, nor farm animals with which to till the soil.

It has been suggested that some small measure of relief might be afforded these stricken people by selling surplus American wheat to China on liberal credit terms. It seems that this should be done by all means. It would not only aid China but would relieve our own situation without disturbing our regular markets. The Farm Board should act on this suggestion and act quickly.

PRISONER CARS

In efforts to bolster their dwindling passenger business the railroads of the country have adopted many improvements and innovations in the interest of better service.

One of the latest and most novel additions to passenger equipment is a special prisoners' coach fitted up by a southern railroad, described in the following announcement:

"This carrier has just converted a passenger coach into a patrol car for the transportation of prisoners. Steel bars protect the windows, and the coach has been equipped for the comfort and convenience of guards and prisoners, and is held in readiness to be sent to certain points on the system for the handling of large bodies of prisoners. Passenger department has asked employee-solicitors to advise U. S. marshals, sheriffs, deputies, etc., of this special equipment and service offered by the Southern."

Without any special interest in the railroad's revenues, we hope a sufficient number of gangsters may be rounded up to keep the newly equipped coach busy transporting them to the destination where they belong.

BULL-I-TINS

BY CY KOLOGY

SAVE A CHILD'S LIFE

I am wondering just how long, or rather how soon it will be before a really serious accident takes place in Crowell if the present practice of children riding on the running boards and fenders of automobiles continues. This is an extremely dangerous practice for grown-ups and even more so for children.

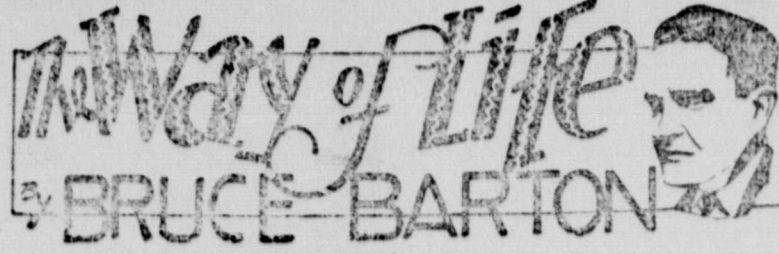

A girl and a boy were killed at Floydada Saturday as the result of a collision of two cars while they were riding the running board of one. A youth was killed at Lubbock this week as the result of a fall from a running board.

No, Crowell has not yet been saddened by the tragic death of one of its beloved youngsters as the result of this practice and as yet we have not had one disfigured for life, but this good luck cannot continue and if nothing else, Old Man Law of Averages will take his toll.

How can parents stand to drive along in their automobiles right in town, or even in the country, with their children sitting out on the front fender or even standing on the running board? Naturally it is because they do not realize the grave risk they are taking.

Of course they wouldn't have their loved ones seriously hurt for the world and yet they expose their children to the most extreme dangers should a collision occur. Even if a collision is avoided by a very quick stop, the stop itself is often enough to prove fatal to a child by throwing it to the pavement or in front of an approaching car.

Possibly the drivers guilty of this practice think: "I'm a good and careful driver and Archibald is safe with me at the wheel, besides I keep a close watch on him." But, the careful driver can't carefully drive

LITTLE THINGS

NOTHING is more interesting than to hear successful men reminisce about their careers. Recently, after a golf game, I had such an opportunity.

My companions were well-known lawyers. One of them said: "I wasn't much of a student in college. I played on both the football and baseball teams, and I managed to graduate and go on through law school."

"My first job was in the office of a country lawyer in a small city in Pennsylvania. There I really did work, preparing cases and trying them, and doing my best to master the profession."

"I could look forward to earning enough to marry on, but could see no chance of ever escaping from that small town."

"One Christmas I visited my folks in Boston, and while I was there a friend told me that a certain lawyer would like to meet me. I called at his office the next morning. We chatted for about an hour and then out of a clear sky he offered me a partnership. I was flabbergasted, but I managed to stutter an acceptance. I started in with him a month later. In that firm I spent ten very happy and profitable years."

"One day I summoned up courage to ask him how he ever happened to make me such an offer on so short an acquaintanceship."

"His answer was surprising. He said that for years he had been able to secure more business than he could properly handle. As a business getter he was a star; as an organizer of an efficient force he was a failure. He had hired brilliant young chaps out of law school, but somehow they never developed as he hoped. Being brilliant, they expected to get results easily, and if they were whipped a couple of times in court it broke their spirit."

"One night he went home and sat down before the fire to analyze his situation. He decided to look for an entirely different type of man; he listed the qualifications:

"1. The man must not be too smart. He must have the habit of working hard for his results."

"2. He must have been in college athletics, trained to fight for victory, and to keep up his chin in defeat."

"Having made this list, the lawyer asked his friends to recommend men who met the qualifications. One of them named me, and the lawyer remembered that he had once seen a football game in which I was badly smashed up but was still able to carry the ball across the line for a touchdown."

"So you see," my friend concluded, "it was that one little thing, to which I never attached the slightest importance, that made my whole career."

When you hear stories like this, and I have heard many of them, it makes you think that there are no little things. No operation is so insignificant that a man can refuse to give it less than his best.

the other cars he meets and there are hundreds of little graves over this nation that are mute evidence to that fact.

Of course children enjoy riding outside of the family auto but is the enjoyment gained by thousands of children in this manner worth the life of one child?

One of the big troubles with this practice is that it spreads so rapidly. It seems that every child in Crowell now wants to sit out on the fender or at least ride the running board. Children have always wanted to do this but now that they are seeing their chums in such positions they are practically demanding that their parents allow them to do the same.

If Cy ever has a son he may let him make a parachute jump at ten thousand feet, or get in a cage and play with the pretty tigers, but he is certainly going to draw the line when Cy Jr. asks to ride out on the front fender.

This business of attempting to be a columnist isn't the snap that I figured it would be when Bull-I-Tins were started a few weeks ago but as the weeks pass on maybe I will get used to the job and my ability to bore the readers will increase.

My feelings have been damaged a little too but that is nothing in the life of a newspaper man, for he gets hardened to that mighty quick. After putting the most dignified and best looking picture I had at the top of my column, one can imagine that it doesn't exactly do my old heart good to hear of folks saying that it looks like a darn fool and even worse than that. Well Abraham Lincoln wasn't so good looking either.

B. J. Glover says that the still that was taken from the court house last week is the property of the county and for that reason whoever got it should bring it back as soon as he run off his own supply so that someone else may have a chance to use it. "One person shouldn't have all the benefit of the county property," he says.

If you don't know what to expect next in this column, well you don't have anything on me, for I don't have any idea what I am going to write either. In trying to think up something I have just looked from my desk and see Dud Greening passing by in his blue mail and express truck.

My personal nomination for the most consistent driver in the world is Dud Greening. Except when he is starting and stopping you always see his blue vehicle running at exactly the same speed, seemingly between 15 and 20 miles an hour, but anyway it is certainly a consistent speed, whatever it is. What's the use of all our speed around here in town anyway? We speed up like the very dickens to and from town when there is seldom any use in it. We speed up in the middle of the block, slow down after a few feet for a rough crossing and then we speed up again and all in all our (meaning the most of the motorists) speed isn't so much better than Dud's and the wear and tear on our cars is much greater.

If anyone has the blues my advice

GEO. P. BROWN WRITES

George P. Brown of McKinney, brother of Mrs. J. M. Allee of this city, has written Jas. Ashford the following letter:

"Dear Uncle Jim:

"I see your picture in the Crowell paper that I got a few moments ago. I was so glad to see it, too. I remember you were among one of the first men I met when I came to Old Margaret in 1889, to live with my sister, Mrs. J. M. Allee. I recall just where your shop was located. Also, the many, many chats that we had about different things. How we would sit and I would listen to you talk of the West, and many other things. How you would do work on that old double seated buggy that Mr. Allee owned at the time of his death; and I can see old Bill and old Eagle, the two gray horses that pulled that buggy, and when I would drive up to your shop how you would 'sass' me and how I would talk back to you and the many, many happy laughs we did have. Wish I could see you again, and hear you tell some of those wonderful tales. I wanted to be there at the 40th Anniversary but could not. I see from the paper that many of the ones that I knew then are still there, but many have gone on before. You must be a very good man to be left so long here. You must have lots of friends. You deserve them, anyway."

"You tell the Hon. J. W. Klepper, Justice of the Peace, that I said for him to be good to you, and let you sit in his court room with your coat off and your hat on if you wanted to do that, and if he does not, you let me know, and I will come out there and see about it."

"Your friends of other days,
"GEO. P. BROWN."

What's New?

A late device in the television field is a scanning disk with a spiral of lenses instead of pin holes.
A recent invention is a new steel rake for cleaning lawns or gardening which has teeth of such shape that they cannot become clogged.
Pneumatic cushions made of rubber are provided to stop the rattle that often develops in automobile doors.
For supporting garment hangers in automobiles a leather loop for their hooks has been perfected that can be fastened wherever desired.
An attachment for motion-picture projectors has been invented to clean grease, oil spots and dirt from films as they are being exhibited.
A machine has been invented to take a golf ball from a magazine and place it on a tee when a lever is pressed with a club.

SURPLUS

The Federal Farm Board has too much wheat and cotton on hand. The Brazilian government has too much coffee on hand. We want coffee, Brazil wants wheat, so an international "swap" has been arranged. The Chinese are suffering for food. The Nanking government has asked the Federal Board to sell it 5,000,000 bushels of wheat a month for six months, on long-time credit. It may be a very long time, but it seems to me worth doing. It will benefit millions and harm nobody. It will relieve this country of much of its wheat surplus, save storage charges and save human lives. There ought to be nothing in any laws to prevent it being done.
Now if all of the cotton states will join in making it illegal to grow any cotton at all in 1932, that surplus will be wiped out and fair prices will return in the cotton market.

VACATION

Professor Willis A. Sutton, head of the school system of Atlanta, who has just retired as president of the National Education Association, says that the long summer vacation without responsibility does children more harm than good and puts too much of a burden on their parents.
Dr. Sutton's remedy, so far as city schools are concerned, is to give pupils summer work to do which will take them out of doors but still occupy them which otherwise would be spent in aimless play.
There is such sound sense in what Dr. Sutton says that it will not surprise me if a complete revolution in school systems results from it. More vacations and shorter ones are better for children and for their families than the long, irresponsible summer period of idleness.

STARS

Thirty-eight years ago a ray of light left the star Arcturus and started toward the earth. It takes light, travelling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, forty years to get from Arcturus to the earth. The ray which started in 1903, the year of the great World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, will reach the earth in 1933, when Chicago intends to stage another World's Fair.
At the Yerkes Observatory at Geneva, Wisconsin, the great telescope will be focused on Arcturus in the spring of 1933. The ray of light which will have been forty years on its travels will be reflected into a photosensitive cell, which will convert it into electric energy. This energy will throw a switch which will turn on the lights of the new World's Fair and officially open the Exposition.
Nothing could be more fitting to illustrate the progress of science in the past forty years. The exhibition which is to be opened by light from a star will contain the greatest collection of scientific marvels ever brought together. What the mind of man has achieved in the conquest of nature since the last Chicago World's Fair is almost unbelievable.

GRATITUDE

I want to pay my respects to my neighbor, Miss Nellie Gray of West Stockbridge, Mass., who has done something the like of which I never heard of.
She has given the town of West Stockbridge $5,000 as recompense for the 25 years during which the town supported her. That's gratitude.
Nellie is 72 years old and has been a helpless cripple since she was ten months old. Her gentle face in her wheel chair is familiar to everybody in the town. Up to 25 years ago a sister supported her, after the death of their parents, but on the sister's death there seemed to be no one to help, so the Selectmen have provided her a meager living out of the town funds every year since.
There was a brother, but he had left home and nobody knew where

MOVIES

Only seventeen percent of the featured motion pictures now being shown in the United States are fit for children to see, according to "The Parents' Magazine." The motion picture department of that periodical is edited in cooperation with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Woman's University Club of Los Angeles and several other women's organizations.

The best current pictures, according to the same authority, are Cimarron, City Lights, A Connecticut Yankee, The Conquering Horde, Daddy Long Legs, Father's Son, The Great Meadow, The Millionaire, Paggiacci, Shipmates, Skippy, Tom Sawyer and Trader Horn.

SEEKS THE LIFE SPARK

Studies in biology and bio-chemistry have developed many astounding facts, many of which have been of inestimable value to mankind but the ultimate goal of such research is to find the secret of the life spark itself, and produce it from inert matter.
That this will some day be accomplished is the belief of many distinguished scientists, although this idea is flouted by those who hold to the traditional belief in the creation of all life by special acts of a Supreme Being.
Prof. William Lash Miller, internationally known bio-chemist of the University of Toronto, has produced in his laboratory a component part of living matter, and his accomplishment is hailed as one of epochal importance by many fellow-scientists.
Just what significance may be attached to Prof. Miller's latest discovery is somewhat difficult for a layman to judge, but it appears that it may mark a most important step toward the solution of the age-old question: What is life?

Christian Science Churches

The lesson-sermon subject was "Man" in all Churches of Christ, Scientists, Sunday, September 6. "Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright," was the golden text, taken from Ecclesiastes 7:29.

The service included the following passages from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them"—Genesis 1:26,27.

These citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also read (pp. 475, 515, 288). "The Scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God . . . Man is the family name for all ideas—the sons and daughters of God . . . Science reveals the glorious possibilities of immortal man, forever unlimited by the mortal senses."

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for September 13 SOME MISSIONARY EXPERIENCES Acts 14:8-23 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D. From Antioch in Pisidia Paul and Barnabas went to Iconium and the experiences at the previous station were repeated. At first there was marked interest on the part of both Jews and Greeks. All too soon jealousy again led to serious persecutions and the evangelist were forced to go further in carrying on their work of evangelizing. Let it be noted that at no time did the troubles they met cause them to abandon their programs.

Lystra was the next place to work. Here preaching seems to have been in the open and the usual crowd of cripples and beggars were part of the audience. Interest centers in a man who had been a cripple from birth. As Paul told of the power to heal on the part of this Messiah, who had been crucified and risen from the dead, the helpless man saw the first gleam of hope that had appeared thus far on his horizon of life. His eagerness and faith were evidenced in his face, which when Paul noted brought forth the amazing command "Stand upright on thy feet." Forthwith there was a leaping into fullness of physical strength and soundness of body.

The townspeople could explain the result only by thinking that their gods had come among them. They called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul was named Mercury. Tradition says that Paul was baldheaded, short, bowlegged and had bad eyes. It was Barnabas who must have been fine in stature to be taken for their chief god. At once the priests of these supposed gods planned to offer a sacrifice and oxen were brought for the purpose. Paul would not accept any false praise and it was only with difficulty that he made them accept the fact that he was just an ordinary man, but with a message that told about the only God, and His Son their Saviour.

SERMONETTE

DEPRESSION AND PRAYER

By Arthur B. Rhinow

"How is business?" I asked a merchant in the bank. The next moment I almost apologized for the platitude. Besides, the question must be annoying in these days.

The merchant, however, did not seem to think so. In fact, he came quite contemptuous as we stepped outside and stood at his car. He did not gloss over conditions with the cheap optimism that says, "Business is fine; never better." He faced the facts.

"Do you know," he said, coming a little closer, "I prayed last night."

After that, we had a talk that lasted longer than five minutes. Well, if the depression will make us pray, then let us be thankful for the depression. We are gifted with no faculty more precious than prayer, but we never really use it until we feel the need of God's help. How well the Hebrew singer understood the human heart when he chanted, "Out of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord.

Men that live with God always feel the need of God, and they always pray. But many do not think of Him until they are in dire distress. Then they pray, and as they pray new fountains are opened up within them. Hidden resources are revealed to them, and they look at life with new eyes and new courage. They begin to say, "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me."

Man comes to himself as he comes to God, and he comes to God as he comes to himself. We are most real when we pray. We must be, for only the honest heart can come in touch with the heart of God. And when we are our real selves, we are mighty, for then we are one with the Almighty. We shall gain immensely through the depression if it will make us pray, and we shall lose immensely if it does not make us pray.

The Do-X completed its Atlantic flight when it alighted in the waters of New York Harbor. The airplane carried 72 passengers on its trip to four continents, visiting in turn Africa, South America and North America, after covering a large part of Western Europe at the start. The vessel's carrying capacity can be best likened to that of two Pullman cars, with additional space for dining facilities, lounging and moving about.

Deep in the Hearts of Worthy Men

CHURCH—The Cradle of Community Strength

The village church shares with the traditional red schoolhouse in the affectionate memories of men who have made conspicuous successes of life. 'Tis known that the education of the heart in the spirit of kindness and friendship is more necessary than training in the three R's. . . . One is first of all a human among humans—a lesson too often forgotten until the lean years bring it to mind. There is a brotherhood among men, through Christianity, which points the way to freedom from the vices of the race—greed and hatred. . . . You will find that those among your neighbors who are members of a church are the citizens of the town who are worthy of your friendship. Associate yourself with them by attending, regularly, the church of your choice.

This is an appeal in the interests of better living by the Churches of Foard County. We extend a cordial invitation to you to join us in our Sunday and week-day meetings.
