

Repairs Keep Insurance High

It pays to be a defensive driver. Crashes are costly.

According to a study by a national insurance trade association, it would cost $23,400 to replace all the parts on a totally wrecked 1978 standard automobile priced at $5,097. Repair of the "totaled" car would be more than four times the purchase price.

This third annual study by the Alliance of American Insurers notes no one really would pay $23,400 to rebuild a car totally wrecked in a crash. It's cheaper to buy another car.

But the study illustrates the rising cost of auto crash repair as a factor in the cost of automobile insurance. It also shows why even minor crash damage is so expensive to fix.

For example, damage to less than one-fourth of a car's parts would cost more to repair than the car is worth. If the car in the study were in a crash and 25 percent of its parts had to be replaced, the repair costs would not be 25 percent of the original price, but 25 percent of $23,400. That's $5,850 or $753 more than the original price.

Damage requiring replacement of only one percent of the car's parts would cost about $234 to repair (one percent of $23,400). Damage that requires replacement of 10 percent of the car's parts would cost about $2,340.

What all this means is that even moderate damage can make a car not worth repairing, especially if it is three or four years old. This is a hard pocketbook fact many drivers overlook. If they understood it better, more of them would drive defensively.

Defensive driving is being alert to the actions and reactions of other drivers on the road, not merely oneself. Courtesy is a good survival quality, not just a moral or ethical question.

The cost of repairing crash damage is helping push up the cost of collision, comprehensive and property damage liability insurance. Drivers of late model, medium-priced cars are likely to spend 55 to 60 percent of their total auto insurance premiums for these coverages.

Insurance companies continue to fight the rising cost of auto repairs by urging auto body shops to repair damaged parts whenever possible instead of replacing them with more expensive new parts. In addition, the insurance industry encourages body shops to use proven new methods of repair, especially with aluminum and plastic parts.

Insurers have supported federal regulations requiring auto manufacturers to build more crash-resistant cars. They also have called upon manufacturers to build more repairable cars.

The Alliance conducted a comparable crash repair study in 1977. Last year a similar totally wrecked car cost $21,471 to replace all of the parts. Its purchase price was $4,681.

For the purpose of this year's analysis, the Alliance chose a popular 1978 standard four-door with AM radio, automatic transmission, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, power door locks, 305 V8 engine, plus whitewall tires and full wheel covers, bumper pads and guards. The dealer price of $5,097 does not include dealer preparing charges and does not include sales tax.

The Alliance hired a nationally prominent auto repair cost expert to figure what it would cost to repair the car if totally demolished. The Alliance analysis did not include trade discounts for auto crash repair parts. Discounts for such parts are not allowed in a number of areas throughout the country. However, in many sections the discounts for these parts may run 10 to 15 percent. The analysis also did not include state and local taxes, which can be as high as seven percent.

The Alliance study used labor costs of $12 per hour. In some areas of the country, however, the hourly rate for this type of labor is $25 an hour or more and in other areas it is lower.

The Alliance of American Insurers is a national trade association representing more than 100 major property-liability

Background Information

The Alliance's $23,400 auto repair analysis is based on the cost to rebuild a 1978 Chevrolet 4-door Impala with AM radio, automatic transmission, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, power door locks, 305 V8 engine, whitewall tires, full wheel covers, bumper pads and guards. The parts prices and labor times are based chiefly on information from the Motor Crash Estimating Guide, Dec. 1977 and Jan. 1978, Hearst Corp., 1970 Broadway, P.O. Box 881, Radio City Post Office, New York, N.Y. 10019. Some parts prices are approximated.

The model car was selected because it is the leader among domestic cars according to the March 18, 1978, list of motor vehicle production, U.S. plants, published by the Motor Vehicle Manufacturing Association, 320 New Center Building, illustrate the approximated cost of repair to a typical domestic car.

The "purchase price" or "original price" means the "dealer invoice cost," based on prices reported by the Automobile Invoice Service, 2001 The Alameda, P.O. Box 6227, San Jose, Calif. 95150.

For the purpose of the cost estimates, the Alliance retained Robert W. Devermann, Vice President, Auto Damage Appraisers, 5050 W. Diversey Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60639. Devermann also is past president of the Independent Automotive Damage Appraisers Assn., a national non-profit trade association with office at 220 S. 108 St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53227.

MRS. PAUL KRATZ/NEE MISS LISSA BROWN

Miss Brown, Kratz Exchange Vows

Miss Lissa Merdith Brown and Paul Girard Kratz were united in marriage Saturday evening, May 20, at 8:00 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church, of Muleshoe. Reverend David Hamblin, minister of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Miss Brown is the daughter of Mrs. Bill Brown and the late Bill Brown. The groom is the son of Mrs. Frank Zabinski, of Delanson, N.Y., and Paul Kratz, of West Palm Beach, Fla.

The couple stood before an altar centered by an arrangement of all white blossoms: eremurus, carnations, daisy poms, agapanthas, and peonies with white cathedral tapers. Flanking the central arrangement were black Spanish candlelabara with white cathedral tapers and entwined with lemon leaf. On each side of the altar were arched candlelabara with white tapers, and matching arrangements of white eremurus, carnations, peonies, daisy poms, and agapanthas. The bridal aisle was marked with white satin bows and leather leaf.

Mrs. Steve Holcomb, of Lubbock, organist, presented musical selections by Dvorak, Simone, Franck, and Bach, and the traditional bridal processional and recessional.

The altar candles were lighted by Thad Sherley, Fort Worth, cousin of the bride, and Chris Young, of Muleshoe. Miss Claire McFarland, of Farwell, registered the guests in the foyer of the church.

Escorted and given in marriage by her brother, William Scott Brown, the bride wore an original gown fashioned of silk organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace veiled over peau de soie. It featured a portrait neckline and long fitted sleeves bordered with lace. Lace enhanced the bodice and pyramid skirt, and a deep flounce bordered the hem and chapel train. She wore a bandeau in her hair of white roses and stephanotis. Her bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis, white roses, apricot sonja roses, and gysophylla.

Carrying out bridal tradition, the bride wore her grandmother's diamond drop necklace as something old, something new was the bridal gown, something blue was the garter, worn by her mother in her wedding, and something borrowed were diamond earrings belonging to Mrs. Phillip Pitzer, of Breckenridge. In her shoe she wore a two pence for luck, brought to her from England by Mrs. Phillip Pitzer.

Attending the bride were Miss Nancy Bush, of Lazbuddie, maid of honor, Miss Margie Lockwood, of Brownwood, Miss Vivki Vinson, of Bridgeport, Miss Christina Luhn, of Shawnee Park, Kansas, and Miss Gayle Grimland, of Midland, as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of soft coral Quiana. The dresses featured an empire bodice veiled in chiffon and a softly gather skirt. They wore babies breath in their hair.

The bridesmaid's bouquets were nosegays of silkflowers consisting of orange kelanchoes, enchantment lilies, sonja roses, apricot daisies, and babies breath.

Joe Benar, of Fort Worth, served as best man. Groomsmen were James Dominey, Rodney Corder, Steve Stone, and Larry Donaldson, all of Fort Worth. Ushers were, Robert Meredith Sherley, of Fort Worth, and Ronald Bullock, of Muleshoe.

The mother of the bride was attired in a pale yellow gown with gold accessories. She wore apricot kelanchoe blossoms in her hair.

The groom's mother chose a gown of aquamarine with silver accessories and a white orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's circular cake table was draped in a floor length cloth of white satin and chiffon. The three-tiered cake was decorated with confectionate roses and cherubs in pastel shades of apricot. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Robert Sherley, of Fort Worth, Mrs. Joe Pat Wagon, Mrs. R.W. Anderson, of Farwell, and Mrs. Irvin St. Clair.

The punch and coffee table was draped in a floor length pleated cloth of apricot satin with apricot chiffon swags. The table was centered with a silver epergne holding a Flemish arrangement of white eremurus, apricot carnations, daisy poms, agapanthas, and roses.

Punch, coffee, and nuts were served from silver and crystal appointments. Presiding at the silver punch bowl were Mrs. W.M. Pool, II, Mrs. Charles Lenau, Mrs. Glen Smith, and Mrs. R.T. White. Coffee was served from a silver service by Mrs. Dan Hurley, Lubbock; Mrs. Jerry Barber; Sherley Brown Rattan, Fort Worth; and Mrs. Eddie Stallwitz, Dumas. Other members of the reception house party were Mrs. Herbert Griffiths, Mrs. Sam Damron, Mrs. Woody Lambert and Mrs. Ben Foster, Jr.

For a honeymoon trip to Mexico, the bride chose a rust and beige pantsuit. After June 5, the couple will be at home in Fort Worth.

Mrs. Kratz graduated from Lazbuddie High School in 1974, and attended Southern Methodist University, in Dallas, and the University of Hawaii. She is a May 1978 graduate of Texas Christian University where she was a member and social chairman of Delta Delta Delta sorority. The groom is a 1973 graduate of West Palm Beach High School and is a senior student at Texas Christian University.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. W.W. Scott, Amarillo, maternal grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Jack Husbands, Amarillo, great-aunt; Mrs. Eddie Sallwitz, Dumas, cousin; Mrs. Fank Zabinski, Delanson, N.Y.; Miss Lorraine Sherley, Fort Worth; Sherley Brown Ractan, Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Sherley, and Thad, out of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Heuley, Lubbock, cousin of the bride; Kenton Colis, Fort Worth; and Mrs. Phillip Pitzer, Breckenridge.

Mrs. Fank Zabinski was hostess for the rehearsal dinner held Friday evening May 19, at the Colonial Park Country Club, in Clovis, N.M.

Calving Time- The Payoff

For the beef producer, calving time brings the real payoff in his operation. It's also a challenging time in that he's got to have a tight rein on what's going on to prevent calf losses.

"Calf losses during or shortly after calving are the second leading cause of decreased calf crop percentage," points out Dr. Larry Boleman, area beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Unless the beef cow produces a calf every year, desired genetic improvement goals such as increased growth rate, weaning weight, feed efficiency and carcass value are lost.

"Not only do calf losses reduce returns from cow-calf operations, but in small herds, the loss of one or more calves

Texas Grower Points Way To Higher Yields

Cotton Grower Dan Pustejovsky, Hillsboro, Tex., is a firm believer in six practices that contribute to high yields in the Southwest.

Speaking at the recent Beltwide Cotton Conferences, he said most cotton growers in his area agree that practices necessary for consistent profits are: early planting, use of the best quality seed, use of fertilizers, good insect control, controlled use of water, and early harvesting.

"Production practices that contribute to high yields vary widely. What is a high yield of a bale per acre in one area is a disaster in another. And, since 'high yield' is relative, and profit is a necessity in cotton production, the trade-offs in cost versus gain result in quite a diversity of opinion and practices by producers," Pustejovsky said.

He pointed out that cotton is planted in the Southwest over a five-month period from February in the Rio Grande Valley through June in the High Plains, then harvested from July through January.

"Somewhere in the Southwest, cotton producers are either planting or harvesting cotton during every month of the year," he said.

The conference was sponsored by the National Cotton Council and the Cotton Foundation in cooperation with other groups.

can have adverse economic effects," emphasizes the Texas A&M University System Specialist.

While a 100 percent calf crop is a tough challenge, many losses occurring at birth could be prevented with proper management. Boleman offers several management tips that can make calving time less stressful for the producer as well as the cow herd and can insure an extra calf or two at weaning.

1. As calving approaches, evaluate your cow herd as to calving time. Separate expectant cows from dry cows and late-calving cows from early-calving cows. Move those expecting soon to clean, well-sodded dry pastures, convenient for frequent checking. Avoid wet, muddy areas that can more easily lead to disease problems.

2. Watch the cow herd at calving time. Early calvers can be watched more closely than late-calving cows. Check cows twice daily; however, first-calf heifers may need more attention.

3. Feed the expectant cow adequately. She should receive 9 to 10 pounds of TDN (total digestible nutrients) per day during the last 45 days before calving to help produce a strong calf at birth and to increase milk production.

4. Avoid stress which can create problems for the beef cow at calving time. Environmental stresses, weather changes and unfamiliar sights and sounds can cause unnecessary nervousness, especially in first-calf heifers. Moving the herd into the calving pasture prior to calving may eliminate some stress.

5. Prepare needed equipment before the calving season starts. Thoroughly clean and sterilize obstetrical chains, calf pullers and other equipment used at calving time. Boil calving chains in mineral oil and wrap them in clean cloths for future use. Ropes can be used in place of obstetrical chains but should be clean.

6. Watch cows for problem deliveries resulting from abnormal presentations. An abnormal delivery will need quick assistance or the calf may suffocate.

7. When examining a cow or heifer, use a good lubricant and use it freely. Various lubricants are on the market; however, mild soap dissolved in warm water and allowed to cool to a gel will work satisfactorily. Also, have on hand some form of antiseptic and iodine.

8. After the calf is born, be sure that it nurses. A healthy calf will nurse within one or two hours. If the calf is too weak, provide assistance in nursing. The calf must have colostrum with its protective antibodies.

9. Watch the cow for several days after calving for udder problems, and make sure the cow claims her calf.

10. Be sure cows shed their placental membranes, or afterbirth, soon after calving. If the cow has not cleaned within 36 hours, call a veterinarian.

11. Watch calves for scours or diarrhea. Scours is an acute infectious disease causing losses in calves 7-10 days old.

12. Cows need adequate levels of energy, protein, calcium and magnesium in their diet after calving. This means twice as much feed after calving as before calving. The productive cow requires 16 pounds of TDN per day as soon as the calf appears to be consuming all of the milk, or about 15 days after calving. Larger amounts of nutrients are required for adequate milk production and reproduction.

13. Put first-calf heifers into a separate area and feed extra grain if they are to calf at the same time next year.

14. Plan a breeding program that will insure a definite calving season to make maximum use of forage, labor and good weather.

The senior class of '78 presented a variety show Tuesday, May 16, in the auditorium. All seniors participated in skits, songs, dances and stage preparations.

Brent Gunter was master of ceremonies and he urged the audience to enjoy the "hidden" talents of the seniors. The audience learned that some seniors have strange stomachs, some can't sing cowboy songs, and some spend a lot of money for a light pole.

Other unforgettable moments included and "unusual" man learning to sell pencils: a dance sequence with hula dancers, Charleston girls, and disco dancers: a stand-in being initiated into show business with a slap, a glass of water, a meringue pie, and an amorous kiss: a psycho doctor and his patients: a gum sequence: and the appearance of the Viper and Paul Revere.

The senior class worked hard on this show, and everyone enjoyed being "in the act."

DECA Employer Of The Month

Each month DECA has selected and outstanding employer to honor as its "Employer of the Month". May is no exception. During this spring month the club has selected the manager of a store that knows no season, Williams Brothers Office Supply.

Wayne Williams is the manager of this business in which everyone has occasion to shop. To help his many customers Mr. Williams has employed, among others a D.E. student for the first time in several years. He is well pleased with the progress she has made in the short time that she has been employed through the Distributive Education program.

Mr. Williams praised the club for its teaching of the basic skills required to play a role in an organized business. He did voice a desire to see math skills focused on in future years.

Wayne Williams is only one of the many employers who take the time to help students and D.E. in their quest of a foothold in the business world. DECA thanks all of these employers for their cooperation throughout the year.

Freshmen Elect New Sponsors

The freshman class met Monday, May 22, sixth period in the lunchroom to elect sponsors for the coming year.

Legality For Aliens?

Attorney General Griffin Bell testified recently before the Senate Judiciary Committee in behalf of President Carter's proposal to legalize the status of more than 5,000,000 Chicanos, who have sneaked into this nation illegally, most of whom now hold jobs.

There is, of course, great pressure on politicians from the kin, and other Spanish-Americans in the southwest and elsewhere, and their organizations, to legalize the status of wetbacks--and to enfranchise them. That would give Chicanos greater political clout in future elections.

The Carter plan would grant legal status to all who sneaked in illegally before 1970, grant five-year legal status to those who sneaked in illegally between 1970 and 1977 (after that they almost certainly would get permanent residency) and make those who sneaked in this year and last subject to deportation, if caught. (It's estimated a million a year aren't caught.)

Meanwhile, the Carter Administration has assured Mexico there will be no mass deportations. So, the whole program amounts to little more than legalizing the status of millions of illegal border crossers, rewarding them, so to speak. Worse, such a politically inspired move would obviously encourage an even greater influx of illegal aliens from Latin America in the future.

It's a bad program, which looks very political, and Congress would do well to reject it and write its own law, establishing stiff fines for those who hire illegals.

Organized Crime & Labor

A recent issue of U.S. News quoted a Justice Department prosecutor as saying organized crime in the labor unions of the nation is the most serious current problem in the criminal field.

The late Senator John McClellan warned that "compulsory unionism and corruption go hand in hand." This is pertinent today when organized labor is pressuring Congress (it has already had its way in the House) to pass a bill called labor reform, but actually designed to make it easier for organized labor to force employees into unions.

No picture, of course, is all one-sided. But in this country polls show a majority of Americans against forcing employees into unions. And a recent case in Detroit, where a teacher who had taught very successfully for forty years was fired because, in principle, she refused to join a union and pay dues, brought national attention to the issue--and the current effort of organized labor in Congress.

Enough U.S. Senators seem ready to filibuster against the House-passed "reform" labor act to stop it. But the threat remains. Money from organized labor elected many members of the House who recently voted to do organized labor's bidding. They were, to an extent, obligated to big labor.

Big labor is not necessarily or inherently all bad. But in this country organized crime has penetrated its ranks so deeply that in recent years membership growth has almost stopped. And in many plants unions have been voted out. More workers in this country are still non-union workers than the reverse. That doesn't say that unions are not needed in some industries, or that all unions are criminally infected.

It says that in today's climate, until organized labor can clean its own house, the public isn't in a mood to support a law forcing more workers into unions--under the threat of losing their jobs.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ON PERSONAL INCOME

Personal income, particularly for farmers has far outstripped the inflation rate during the final three months of 1977, the government said.

ON TAX CUT

President Carter has retreated from his $24 billion tax cut proposal and agreed to reduce the amount and to delay the beginning of new tax relief from Oct. 1, 1978 to Jan. 1, 1979.

MORE ON MIA'S

The administration is still pressing Laos and Vietnam for an accounting of Americans missing in action, and has no intention of providing economic aid to Hanoi, Robert Oakley, a State Department official said.

JOINT VENUS PROBE

WASHINGTON -- Venus could have 10 scientific visitors from the United States and the Soviet Union next December in separate efforts to explore Earth's puzzling planetary neighbor, space agency officials report.

CARTER'S PLAN APPROVED

The Senate approved President Carter's plan to sell warplanes simultaneously to Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia.

15-CENT LETTERS

The Postal Service has received permission to raise the cost of mailing a letter from 13 to 15 cents, the fifth increase in the last decade.

ON SS TAX

The House Ways and Means Committee has voted for a partial rollback of Social Security payroll tax increases that could save some workers as much as $123 next year. The biggest savings would go to higher paid employees.

TRANSPORTATION DEATHS

The U.S. transportation death toll rose nearly 4 percent in 1977, the biggest increase in five years. Highway fatalities lead the increase according to the National Transportation Safety Board.

WASHINGTON NEWS REPORT

Senate & Israel-Church and Sparkman-Javits, Stone & Israel.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- The Senate Foreign Relations Committee gave one of its more shabby performances in recent years on the question of supporting the Carter Administration's Mideast arms sale package.

In the end, the committee voted 8-8. The eight Senators who voted for Israel's plea to dishonor America's Saudi Arabian commitment and, in President Carter's view, against America's best interests, were: Church (Idaho), Pell (R.I.), Clark (Iowa), Biden (Del), Surbanes (Md), Case (N.J.), Stone (Fla), and Javits (N.Y.). All but Case and Javits are Democrats.

The weakest performance of all was that by overly ambitious Frank Church. Obviously with his eye on Henry Jackson's national Jewish support, Church pushed the concession idea of promising more jets to Israel next year. When the Administration accepted this to get his support, Church then went into the committee and made a strong plea for support of the Carter package.

Then when the vote came, to the astonishment of some, he voted against the sale for the record.

Although Senators infrequently disqualify themselves, some believe Javits and Stone, both Jews, would have done well to disqualify themselves. With their own religion involved, it is tremendously difficult for them to be objective. They are under both emotional and religious persuasion at home and from Israel. It's like asking a devout Catholic to vote against something avidly denounced by the Pope. Had there been another Jew on the Senate panel, would even a tie vote have been possible?

Columnists Evans and Novak recently penned an eye-opening column about upcoming Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, David Jones. They showed convincingly Jones rose to the top--and got President Carter's nod for the JCS chairmanship--by being a yes man.

Admiral James Holloway would normally have been given the nomination but he has conscientiously spoken out against some defense proposals.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--Early in 1978 a dream became a reality for many deaf Texans. The first meeting of the Joint Advisory Committee on Educational Services to the Deaf (which was established by the 65th Legislature) held its first organizational meeting and is now well on its way toward developing recommendations which will upgrade the quality of education the State offers its deaf citizens.

The Committee was formed primarily to give deaf people a chance to evaluate the public school system which serves them and to make recommendations which will improve those services. The Committee is composed of the Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, a member of the Senate, a member of the House of Representatives, two persons who are deaf, two persons who are parents of deaf children, and two professionals serving the deaf.

Hearings will be held across the state by this committee to give deaf persons in all walks of life an opportunity to offer their comments and recommendations for improvement of our educational system for the deaf. The results of these hearings will be compiled into a report which will be presented to the 66th Legislature.

From this report, the legislature will be able to draw upon recommendations which will be practical within the fiscal constraints, and hopefully will be able to enact several pieces of legislation which will be effective in restructuring this educational system to give the deaf their money's worth in education.

This is the first time in any state that the legislature has called upon the deaf to come forward with their recommendations, and I feel that this may well be one of the most valuable committee reports presented to the next legislature.

Memorial Day 1978

REMEMBER OUR BRAVE AMERICANS.

They were dreamers. These young men we remember. They would gather on the fantail of the ship as it coursed through the iridescent sea on a warm tropical night and they would talk, talk of many things that might be, dream of what might come in a better world.

They would shout and yell, snap their towels as they showered after a hard day of training. Then that night they would gather and talk of a dream.

They would huddle in a hut while the typhoon spent its fury outside and they would talk, talk of a world with better ways to live. They would stand in their mud and sweat encrusted clothes and watch others carry by a bag, knowing that inside was a body of a friend. They would pause and then talk and dream of a world at peace.

We try to remember these fresh, young-faces so young many hadn't known a razor for long.

We know they are buried- and some missing- on little bits of islands, in France, on Okinawa, in Korea, and in Vietnam.

We mustn't let their dreams be buried with them.

They were realistic. They really never expected to be remembered too well aside from their mothes and their wives.

But they wouldn't want us to forget their dreams.

All over the world their discarded tanks and landing craft and equipment rest and rot.

But we must never discard their dreams.

They are dead, but we give them life when we remember their dreams.

"Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren."

Snazzy Senior

The Senior Class left at 6:00 a.m. Friday and went to McKenzie Lake which is located Northwest of Silverton. The seniors took food and two boats and everything needed for the outing. It was a warm day at the lake and some of the seniors went water skiing while others went swimming or for a boat ride. In the late afternoon barbecue grills were set up and hamburgers were cooked. Around 6:00 p.m. it started raining and we were pressured by the rain to leave. Except for a few cars getting stuck and everybody getting wet, the seniors all had a great time.

Kindergarten Kut-Ups

We used marbles to paint flowers. They turned out very pretty.

Mrs. Turney came and showed home movies of our Christmas Program and our Easter Egg Hunt.

We went to Lubbock on a field trip. We went to the Planetarium at Texas Tech Museum and had free time to wander through the museum. We ate lunch at MacKenzie Park and saw the prairie dogs. Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Turney went with us.

We sent our graduation invitations to our parents. We will present a short program singing in English and Spanish. Receiving Kindergarten diplomas will be: Russell Autry, Rosa Linda Baeza, Carlos Bodayo, Cerefina Chavira, D'nea Dewbre, Mario Guillen, Rosita Guillen, Heather Hutton, Chris Lock, Debra Locke, Selene Medina, Kristi Risinger, Scott Terrell, Sheila Tucker and Melinda Turney. Finishing HeadStart are: Sammy Belez, Janell Cavazos, Laura Covarrubias, and Norma Rubalcava.

We hope you have enjoyed our year in Kindergarten and have a nice, long summer vacation.

Snazzy Seventh

Last Friday (that is May 12th) we gave the 8th grade a party. We all had a hamburger cook-out at Oasis Park near Portales. After hiking around for a while, we feasted on grilled hamburgers. After that we all ended up throwing each other down the sandhills. We got back at 10:30, dirty and tired, but we all agreed we had a great time.

We would never have made it without Burl Cooley driving the bus. We welcomed his son Shawn, who is a 4th grader, and the help of his wife, Barbara. But even with him, it wouldn't have been very successful without the help of some very patient mothers. They are: Pat Dupler, Anna B. Lane, Ruby Waltrip, Carolyn Phillips, JoAnn Miller, and Darance Tyson.

Cotton Module Builder Changes Harvest Method

In fall, 1972, a new machine made its debut during the cotton harvest in the Mississippi Delta. That first year there were only 22 of them, but they started a revolution in seedcotton harvesting and handling.

The machine was the mechanical module builder, and from 22 module builders that year, the system grew in five years to include 2,200 module builders that were responsible for handling about 2.5 million bales of cotton in 1977.

In 1978, the number of bales handled in the module system is expected to increase to 3.5 million bales.

"The module builder saved cotton producers an estimated $20 million this past year," says E. Hervey Evans Jr., chairman of the board of Cotton Incorporated.

"Our goal at Cotton Incorporated is to try to reduce the cost of production--as well as finding new cotton markets--we are very pleased that the module builder has meant such savings to producers," Evans adds.

Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers, developed the module builder in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Evans, a cotton producer from Laurinburg, N.C., says the module system is bringing about revolutionary changes in the cotton industry because it breaks the traditional connection between harvesting and ginning, allowing both operations to proceed at their own pace.

The module system is the answer to the age-old problem of harvesters being idled, leaving cotton on the plant to suffer from the weather, because trailers are tied up at the gin, explains Lee Warner, manager of research implementation for Cotton Incorporated.

"Generally speaking, harvesting capacity is usually two to four times greater than the economical ginning rate," says Warner. Prior to the module system, either harvesting or ginning, or both, had to run at a below-optimum level.

"But with the module builder, a cotton producer can harvest at peak capacity when plant maturity and weather are favorable for top yields and quality preservation, and the ginner can gin at his optimum speed," Warner comments.

While the benefits of moduling can vary from region to region, Warner says farmers have told him that the module builders have increased their picker efficiency by ten to 20 percent and increased their stripper efficiency by 20 to 25 percent.

The module builder has proved particularly popular in areas where cotton acreage has been increased in recent years, says Warner. The module system allows a gin to increase its annual capacity without increasing its hourly capacity to meet the demands of expanded production, explains Warner. With the modules, a gin can simply store the cotton until it is ready to gin it.

Says one Texas ginner, Wayne Mixon, general manager of the Ocho Gin Co. in Seminole: "We were one of the first gins in the area to go to a total module system. This past year, we ginned about 28,000 bales from modules and about 500 from trailers. As far as the ginner is concerned, this is the greatest thing to happen to a cotton gin."

Areas of cotton expansion that have relied heavily on the module system are the Rio Grande Valley in Texas, the Imperial and San Joaquin Valleys in California, the High Plains of Texas, and Oklahoma.

Areas where cotton production has remained at the same rate over the recent years have been slower to adopt module builders says Warner, because the economics of purchasing module builders haven't been as compelling as they are in areas of increased production.

However, he expects to see an increase in module builder sales in the mid-South in 1978 as more and more producers compute the benefits they can expect to reap from the module builder.

Warner also points to refinements in the system as making it more and more attractive each year.

Development of palletless module transporters has made it possible to store modules without the costly expense of pallets in West Texas, ARIZONA and California. However, in the rain belt, where seedcotton on the ground can be damaged by an accumulation of rain, pallets are advisable. In all areas, Warner recommends that modules be covered with cotton tarpaulins, except in the Texas High Plains after frost.

To improve handling of modules at the gin, several companies have developed automatic gin feeders that can increase gin productivity ten to 20 percent by assuring a steady flow of seedcotton into the gin.

One obstacle to more widespread adoption of the module system is the approximately $18,000 price tag for module builders, says Warner.

The economics of owning a module builder vary from region to region, Warner says, but as a general rule, he adds, growers of less than 500 to 600 bales per year cannot afford individual ownership of module builders.

To get the benefits of moduling the smaller producers either have to own the equipment jointly with a neighbor or work something through their gin community.

These super highways, these interlocking, cloverleafs of shiny concrete that crisscross our land are an amazing marvel of our nation's engineering. And yet for all the time and inconvenience they save unless we know exactly where we are going they can become a confusing maze... a motorist's nightmare.

We can easily compare our lives to the automobiles that travel these highways. A driver without a known destination in mind, a motorist that does not know where he is going, a man without a map or a guiding plan is soon lost amid the complex interchanges. And so it is with life. Each of us has but one true destination and that is toward God and His promise of Eternal Life. The church, your church, is the guidepost that lights the way; it is the sign on the highway that points the route. Give your life a known destination... Go to the church of your choice this Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in the world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His plan for man's redemption. Without the church, the love of God, the promise of eternal life, and the power of His Holy Spirit are withheld from the world. Therefore, every person should understand and participate in the Church because it is the truth about man, life, death and heaven; the truth which alone will set him free or lose him as a child of God.

water if the boat is underway. If he is close to the boat, stop the motor so he won't get cut by the prop. Even though he can swim, throw him a life preserver, extend him a paddle or throw him a line. Act quickly and do what the situation demands.

If your boat capsizes, stay with the boat, don't try to swim to shore unless there is a good reason to do so. Modern boats will hold up passengers even when full of water. Remember, it is easier to spot a large boat than a swimmer's head in the water.

Put on a life preserver if not already wearing them. Coolers, gas can and water containers can be used to help keep you afloat. Towels and extra clothing can be used to protect you from sun and wind. Paddles can be used to wave for rescue, to rig shelters, or to reach people in distress.

Sudden storm and squalls are common in Texas and everyone should put on a life preserver and fasten it before the storm hits. Get to the bottom of the boat and stay low. Secure all movable objects and bail out water as fast as it comes in. Head for shore or the lee side of an island if it is not too far away or the water is not too rough. Use motor to head boat into the wind while moving ahead.

Collisions on a lake are more common than most boaters realize. When the hull is rammed, stop or reduce speed immediately. Stuff anything available into the opening to stop the water from coming in such as blankets, bedding or cushions. Do something and do it quickly to stop the flow of water.

Another critical situation is a fire onboard your boat. Stop the boat at once to keep from fanning the flames. When the burning object is portable, try to get it over the side without burning your hands or igniting your clothing.

When the fire is in a confined space, close all hatches, vents, or ports to keep oxygen from feeding the fire. Fire must have fuel, oxygen and heat to burn, take away any one of these and the fire will go out.

Panic also should be included in any list of accident causes as it can be the biggest killer of all. Panic-stricken people cannot think, act instinctively, and many times, endanger the lives of everyone around including the rescuers.

An emergency aboard a boat can quickly become a life-or-death situation, so be prepared to handle it.
