Well-Known Marine Killed on Iwo-Jima

Last Thursday, March 8, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Aten received a message Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Revs. Kil-from the War Department stating born and Hale will conduct the serthat their son, Buford, had been killed on Iwo Jima on Feb. 19th. This undoubtedly happened at the very beginning of the invasion by the Marines of that Jap Island. Bu-ford was with the 5th Division. The AT SHOWER message was one of the stunning ever received by this community. Following is the text of the teleperformance of his duty and service to his country. When information is received regarding burial you will be notified. To prevent possible aid to our enemies do not divulge the name of the ship or station. Please accept my heartfelt sympathy. Letter follows. A. A. Vandergrift, I.t. Gen. USMC Commandant.

He was born Feb. 24, 1924 and finished school here in 1941 with very high honors. He was especially outstanding in athletics: football, baskketball, boxing, and track. He entered the U. S. Marines, 5th Div., Nov. 28th. 1942. After some 8 weeks of boot training at San Diego. Cal. he was transfered to Indian Island.

near Washington State, as a guard.

There he had intensive training in markksmanship and it isn't strange that he was soon decorated since he was an expert marksman when he special training on Indian Island. leton, and Jordan. during which time he came home on Pendleton, Calif. He went to September 18, 1944.

Buford was most thoughtful of his parents and other members of the family during his absence having written regularly. Apparently he had a premonition that he was about to make the supreme sacrifice, and had made specific recommendations to his parents. He had been identified of Camp Fannin was home for a 10 his parents. He had been identified day furlough. He was visiting with with the Methodist Church since early childhood, and quite awhile ago Scores and scores of friends have done their very best in genuine heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Survivers are: The parents: Mrs. Mildred Silver, Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Marie DeBusk, El Monte, Cal.; Pat. S.N., somewhere in the Atlantic; Mrs. Elva Stewart, McGregor; and Mrs. Estelle Jackson. Levelland.

The Index joins with O'Donnell in extending our heart-feit sympathy to the loved ones. Losing Buford is a deep community loss. We will cherish his memory among the nam es of 12 or 14 others from O'Donnell who gave their life that you and I and unborn generations may enjoy the American way of life.

Notes of a Newspaper Man:

This, they tell you, happened at the Big 3 conference. . . . One evening after dinner Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin started speculating on what nationality they'd prefer to be if they couldn't be their own. . . . Churchill said: "If I couldn't be British I'd want to be American."
. . . Roosevelt said: "If I wasn't American, I'd be British." . . . Stalin said: "If I wasn't Russian I'd be ashamed of myself!"

During the recent run of the Theater Guild's "Embezzled Heaven," the star, Ethel Barrymore, was rushed to the hospital with pneumonia. She was placed in an oxygen tent. . . . President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill were among the many who sent posies and telegrams, and for a few weeks everyone despaired of her pulling through . Finally, the worst was over and the star was permitted to sit up in bed and answer the phone. . . . The first caller was the Guild's Theresa

"Hello," she cheerily said, "how's your cold?"

The other night a Hungarian playwright was told an actor had arrived from Hungary.... "Do you know him?" he was asked.

"Know him?" was the retort. "He's my best friend. I hate him!"

Our recent paragraphs about misplaced commas brought the one about the London Daily Mail, which has a reputation for making fewest errors. . . . All sorts of editorial supervision was employed-bonuses were offered the staff to maintain the highest standards, etc. But the Mail was still less than perfect.

Finally, the editor summoned the staff and announced: "Hereafter, the first copy will be printed on special stock and sent to the King of England."

Editorial blunders dropped 90 per cent.

A Texan in London was trying to impress some Britishers with the size of his home state. "Do you know," he said, "that in Texas you can hop on a railroad car at 8 in the morning and still be in Texas after riding 24 hours?"

"We," replied a Britisher, "have trains like that in England, too.

It happened at the premiere of "One Man Show." . . . The curtain was up and a woman was making big to-do as she got into her seat, huffing and puffing. . . . Seated near her was George Luddy, the Indianborn author. . . . He polished her off neatly by audibly remarking: "Don't worry about her. She's so used to the second balcony-that sitting in the orchestra tonight has given her the shakes."

The exciting stories from Manila included the one about an American radio reporter who was freed after three years as a Jap prisoner. He was forced off the air one day as the Japs entered the city. The other morning, said the papers, he resumed broadcasting this way: "As I was saying when I was so rudely interrupted-"

De Valera of Eire was arrested while speaking at a street meeting several years ago. When he was freed years later, his first statement was: "As I was saying when I was so rudely interrupted--

Margalo Gillmore, the actress, was anxious to become a nurse's aide but found she didn't have enough stamina for the work-being frightened by the sight of blood, etc. So she compromised by becoming a Grey Lady (one who reads to the convalescent servicemen, etc.) . . . Margalo was telling Carolyn Burke about her duties. . . . "Just what is a Grey Lady?" asked Carolyn. . . . "A Grey Lady in my case," said Margalo, "is a yellow nurse's aide."

There was the time the late Alex Woollcott was the victim of a typesetter's error. . . . The critic once referred to a famous recitalist as "a popular dieuse." It came out: "Popular disease."

When critic Rascoe covered the new play, "Hope for the Best," he was no little flattered that the principal comedy line (used intermittently throughout the three acts) was something he wrote many years, ago. It was: "Something no wife can ever understand, no matter if she lives with the man for 25 years, is that a writer is working when he is staring out of the window."

A group of newspapermen were gabbing about the current college stories-the basketball scandal and the race discrimination report on dental colleges. One of the scribes said: "No matter what kind of a coflege yarn I write, I never have to worry about my punch-line." "Howcum?" asked a chronic-how-

HONOLULU.—The hour of leaving came at last.

Usually when starting overseas, you don't get away on the day the transportation people originally set for you. I remember when I first started going to war, how impatient at delay I would be, and how I would fret myself into a frenzy over every day of waiting. But time changes things like that.

It was night when we left San Francisco. We flew in a huge fourmotored land plane, operated by the naval air transport service. In the navy they call it "NATS," as though it spelled a word.

The army's equivalent is ATC. I've flown on both of them so much I feel like a stockholder. They fly all over the world on clock-like schedule, over all the oceans and all the continents, carrying wartime mail and cargo and passengers. I've flown the Atlantic four times, but this was my first flight across the Pacific. You go non-stop from California to Hawaii. It's about the same distance as crossing the continent, yet it was as easy as flying from Albuquerque to Los Angeles.

We left shortly after supportime, and were over Honolulu a little after daylight next morning. There was simply nothing unusual at all to report about it. Shortly after we took off I got some blankets and lay down on the floor in the rear of the plane. When I woke up it was just getting daylight, and we had only an hour to go. That's the way I like to fly

Served by Natives In Tropical Setting

All of us had left California in our woolen winter uniforms. But when we stepped out of the plane in Honolulu, those heavy clothes almost made us sick. By the time we got through the formalities and left the field, we were all dripping and swabbing ourselves.

In Honolulu I stayed in the home of a naval friend. The first thing we did was take a shower bath, change to light khaki clothes, and eat a plateful of beautiful yellow papaya. A naval houseboy named Flores, a native of Guam, took care of us. He washed our clothes and made our beds and fixed us fruit juice and papaya all day long.

The sun shone brightly and white trees rustled like rain, and the deep whistles of departing ships came from the harbor below us. This, truly, was the Pacific.

The trip over had not exhausted me, but the change of climate did, and for a day I did nothing but loaf-and recover from Americaand bask in being warm.

There is no rationing of anything in Honolulu, and no blackout any longer either. Rationing doesn't exist because practically everything here is considered military, and also gets monotonous. because shipping space from the mainland is an automatic rationer.

The great number of uniforms on few are the most vivid reminders the vast growth and construction that has occurred since Pearl Har-

Distance Biggest

Factor in Pacific Covering this Pacific war is, for me, going to be like learning to live in a new city.

The methods of war, the attitude toward it, the homesickness, the distances, the climate-everything is different from what we have known in the European war.

Here in the beginning, I can't seem to get my mind around it, or get my fingers on it. I suspect it will take months to get adjusted and get the "feel" of this war.

Distance is the main thing. I don't mean distance from America so much, for our war in Europe is a long way from home too. I mean distances after you get right on the battlefield.

For the whole western Pacific is our battlefield now, and whereas distances in Europe are hundreds of miles at most, out here they are thousands. And there's nothing in between but water.

You can be on an island battlefield, and the next thing behind you is a thousand miles away. One soldier told me the worst sinking feeling he ever had was when they had landed on an island and were fighting, and on the morning of D-3 helooked out to sea and it was completely empty. Our entire convoy had unloaded and left for more, and boy, did it leave you with a lonesome and deserted feeling.

As one Admiral said, directing this war is like watching a slowmotion picture. You plan something for months, and then finally the great day comes when you launch your plans, and then it is days or weeks before the attack happens, because it takes that long to get there.

As an example of how they feel. the navy gives you a slick sheet of paper as you go through here, entitled "Airline Distances in Pacific." And at the bottom of it is printed "Our Enemy, Geography." Logistics out here is more than a word; it's a nightmare. Here's another example of their attitude toward distances in the Pacific-

At Anzio in Italy just a year ago. the Third division set up a rest camp for its exhausted infantrymen. The rest camp was less than five miles from the front line, within

But in the Pacific, they bring men clear back from the western islands to Pearl Harbor to rest clouds ran an embroidery over the camps—the equivalent of bringing ridges of the far green hills. Palm an Anzio beachhead fighter all the an Anzio beachhead fighter all the way back to Kansas City for his two-weeks rest.

It's 3,500 miles from Pearl Harbor to the Marianas, all over water, yet hundreds of people travel it daily by air as casually as you'd go to work in the morning.

And there is another enemy out here that we did not know so well in Europe-and that is monotony. Oh sufe, war everywhere is monotonous in its dreadfulness. But out here even the niceness of life

The days are warm and on our established island bases the food is good and the mail service is the streets and the 10 o'clock cur- fast and there's little danger from the enemy and the days go by in of the war in Honolulu. That and their endless sameness and they drive you nuts. They sometimes call it going "pineapple crazy."

Our high rate of returning mental cases is discussed frankly in the island and service newspapers. A man doesn't have to be under fire in the front lines finally to have more than he can take without

Japanese Destroy Food In Their Flight on Luzon

Welding Shop on Wheels Is Big Help

Emergency Repairs Made on Field of Battle.

NEW YORK. - A highly mobile 'welding shop on wheels" that can traverse ground which proved impassable to most previous maintenance vehicles has been developed by General Electric, in cooperation with army engineers, to enable emergency repairs of damaged war equipment to be made right on the field of battle, the company dis-

Consisting of a standard army jeep bearing a specially perfected G-E are welder, this mobile repair shop, according to army reports, has proved invaluable in helping to keep front line equipment in fighting condition.

In weight the G-E welder jeep is equivalent to a one-quarter ton truck, whereas the equipment it replaced consisted of a five-ton truck towing a one and one-half ton welding trailer. This weight reduction, plus the jeep's great maneuverability, enables the vehicle to readily negotiate rugged or muddy ground where larger and heavier trucks broke down. When desired for use in air borne operations, it can also be loaded aboard a transport plane.

Power to operate the welding unit is obtained by means of a V-belt which is connected to the engine of the jeep. As soon as the vehicle is brought to a stop the unit can be put in use. Proper engine speed is maintained by a governor, quickly disengaged to permit normal operation of the jeep. The welding unit is installed in place of the right front seat of the jeep, allowing the vehicle to carry a crew of three men comfortably.

Before accepting the welder jeep for service the army subjected it to rigid tests on a 500-mile obstacle course, the same course on which combat tanks are tested, and is came through with flying colors.

Warehouses for Planes

captured. The war department, disclosing this recently, said the barges are towed up to the beachhead and 'pinch hit" as supply centers until ermanent buildings at newly-won bases are constructed. Each barge carries 5,000 different aircraft parts. When a part is needed, landing craft whisk it to jeeps on the beach. The granddaddy of the barges is an old Mississippi river scow borrowed from the navy, converted into

THIS IS THE SEASON FOR SCARLET FIVER

Austin, Texas, March 16 - There were 3.6 6 cases of scarlet fever reported in Texas during the year of 1941 according to statistics just reeased by the Texas State Department of Health.

Describing some symptoms which may indicate the presence of this disease. Ur. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that when a child is coming down with scarlet ever the parents may first notice that he seems tired and restless and out of sorts. Early definite signs are fever, sore throat, and vomiting. The kin is dry and hot to the touch. The tongue is furred and under this white coating red spots become visible within a few hours. The entire tongue gradually assumes a bright red color. If any of these symptoms appear. Dr. Cox said that scarlet fever should be suspected.

Some individuals, when attacked by the scarlet fever streptococci do not develop a rash because they are more or less immune to the rashproducing toxin. Cases of searlet fever in which the rash is missing are often confused with other illnesses. particularly sore throat, tonsillitis, er an acute cold. However, scarlet fever without the rash is just as contagious as scariet fever with a rush. In the former case the danger is sometimes not recognized and in that event quite likely nothing is done to keep the infection from spreading to other individuals.

Scarlet fever is reportable and quarantinable in Texas. Report any known cases to the health department. Cooperation in this respect is a community responsibility which will help to protect the health of children and reduce the incidence of this dangerous disease.

Erase '14 Blot At Tannenberg

Russ Reverse Hindenburg's Victory Over Czar Using World War I Plan.

LONDON. - The pages of history rolled back 31 years when the Russians recently captured Tannenberg and Gumbinnen with maneuver similar to that which back-fired in 1914 and cost the zeal of the crusades to a war against Czar's army 225,000 men, says the United Press.

In August, 1914, Gen. Paul Rennenkamp struck into East Prussia from the north and Gen. Alexander Samsonoff from the south. Samsonoff left his flanks exposed to attack across the Polish plains and by the end of the month two Russian corps had been annihilated and three others were cut to half their strength.

This time Gen. Ivan D. Chernyathovsky's Third White Russian ermy went in from the north and Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovky's Second White Russian army from the south-after first having welded a solid front along the Polish plains westward to the base of the Polish Corridor.

Fresh German Armies. In 1914 the German armies were fresh; the war was only a month pld. When disaster faced them in East Prussia, they called on Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, and he turned defeat to victory.

Tannenberg, the tiny town after which the battle was named, became a shrine of the Junkers. Hindenburg's body lies in a massive sepulchre there, surrounded by the graves of his men who fell.

Briefly, the Russian strategy in 1914 was for the two armies to strike and surround the Germans in East Prussia. The northern army, under Rennenkampf advanced first on August 17 and three days later captured Gumbinnen. On the 20th msonoff started to move northward with five army corps.

The German commander abandoned all hopes of defeating Rennenkampf and on the 21st decided to withdraw to the Vistula. The German supreme command superseded him and Hindenburg was sent

On the 26th the Germans attacked Samsonoff's flanks. By nightfall his left wing was knocked out near Dzialdowo. Then the right wing was knocked out. The Russians were demoralized. Then the Germans hit them from the rear.

Racial Pride High In East Prussia

For Centuries Stronghold of Militaristic Junkers.

LONDON. - East Prussia, split from Germany again by the thrust of Marshal Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army to Danzig bay, has been for centuries a stronghold of the militaristic Junkers.

Won by the swords of Teutonic knights who diverted the left-over the Lithuanians, and held for centuries in feudal pride, it is a province poor in physical resources but in historical incidents which rich feed the German notions of racial superiority, says the Associated Half its land is cultivated, half is forest, moor and bog. Exports formerly consisted chiefly of timber and grain. Amber was found in Samland. Fishing is important. Also there is some manufacturing in the larger towns although there are no great industries. At Koenigsberg there were machine and locomotive works.

East Prussia's contributions to the German pride of race are another matter. Ladino Clover Aids Farm Production

Returns Far Exceed Costs of Handling

NOT so many years ago, Ladino clover was almost unknown except in the irrigated valleys of the western states. Believed to have come originally from Lodi, Italy, the seed was first imported into the United States about 1900. Ladino clover is particularly valuable for grazing, according to U. S. agronomists, due to its high carry-ing capacity and large protein-min-eral nutritive content, but it is also adaptable for hay and silage and is an excellent cover crop. These characteristics make it especially suitable for the limited farming areas of states such as Vermont and New Hampshire, enabling farmers to grow most of the protein needed for their livestock, dairy and poul-

Its particular value has been found to lie in the handling of dairy cattle and poultry where a highyielding, nutritious, high - protein feed is needed. This versatile crop is being used increasingly for hay and silage, particularly when grown with other legumes and grasses, although if is primarily for grazing.

One hundred acres of test planting yielded 1,600 pounds of seed. It was harvested by a clipover combine, self-propelled, formerly used for soybeans. Pays to Fight Weeds

To control weeds the following points should be remembered: don't let weeds go to seed, buy only weedfree seeds and feeds, clean homegrown seeds carefully, grind or screen weed-freed grain, and don't let machinery spread weeds.

Run-down weedy pastures should be renovated and good rotation and cultural practices resorted to with intensive cultivation. It is possible to eradicate perennials with sodium

Anyone who doesn't recognize the situation, and doesn't rise to it, is failing America just as much as if he were a sentry asleep at his post. But unfortunately there are a good many men and women who are drifting along in the old lazy way, making their concessions to the times only in complaints and protests against war inconveniences.

Here is the case of a husband and wife whose lives seem unched by the world conflagration, but who are obviously suffering the nervous strain that is

Rhoda is 37. She has been married 11 years, and has three daughters, 10, 9 and 3 years of age. The middle child is a polio case and will never be well. Rhoda's husband is a dentist, 40 years old, and formerly a devoted husband and father, especially close to Tanya, the handicapped child.

A Pretty Nurse.

But in the last year, Rhoda writes me, Lew has changed. He has grown irritable and silent at home, he is often away. The cause is a pretty grass widow of 26, who is cards. Don't throw down your hand; a nurse in his office. There seems | call his bluff. Take the attitude that to be no question that Lew is in- Dolly is being something of a fatuated, and while he doesn't fool—a generous fool, of course, but talk of a divorce, Rhoda believes nevertheless a fool, to take up with that that is what he would ask if he dared.

"But he'd better not get that far," says Rhôda's letter. "It would ruin his practice in this town, where my father and mother are much be-loved, and he could hardly establish himself anywhere else, for he is almost entirely deaf.

"I do all the work of my house, with the older girl's help. I bathe, feed, amuse my darling little invalid, and manage that my baby has plenty of fresh air. Washing. cooking, dusting, planning are all up to me; certainly I show the fatigue and weariness that I feel at night; I am human, I get tired, discouraged, impatient, nervousknow it. But most of the time I am the mother the girls adore, and the cook and housekeeper that other women copy and consult.
"Mrs. Norris, Lew spends most of his money on this woman. He been seen dancing. They have spent nights together at the Mountain Inn. His present to her this year was a squirrel coat; I have never had a thing, as everyone knows. Concede him this per fume, and the girls toys and dresses; she picked them out, I your lasting happiness and sosuppose. He was away then, for curity.

A CHANCE TO LET DOWN

The emotional stress of war effects everyone. Many find new strength, unsuspected courage when crisis come. Others discover that the social upset gives them a chance to do what they've always secretly longed to do, but refrained from because of public disapproval.

The 40-year-old dentist discussed in this issue is a case in point. He has developed a passion for his office nurse, a pretty divorce of 26. She is going along with him, taking his presents and entertainment. His wife, Rhada. writes that she is "desperate." She has thought of suicide. His coldness and cruelty are "driving her crazy." They have three children, ranging in age from three to ten. Up to lately this dentist was apparently a devoted hus-band and father.

four days, and I think she was with him, though his story to me was that she was sick, at her married sister's house.

"He seems a different person; he hatdly seems sane. We have always loved each other; I feel as if I couldn't stand his complacency, his silences, his coldness and cruelty any longer. But what life do make for myself, tired, feeling 20 years older than I am, with three children to raise on alimony? I've thought of suicide, I've thought of everything, I'm desperate. Tell me what to do."

What you have to do, Rhoda, is to get it through your head once and for all that you hold all the fool-a generous fool, of course, but a married man, partially deaf, with three children. Wake her up in the night every week, asking if Lew is there; some patient wants him. Make yourself over with a new frock and a changed hair-do.

Appear Happy.

Be happily busy and absorbed with your girls, almost rueful when Lew decides to come home for dinner. A pretty happy wife, in pretty lounging pajamas, laughing over a supper of milk-toast and cookies, with her children around her, is a mighty attractive thing on a cold night. Resolutely refuse a divorce.

Following these tactics you'll find yourself happy again, and happiness is the one thing that draws a man back. As he tires of Dolly's charms -they always do-yours will begin to gain on him. Then treat the whole thing as a sickness-a weakness, which it is, and go into a new relationship of confidence and affectakes her home-two miles out of tion with a changed man. To men his way, every night, and often these adventures on the side are takes her out to dinner. They have not nearly as important as to their wives; he can have no respect for the complaisant Dolly, and what he does feel for her is not a lasting Concede him this period of ir-

Care of Wool Garments

Because the shock of freezing shrinks and hardens wool, it is usually best to dry woolen washables indoors in cold weather.

If wool clothes get wet or muddy, dry them slowly at room warmth, never close to a stove or radiator, and brush clean when dry.

When a wool garment gets a rest after a day or two of wear, the wool springs back and some wrinkles drop out, so less pressing is needed.

picked, cabbage almost as crisp as when it was first picked and green beans fork-tender and well seasoned.

Two rules to remember in vege table preparation are these: First, prepare your vegetable just before ready to cook. Don't let it stand in water to have the flavor and nutriments leeched out. Second, cook only until tender and then serve at once.

Another complaint that we frequently hear about vegetables is that they lack flavor. That's easily remedied. Coax out the natural flavor with cooking in salted water, then taste before serving and perhaps add a bit more salt, a dusting of pepper and melted butter or bacon dripping if you like a smoky flavor in your vegetable.

Sometimes a cream sauce will add interest to the vegetable, or perhaps a cheese sauce will bring out its best points. Today's recipes will give you the cues to making these vegetables a star attraction on your

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:21-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.—Matthew 6:14, 15

Forgiveness is the very essence of Christianity. In Christianity only do we find an adequate and proper dealing with sin, leading to forgiveness. In Christ alone do we find that forgiveness, cleansing and regenera-

Since God has so willingly and wonderfully provided for our forgiveness, it would seem that we would need no urging to make us forgiving in spirit toward one another. Yet it is indeed "a melancholy fact that there are few Christian duties so little practiced as that of forgiveness. It is sad to see how much bitterness, unmercifulness spite, harshness and unkindness there is among men" (J. C. Ryle). 1. The Extent of Forgiveness (vv.

21, 22). "How long do I have to stand it?" is the question of the human heart, especially if untouched by the spirit of Christ. The injustices of life, the offenses of our fellow men against us, all seem to pile up until the bur-den is about to crush us. What is the answer to man's question? The Jews had an answer. He said three times is enough. Forgive once, yes. Again, yes. But the third time, Peter was bighearted enough to more than double that allowance of mercy. He was willing to forgive not just two or three times, but seven times.

The spirit of Christ swept all of that aside. He said that one should forgive 70 times seven. In other words, Christian forgiveness is to be untiring, unlimited, to know no weariness and have no boundaries. If one really forgives, it is because he has a forgiving spirit, and that spirit is not exhausted by use, but rather grows by exercise.

A word of caution is in order at this point. Let no one suppose that our Lord's instruction means that offenses against the law of the land or against the good order of society are to be overlooked and condoned.

It relates rather to the cultivation of a personal spirit of forgiveness, the laying aside of revenge, of malice, of retaliation which do not become the Christian.

II. The Motive of Forgiveness (vv.

Two motives are given. The first is that since we ourselves are daily and hourly in need of forgiveness at the merciful hand of God, we should in turn be merciful toward those who sin against us. Compared with our offenses against the law of God, we know that the misdeeds of our neighbors against us are usually mere triffes. Remember what God has done for you, when you are tempted to be hard and ungracious with your brother.

The second motive is the remembrance that a day of judgment is to come. There is always a time of reckoning ahead, even as was the case with these servants. Remember not only what God has done for you and is doing for you, but what you must yet expect Him to do in that day of judgment. It will make you merciful and gracious in your judgment of others.

Forgiveness has a fine quality which commends itself to others. Note the sorrow of the fellow servants (v. 31). There is, then, a so-cial value in true forgiveness.

III. The Importance of Forgiveness (v. 35).

A man dealing with his fellow man is apt to think that it is merely a matter between man and man. We are not dealing with a straight line between ourselves and our brother (that was Peter's error), but with a triangle at whose apex is God Himself.

If I expect God to forgive me, I must let my forgiveness flow out to my brother. If I deal with him as though God had nothing to de with the matter, then I must not try to count God's forgiveness into the picture when I stand indebted before Him.

God does not play favorites. He is no respecter of persons. He is as interested in the other man as He is in me. The Christian should have the same spirit.

Here we need a word of explanation. Let no one suppose that our redemption in Christ is contingent upon what we do toward our brethren. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast" (Eph. 2:8, 9).

Nor does the truth of our lesson mean that we are somehow going to bargain with God, trading a bit of our forgiveness toward others for His forgiveness of us. God is not interested in such transactions. But it does mean that if you cannot or will not forgive, you may well consider whether you are a Christian at all, for it is Christlike iging from England to America Lark on's ship goes down. She is east upon an island, and Galt Withe, a bound ervant, rescues her. Lark is made prisat the inn by Cony and Mag, who are holding her for ransom. She escapes and is found by David North, her sweetheart, disguised as a gipsy to get line on the activities of one Dr. Mat-Galt arrives on the scene and tering the boat find Cony concealed in The two men fight, while the boat drifts back to the inn. Dr. Matson spares Galt's life at Lark's pleading, and later, while in a gypsy camp, Dr. Matson endeavors to identify David.

CHAPTER XIV

His face fell. "Your thoughts be ever on him, Lark," he said glumly, "and his but on his business. No, I don't think we can overtake him. Not tonight. 'Twill be all we can do to save our own skins."

"He's right," Ginko said. "Forget about David and get a quick start before the alarm goes out. Take the downhill path and work toward the beach. Matson, like as not, will think you've taken the highay to Norfolk and search that

For hours they raced their horses along the shore where the beach was firmed by the creeping tide. Red Raskall was by far the swifter of the two horses, and Galt had to orten his stride so that the smallblack Dosta might keep by his

As the sun reddened the eastern sky, they reached Cockle Creek and the Black Narrows. Galt said he ad fished all up and down this st and knew every little bay and Here was a good place, he ld Lark, to water their horses and Gratefully they curled up in the nd and were soon fast asleep. Lark wakened first and, rising on elbow, lay watching Galt. How ng he looked, lying there, how re-. . how beautiful. What ent strength he possessed, what aliness, she thought.

In a moment he opened his eyes and smiled at her. "I'm hungry." said, "simply starving. Looks he we'll have to find us some oys-

They could hear the farmer, searching around the house, seeking for a trace of them. They paused with their hands on the horses' bridles as the blast of an old-fashioned blunderbus shattered the silence of the night. The horses shied nervously. They whispered to them soothingly and patted their flanks.

Galt said, "We'd best be off, Lark. The stars are clouding over and it looks as if we might have a smart shower of rain. I'll feel better if we put this place behind us soon." He deposited the knife and the coins safely in the pouch at his waist.

The rain caught them before they had gone many miles and forced them to seek shelter in a barn on the far side of Longboat Creek. They were drenched and shivering, but crept deep into the hay and found what warmth they could.

Lark awoke next morning with chattering teeth and a hot flushed face. Her legs were cramped and her shoulders ached unbearably. It took all the strength she could musof the handful of eggs which Galt found in the hay and to allow him to help her mount Dosta in the early gray of the bleak autumnal morning.

The long day's riding was complete misery and, except for Galt's kindly consideration, would have been unendurable. The two horses, with the feeling of the road in them now, set their pace at a steady even gait. That night they were lucky enough to come on a hunter's lean-to in the Galt lifted Lark from the saddle and carried her tenderly inside the little shelter, piling what dry boughs and leaves he could find, for a couch. He laid a snare in the undergrowth and was fortunate enough to catch a wild rabbit. He slivered and whittled a branch into fine shavings with his cobby-knife, and, when he had started a fire with his flint and tinder, nursed it along with infinite care until it would take hold of a sizeable dry log he had been able to find in a corner of the lean-to. For a time the hot strengthening meat seemed to put fresh life into Lak, but toward midnight her fever rose and the chills gripped her once more. Galt sat helplessly by, chafing her cold hands and calling her name over and over again as she tossed and raved about the shipwreck, and about that first dreadful night on Ghost Island, when she had found Clink Swalters and had been unable to save him. Next morning there could be no thought of their continuing their journey. Lark was dreadfully ill, that was plain to be seen, and Galt was in a frenzy of anxiety. His nursing was awkward, but tenderly It comforted him considerably that in her raving she made no mention of David North's name. When night came he knew he would have to have help if he were to save Lark's life. She seemed asleep for the time being, or else she was sunk in a dreadful, deep unconsciousness. He wasn't sure, but he had to leave her for awhile. He

He had scarcely thought what story he would tell when the man of the house confronted him with the suspicious surliness accorded strangers in this section of the country.

"My wife is sick." Galt heard his own hurried voice mumbling those words, and knew in that instant that he wished they were the truth. "We're headed north from Norfolk toward Snow Hill Landing where her folks live. Can I buy a blanket and some food from you?"

"Un don't look old enough to have a wife," the man said consideringly.
"Bring her here, now do." A kindly-faced small woman pushed up be-hind him and peered out at Galt.

"Now do! Listen to the woman!" sakes do we know this boy ain't a thief? How do we know he ain't that very chap Sheriff told us to be on the lookout for, who stole a horse up Horntown-way? Fellow in town t'other day tole me to be on the watch. Come inside now, 'an let us get a good look at un." He held the door

Galt felt the red blood mounting into his unshaven cheeks. He took a step back out of the light.

"Do I speak like a bound boy?" he said haughtily. "My wife and I are gentlefolk, both of us. If you have food and a blanket to sell .

"What price un give me?" the man asked, his face lighting up with greed, his suspicions now evidently

"I'll pay you fair," Galt said, in an agony of impatience, as he stuck his hand in his pouch and jingled the coins.

The woman said, "I've got an extry homespun blanket and plenty meal an' larded fowl, Tom. We could use a bit of cash money with the taxes coming due. . . . I could add a bottle of my root tonic. It's mighty good for sick folks." She smiled at Galt.

When Tom didn't answer her, but ust stood there considering, she fetched the things and tied them in a bundle which she held out with some eagerness to Galt.

When the man, more slow-witted than his wife, still didn't say anything, Galt held out one of his coins. The woman smiled contentedly and passed him the bundle as Tom, suddenly coming to life, snatched the coin and slammed the door in Galt's

Her chills and fever ran their course for ten full days, and she was weaker than a new-born kitten by that time, Anxiously, Galt guarded her for another three or four days until he felt her now returning strength would make it possible for them to continue their journey.

At last, on the fifteenth day, she said, "Galt, I can make it now. Really, I think I can. Let me try." She stood up and took a few wobbly steps. His arm was around her, supporting her and giving her courage. He swung her up and into Dosta's saddle, steadying her for a moment as she swayed weakly and clung to

He patted her knee and spoke as if he were talking to a small child. "You're all right, Lark. You can make it, darling. It won't be very long now. Tonight will see us at the ferry. Tomorrow we'll be in Norfolk. David will be there, wait-

"David!" Lark repeated the name slowly, stupidly. "David will be there waiting for me."

"David isn't here? He hasn't been here?" Lark asked anxiously. "Oh, I'm so dreadfully worried." She sat on the very edge of Mara Hastings' horsehair sofa in the prim parlor of the house set a little way back from the tree-lined street in Nor-

"David . . . Captain North is not here." Mara pursed her lips and tranquilly continued to net a small silk purse. "I thought I made myself quite clear on that point a few moments ago. I did not say he had not been here. You did not ask me that."

"I would have thought, Miss," Galt said, with obvious irritation, "that you would have volunteered the information when Lark first

"Captain North was here last week," Mara said. "He has gone back up the coast now."

"Looking for us, of course." Lark smiled at Galt. "Poor, dear David, I'm sure he was frantic with worry. I was ill, you see, Miss Hastings, and that delayed our arrival. . . ." Mara smiled patiently, as if she were humoring an excitable child. 'You needn't worry," she said with a slight edge to her tone. "Captain North did not go back to look for you, Miss Shannon. He went to Baltimore to attend to important business for the Cargoe Riske Compa-

"Important business . . . Oh, I see," Lark said flatly. She glanced down dejectedly at her hands which she was twisting in her lap. She felt suddenly very tired and very

"You will both want baths," she said, with her hand on the painted china door-knob. "I will have warm water sent to your rooms and will find some more suitable garments for you, Miss Shannon."

Lark glanced down in quick confusion at her tattered gipsy finery. "Oh," she said, "I'm so dreadfully sorry. We've disgraced you by coming here like this, haven't we? We didn't stop for a minute to think. We were so tired. . . I've been so

"I hope that no one saw you enter." Mara led the way up the nar-row carpeted stairs. "I believe all the children were engaged in their classes and there are not many of my friends on the streets at this early morning hour. One does have to be careful of appearances when their school has as select a reputation as mine. You understand that, of course, Miss Shannon?" Galt stopped stock-still a few feet below them on the landing. "Lark," he said, "since David isn't here, I'd say we tell Mistress Hastings goodby and take our foot in hand."

PLANS FOR PACIFIC WAR It has all been kept very hush hush, but top army officials have made a vitally important decision on war production after Germany's Original war production schedules called for a 40 per cent cutback after Germany caves in, permitting a vast reconversion program and the early production of automobiles, refrigerators, radios and other goods. However, the army plus WPBig-wigs have now decided to keep the war machine rolling full tilt, not cutting back any but a few items until

Japan is defeated. Behind the vital decision is an important new plan to speed victory in the Pacific. Confidential war department surveys disclosed that it would take over a year to return European veterans, together with their equipment, much of it geared for winter rather than tropical fighting. Allied shipping shortages would make it a long job to crate, sort, repair and reship heavy equipment from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

In addition, the army survey disclosed that a lot of European equip ment will be obsolcte for Pacific fighting; would have to be rebuilt, taking valuable time. Instead, the new plan calls for bringing the men back at once, issuing them new equipment specifically designed for Far Eastern combat. Later, the army will bring back overseas war gear and use it for Pacific replace-

This should speed final blows against Japan, and shorten the Far Eastern war by many months. As a result, 1945 production schedules will probably be a billion dol-lars higher than those of 1944. The war department, which had a pile of telegrams two feet high canceling war contracts to be sent out the day Germany is licked, has now culled through them and may only cancel a few dozen orders.

MacARTHUR AND MARINES The boys in the Pacific long have known about the rivalry between General MacArthur and the U. S. navy. Many are the wisecracks about MacArthur and the U.S. marines, land army of the navy. However, in only one case so far as is known, has MacArthur ever come up against one of these jokes face

It happened on one of the Philipine islands a few days after it was taken and when MacArthur was inspecting a battery of marine artillery. Solemnly, he passed from gun n, making no comment.

Then suddenly as he came to one gun, he turned on the marine lieutenant in command and let loose the most terrific dressing-down that young officer ever had received. The air was smoky with expletives. The lieutenant at first stood be-wildered. The gun was carefully polished. Everything was in place. Then he looked a little closer. Beside the gun an enlisted man had placed a sign. It read:

"With the help of God and a few marines, MacArthur retakes the Philippines." The lieutenant thought at first that he would be busted. But several days passed and nothing happened. He is now back in the United States and the story can be told.

INSURANCE LOBBY

The insurance lobby is headed for trouble regarding its bill to exempt insurance companies from the Sherman anti-trust act. If the lobbyists aren't careful they will get a White

The bill passed the senate in a form which met with all-round approval. But in the house, the insurance lobby sharpened its ax and quietly tacked on some amendments which will not be acceptable either to the White House or, probably, to a majority of the senate. Chief effect of the amendments was to make it impossible to revive the anti-trust act regarding insurance companies, without a special act of congress.

Fair-minded Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, who was quite willing to give the insurance companies a reasonable compromise, will fight this extra grab to the end. So will a great many of his colleagues.

Costly Dreams

Before the middle of 1945, end of the federal fiscal year, some weary worker in Washington will yank a crank or touch a button and watch a calculating machine grind out some tell-tale totals about Uncle Sam as a farm executive and plantation operator. The figures will not be flattering but enough preliminary data are available already to cushion the shock for his admiring pub-

About ten years ago a foolish notion grew suddenly, almost mysteriously, popular. The idea was that poor farmers got poor (anyhow didn't get rich) because they never had a chance. Big fat capitalists, it seemed, kept the juice squeezed out of them all the time. So Uncle Sam, with Rexford Guy Tugwell standing on his shoulder and whispering in his ear, dashed to the rescue.

Rescue the Farmer!

A famous federal project, one of many to fortify hand-picked relief cases "back on the soil," was the 2271-acre Deshee farm near Vincennes, Ind. It was taken for granted that 42 familfes could make a living there after the government had paid half a million dollars for the land and one of 20 agricultural lending agencies had helped out with $100,000 more. It was, however, too much to expect. They couldn't make a living. With 50 acres per family, homes clustered in artistic groups like chairs at a lawn tete, the "farmers" were supposed to do specialty pro-duction of top-stade produce and truck to yield faccy prices. Unfor-tunately, somehow, the plan didn't work. Deshee is being sold, as are many of the government's other pipe-dream farms. Among them is the 3453-acre Lake Dick farm near Pine Bluff, Arkensas.

Psychology of Reilef.

An early discovery at Deshee was that specialty farmers don't often get on government relief rolls. The relief farmers knew little more than that they needed to plant seed and scratch the ground. By this method of operation, Deshee had 20 families too many. Finally the community shrank to eight families. Many of them left because they didn't like the surroundings. People on relief become fastidious

High prices on just about every-thing of value, an espect of war-born inflation, is what saves our country from charging off these highfalutin agricultural experiments, almost completely. Losses on Deshee, and others to sell soon, may be small because of well-timed sales, but this fails to prove that the government can farm, least of all with human misfits on the land.

No Future in This

Up to now, the Federal Security Administration has sold quite a few of the government's resettlement projects. The total number disposed of before the end of 1944 cost the lion dollars. All the government realized from the sales was 27 million dollars. It means that the FSA is, so far, liquidating these costly dreams at less than 40 cents on the dollar.

In farming, government management is showing a loss of 60%. We have no right to expect that losses from government management would be less in manufacturing. If they ran only 50%, it would mean produc-tion cut in half, wages lowered ac-cordingly and prices sidvanced; per-haps doubled. Undertaken on a big scale, it would mean living standards, for all of us, half as high as we are used to. I'm in favor of keeping our private enterprise system.

BEES NEED BUMBERSHOOTS 6

They say that "bees never get caught in the rain." Maybe you claim you've seen different. But the changed natural light as a storm approaches is supposed to make bees get busy and fly home. They may be weather-wise or not. But you've simply got to be! - for Spring weather demands an oil change in the car you cannot replace, and Conoco Nth motor oil will give your engine OIL-PLATING for extreme resistance to wear-

That's really how to hold down carbon, gum and sludge.

That's really how to keep up engine power.

That's really how to get good mileage from your oil and your gasoline.

The special life-giving quality of OIL-PLATING comes from patented Conoco Nth oil's additional ingredient - a climax of notable research. This effort developed the magnetlike effect that makes metal attract OIL-PLATING-lubricant fastened square in the path of friction. And you can credit the same intensive research with making your oil-PLATED engine defy corrosion.

Then both worst causes of wear are curbed. And you're safer from lay-ups - junking - walking! Surely Conoco Nth is worth its slight extra cost. OIL-PLATE today. Continental Oil Company

Thrifty Lunches Use Vegetables, Noodles, Macaroni

Potatoes are easily creamed if they are cooked first, seasoned with onion and then blended together with smooth, tasty sour cream.

When points are low and luncheon presents itself, most of us are in a quandary. Are there foods to serve mat are point-free and appetizing? Yes, there are, and I'm giving you several suggestions today which will make luncheons an easy matter to prepare. I'd suggest that you make use of as many soups as possible for this mid-day meal. Use canned or dehydrated soups, if you're rushed for time. If you have bits of leftover vegetables, puree or dice them fine and add to a thin white sauce.

Hearty sandwiches go well with soups. You'll like cottage cheese, liver sausage, eggs and peanut but-ter combinations. A bit of crunchy celery will provide vitamins and minerals or crispy salads will add texture contrast to the bowl of soup and sandwich luncheon.

If the men folk come home for lunch and expect heartier fare, there is the macaroni family which you can put to good use. Use fresh or home-canned vegetables for flavor and color contrast with spaghetti, noodles and macaroni, add a wellseasoned sauce, and luncheon is all ready to be served.

This noodle platter with vegetables sells itself as soon as it arrives at the table: Egg Noodles With Baked Onions and Lima Beans.

(Serves 6) 8-ounce package of egg noodles

8 to 10 small onions
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 cups lima beans, fresh cooked or 1/2 cup diced or grated American cheese 3 tablespoons drippings Salt and pepper to taste

Parboil onions until tender, about 20 minutes. Arrange in shallow baking dish and cover with tomato soup that has been diluted. Add cheese. Bake in a moderately hot ed. Cook egg noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain; add drippings and arrange on serving platter. Place baked onions around the mound of noodles and serve with tomato cheese sauce. Buttered lima beans are a colorful, tasty addition. Macaroni and mushrooms are the basis for this flavorful dish:

Macaroni and Mushrooms. (Serves 6) ½ pound boiled macaroni 1 tablespoon butter or substitute 1 small onion, cut fine teaspoon flour cup beef or chicken soup pint stewed tomatoes 1 tablespoon dried soaked and heated

Salt and cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon parsley, chopped
3 tablespoons grated American or Parmesan cheese

salt has been added. Drain a can of tomatoes and place aside the liquid with garlic, bay leaves, pep-percorns and oil. Cook until well seasoned, then pour over cooked spaghetti which has been drained, washed and warmed. Serve sprinkled with grated cheese. An unusual but delicious combination is this one which uses baked petato with shrimps:

Baked Potato Stuffed With Shrimp. (Serves 4)

2 large baked potatoes 1 tablespoon butter 14 teaspoon salt

Dash of pepper 1/2 cup milk 1 teaspoon minced onion 1 teaspoon finely minced parsley

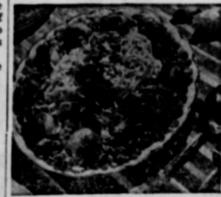

Clean shrimp. Cut hot baked po-tato in halves lengthwise; scoop out insides. Mash; add butter, salt, pepper and milk. Beat well. onion, parsley and shrimp. Refill shells; bake in a hot oven at 450 degrees 5 to 8 minutes until lightly browned.

When potatoes are creamed, they are extraordinarily nutritious. In this case, sour cream is used in place of white sauce, and it's a captivating combination:

Quick Creamed Potatoes.

(Serves 6 to 8)
3 cups Idaho potatoes, diced
1 small onion, cut fine
3 or 4 tablespoons thick sour cream
Salt and pepper to taste

Place diced potatoes and onion into a heavy skillet. Add enough water to cover the bottom of the pan, about 1/2 inch deep. Cover tightly and cook until potatoes are tenoven until soup is der but not mushy. The water should thoroughly heated be nearly all evaporated by this and cheese meltconstantly until well blended. THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 19:16-26, 29. GOLDEN TEXT-If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me .- Matthew 16:24.

What you have is not your own. In fact, if you are a Christian, both you and your possessions belong to God (see I Cor. 6:20; 7:23). To be His disciple involves the recognition of the fact that life is essentially a stewardship, holding our property and our persons in trust for Him. The cost of discipleship is one which should be candidly faced. It is far more than the cost of joining a church or subscribing to a creed. That may and often does mean little or nothing, but to be a follower of Christ calls for thinking and living in accordance with His standards. We must-

I. Think Right About God (vv. 16,

The picture of this rich, intelligent young man, a leader in his community, coming to Christ with his eager quest for eternal life is a most attractive one. He recognized Jesus as a master in Israel and a good man His thinking about our Lord did not go far enough, and Jesus cor-rected him at once. He pointed out that if he recognized Him as good, then He must be God. Far from disclaiming divinity, Jesus declared here that everyone who thinks right about Him must agree that He is

It is of the highest importance that the follower of Christ be clear that his master is God. Otherwise, his attitude toward Him will reflect his defective viewpoint, and his witness concerning Him will lead men astray instead of aright. Correct doctrine is vitally important as the foundation of real discipleship. The one who thinks right about

II. Live Right With Others (vv. 18-

The commandments to which Jesus referred were those which concerned a man's relationship to his fellow man. There is to be no violence to another person, no deceit or trickery, no dishonoring of confidence, but an active interest and love for one's neighbor as well as one's family. The disciple of Christ cannot effectively serve Him in this world without a proper attitude toward others. He must not sin against them, that is clear; but what is more, he must be known as one who loves them. Note that this young man could honestly say that he had kept these commandments. Few of us could make such a claim, but he did. And Jesus did not question it or rebuke him. In fact, He loved him for it (see Mark 10:21).

What a fine character this young man had, what limitless possibili-ties for usefulness, what promise for the future! But something was lacking, something stood in his way. Jesus went directly to the heart of his trouble and told him that he

21-26). Toward persons, his life was rightly related, but toward his possessions-ah, that was another matter. He was rich and his money stood between him and God, be-tween him and a life of service and spirituality.

When a man has money and uses it for God's glory and the good of his fellow man, it is a blessing to him and to others. But when money lays hold of a man, and it has him instead of his having it, spiritual disaster is ahead, and not far away.

It is proper to be prudent, thrifty, and ambitious, but when the gath-ering of wealth becomes the uppermost thing, even these worthy qualities become the enemies of a man's Note the astonishment of the disciples (v. 25). They, too, though they had little or nothing, had been smitten with the awe for riches. Do not miss the glorious assur-ance of verse 26. Nothing is im-possible with God. He can even save a rich man, and does it!

Now there is more to discipleship than sacrifice. God has a recompense for His children. Let us IV. Expect the Right Reward

(v. 29). No one has ever lost anything by serving the Lord. He gives liberally and makes a hundredfold return for every sacrifice we make. Christian workers can testify that God has literally fulfilled this promise to them.

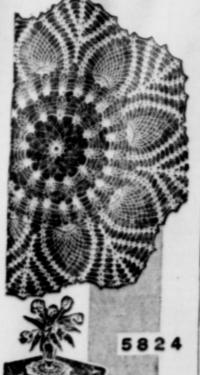

But the greatest reward of all waits beyond the and of this earthly life. Over yonder there awaits us the prospect of eternal fellowship with the Lord we love and serve. and with all those who share with us the place of being disciples, fol-lowers, and servants of Christ.

This life brings many precious moments of joy and satisfaction. There is friendship and comradeship in labor. There are a thousand blessings even here, but the greatest of all is the prospect of being forever with the Lord.
