Two burglars flee store jump ahead of officers

In at back, out at front

The Corner Grocery & Market at 121 East Main was broken into about 10:30 Sunday night by two men who forced the back door then fled just ahead of officers after throwing a bottle of barbecue sauce through the front door glass to make their exit.

Two officers were at the rear of the store and another was coming to the front through the vacant lot between The Post Dispatch building and the vacant two-story building east of The Dispatch when the burglars made their getaway on foot.

Marvin Williams, one of the owners of the store, said the burglars took about $25, some food stamps and ice coupon books and two "cold" checks from the cash register before breaking out the front door glass and making their getaway just ahead of the officers.

The burglars were seen leaving the store by a group of young people who were leaving the Tower Theatre, a few doors west of the grocery and market.

One of the burglars "ran out" of his shoe in front of The Dispatch office next door to the grocery. He stopped to pick it up, but when one of the youths yelled, "Stop, I've got you!" the man left the shoe on the walk and kept running with only one shoe on.

Sheriff J. A. (Jimmy) Holleman said he found the shoe the man wore off and also the food stamps, coupon books and cold

PARADE ATTRACTION LIST GROWS

33rd Post Stampede opening next week

The rodeo office at the arena will open Monday morning, Aug. 6, to begin taking entries for the 33rd annual Post Stampede Rodeo, which is to open Thursday, Aug. 9, and continue through Saturday with three night performances scheduled.

The traditional opening day street parade is to be held at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, with the first night's grand entry at 7:45, followed by the opening night's performance.

The Chamber of Commerce's parade committee has announced that parade plans are all set, except that more float entries are hoped for. Prizes totaling $175, which include $100 first prize, $50 second prize and $25 third prize, are being offered in the float division. In the decorated bicycle division, there will be first, second and third place prizes of $12.50, $7.50 and $5.

The Chamber of Commerce and Post Stampede Rodeo, Inc., are each putting up $100 as float and bicycle parade prizes.

Added attractions to the parade will include Miss Ford Country, who is familiar to television viewers throughout the Southwest, and Miss Lajuana Ward of Snyder, who is District IV queen of the American Association of Sheriff's Poses and Riding Clubs.

Both Miss Ford Country and Miss Ward will also put in appearances at the opening night's grand entry.

First, second and third place trophies will be awarded the first, second and third place riding groups in the parade, with trophies also to go to the most typically dressed young cowboy and cowgirl.

The parade prize money and trophies will be presented at Thursday night's grand entry.

The first-time producer of this year's rodeo is Bucking S Rodeo, Inc., of Lawton, Okla., which will bring a string of "salty" bucking stock here direct from a rodeo at Aloka, Okla.

Cowboy and cowgirl contestants from throughout the Southwest will be competing for prize money in the six regular rodeo events, with the barrel race the only one open to the girls. Other events are bareback bronc and saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping and team roping. There will also be a wild mare race each night.

A special event at this year's show will be a roping open only to residents of Garza County. The preliminaries in this contest will be held after Thursday night's show, with the four top ropers going into the Saturday night finals.

This year's specialty act, expected to be a crowd pleaser, will be L. V. Sanders and his performing horse and dog.

Following each night's performance, there will be a dance at the arena with music by Weldon Reed & Solid Country.

PARADE ATTRACTION—Miss Ford Country—22-year-old Sandy Lankford of Graham, Tex.—will ride in the Post Stampede Rodeo opening day parade at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 9. Besides her title of Miss Ford Country, Sandy has also held the title of Miss University of Texas at Arlington, where she is a senior physical education major.

Garza calf ropers will meet tonight

A Garza County roping, open only to ropers living in the county, will be held again this year at the Post Stampede Rodeo on Aug. 7-9, James Dye, secretary of the county ropers' group, has announced.

Dye said a meeting will be held at 7:30 tonight (Thursday) in the bank community room. All Garza County ropers interested in competing for the first place saddle and second place buckle to be awarded are urged to attend tonight's meeting, the secretary said.

The county ropers will compete following Thursday night's show at the arena and the top four contestants will go into the Saturday night finals.

Eighteen ropers competed in the special event last year, but from 20 to 25 are expected this year, Dye said. C. L. "Pee Wee" Johnson, this year's Post Stampede, Inc. president, won the saddle at last year's rodeo, and Jay Hart won the second place buckle.

As last year's winner, Johnson

OPERATIONS BEGIN—Shown here is the dispatcher's office of the new $104,000 law enforcement building into which offices were moved this week. Everything is in operation except the new jail, which awaits state inspection and approval. Dispatcher Nancy Jolly sits at the desk while behind her are her husband, City Patrolman Jerry Jolly (left) and Sheriff J. A. (Jimmy) Holleman.—(Staff Photo)

New law building in use this week

Law enforcement officers have moved into the new $104,000 county law enforcement building behind the courthouse and begun operations there, but no prisoners will be moved into the new jail until a state inspection is conducted and new fireproof mattresses for the jail cells are received. Justice of the Peace Racy Robinson hasn't moved his office into the new building pending arrival of recently ordered office files for his new office. The new jail cells have all been repainted yellow since they were first finished in what one officer described with a shudder as "a fluorescent orange." There will be no more wrestling of prisoners out of cars and up two flights of courthouse stairs to jail cells, as there has been for many years.

Now the law enforcement officer can drive right into a receiving room with the outside door being opened automatically from the dispatcher's desk on radio signal and closed after the car drives in.

The small "booking room" is just off this receiving room and so are the array of cells. There are separated cells for men, for women, and a special juvenile cell, besides the customary "drunk tank."

The commissioners court is still looking for a bed for the juvenile room. To meet state regulations, according to County Judge Giles W. Dalby, the juvenile cell must "look sort of like a motel room" with a metal type bed of metal bolted to the floor.

Both the men's and women's cells have a table and showers as well as three bunks each.

Judge Dalby said public open house will be held when all equipment for the building is received and installed.

30 enroll early for kindergarten

Thirty children were registered for the new half-day kindergarten here this fall at Principal Jack Alexander's office the first two days of the week.

Enrollment of five-year-olds whose parents plan to send them to the public schools kindergarten will continue the rest of the week.

Supt. Bill Shiver told The Dispatch last week that kindergarten plans here will not be worked out until the size of the new kindergarten class is determined by the early enrollment.

The new kindergarten regulations sent out by the Texas Educational Agency call for half-day sessions except for the disadvantaged youngsters (Title I) who will continue to go a full day.

Shiver said a program will be worked out after the kindergarten enrollment figures are in. Compulsory attendance is not required by the state.

Rainfall amounts vary over county

Weekend showers, ending Monday night, brought welcome moisture of from slightly more than an inch all the way up to three inches to Post and parts of Garza County with Post officially receiving a total of 1.47 inches.

The official measurements here included .04 for last Thursday, .48 for Saturday, .20 for Sunday, and .75 for the hardest shower Monday evening.

The showers brought Post's moisture total for July to 2.96 inches and for the first seven months of 1973 to 15.64 inches.

County Agent Syd Conner reported the showers "spotty" with the most good being done for the cotton. He said in most instances there wasn't enough of a downpour for runoff to produce badly needed tank water.

The Monday evening downpour here produced a bad roof leak at city hall which brought

Women Division Flea Market set Saturday

The Women's Division of the Post Chamber of Commerce is to hold its second annual flea market Saturday, Aug. 4, at the First National Bank parking lot.

The group will rent spaces for bake sales, rummage sales, etc., at $3 a space. The flea market is scheduled to start at 8:30, and members of the Women's Division will be at the parking lot ahead of that time to begin renting spaces.

Funds raised from its share in the flea market will be used by the Women's Division to help finance community projects.

Photographer is to exhibit work

Richard Knox, whose wife is the former Dee Ann Walker of Post, will open a photography show at the Texas Tech University Library on Sunday, Aug. 5, with a reception in the Croslin Room to be held between 2 and 4 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox, who had been teaching in New Haven, Conn., have been back in Post and Lubbock since July 1. Knox is a graduate of Texas Tech and attended Yale University, while Mrs. Knox is a Baylor University graduate.

The couple has divided their time between Lubbock, where Knox's folks live, and Post. He has been pursuing his photography hobby for some time and during the last few weeks has had his photo lab in the basement at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Beth Walker.

Between 40 and 50 of Knox's pictures will be on display in his photography show opening Sunday.

Post barber has collection of over 6,000 pens and pencils

Ivey said he thinks his pen and pencil collection might be the world's largest because many of his are duplications. "I don't mind getting ten, fifteen or twenty of the same kind at one time, whereas most collectors are interested only in getting pens and pencils different than the ones they already have," he said.

How did he get started collecting pens and pencils? "Well, it was sort of funny," Ivey recalls. "About five years ago, I cut a fellow's hair over at Sundown and he wanted to pay me by check. Wooden pencils were all I had in sight, so I started rummaging around in a drawer looking for a pen. I came up with three before I found one that would write."

"As the customer was signing the check, he said to me, 'If you're going to collect pens and pencils, why don't you hang them up where you can get to them easier?'"

"I followed his suggestion and started my collection by stringing up 27 pens and pencils, but it wasn't long until I had so many strung up that the string broke. Customers and other people coming into my shop would see the pens and pencils hanging up there and they'd go home and find others to bring me. Almost before I knew it, I (See Barber, Page 10)

Library expansion at hand

Work should get under way within the month for the final expansion of the Post Public Library for the fourth and final time into the vacant lot between City Hall and the Tower Theater.

The expansion will provide necessary shelf space for an eventual collection of 20,000 books. But more than that, through excellent design it will remove a lot of present small-room partitions and convert the library into one single large room.

From the beginning, the library has been a community project with all interested individuals making their various contributions to the project in time, work and money. It has been the love and devotion of local folks who love and value books that has built the library and written an almost unbelievable record of library usage.

Our public expenditure of money for the library has been very small, far below even the Texas average which is far, far below the national average.

But up to now, that below average tax support for the library has been by design of library supporters. Voluntary librarians were used for the first years of the library's existence and even now the librarian's salary is paid by a federal grant, although both city and county have agreed to assume half of the cost when the grant ends.

The city and the county have both been very cooperative with all requests from library trustees.

Post and Garza County has built an almost fantastic record of library usage in our small library—as measured by all library standards—because together the citizens have worked so hard to bring it into being and to develop it. That is why up until now strong tax support has never really been sought.

Not quite three years ago a memorial building fund for the library was begun which today has grown to almost $24,000. The site for the library expansion has been given to the city for this specific purpose.

The intentions of library trustees are to complete the library's physical expansion to its final size by the use of this memorial fund. The library then will be truly an institution which belongs to the people.

To do this financing, some more money is going to be needed between now and November. The trustees don't know exactly how much that is going to be because some of the cost decisions are yet to be finalized. But it should be somewhere around $28,000 or less.

That is why trustees have established a $30,000 goal for the memorial building fund. What is left over can go into the purchase of furnishings, which will include over the next few years thousands of dollars of shelving which is not included in the current expansion plans.

No big all-out fund effort is planned. The fund will remain open for all contributions large or small. It is hoped that those who have waited to see if the library would ever be in a position to actually build before making their contribution will now step forward with their gifts or memorials.—JC

I KNOW A number of Post housewives who watch such edifying spectacles as "Let's Make a Deal," "As the World Turns," "The Guiding Light," etc., but I haven't learned whether any of them have written the networks expressing their indignation over the Watergate hearings sometimes taking over the time allotted the program.

—O—
A woman in another town, however, has written the networks just what she thinks about Watergate pre-empting some of her favorite programs, and here is what she had to say about it:

"Dear TV:
"I don't like this new program you have on. I turned in today looking for my favorite daytime show, 'The Greed Game' with Monty Exuberance, and there was this bunch of old men on.

"There were no funny jokes by the m.c.—who was some old guy that just kept mumbling about how everything reminded him of a story. Nobody in the audience had on a wild costume. And worst of all, they didn't seem to be giving away as many prizes, even though a friend of mine who I was watching with said some of those people are going to get more than they bargained for.

"Also, the questions were too hard. I did not know any of the answers, so I couldn't even feel superior.

"Another thing: I've been watching soap operas for 23 years and I've kept up with some pretty complicated plots, but this one takes the cake.

"What was McCord doing with Caulfield when Alch didn't even know that Fensterwald was supposed to be working for Dean, and Bitman and Liddy hadn't passed on all they knew to Hunt? Why do they have Baker and Baldwin on the same program when their names sound so much alike? Why does Senator Montoya always look as if someone had just woke him up when his turn comes to ask questions? Why don't they let that handsome young Senator Baker talk more? How come there are never any women on, anyway?"

"The worst thing, though, is that when the episode ends, you never really know what the crisis is. It's not like Stephanie's abortion or Pat's affair or Howard's illegitimate son—some nice clean-cut problems you can latch onto. I just keep waiting for the dramatic chord to sound so I'll know the episode is over, but I wait and wait and pretty soon the whole afternoon is shot.

"My suggestion is that you boil the whole thing down into a 30-minute, made-for-TV movie."

Yours truly,
A Faithful Viewer

—O—
AND SINCE I'm on the subject of women, no use digressing. Joe Harrison of The Texas Spur says someone handed him this clipping.

A rancher's wife wanted something to wear to the Cattleman's Convention, so she embroidered a blouse with every brand she knew.

In the hotel lobby she waited while her husband registered and noticed two old cattlemen really giving her blouse the once over.

Finally one of them remarked in a voice that could be heard 'way up the canyon: "That critter has sure changed hands a lot, ain't she?"

—O—
And here's one from "The Rotarian" magazine:

At the side of the road, a woman looked helplessly at a flat tire. A passerby stopped to help her. After the tire was changed the woman said, "Please let the jack down easy. My husband is sleeping in the back seat."

—O—
THE MAN UP the street says nowadays a lucky coin is any coin you still have.

—O—
These revenue sharing funds that states, counties and cities are receiving from the federal government shouldn't be looked on as windfalls (it's our own money to begin with), and a unit of government should use discretion in spending them. If they spend all of them, they might find themselves in a bind, because the federal government is making more than its usual number of blunders in the amounts of revenue sharing funds being allocated.

—O—
IN NEW MEXICO, for instance, a number of cities are going to have to pay back funds because there was a big goof somewhere in Washington, and some places in New Mexico are having revenue sharing funds taken away from them and given to other places that received less than they were supposed to.

—O—
New Mexico appears the hardest hit by these bureaucratic blunders, but at least one place in Oklahoma also has felt the "ax fall." Meridian, Okla.,

Post Scout on mountain trek

David McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theibert McBride, left Sunday morning for Philmont, a Boy Scout resort in New Mexico. He went with a group from Lubbock and other area towns. There are between 60 and 70 boys on the trip, accompanied by several adult leaders. David is a trek leader over a group of 10 boys. Their trek is to hike 99 miles in rugged mountain country. They are to carry everything they eat and wear, and also their bedroll and tent. They will do gold-panning, fishing, mountain climbing and burro riding besides their hiking. A forest ranger will accompany them for the first three days. Then they will be on their own the rest of the two-week trek.

David is an active Boy Scout, engaging in many scouting activities. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, clan chief for this district and works many hours keeping in touch with other Order of the Arrow members.

New farm bill--but when?

We suppose one person's guess is as good as another's as to the kind of new farm bill we'll eventually come up with, but it's a little terrifying to read that when the Senate and House conferees first met on the farm issue July 25 there were 111 differences between bills passed by the two bodies.

Considering the workings of our federal government, perhaps 111 differences between the Senate and House on any measure is not something to make a fuss over, but it seems to us a pretty big obstacle for them to overcome in their task of reaching compromises acceptable to both houses, and which will not trigger a veto from the White House.

Officials of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., remain of the opinion that a new farm bill will become law in 1973, despite difficulties encountered on both the Senate and House floors and the continuing threat of a presidential veto.

Farmers of Garza County and elsewhere on the plains will be glad to learn that the PCG are not relaxing their efforts to get from the conference committee a bill as palatable to High Plains farmers as possible. That's the word from PCG President Ray Joe Riley of Hart.

Generally, the House version of a cotton law, with one big exception, is more to the liking of the cotton industry, Riley notes. And as of July 27 there were indications that the conferees might be leaning in that direction.

The exception referred to is in the matter of allotment sales and leases, banned by the House bill and permitted in the Senate measure. The prohibition of such allotment transfers in the House was tied to an amendment limiting to $20,000 total payments to any one producer. The Senate bill contains a like limitation on payments but makes no reference to sales or leases of allotments.

Many other things are still hanging fire, but there still is talk of the conference committee sending its finished report to the Senate and House for action before the Labor Day recess begins Aug. 3. But those on the scene think it more likely the report will be held until Congress returns Sept. 10.—CD

It's either 'feast or famine'

In the newspaper game, as in most everything else, it's either "feast or famine"—too much or too little.

We often find it that way here at The Dispatch office as far as news is concerned—and, on rare occasions, as far as advertising is concerned. By working hard at it, we sometimes have more front page news and pictures than we can get on the front page. Then, sometimes, regardless of how hard we work, there isn't as much solid front page news as we'd like.

In last Thursday's Dispatch, it was a case of "feast." We had more solid page one news than we could squeeze on the front page. As a result, we ran many stories on inside pages that any other week would have made page one. For instance, there was a story from the county

ASCS office that farm set-aside payments in Garza County were near the $2 million mark. Also on the inside were stories of the county awarding two contracts and of the mayor assuring the public there would be no cessation of emergency ambulance service.

Running such stories on inside pages makes for a better all-around newspaper, of course, and we'd like to see it that way every week. Some weeks, however, there's just more going on than other weeks.

But, feast or famine, it always makes us feel good to look at The Dispatch front page and compare it with the front pages of some of the other weekly newspapers reaching our desk.

We're not being immodest—we're just tooting The Dispatch's horn.—CD

64 Years of Continuous Service

The bank had another birthday yesterday—its 64th since it opened for business in 1909 to help a new town begin to grow.

Every day of every year since that opening, the bank has made its sizable contribution to the economic development of this town and this farm and ranch area.

The bank hasn't grown "old" with the years. It has gained maturity and experience, but it has not lost its vitality and its adaptability to change.

Our bank hasn't "stood still." It has kept abreast of changing times—always ready to fulfill the financial needs of the area it serves.

Our bank is home-owned, and home-operated. It is staffed by friendly folks who live right here and want to see Post and this area grow and prosper.

Today, our bank can be proud of its 64 years of continuous service. It looks forward to all the tomorrows confident that it can meet the challenges of the future as it has met the challenges of the past.

Timely Tips from CHDA

BEEF BUYING
Beef-hungry consumers can follow seven guidelines to keep meat on the table in spite of the "shrinking buck." The key is careful spending of meat dollars. —Compare meat cuts on a cost-per-serving basis, rather than price per pound. For example, you can get about four servings from a pound of ground beef, but only two and a half servings from a sirloin steak. For them to be equal on a cost-per-serving basis—when sirloin brings $1.49 per pound, ground beef could sell for as much as $2.38 per pound. A brisket at $1.19 a pound will cost as much per serving as a boneless chuck at 99 cents a pound, or shortribs at 79 cents a pound. Boneless chuck roast at $1.09 a pound and shortribs at 88 cents a pound have exactly the same cost per serving, but a T-bone steak at $1.59 a pound costs twice as much per serving as liver at the same price. When substituting other meats such as broiler chickens for beef, remember that most of them have very low servings per pound. For example, a ready-to-cook broiler at 59 cents a pound is slightly more expensive per serving than brisket or rolled rump at $1.29 a pound. —Don't pay extra for minor conveniences. Pre-formed ground beef patties are pretty—but expensive. The amount of work in making a hamburger patty is pretty negligible. Similar types of conveniences—at a cost—are built into such items as tenderized or formed steaks, cubed stewing beef, breaded chicken-fried steaks and precooked cuts. Do the work yourself, and save a bundle. —Carefully compare prices for beef cuts in different stores. All retailers don't charge the same price for individual cuts. In fact, it's not unusual to have very substantial variations in retail prices between stores—even in a small town. Shop around. Don't always buy your beef in the same old store, simply because that's where the watermelons are cheaper. —Get your money's worth in quality. Unless you're an expert, the easiest way to insure consistent acceptability and quality is to buy only USDA Choice beef. It's either labeled such, or has a purple shield with the word "Choice" inside of it, stamped on the outside of the meat cut. Look for this before you buy. You could buy U. S. Good beef, but it's not as safe a bet in terms of quality. —Don't be ashamed to return an unsatisfactory piece of meat. Most retailers, particularly larger chains, flaunt a money-back guarantee. Use it. If not completely satisfied, return it. Don't assume your cooking was bad. In some cases, cooking can intensify the problem (like well-done steaks), but, in general, you need a good piece of beef to begin with. —Learn some of the basic cuts of beef. Several different names are used for the same cut because of regional preferences.

Just a little study will show you, for example, that a rib-eye steak is the same and probably cheaper than a Delmonico. Similarly, a rib steak and a club steak are basically the same. Sirloin steak is a much more tender piece of meat than round steak. Also, take a little time to learn the recommended cooking method for each cut—which should be broiled, braised, roasted, pot-roasted. It will pay—in satisfaction. —Buy on sales—usually the weekend sales will save you money. Be cautious on double-stamp days and during mid-week, non-sales days. Don't be ashamed of buying just the sales items at several stores that might be close to each other. It's your money—so make the most of it.

? Your Name ?

WHAT'S IN IT?
By CHARLES DIDWAY

ANDERSON
In numbers, Anderson ranks among the top ten names in the United States and immigrants from more than one European country have contributed to this fact.

Many of the Andersons in the United States today had ancestors who came from England, Scotland and Ireland, but many others had forebears who came from one of the Scandinavian countries. Many Swedes, Norwegians and Danes who at one time spelled their name Anderson or Andersen now are Andersons.

In the northern United States where people of Scandinavian ancestry are numerous, the name Anderson ranks second in the Minneapolis telephone directory, fifth in Milwaukee and sixth in Chicago. Yet in two other large cities, New York and Boston, Anderson does not rank among the top 20 names in the telephone directories.

Whatever the country of origin, the name Anderson means "son of Andrew," which itself is of Greek origin, stemming from the word "andrus" meaning "brave" or "manly." Andrew was the name of one of the Apostles, which accounts for much of the popularity of the name as a personal name and, as a result, a surname. Christian parents frequently named their children after the Apostles or other saints of the church.

St. Andrew is the patron saint of Scotland, which accounts for the fact that the Anderson surname ranks ninth in that country. In Ireland, it is one of the most numerous names of English origin, with most of the Andersons found in Northern Ireland where they emigrated from England or Scotland.

Originally, the name was spelled many different ways in England and first appeared in written records as Anderson in 1471 in the Freeman's Roll of York. Sir Edmund Anderson was a Lord Chief Justice of England and participated in the trials of Mary, Queen of Scots, and Sir Walter Raleigh.

One of the founders of the family in America was a Richard Anderson who embarked at London on the ship "Merchant's Hope" in 1635 and came to Virginia. Later Andersons of prominence have included Robert Anderson who was in command at Fort Sumter at the time of the Confederate attack, Sherwood Anderson, poet and novelist, and Maxwell Anderson, playwright.

Today, the name ranks ninth

REDUCING FEED COSTS

Worried about soaring feed costs? Wondering how to get more from your pastures and hay? Concerned about protein supplement costs and using urea? Confused about the proper choice of mineral supplements? Looking for a way to cut the labor in haying? Potential solutions to these and other problems will be presented at the upcoming Beef Cattle and Pasture Forage Short Course at Texas A&M

University on Aug. 20-21 according to Dr. Dennis Herd, short course chairman and beef cattle specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Past short courses have emphasized the importance of proper nutrition in improving reproduction and performance in beef cattle. This year's program is concerned with the most economic methods of supplying the nutrition required to maximize reproduction and income from the beef herd.

Much of the information presented will also be of interest to cattlemen running stocker cattle programs.

The program, which will be held at the Ramada Inn across from the A&M campus, will feature talks by prominent authorities in cattle nutrition, forage utilization and ranch management.

Guest speakers include Dr. W. C. McCormick, the head of the Animal Science Department at Tifton, Ga., who will discuss factors affecting the feeding value of several different types of bermudagrasses. McCormick has worked cooperatively with Dr. Glenn Burton, the developer of Coastal bermuda, and knows the "cow" side of producing and utilizing grass. He will also discuss research work with winter pastures.

Of particular interest to rangeland cattlemen will be a discussion of "High Intensity-Low Frequency Grazing Systems" by Texas ranchers Bill Tullos of San Angelo and Dr. Percy Turner of Water Valley.

Dr. John Reagor, toxicologist with the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, will discuss grass tetany, pulmonary emphysema and other forage related disease problems.

In addition, members of the Texas Agricultural Experiment

Station and Texas Agricultural Extension Service staff will present information on a number of grasses including kleingrass, TAM Wintergreen Hardinggrass, buffel grasses, fescue, love grass and ryegrass, to name a few.

New machinery for cutting and harvesting forages will be on display. Many new ideas in packaging and cutting hay are coming to the forefront and commercial companies have their representatives hard for discussions. For more detailed information concerning registration fees and the short schedule, Herd suggests contacting local county offices.

Electric co-ops meeting slated

AUSTIN—Today's energy situation and its relationship to rural Texas will be the featured item of discussion during the 33rd annual meeting of Texas Electric Cooperatives, Inc., Aug. 8-10 at the Shamrock-Hilton, Houston.

Reflecting on the meeting theme, "Achieve the Impossible—Again", J. R. Cobb, general manager of the Austin based state association of rural electric cooperatives pointed out that during the past three decades the rural electric leaders have achieved what many utility industry leaders said was impossible, electrification of rural America.

"We now face what many say is impossible, and that is to continue to provide adequate low cost power to our growing and developing rural Texas", Cobb commented.

Syd Wyatts win mixed doubles in tennis tourney

Syd and Emily Wyatt won over Bill Hudman and Lorry Chapman, 6-2, 5-1, to win the mixed doubles championship of the first annual Garza County Tennis Tournament.

4-H donkey ball game gate $480

From 550 to 600 persons saw the 4-H benefit donkey baseball game at David Nichols Park Tuesday night, with gate receipts totaling $480.

The parents played the 4-H youngsters and won by a score of 4 to 0 or 4 to 1—even the scorekeeper was not certain.

With some of the parents 200-pounds-plus farmers and ranchers, the game was played with a time limit to keep from tiring the donkeys too much.

The confest produced hilarious entertainment with the spectators laughing themselves silly at some of the overweight players trying to stay aboard the "game experienced" donkeys.

The Garza County 4-H organization's share of the gate receipts will be used to help finance the state 4-H Center to be built at Lake Brownwood. Other 4-H fund raising events are being planned for the future, according to Extension agents Syd Conner and Mrs. Dana Feaster.

Barber--

had a full-fledged hobby on my hands."

Ivey keeps his most prized collections in a case at the shop. One of them is a Ludwig von Beethoven commemorative mechanical pencil someone sent him from Germany. The pencil has Beethoven's name inscribed on it, but Ivey says he doubts that it belonged to the composer, as some people have suggested, since he doesn't think mechanical pencils had been invented in Beethoven's time.

Other items in his case of novelty pens and pencils include a large pencil in the shape of Judge Roy Bean's gavel, a three-foot long pencil, and another that Ivey calls a "teacher's pointer." It appears to be a normal pencil, but is telescoped and opens out to a much longer length. "I've been told that teachers could use it as a pencil and also open it out to use as a pointer," the barber said.

His novelties also include pencils with plastic containers at one end filled with such things as cottonseed, sand and other materials. What Ivey considers as one of the rarest items in his collection is a combination pen and pencil. He also thinks highly of a number of old-fashioned cedar pencils, which many of today's older people can recall as the only kind of pencil they ever took to school.

Ivey corresponds with other collectors and often swaps pens and pencils with them. He has writing instruments from all 50 states and 17 foreign countries. He said he has never been to a pen and pencil collector's convention, but plans to attend one someday.

Ivey quit barbering for a few months, during which time he and his wife were house parents at Girlstown, USA, near Whiteface, Tex. "I added over 300 pens and pencils to my collection while we were there," he said.

And it goes on and on. Ivey said so many people have given him pens and pencils that he's

Thursday Club has Plainview meeting

The Graham Thursday Club met July 19 with Mrs. Lucille Morris of Plainview.

Mrs. Arthur Morris visited in the afternoon. The group enjoyed lunch together.

completely lost track of where most of them came from. "Just the other day, a Post man after seeing my collection, went home and brought me 38 pencils to add to it," he said.

The barber said when his collection reaches the 10,000 mark he is going to turn it over to the Texas Tech Museum.

"And that won't be long, at the rate it's growing," he added.

Burglars--

checks near a vacant house on West 10th Street between Avenue H and "G" Place.

The sheriff said he tracked the barefooted man from there to the vicinity of the Holy Cross Church at 14th Street and Avenue F before losing his trail. The officers were called to the store by Jimmy Hundley of Hundley's Men's and Boys' Wear next door when he heard the back door of the grocery and market being broken into. Hundley has stayed nights at his store much of the time since it was broken into some two years ago, at which time he held two would-be burglars at bay with a shotgun until officers arrived.

The first officers to arrive at the store after Hundley turned in the alarm were City Patrolman Steve Otto, along with a Yoakum County deputy sheriff who was here from Denver City on business, and Bill Carr, consultant on the county-city law enforcement consolidation program.

The city patrolman and the Yoakum County officer stayed at the rear of the store while Carr went through the vacant lot toward the front. He is the only one of the three officers who saw the burglars, according to Sheriff Holleman, who had arrived in the meantime.

The sheriff and the other officers gave chase, but failed to catch up with the burglars.

Holleman said he had talked to others who saw the pair fleeing the store. However, he discounted one report that they got into a waiting car parked off Main Street and rode away in it.

The sheriff said all evidence burglars used a tire tool, a large screwdriver and a grubbing hoe with a makeshift mall on the end to break in the back door, which was chained, barred and fastened with two night latches. He said the tools were found laying by the safe in the rear of the store and theorized that the burglars intended to try to break into the safe after rifling the cash register, if they hadn't been flushed out of the place by the arrival of the officers.

Sheriff Holleman told The Dispatch Wednesday that he had questioned one suspect and that his office is still under way with its investigation of the burglary.

BILL HOGUE

Hogue director of evangelism

A former pastor of the First Baptist Church here has recently been elected by the Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga., to lead Southern Baptists in their national evangelism effort. He is C. B. (Bill) Hogue, 45, who has been serving as director of evangelism for Oklahoma Baptists.

Hogue took over the directorship of the division of evangelism July 1.

"We feel the strong proven leadership of Bill Hogue will open new horizons for Southern Baptists as well as strengthen the new efforts now under way," said Fred B. Moseley, assistant executive secretary of the Home Mission Board.

Before leading Oklahoma Baptists to a record year in baptisms in 1972, Hogue was pastor of churches at Post, Odessa and Happy, Tex., and Ada, Okla.
