Parity Checks For $500,157.32

TAHOKA, October 9 (Special) — The county was second high on parity payments to farmers for the 1940 program, according to an announcement by the Department of Agriculture made yesterday.

Farmers received $500,157.32 in parity checks. Lubbock county is ahead of Lynn, having received $560,521.31.

The amount was $205,834, according to the report.

Administrative costs brought the total of payments up to $210,000, the department said. Producers of corn, cotton, wheat, and other crops who participated in the 1940 Agricultural Adjustment program are in the payments.

The program was financed with a $100,000 appropriation, but approximately $7,100,000 was used to offset 1939 price adjustment payments. Parity payments are made to offset the difference between actual and parity prices.

Women Employment Office In Tahoka

W. Flumey of the farm placement division of Texas State Employment Service has been stationed in Tahoka for the benefit of the women and cotton pickers of the county, according to Rankin C. Reynolds, acting manager of the Lubbock office.

Flumey may be contacted at County Agricultural building. Officials are cooperating with Texas State Employment Service in making this office available at headquarters where farmers may place their orders for harvest hands and pickers. Workers may contact Mr. Flumey to obtain information about the service.

The service is without cost to the farmers or farmers and it is urged they use it as a clearing house for the coming cotton and feed crop.

It was stated that local labor would be assisted in every way by transient labor is used.

Only Two Youths Called To Army

Although there was a call for six men from Lynn county to go into training in the army camps on Wednesday of next week, the local draft board has selected only two men to go. The fact that the call was not filled was due to the urgent demand for the services of the youth in helping to harvest the crops this fall.

The two who have been selected and who will leave on next Wednesday are Joe Bailey Crump, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crump out on Route 4, and J. D. Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Tucker of O'Donnell. J. D. is employed temporarily in Dallas but is expected to be here to be inducted into the service Wednesday.

Another call for five men from Lynn county has been issued for November 17.

Weeds Poisoning Up Plains Lands

Austin, Oct. 7.—"The Texas Panhandle and Plains country is one of the Nation's outstanding grain producing areas," declared State Commissioner of Agriculture, J. E. McDonald today in announcing plans for enlarged seed testing facilities at the Department of Agriculture's branch laboratory at Texas Tech, Lubbock.

"The laboratory, under the supervision of Early J. Peltier, an expert seed analyst, last year rendered an outstanding service to the farmers, seed growers and merchants of West Texas, and with the recently enacted Texas Seed Law requiring all planting seed offered or exposed for sale to be tested and tagged, the laboratory is expected this year to make between ten and twelve thousand purity and germination tests," McDonald said.

Peltier, in his annual report to the Commissioner, pointed out that Johnson grass is fast becoming a definite menace and that Bindweed (small flowering Morning Glory) is beginning to make its appearance in some samples received by the laboratory. "Few people know how noxious the weed may become," said the Commissioner. "Some encourage it as it makes a pretty blossom. However, unless destroyed as it appears, this weed will, in time, become a serious menace. It is even worse than Johnson grass, as it twines about and over any plant within reach, robbing it of air and light, while the roots below are starving the plant of food and moisture."

McDonald reported notable progress being made by the Wheat Improvement Association in this section. He pointed out that laboratory tests are made free of charge at both Lubbock and Austin, and stated that he thought it vitally important that farmers should have every lot of seed tested before planting in order to continually improve the standard of wheat and other crops and keep the fields free from damaging weed seed. Anyone wishing free purity or germination tests may address the Department of Agriculture Seed Laboratory, Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Army Drill, Co-Ed Style

In an artillery camp "Somewhere in England," the first mixed army unit of men and women in British history is now in training to repel the long-delayed German invasion. Women already have proven themselves highly efficient in operating anti-aircraft predictors and other complicated military apparatus, but this is the first time they are actually marching and drilling with their men as part of the regular Army.

Eagles Battle Post In Tilt Tonight

Still seeking a victory in 1941, the Eagles go forth to battle in Post tonight and hope to scratch out that elusive game.

Comparison of the two teams on the basis of competition played would place Post about 12 points ahead of O'Donnell, but the Eagles might nullify dope as they did last season when they won their only game of the season from the team they play tonight.

The Eagles discovered that mud was not friendly in their tilt last Friday against Denver City, but showed that they are playing better ball in each game and should be about right—when they play Tahoka in November.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazis Launch Repressive Campaign In Answer to Anti-German Revolts And Widespread Acts of Sabotage; England Claims Mastery in Air War

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Scene of U. S. army war maneuvers has shifted from Louisiana to South Carolina and this picture shows a bit of action as the "fighting" got under way. Here one side had established a bridgehead and a pontoon bridge was built for trucks and artillery. But before they could cross completely, enemy planes appeared and "bombs" exploded to "demolish" the rear units.

NAZIS:

More Trouble

According to reports from Europe, German officials were busy with a repressive campaign throughout their conquered and occupied territory to prevent the spread of a vast behind-the-front anti-German movement. Acts of sabotage were reported from Belgium, France, Denmark and Czechoslovakia and the Nazis were doing everything to put down what to some observers looked like a general revolt.

The slaughter of Czechs in Bohemia and Moravia through "drum-head" court-martial instituted by the new regime had continued to keep pace with, even to surpass the killings in occupied France.

Eighty-eight were reported killed in three days, 58 in one day. Reinhard Heydrich, former chief of Berlin's secret police, who had been made "protector" of Czechoslovakia, or what was left of it, was using the mailed fist to stamp out a persistent rebellion.

The same story was coming out of Bulgaria, with reports from Sofia of 543 persons arrested in one day in one Black sea port.

The Bulgars, blood brothers and friends of the Russians, were revolting at any efforts the Germans might make to use their country as a by-pass to get eventually at Caucasian Russian oil fields.

AIR MASTERS:

Churchill

The first victory of the war of any real import to Britain had been announced in most positive terms by Winston Churchill when he told the house of commons that the Royal Air force had attained mastery of the air.

The information was given to parliament just as London celebrated its second month without an air raid alarm. The prime minister asserted that the R.A.F. was in a position to bomb Rome at any time that it seemed convenient or advisable, and reported that Cairo definitely had not been bombed, denying previous reports that this had occurred.

The reaction was swift in coming—from Berlin and from Rome. In the latter city the pope was reported to be sending a message via Myron C. Taylor to President Roosevelt asking him to use his influence with Britain to pass up the bombing of Rome.

The President, on the other hand, was said to have sent a message to His Holiness suggesting politely that he might take up his residence at a safer spot.

The Berlin answer was a quintuple bombing raid, not on London, but on five northeastern cities, with heavy casualties reported. The defense of these cities was presumably not as good as that of London.

At the same time the R.A.F. was conducting continuous and heavy raids with squadrons running as high as several hundred planes. One raid on the port city of Stettin was conducted for five solid hours by waves of bombers.

Italy made a strong attack by air on a British ported convoy in the Mediterranean, but eyewitness reports were that terrific casualties in men and planes were suffered, and the battleship Nelson, while damaged by a torpedo, "suffered only a slight diminution of her speed."

SEA POWER:

Viewed by Knox

Sea power of Britain and the United States—both present and to come—will spell the end of the triple Axis, said Secretary of the Navy Knox in an address.

He also declared that once the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance had been defeated it would be up to the United States and Britain permanently to pool their forces "to stop new aggression."

Many wondered if he left Russia out of the picture deliberately.

Starts Taking

The government had started with the first of the month the heaviest "take" of taxes in American history—$3,000,000 a day.

But it was only a small part of the whole tax program, which would nick the American pocketbooks to the tune of $13,000,000,000 a year, and when one figured that a billion is a thousand million, and that three million a day is only a little more than a billion a year—it gave some idea of what the huge burden would be.

Contrasted with the World war "take" it was 13 billion against about 7 billion, or not quite twice as much money—and there were 30,000,000 more people to share in the payment.

For instance, in 1918, the exemptions were $2,000 for the head of a family and $1,000 for single persons—as compared with $1,500 and $750 today.

That, it was figured, would bring still more of the nation's 150,000,000 people into the burden-bearing fold.

The first taxes to be levied had been the special excise taxes, and the government was taking unusual steps to prevent merchants from raising prices more than they should, so as to be sure that the burden should be placed squarely on the buyer, and that the buyer could know he or she was paying it.

There was some heavy buying in advance of the day, but not more than had been expected.

LABOR:

Still Restless

A sudden strike at the Dodge division of Chrysler Motors had been settled, but there were many other strikes or threats of strikes, showing plainly that labor unrest was far from settled.

Twenty thousand had walked out at the Briggs auto body plant in Detroit, and the eight largest hotels in Pittsburgh were closed down because of a general strike of some 2,000 workers.

An ordnance strike was reported at Sandusky, Ohio, involving truck drivers and iron workers.

At the same time the government decided to increase widely the steel capacity of the bigger companies, which would mean not only a heavy construction program to be financed by the government, but a further shifting of the labor population.

AMERICA FIRST:

Gets Publicity

Most of the interventionist newspapers were pursuing a new policy toward the utterances of America Firsters as they held their convention in Bridgeport. The idea, apparently, was to play up the speeches with front-page headlines instead of "burying them inside the paper" on the theory that the nation was sufficiently aroused to be further aroused by hearing what the America First leaders had to say.

The speakers, including Senator Nye and others did not disappoint the editors. Nye electrified a Bridgeport audience by telling the public that by working in defense plants, and by turning non-defense plants into defense work they were laying the groundwork for the complete financial ruin of the city.

The North Dakotan painted a horror picture of a Bridgeport with no work, no money, hardly anything to eat after the defense boom was over, and informed them how foolish they were to throw themselves into the defense construction campaign with such enthusiasm.

Other speakers condemned critics of Lindbergh's anti-Semitic speech at Des Moines, and the new commander of the American Legion was called in one address a "Benedict Arnold," hoodwinked into being one by Frank Knox.

My Week by Eleanor Roosevelt

AN ENTERTAINING EVENING We had an interesting evening when we watched some short documentary films, and then two gentlemen, Mr. Charles L. Todd and Mr. Soakin, who have been making recordings of interesting folk songs and dance music in the migratory camps on the West coast, for the Library of Congress, played some of the records.

One, a song by a boy of 14, was a gem, though he was covered with confusion and ran away when he heard it played! Many of the records, like the song written by a woman about her trip from Texas to the West, were heart-rending, in spite of the fact that one could not help laughing at certain little twigs of language and expression.

These recordings are going to be historically interesting, but the inspiring thing to me is that people can live through such hardships and still have music in their souls and the ability to express themselves hopefully. Mr. Todd told me that when they have a dance, or are happy, over the prospect of work on some small event in their daily lives, these people apparently seem to be able to enjoy themselves with complete forgetfulness of the past and the future. They have learned what so many of us do not learn—that the present is the only thing we really possess.

CHINESE PHILOSOPHY

That night I read a little volume arranged for publication by Stuart Wood Cobb. It is called, "The Wisdom of Wu Ming Fu," and is a collection of his translated poems and sayings. The Chinese philosophy over the centuries has come to the same conclusion as our migrants, and they would agree with Mr. Fu that "it should be our concern to make each present moment perfect."

'WE HOLD THESE TRUTHS'

The next day was most beautiful, and four of us went by car to Sugar Loaf mountain and basked in the sun, with a beautiful view spread out below us. After lunch, in the shade of some trees, with the rocks as our seats, we read aloud the preface to a short anthology called "We Hold These Truths," compiled by Stuart Gerry Brown of Grinnell, Iowa.

This address impressed me, for I know two pretty good representatives of what American citizenship means, who are now in Washington and who have had close association with this same place in the past. This anthology is a collection of documents, written by our great men over the period of our whole history. Documents which all of us frequently want and should turn to, to clarify our own beliefs.

One afternoon I received Dr. Juan Carlos Blanco, the ambassador of Uruguay and Madame Blanco, and Mr. Fernand Dennis, the minister of Haiti, and Madame Dennis. They were my first diplomatic visitors for the fall, and they certainly were charming ones.

Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau dined with us that night, and the next day Mrs. Morgenthau was catching up on some of the civilian defense work on which we are going to work together in the coming months. I find a wealth of volunteers who are anxious to do something useful, but I shall not be satisfied until I begin to see people actually at work in communities all over the country. That is where the real civilian defense must have its roots.

By proxy, that day, I learned a good deal about my new job, because Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. met the staff in the morning, and sat in on Director LaGuardia's meeting. In the afternoon, she met with another group, which discussed the complexities of the jurisdiction of work. All existing organizations will finally be drawn into a pattern where everybody will do his best with the least possible friction.

Anybody with experience knows what this can mean in the way of difficulty during the period of organization. A hundred times a day I shall wish what I have so often wished in the past, that human beings could be reconstructed overnight. If we would think only of the objectives to be achieved and never of the instruments to be used, least of all ourselves, how much more we could accomplish.

Great teachers through the ages have tried to teach us that this is the only efficient way of working and, perhaps, in the end, the only way through which any civilization can be saved. However, we do not always believe these teachers.

'DIGGING FOR MRS. MILLER'

I read through a little book called "Digging for Mrs. Miller," by John Strachey. It is an account of the experiences of an air raid warden in England. It is certainly different from anything I have ever read by him before. He is dealing with facts, whereas in the past he has dealt almost always with theories. It is a valuable little book and will enable people to visualize daily life for the ordinary man and woman where total defense is required.

The No. 10 has a large capacity, gravity-feed hopper; the No. 10-C is equipped with feed conveyor. By removing screens and hammers in the No. 10-C, you can use it as an ensilage cutter—a feature many livestock feeders and dairymen will like. The McCormick-Deering line is the complete line of feed-grinding equipment. Besides these two mills, we have the new No. 5 Hammer Mill (slightly smaller capacity than the No. 10 and No. 10-C), the No. 2 Roughage Mill, and a complete line of plate-type Feed Grinders.

AAA Allotments
Are Due Nov. 1

Speeding up work to get 1942 AAA allotments to farmers by November is the gigantic task facing county offices now. Vernon C. Willhoit, chairman of the Lynn county AAA committee announced this week. Allotments are being issued about six months before the usual time since all decks must be cleared for the house-to-house canvass in the national defense program, the AAA official said. The farm plan sheet method, through which farmers plant crops for maximum payments under the AAA program, will be used by committeemen in the feed and food campaign.

Since greater production of milk, eggs, and other foodstuffs is being asked of Texas farmers, county goals will be announced in a few weeks, Willhoit said. Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard outlined details of the defense program to southern agricultural workers in Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29 and 30. Flexibility of the AAA program to curtail production of surplus commodities and at the same time increase production of commodities essential to defense needs is evidenced in the 1942 AAA program which has been designed to meet a national emergency, Willhoit said. Cotton, wheat, rice and peanut allotments will be established as in former years but no general allotments will be made because of the increased emphasis on feed and food. Allotments will also be established for commercial Irish potatoes. When details of the 1942 program are received, educational meetings will be held in the various communities, the chairman said.

Here's New Set of Tea Towel Motifs

UTENSILS applied in the color that is to be accented in the kitchen—shall we say yellow or red—would be pretty for this set of tea towels. Lovelier still are these designs when delicate, harmonizing tints or shades are used for the flower appliques as an accent.

The panholder in 29341, 15 cents, with its plaid effect, may be made up using small pin checks. Various motifs—the cup, sugar bowl, or salad bowl might be used to adorn the corners of luncheon cloths, while a single flower, leaf and tendril could be placed in napkin corners for a set of distinct individuality. INSTALLMENT SIX

THE STORY SO FAR: Larry Cutter fell in love with Jacqueline (Jack) Anthony, pretty public stenographer at the Hotel Rayne. When she told him about her longing for travel, he said she could realize her ambitions by marrying him. Jacqueline had just lost her life's savings in the stock market, and her father had recently left her when she refused him additional money for work on his inventions. Stunned by this double blow, she accepted his proposal and they signed a contract permitting her to continue her mode of living, and to nullify the marriage after six months. They drove home in silence after being married in a nearby town. Now continue with the story.

Jacqueline's heart was obsessed with a vague sadness that deepened with each passing mile. She was not sure she cared to analyze it. There was a little fear in her mind as well. It was all so unreal. Courtland street at last. The roadster stopped before the door of 907. Jacqueline had already formulated a plan of procedure. With a quick move, she opened the car door, stepped out and closed it behind her. "Good night . . ." she began. Then she gave an unsteady laugh. "I came very near saying that I . . . had a nice time. I did!"

"Thank you," Larry's hands were gripping the wheel hard. "I will see you soon . . . But you needn't worry. About anything."

And Jacqueline was gone. Into the vestibule where she fitted her key into the lock with trembling fingers. Down the long gloomy hall. Home again.

CHAPTER IV

Jacqueline sat up in bed with a start to discover the sun streaming in her two windows. For a moment, she could not locate herself. The early hours of the night had been terrifyingly long, filled with a jumble of memories, misgivings and loneliness. Then broken sleep, with another jumble of dreams. The final one had something to do with a strange boat, manned by blacks . . . All of them looked like that roadhouse waiter with the white teeth. A storm brewing and Larry missing. Jacqueline was searching for him . . .

Ten o'clock . . . the first day of married life. Jacqueline Cutter's sense of humor failed her utterly as she reconstructed, little by little, the events of the day before. She was strangely depressed and equally disinclined to admit the real reason. This sort of thing wouldn't do, she told herself sternly. It was Sunday. Her time for doing odd jobs about the apartment. There was the bathroom floor to be washed. Dusting. Mending.

Her first task was to slip across the room and find that ring, still lying neglected under a chair. Jacqueline stood by the window and inspected the little badge, a plain gold circle, for the first time . . . Oh!

There were initials on the inner circumference. Jacqueline held the ring nearer the window. Very fine and small. "L. C. to J. A." and a date. Yesterday. Suddenly, everything about her marriage took on a disconcerting sense of permanency. Caught by a sudden impulse, she started to slip the ring on her finger. She hesitated. There was no harm in wearing it here alone. Perhaps it would help . . .

Silly! The bride laid the ring on her dressing table and walked away from it. The hours dragged endlessly as one housekeeping task after the other was accomplished. Jacqueline made a listless attempt to read the Sunday paper. She scanned the headlines of the news section, cast aside the comic sheets, sports . . . financial.

That reminded her. She crossed to her dressing table and found the contract and the envelope Larry had given her. Hesitatingly, she broke the seal. There were a number of folded documents that looked like those hated stock certificates, only heavier. Opened out, the bond apparently was for $1,000.00. She folded the paper with trembling hands and looked at its mates. All alike. Ten of them. "Ten thousand dollars!" She said it aloud, in an awed voice. And Larry had said they were the same as money . . . to do as she liked with! No wonder he had suggested a safe deposit box! They must go in tomorrow. Together with the contract, the marriage certificate and . . . the ring. Oh, yes. The ring, too. Throughout Monday morning, those bonds weighed heavily upon Jacqueline's mind. She buried the bundle deep in a desk drawer. When lunch time came, she would hurry to the bank and get rid of them . . . if she didn't see Larry in the meantime. She dreaded seeing him, yet she wanted to. She had made up her mind to ask him to take the bonds back. It seemed such a prodigious amount of money to be responsible for. And it didn't seem quite right. Not at all right. But Jacqueline dismissed her dreams, and at one o'clock when there was no sign of Larry, the bonds and their accompanying documents were carried to the Second National. Jacqueline gave a sigh of relief when the heavy gates of the deposit vaults clashed softly behind her.

Her secret seemed buried in a measure. That was the great trouble. No one knew. To go about as if nothing had happened . . . weighed down with a momentous secret. It was becoming rather unbearable. And how long was it to go on?

All that afternoon, Jacqueline found herself glancing furtively at the figures hurrying or strolling past her little workshop. She would not admit it to herself, but she was watching for those familiar broad shoulders, a figure in gray tweeds, walking with an easy swinging stride.

She found herself wondering what Larry had done Sunday. What he might be doing today. Did he remember everything? Did he want— Five o'clock came. Five-thirty. With a little sigh, Jacqueline started clearing her desk for the day. She opened the little tin box in the top drawer and was about to transfer the day's receipts to her purse, when a drawing voice behind her inquired, "Could you take a letter . . . Miss Anthony?"

It was Mr. Cutter, Larry . . . her husband. Smiling down at her in that friendly, impersonal fashion of his.

Jacqueline strove to match his attitude, even as she reached into

"Do you really have a letter to write?"

her desk automatically for a letter-head. Larry, meantime, had dropped into the official chair and was regarding her gravely.

"How are you today?" "I'm fine, thank you."

"That's good. I'm . . . glad." Jacqueline had herself in hand now.

"Do you really have a letter to write?" "No fooling." He held up some papers in proof. "It's to Todman, Kell, Limited. Montreal. Gentlemen . . ."

He began his dictation hesitatingly, frowning his way through the introductory paragraphs, then speaking more rapidly. Jacqueline gave her complete attention to the writing, relieved that her first nervousness had disappeared. There must be no errors in this letter.

It proved to be rather lengthy. "Will that be all?" she inquired. "For now. Address a long envelope, if you have one. How much is it?"

"Why . . ." After all, one scarcely could charge one's husband for a letter! "No nonsense!" Larry cut in sharply. "Regular rates."

"Seventy-five cents," she managed meekly. Larry read the letter, leisurely, signed it and placed it in the envelope. He seemed in no haste to leave. What was he going to say?

"You must write a lot of letters, off and on," he speculated. "Do your customers bind you to secrecy?"

Jacqueline laughed in spite of herself. "Some of them do," she admitted. "But that's a joke. Two minutes after I write a letter, I couldn't tell you what was in it. I hear the words and put them down. That's all."

"That's odd. But I can figure it. I'll be having some letters for you now and again. I think it might be well if you made an exception in my case."

"How do you mean?" "I mean that it might be a good idea to remember what I write about."

"But why?" Jacqueline's curiosity was roused. "I was thinking I might want an alibi some time. You never can tell. And that reminds me. I'm going away tomorrow night."

"Are you?" It was said with a credible lack of concern. "Yes. Running out to Chicago to check up on a matter. I'll be back here, though. This is headquarters, from now on. Do you know the law firm of Hicks and Hicks?"

"I've heard of them."

"Wouldn't wonder. Young Randolph Hicks is a friend of mine. If you ever have occasion to talk to him, he's a square shooter."

"Thank you. I've no reason to consult a lawyer . . . that I know of. Have I?"

"Of course not. But, you see . . . well, if I ever were to need one of those guys they call an executor, Rannie would be it. You'd find that out."

"You mean . . . he knows?" The tone of the question was cold. Larry had promised that no one need be told.

"Yes. But you can trust him absolutely. I had to tell him, because I have an estate . . . now. You should know about the arrangement. But that isn't what I wanted to talk about. Seeing I'm going away for a time . . . I wondered if I mightn't have a little talk with you. Maybe we could go . . . to another movie."

"I don't believe so."

"I get you. I know I shouldn't have asked. I'm sticking to the rules, but it's a little harder than I figured." He grinned ruefully. "This is off the record, but . . . Yesterday, I was as lonesome as . . . hell! Had to sit on my hands all afternoon and evening to keep from picking up my phone . . . Calling you. I thought if I could only say hello it would help. Forgive me. I guess I'll get used to it after a bit. Anyway, I promise to be good." He rose to his feet, as if to make sure.

Jacqueline's heart gave a disturbing little jump. Larry had missed her, too!

"Then it's no movies." He said it wistfully. Like a small boy.

"No. I think we should not go . . . places."

"Right. I'm leaving late tomorrow night. I'll pop my head in and say good-by . . . If you don't mind."

"Mr. Cutter . . ." Jacqueline called his name in a desperate little voice. He was leaving.

"Yes, Miss Anthony?"

She swallowed hard. "I don't think I'd care about going out tomorrow evening. But I expect to be at home . . ."

"Then you mean I may call?" Larry's face was wreathed in smiles.

"If you'd like to."

"If I like! About eight?"

Jacqueline scarcely recognized her own voice as she answered that question. "Seven. We . . . we'll have dinner at my place. I can't fix anything elaborate. But if . . ."

"Boy! I'll be there on the dot! And you can't possibly reach me, in case you change your mind. So don't try."

He went out, whistling a gay little tune under his breath. Jacqueline sat staring after him, uncertain whether to laugh or to cry. What had this man done to her, anyway? She had invited him to dine with her. At her apartment. She never had served dinner there except to herself, and that not often. And now she was going to feed a man!

A vision of Larry in the cafeteria came before her eyes . . . that formidable array of "civilized grub" weighing down his tray. How could her kitchenette ever satisfy him?

Jacqueline ate a hurried dinner in a restaurant at a safe distance from the hotel, trying frantically to vision a menu that would satisfy a man and still be within the resources of her very diminutive kitchen and its appointments.

Larry liked roast beef. He had eaten it in the cafeteria that night, ordered it again for their wedding dinner. Quite out of the question. A chicken! Of course. She could get one from the delicatessen . . .

Roasted. Sweet potatoes . . . Candied, if she had not forgotten how. Another vegetable. And salad . . . The world looked brighter.

Some of Edgar's rolls. Ice cream. Coffee.

"I want a roasted chicken tomorrow night," she was explaining to fat Mr. Hildebrand in the delicatessen, a little later. "It must be beautifully done, crisp. And have it ready at six sharp," she added importantly.

"Ah! It gifts company then?" beamed the jovial Hildebrand. "It shall be a beautiful fowl. I see to it myself, Miss. How big?"

"Gorgeous! I don't know. As big a chicken as a man likes . . ."

Once within her room, Jacqueline stood looking about almost in despair at this newest prospect. So much to do! And everything must be nice. Her eye fell upon Vince's picture on the mantel. There seemed to be a quizzical twinkle in his eyes. "It's nothing to laugh at, Vince," she told him with a little sigh. "You . . . your son-in-law is coming to dinner."

Things I Just Found Out About Newspaper Features

The California legislature in 1899 passed a law prohibiting publication of cartoons in newspapers . . . Only one important daily newspaper doesn't run comic strips—the New York Times . . . The most universally popular story, "Robinson Crusoe," and the most influential American novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," (it is credited with fomenting the Civil war) appeared first as newspaper serials.

The first serial in an American newspaper was Defoe's "A Religious Courtship," in a Pennsylvania gazette. It wasn't completed because the agonistic Ben Franklin took over the paper and threw it out . . . Franklin published the first newspaper cartoon in this country . . . Paul Revere was a newspaper cartoonist. So were John Barrymore and Gary Cooper.

Early U. S. newspapers took care of "syndication" themselves. They clipped freely from each other, and anything good that appeared, for example, in Thomas Fleet's excellent Boston Post was sure to be republished throughout the Colonies. Fleet, by the way, put stories told to his son by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Goose, into a book and made her the immortal Mother Goose. But Fleet's paper printed no story of the Battles of Lexington and Concord in its next issue, because, "The unhappy transactions of last week are so variously related that we shall not at present undertake to give any particular account thereof!"

The first popular serial writers were Horatio Alger Jr. and Mary Jane Holmes, developed by the N. Y. Sun. And, believe it or not, the 60-year-old "Lena Rivers," by Miss Holmes, last year topped sales of Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and Roberts' "Oliver Wiswell" . . . The longest novel in history is Adele Garrison's (real name, Mrs. Martin White) story of one couple's married life, called "Pitfalls of Love." It has appeared in newspapers every week-day since 1915—more than 5,750,000 words.

AAA To Determine Average Lint Yield

Determining an average lint yield and premium rate per acre for every cotton farm in Lynn county is the first task to be accomplished under the cotton crop insurance program, Vernon C. Willhoit, chairman of the Lynn county AAA committee, has announced.

Until these figures have been approved by the State AAA Committee and Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, applications cannot be accepted, the AAA official explained.

"We hope to start writing insurance applications in the county later in the fall, however, detail work will not begin until 1942 farm allotments have been determined, Willhoit said in explaining that all allotments would be issued by November 1 in order that the food-for-defense program could get under way.

The 1934-1940 cotton history for a farm will be the basis of determining the average lint yield for a farm. In the event historical data is not available, appraised figures will be used in determining the average yield, he explained.

Premium rates, which will reflect as nearly as possible the crop insurance risks on the farm, will be taken from losses shown in the base period. By this method, each farm will have an individual rating and the possibility of the good farmers carrying part of the risk cost of the poor farmer will be avoided, the AAA official pointed out.

The crop insurance program, under which 50 percent or 75 percent of the average yield may be insured protects the farmer against hail, rain, flood, drought and other factors over which they have no control. It does not insure losses because of poor seed, poor management, or failure to plant cotton at the proper time of year, the chairman said.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Long were in Lubbock Sunday and their daughter Jessie Jean accompanied them home.

TOMORROW

The chemical laboratories of the petroleum industry are now laying the foundation for industries of the future.

Out of their research are being created new products and more efficient ways of making old ones. Synthetic rubber, plastics, explosives, basic chemicals and scores of other essentials developed in petroleum laboratories are already being made on a commercial scale.

These scientific discoveries of materials vital to peace-time needs, as well as National defense, are opening up new fields of industrial activity.

Texas as the leading oil State is playing an important part in the creation of these new American enterprises. As a result, many young Texans now preparing themselves in our schools and colleges will find places in the industries resulting from this research.

The test tubes of today make the jobs of tomorrow.

PIE PERFECTION—A WINNER EVERY TIME (See Recipes Below)

AMERICA'S FAVORITE DESSERT

Confess now, how often would you turn down a tart lemon pie, a deep-dish apple pie, or a juicy cranberry one with the bright berries peeking out of the lattice crust?

Lemon Angel Pie. (Makes one 8-inch pie) 4 egg yolks 3/4 cup sugar 1/4 cup lemon juice 1 tablespoon butter 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Meringue. 2 egg whites, beaten until frothy 4 tablespoons sugar 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Flaky Pie Crust. 2 cups flour 3/4 cup shortening 3/4 teaspoon salt About 1/2 cup ice water

Delicious Rhubarb Pie. 1 1/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca 1 1/2 cups sugar 3/4 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon grated orange rind 1 tablespoon melted butter 4 cups cut rhubarb 1 pie crust

Coconut Custard Pie. (Makes one 9-inch pie) 2 egg yolks 1 1/2 cups milk 1/2 cup sugar 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 teaspoons gelatin 1/4 cup cold water

LYNN SAYS: To keep your pie crust short, have the shortening and water ice cold.

Avoid rolling extra flour into the dough for this makes tough pastry.

Pie crust should be baked quickly on the lower shelf of the oven to prevent sogginess.

Apple Pie. 1 recipe flaky pie crust 2 pounds cooking apples 1 1/2 cups sugar 2 teaspoons cinnamon 2 tablespoons butter 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch

Pare, core, and slice apples. Mix with sugar, cinnamon, and cornstarch. Fill pie tin which has been covered with crust and dot fruit with butter.

Tang and color are this cranberry pie's delectable recommendations, so make enough to have seconds.

Spicy Cranberry Pie. (Makes one 9-inch pie) 1 recipe pie crust 4 cups cranberries 2 1/2 cups sugar 2 tablespoons lemon juice Grated rind of 1 lemon 1 teaspoon cinnamon 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch 1/2 cup water

Wash and pick over berries. Bring to a boil with the water, add sugar, boil gently, being careful not to break berries.

There are pies in which you bake just the crust, pies in which you bake crust and filling, and other pies which you don't bake at all.

Soak gelatin in cold water. Cook egg yolks, milk and sugar in double boiler until thick and pour over gelatin.

Combine cereal crumbs, sugar and butter and press evenly around the sides and bottom of a pie pan.

In making a successful meringue, beat the egg whites until stiff and glossy, then blend in sugar completely to prevent beads of syrup from forming on top of the meringue.

CHRIST OUR SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:25-28; Luke 19:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

"I believe in God, the Father Almighty, . . . and in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord . . . I believe in the Holy Ghost." How often we have solemnly repeated these words in the Apostles' Creed, and how appropriate it is that our present three month series of lessons on great Christian teachings should begin last Sunday with a study of God, the Creator and heavenly Father, and continue today with Christ the Saviour, and present next Sunday the Holy Spirit, the Comforter.

These are profound Christian truths, but at the same time they are so simple as to be grasped by the youngest child. Today we have the great privilege of presenting in our classes our Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. He was

I. The Self-Denying Servant (Matt. 20:25-28).

Scripture clearly teaches that God's standards are not the same as the world's standards, and that His methods of operation are just the opposite of those of the world.

1. The False Greatness of the World (v. 25). "Rulers"—"greatness"—"exercise authority"—how altogether up-to-date these words sound. They are the big and swelling words of the small hearts and minds which rule after the manner of this world.

2. The Humility of True Greatness (vv. 26, 27). Service in the spirit of humility and self-sacrifice—this is the standard of Christ. Yes, and it is His command to His followers.

How often service in the church is rendered in a spirit of pride, self-glory, and for the commendation and reward of men.

3. Christ Our Example (v. 28). He paid the price of our redemption, going to the death of Calvary for us.

II. The Seeking Saviour (Luke 19:1-10). There is much that is precious and beautiful to be said about our Lord, but perhaps nothing which brings Him so close to needy humanity as the fact that He had "come to seek and to save that which was lost" (v. 10). He was

1. Ever Interested in Sinners (vv. 1-7). Jesus was on this occasion coming up to Jerusalem for the last time. The cross was ahead. He was much taken up with His coming death and greatly straitened in spirit (see Mark 10:32 and Luke 12:50).

Zacchaeus was a man despised for his calling of tax collector, and hated for his dishonesty. He was an outcast from his own people and a stranger to God's grace, but Jesus was interested in him.

2. Always Able to Save Sinners (vv. 8-10). Zacchaeus was a rich man, but he was a sinner. It is not easy for a rich man to be saved, but it can be done (see Matt. 19:23-26).

The answer is that the former admitted that he was a sinner and thus made it possible for Christ to save him, while the latter loved himself and his gold more than Christ and shut the door against His redeeming love.

OWNERS

Certificate of Title Act

SECTION 63, PARAGRAPH "C"

The owner of a Motor Vehicle registered in this state shall NOT after January 1, 1942, operate or permit the operation of any such Motor Vehicle upon any highways without first obtaining a Certificate of Title therefor from the State Highway Department, nor shall any person operate any such Motor Vehicle upon the public highways knowing or having reason to believe that the owner has failed to obtain a Certificate of Title therefor. This does not apply to vehicles purchased new prior to January 1, 1936.

SECTION 63, PARAGRAPH "B"

The State Highway Department or any agent thereof SHALL NOT after the first of January, 1942, register or renew the registration of any Motor Vehicle, unless and until the owner thereof shall make application FOR AND BE GRANTED an official Certificate of Title for such vehicle or present satisfactory evidence that a Certificate of Title for such vehicle has been previously issued to the owner by the State Highway Department. IT WILL NOT BE POSSIBLE FOR A PERSON TO FILE AN APPLICATION FOR TITLE AND REGISTER HIS VEHICLE AT THE SAME TIME. As this section provides that the owner shall make application for and be granted a Certificate of Title, and the filing of an application for Certificate of Title does not necessarily mean a title will be issued.

Each and every Motor Vehicle owner that does not have a Certificate of Title for their vehicle is requested to make application and secure a Certificate of Title before January 1, 1942, as the above laws make it a violation to operate the vehicle after January 1, 1942, unless the owner has a Certificate, and he will not be allowed to re-register unless they have a title.
