

Iowa Park schools spend less than state average, report says

In 1990-91, school trustees budgeted 30 percent more for operating high schools than for elementary sites.

Statewide, an average of $3,280 per student was budgeted for high schools, $2,645 for the 1,073 middle schools, and $2,543 per child for the 3,594 elementary schools in Texas. In addition, $1,014 per student was budgeted for the central office.

For Iowa Park Consolidated Independent School District, the figures were $257.91 for high school, $229.92 for middle school (junior high), and $125.71 for the elementary campuses, while $186.33 per student was budgeted for the central office.

The figures come from a new report Tidemarks 1990-91 School Campus Budgets in Texas, a publication of the Texas Research League, an Austin-based, educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

The report also lists the amounts for direct classroom instruction. The statewide averages were $2,366 per student for high schools, $1,965 for middle schools, and $2,030 for elementary campuses.

For the Iowa Park district the comparable figures were $2,201.09 for high school, $1,673.92 for middle school, and $1,574.55 for elementary grades.

The report is designed to provide reference points for site-based committees and the taxpaying public to evaluate future school budgets by types of campuses and for individual high school sites.

It should be noted, however, that the figures in this report are from the 1990-91 school year, and this is the 1991-92 school year, or two years later.

Excluding small single-campus schools, there are 1,059 high schools in Texas ranging in size from 83 schools with less than 100 students to seven campuses with more than 3,000 students. For these high schools, $2,328 was budgeted per student for total operating expenses.

Locally, Iowa Park High School had $2,201.09 for classroom instruction and $3,873.39 for total current operating expenses.

Iowa Park High had $257.91 per student for school administration, $541.65 for cocurricular activities including extra curricular, $113.66 for guidance and counseling, and $445.46 per pupil for plant maintenance.

The legislature provided in HB 2885 for site-based decisions relating to goal setting, curriculum, budgeting, staffing patterns, and school organization.

Proponents contend that school boards and superintendents should grant greater latitude to campus level educators in exchange for an initial promise of more productive educational services for the students.

While there is little evidence to indicate that by itself school-based management will improve student achievement, as a management tool in the right hands, the report concludes that it may be helpful.

AMONG THE SEVERAL WINNERS in the Wichita County Junior Livestock Show, held in Wichita Falls over the past weekend, was David Hollis, shown here with his Grand Champion turkey hen. As has been the case for the past several years, 4-H and FFA members from the Iowa Park area have dominated the show's premium sale list.

May 2 school, city election openings draw candidates

As the final day for candidates in the May 2 city and school elections rolled around, so did the hopefuls.

All five of the positions, two on the school board and three on the council, are filled with candidates.

Both the school board positions have contested races.

Place Four incumbent Jerry Reed has drawn an opponent in Max

Henderson.

Place Five incumbent Denny McCarthy has filed. So have Jennifer Stewart, Robert Cook and Carmen Lozipone, for the same position.

The candidates for trustee are to be at the school administration building at 10 a.m. Monday, when the order in which their names will appear on the ballot will be drawn.

At 4 p.m. Wednesday, an hour before the filing deadline, only one race developed in the city council election.

Incumbent Mayor Wayne House is being challenged by Mike Grubbs.

The two alderman positions attracted only unopposed candidates.

Place Four incumbent Johnny Crawford has no challenger.

Place Two, currently held by Charlie Helms, attracted former alderman Bud Mercer.

A drawing for order in which names will appear on the city's ballots will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in city hall.

Woodfin spent a lifetime answering questions

By MYRNA SMITH

He sat in his comfortable rocking chair with a handful of notes he had jotted down. On the floor beside him were scrapbooks full of pictures that have been made through the years. He answered questions unhesitatingly without ever looking at his notes.

That figures, Virgil I. Woodfin, horticulturist, has spent a lot of his 76 years answering questions quickly and with clarity. It may have been concerning agricultural experiments, how to plant and care for various crops, trees or plants, in the college classroom or as a substitute teacher.

A man of integrity, Woodfin has always been willing to share his knowledge, his experience, and himself with others.

Virgil Ingram (Ingram, a family name, was given to him by his paternal grandmother when he was born, Sept. 30, 1915) grew up in a workaholic family in Mexia.

His father was a section foreman for the Trinity and Brazos Valley Railroad. "I've always lived near a railroad track," commented Woodfin. And, that holds true today. His house is about a stone's throw from the Burlington Northern track.

As a tow-headed lad he watched the conductors as they swung on the side of a railroad car and handed him and his brother candy as the train slowly rolled by the section house where they lived.

His parents used a wood stove, and he remembers helping his dad cut stove wood from crossties with a crosscut saw.

"Back then we could order groceries from Houston and they would return them by rail," Woodfin recalled.

He laughed as he remembered that the train engines then were steam. He was playing near the track in a large cardboard box one time when a train came by. Just as it was even with the box it let off steam. It didn't hurt Woodfin, "But it scared me real bad," he said with a grin.

And another thing he remembers is that his mother thought it was necessary every so often to give him a "dose of Black Draught and iron tonic." He swore that when he got old enough he would never take another dose of "that stuff," and he hasn't.

Woodfin says he had a rough time growing up, as many did in those years when the nation was in the throes of economic hardship and the Great Depression.

In the '20s when times were "really hard", his father lost his job with the railroad. His father and mother had to pick cotton to help keep food on the table. Woodfin said he picked a little cotton, but mostly he rode on his parents' cotton sacks. "Those were the days of beans and potatoes and sometimes you were lucky if you had just beans," he said.

When school was out in the summer Virgil usually spent some time with his aunt in Teague, a short distance from Mexia.

The summer he was 11 years old he was in Teague and he and his cousin were mowing lawns. Virgil always did the edging. One day some of his cousin's friends came by and wanted them to go to the swimming hole down close to the tracks. That sounded great to the boys, who had worked up a good sweat in the hot summer sun. So, as soon as they finished their job they went to the swimming hole.

Virgil's memory of the conductor so easily swinging on the rail car may have been at least indirectly responsible for what happened to him on the way back to his aunt's home.

As the boys were walking along by the track, a train was slowing down, approaching the station. Virgil remembered the conductor and decided to swing on a car. His right foot slipped on a cross tie and went under the train.

Woodfin quickly pulled his leg from underneath the train and "it looked like it had been run through a sausage grinder," he said. He didn't pass out, "It really didn't hurt that much. I just had a burning sensation."

His cousin and friends ran back and his cousin tried to tear a suspender off of his overalls. When he couldn't he took a belt from his friend and made a tourniquet.

In the meantime one of the boys ran to the caboose and stopped the train. They took a mattress and carried Woodfin to the caboose. The train pulled on into the station. There a Model-T Ford took him to the hospital about a mile away. His limb was injured so severely it was necessary to amputate just above the knee.

Woodfin knows he is very fortunate and he says his cousin saved his life. "I had 99 chances to die and one to live. And, without the medications that are available now to treat that type of injury, I consider myself very lucky."

But, Virgil has never considered himself handicapped. "There's been very few things I couldn't do because of it," he remarked.

He used to climb to the top of tall trees and there wasn't anything he wouldn't try in his earlier years. "I would think nothing of tackling a 20 or 30-foot tree," he commented.

He likes the limb prosthesis he has now much better than any other he has had. The only thing that bothers him is that he cannot lose or gain weight, or the prosthesis will not fit.

Woodfin graduated Mexia High School in 1935. His parents were not able to send him to college, but his mother enrolled him in a correspondence business course with the Com-

MARCH 30 - APRIL 4

Clean-Up Week discussed

Plans are well underway for this year's annual Clean-Up Week in Iowa Park, to be held March 30 through April 4.

The event is co-sponsored annually by the Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce and City of Iowa Park.

Last year the Chamber added a second part to the yearly event: a community-wide garage sale.

During a meeting Monday of the Chamber's board of directors, secretary Susan Dillard said all known organizations had been contacted by mail asking their continued participation.

Organizations for several years have accepted the responsibility of an assigned area of the city to be cleaned. Their members are asked only to do their part sometime during the designated week.

Also during the week, the city's landfill will be open for free dumping by residents. The only requirement is a valid water bill to prove residency inside the city, Dillard pointed out.

Mrs. Dillard said she has been receiving good responses both from organizations, as well as individuals who plan to participate in the garage sale.

The Chamber will run an advertisement in the April 2 issue of the Iowa Park Leader listing the addresses of all garage sale locations.

OTHER BUSINESS

Directors viewed a video film which has been made primarily to solicit those being transferred to Sheppard AFB from Chanute AFB, to consider living in Iowa Park, Wichita Falls or Burkburnett.

Chamber President Gene Jordan said several hundred brochures on Iowa Park had been included in a shipment of similar materials which was to have left Sheppard for Chanute Monday.

Directors voted to not participate in a proposal that the Chamber office serve as a bill collecting agency for TCI Cablevision.

News Briefs

Shower leaves almost half inch

A shower early Tuesday evening deposited .40 of an inch in Iowa Park, according to Virgil Woodfin, raising the year's total here to 3.14 inches.

Kidwell P-TA to hear physician

Dr. Larry Stutte will be the guest speaker for the Kidwell Parent-Teacher Association meeting, to be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria. Dr. Stutte is to speak on childhood illnesses.

'Project Graduation' meeting set

Parents of Iowa Park High School seniors are being encouraged to attend a "Project Graduation" meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the school library. Among topics to be discussed is a garage sale project April 11, to raise additional funding, according to Carole Venhaus, coordinator.

Athletic Boosters to discuss event

A meeting of the Iowa Park Athletic Booster Club will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the field house. Among the various topics to be discussed will be the annual spring sports banquet.

Railroad history told to Amity Club

Steve Goin, representing the Railroad Museum, was guest speaker for the Amity Study Club meeting March 9 at Western Sizzlin' Steak House in Wichita Falls.

Roll call was answered by each member telling if they ever rode on a train.

Meditation was given by Margaret Denton, taken from the book, "All I really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten," by Robert Fulghem.

Members were led in the Pledge to the Flag by Dorothy Palmer.

Officers for the 1992-93 club year were announced by the nominating committee. They are Amy Brown, president; Cheryl York, vice president; Annetta Reusch, secretary; Karen McClurer, treasurer; Valerie Dillard, historian, and Marilyn Hale, parliamentarian. Dorothy Palmer and Laura Clement, executive committee.

Mrs. Palmer announced the city wide clean-up is scheduled for April.

Club members voted to give a money donation to Project Graduation.

Goin, introduced by Marilyn Hale, gave a slide presentation and background on equipment now in possession of the museum. He also gave information on efforts being made to restore the cars. This is being done through monetary donations and services.

Goin said the Texas & Pacific Pullman/grill diner #3383 was built in 1910 as a sleeper car. In its career it saw extensive service between El Paso, Midland, Abilene, Fort Worth, Dallas, Marshall, Shreveport and New Orleans on the famous T&P passenger train, "The Sunshine Special."

In the 1940s, the car was modernized for use on the new T&P streamlined passenger train, "The Texas Eagle". Half of the pullman compartments were removed to make room for a snack bar and cafe countertop.

The car continued to operate until 1969 when it was retired from service and converted into a track gang bunk car. However, the car managed to retain the majority of its interior elegance, Goin said.

Finally, in August 1990 it was sold to a railroad scrap firm. It was discovered in September 1990 in Sidney, Neb., awaiting the torch. In November it was donated to the Railroad Museum and returned to Wichita Falls.

After the car is restored it will serve as a gift/souvenir shop and snack area. Restoration remaining is repairing the steps, vestibule areas and windows, sandblasting, repainting to Texas Eagle paint scheme, adding five more dining tables and restoration of water and plumbing. Estimated cost to complete is $6,000.

The Museum has two cars that were built in November 1922. One is the #34, a combination railway post office and express agency car used to haul both mail and express items on Burlington passenger trains between Dallas-Fort Worth and Denver.

This car was used in mail service through Wichita Falls continuously from 1922 until 1967 and operated in the train consist of the last run of the Texas Zephyr passenger train on Sept. 11, 1967. It has the honor of hauling the last mail to be shipped out of North Texas by rail.

After the demise of the Texas Zephyr, the FW&D converted #34 into a tool car, resulting in the car being painted orange and losing its RPO interior. Prior to that, the car had been painted Pullman green.

The 34 was retired by Burlington Northern in 1986 and was sold to Jack Ilemcamp who donated it to WFRM in 1987. It became the second car acquired by the museum. The car was painted its original 1922 Pullman green scheme in 1990. Today it is the sole surviving FW&D mail car.

Roof of the car is the major problem in the restoration process and must be repaired before the interior can be restored. Estimated cost to complete restoration is $3,000.

The museum is in need of welders and metal workers to help in restoring the roof, the speaker said.

No. 7302 was built in 1922 as a heavy weight coach and saw use on the entire Burlington system.

It originally was painted Pullman green and had an older clerestory roof design. In 1950 the car was taken to the passenger car shops in Chicago where it was modernized. It received a new rounded roof, was painted silver to match newer Burlington equipment, tight lock couplers and roller bearing wheels.

One-fifth of its coach seating was removed to make room for a large electric generator. It was assigned to Burlington commuter system between Chicago and Aurora, Ill., and would supply an entire commuter train with electric power.

The 7302 was retired in 1973 and sold to Lavonne Bell of Wichita Falls, who donated it to the museum in 1988. In poor condition when it arrived, it has been sandblasted, painted, had all glass replaced, had the center section of the floor replaced and the interior repainted.

Wiring and light fixtures need to be replaced, the generator room converted into a lounge area and the vestibule doors rebuilt. Estimated cost to complete is $2,500.

Two other cars that have been acquired by the museum are the 100260 that was built as an Army troop sleeper #9234 by the Pullman Co., in December 1945, and the 10021 built as the #9682 in January 1946. It was Pullman's idea to ship troops by rail in these Troop Sleepers instead of having the enlisted men ride in regular coaches along with the general public.

Each car contained triple bunk beds and could accommodate one platoon of troops each, including rifles and gear. These were used all across America during the 1940s and 1950s until the end of the Korean conflict.

The two cars the museum has sat deserted in Dallas two years before being donated to the museum in 1990. These are the only examples of the WWII Pullman Troop Sleepers on display in Texas or Oklahoma.

The museum hopes to repaint both cars in the original Pullman green. Interiors will later be turned into museum artifact cars and will house exhibits.

Also in the museum's possession is the 1029 built in 1947 by General Motors. They were among the first diesels ever purchased by the MKT and was one of only five of this type of switch engines owned by the Katy.

When purchased it was assigned to yard duties in and around Wichita Falls and one of the first MKT diesels to operate in this area. It was renumbered to 10. It remained in service here until about 1970 when it was reassigned to the Sherman-Denison area.

It was retired by Katy in 1987 and was to be cut up for scrap, but the museum was successful in having it saved and it was then donated to the museum in 1987. The engine has been restored to its original 1947 paint scheme and number and the cab interior has been repainted.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas caboose #212 was built in December 1949 as the # 1020 and was part of an order of the first all steel cabooses ever purchased by the Katy. It is the oldest caboose owned by the museum. This caboose was used in the Wichita Falls area during the 50s, 60s and early 70s.

In May 1981 it was taken to the Katy car shops in Denison where it was completely rebuilt. It received a new color scheme of the Katy green and yellow, a new extended wide vision cupola, new windows and #212, the third number of its career. It was retired aft Katy was taken over by Union Pacific in 1988.

UP donated the caboose to the museum in September 1990. It needs to have the electrical wiring replaced and the cupola seats repaired. It will be filled with Katy artifacts. Estimated cost of completing restoration is $500.

The 13561 was built in January 1972 for a Missouri Pacific caboose. Although the MP did not operate in Wichita Falls, the caboose did see service all across Texas.

The car is even more rare now that MP has been taken over by Union Pacific. The 13561 was donated to the museum by UP in March 1990. Since then the interior and exterior has been repainted and the caboose will be used to house MP artifacts.

All that remains of the restoration is to repair the seats, replace wiring and install MP artifacts at an estimated cost of $500.

The Burlington Northern caboose, 11687 started out to be a 40-foot Frisco boxcar that the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad (Frisco)rebuilt into a homemade caboose in March 1974.

The boxcar was transformed in Frisco shops in Springfield, Mo., and renumbered Frisco 1712. In the late 1970s it was repainted to Frisco orange and white.

In 1980 the Frisco became part of Burlington Northern and the car was painted BN green and renumbered 11687. It was donated to R.E. Waters, a retired conductor, in 1987. He donated it to the museum where it became its first piece of railroad equipment.

It is currently used for the museum's tool car. Plans call to repaint the caboose to its Frisco brown paint scheme after all other cars are finished.

Restoration remaining to be done is to repaint the interior, sandblast the exterior, install side windows, and fill the car with Frisco artifacts. Estimated cost is $3,000.

Goin said the museum is now accepting donations, money, and services.

Winners named

Betty Cash, Cultural Arts and Environmental chairperson for Kidwell PTA, has announced the 1992 poster contest winners.

The Cultural Arts Contest was held in February, with "New Beginnings" as the theme. The winners are:

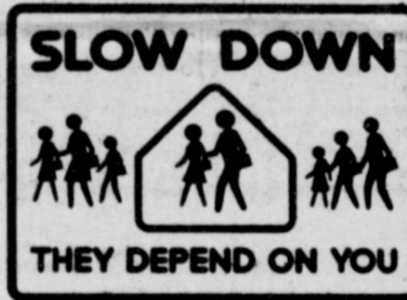

Kindergarten - Tristin Dozier, who also won third in district and his poster will be in the state contest.

First Grade - Andrew Lunsford
Second Grade - Bubba Hoffman
At Large - Bobbie Gilmore, who also won first in district and her poster is being sent to the state contest.

The EPA Poster Contest was held in March, with "Making Friends with the Environment" as a theme.

First grade winners are: Jodi Davis, first place; Jeni Davis, second place; Charlie Kidd, third place, and Anna Sanchez, honorable mention.

Second grade winners are: Amy Rust, first place; Becky Turner, second place; Carrie Sheets, third place, and Heather Moody and Denise Bernstein, honorable mention.

Woodfin

dad, he was always doing something for others."

A few years ago he served on the City Parks Board. He sowed blue-bonnets in the parks and set out pecan trees, but he said they were not properly cared for, so he told them he would quit, because he would not spend the city's money if they were not going to take care of what he was trying to do to make the town look better.

Woodfin referred to his father again as he said, "My daddy always impressed on me that if a job is worth doing, it is worth doing well, and I guess I just can't get that out of my mind."

Woodfin is now serving his second term on the city council. While their children were in school he served two terms on the school board. He is a charter member of the Evening Lions Club was involved in helping to get a place for the Senior Citizens to meet by leasing a part of the Evening Lions building to them.

He is very much involved with the County Fruit and Nut Committee, is a member of the Texas Pecan Growers Association, is a member of the local Masonic Lodge, and has been a member of First Baptist Church 48 years.

Woodfin also serves as a judge for several area and regional pecan shows.

He says one of the highlights of his retirement has been for he and his wife to make trips in the summer with the church to construct buildings in for churches Colorado and New Mexico.

They have made 10 trips with the church on the building projects. Many of the buildings have been made of logs. Woodfin helps saw the logs to the right length and he has put on roofing. He says it provides a good vacation and promotes good fellowship among church members.

The Woodfins' son, Charles graduated Iowa Park High School and East Texas State University at Commerce. He has worked with the Lubbock Experiment Station 15 years. Charles is a sorghum plant breeder.

He goes to Puerto Rico to cross different varieties of sorghum, or he goes with the USDA to harvest it. Woodfin said it used to take about five years to develop and release a new variety of sorghum, but with improved methods it now take three years.

Their daughter, Glynda Cook, lives in Amarillo and works for Pantex, a military weapons plant between Amarillo and Dumas.

After graduating Iowa Park High School she received the BA degree in Physical Education from West Texas State University in Canyon.

The Woodfins have two granddaughters. One is 21 and the other is 12 years old.

Woodfin has been keeping weather records or rainfall records for 47 years. While at the Experiment Station Woodfin kept records of the rainfall, temperature and other weather details.

When he retired, he kept one of the USDA official rain gauges and continues to check it regularly.

Virgil keeps abreast of the current trends and new varieties of garden vegetables and information concerning pecan trees by subscribing to the The Texas Gardener, National Gardener, and Better Gardens magazines and Texas Pecan Press and Pecan South.

Mrs. Woodfin worked many years at City Hall. She is currently secretary of the four-year-old department at First Baptist Church and a member of Thelma Smith Baptist Women. She, like her husband, enjoys helping others and is always available if she is needed.

Surmounting difficulties he has had (he has had several surgeries, including back surgery, and four or five years ago he broke his right hip while spraying trees) he still has managed to be successful in anything he decided to do.

Subtly, Woodfin's father's teachings have been inextricably interrelated throughout the areas of his life and his personality. His sense of duty, loyalty and compassion, though worthwhile qualities within themselves, have also made a difference for the betterment of Iowa Park and Wichita County.

The 31st Annual Waurika "Fangtastic" Rattlesnake Hunt, sponsored by the Waurika Jaycees and Waurika Volunteer Fire Dept., is scheduled for April 11-12. Each hunter is to pay a $2 registration fee.

GENEALOGIST TO SPEAK

Certified genealogist Mary N. Speakman will speak on "Finding Family Facts and Clues in Public Records," at 7 p.m. Monday, Mar. 23, in the Archer Public Library in Archer City. No admission will be charged.

Texas' economy will continue to outperform nation - bankers

In a survey of Texas bankers, 82 percent said the Texas economy will continue to outperform the U.S. economy.

Although 92 percent expect the U.S. recession to continue, 81 percent believe that lack of funds is not the cause of the Texas "credit crunch."

The survey conducted by the Texas Bankers Association (TBA) had 258 top-level bankers responding from all corners of the state.

Bankers see their local economic conditions as stable or improving with 58 percent reporting local economic conditions as remaining about the same, 26 percent as better, two percent as substantially better, and only 12 percent as worse or substantially worse.

Lenders see the worst problem facing them today as overregulation (43 percent); 16 percent cite the economic downturn and 13 percent cite bankruptcy problems.

Continued changes in the banking industry are predicted, with 74 percent seeing increased bank mergers.

Bank profitability expectations are positive with 63 percent of the respondents viewing their ROS (Return on Assets) as better than a year ago and 91 percent saying their bank will earn a profit in 1991.

When asked what one thing they would change about the banking industry in Texas, 41 percent said regulatory restrictions need to be reduced.

Another 19 percent believe non-banking institutions such as credit unions need to be treated equally in regards to regulations and taxation.

A whopping 88 percent said their bank is overregulated on the national level. The number one financial problem faced by their customers is poor financial planning (49 percent); 34 percent cite overused credit.

Residential real estate loans continue to be popular, with bankers making 35 percent more real estate loans this year and 27 percent of bankers making about the same number as last year.

Fixed rate loans were cited as the most popular type of home loan by 62 percent of the respondents and 24 percent said adjustable rate mortgages are the most popular with customers.

Commercial real estate loans were reduced substantially over last year with 59 percent of the bankers reporting making fewer commercial loans and only 11 percent reporting an increase.

Agricultural production loans stayed level with 50 percent reporting levels equal to those of a year ago, 18 percent reporting increases, and 27 percent reporting fewer loans.

In overall loans, 51 percent of the bankers say they are making fewer loans; 20 percent cite no change; and 29 percent are making more loans.

In response to customer's needs for ready access to cash, 39 percent of the bankers said ATM use has increased at their banks by 10 to 20 percent, and nine banks have experienced an increase of 20 to 50 percent.

New Red Cross course teaches infant CPR

Because choking and drowning are the third and fourth leading causes, respectively, of accidental deaths for infants and young children, the Red Cross has developed a new course to help parents prevent and respond to their child's breathing emergencies.

The American Red Cross CPR: Infant and Child course teaches participants accident prevention, first aid for choking, resuscitation techniques and other emergency actions for infants and children under nine.

"It's a tragedy that many parents don't know how to help a choking infant or a young child who has stopped breathing," says Stacey A. Ryan, director at the Wichita County Chapter. "This course is a must for parents, grandparents, babysitters-- anyone who spends time with infants and children."

Participants learn how to prevent childhood injuries, how to respond to emergencies, and what to do when an infant's or a child's heart stops. The course includes training in CPR, rescue breathing (mouth-to-mouth resuscitation), and first aid for choking. A safety checklist is provided to help spot dangers in the home.

To help people remember what they have learned, the new course teaches people only the skills they are most likely to use in an emergency.

"Our older CPR courses taught people more skills than they really needed, causing them to forget what they had learned and to be reluctant to act in a crisis," says Stacey Ryan. "This new course gives people the confidence to step forward when help is needed."

Using State-of-the-art learning techniques, Red Cross instructors use hands-on practice sessions, illustrated and easy-to-read workbooks, and videos depicting dramatic reenactments of real-life emergencies.

The course uses innovative teaching methods and the latest emergency care information. Participants must pass a series of skill checks and a written exam before being certified.

"Learning these life saving skills can give parents the confidence to act quickly in a life-or-death situation," says the director. "When a child has stopped breathing, there's a lot a parent can do before the ambulance arrives."

American Red Cross CPR: Infant and Child is part of a series of new Red Cross health and safety courses. The Red Cross also offers Adult CPR, Community CPR (adult, infant and child CPR), CPR: Basic Life Support for the Professional Rescuer, and Standard First Aid.

The Red Cross was the first organization in the United States to offer training in accident prevention, and has provided first aid training for almost 80 years. Since 1974, the Red Cross has trained about 25 million people in CPR.

Woodfin spent lifetime answering questions

Merical Extension College.

His aunt in Teague asked him why he didn't come there and go to work for the newspaper. He applied and got a job at the weekly where he learned to operate the Linotype machine.

Before he quit he could set a galley and a half of type an hour, which was about top speed for a linotype operator. But as with everything else he does, Woodfin sets his goal to do the best he can and strives for perfection.

In the meantime, Woodfin's only brother had graduated high school and had returned home after spending some time in a tuberculosis sanitarium.

An oil man who lived in the area, and knew the family, was on the board of Texas Tech University. He talked to the Woodfins about enrolling Virgil and his brother there. The parents explained they could not afford it.

But the friend told them it was a must for the two boys, one with an artificial limb, and the other having had tuberculosis. He explained there was a rehabilitation program and that he would personally see they got through college. The parents agreed to try it.

Woodfin's father was working for $85 a month. They sent half of that to the boys. Their tuition was $37.50 a semester. They had to buy their books, or some of the time they could rent them for 50 cents a semester.

That was during the days of the National Youth Administration. Virgil and his brother could work for the NYA 66 hours a month for $19.80 each, which helped with their expenses. When they returned home to see their parents the boys helped them pick and shell peas, put up corn, and whatever else they raised in their garden.

When Woodfin and his brother first went to Lubbock they were lucky to get a good place to room. "The woman was just a good motherly type person and she did our laundry for us," Woodfin said.

They took their meals at a boarding house run by a divorcee. "We started out with three meals a day, but sometimes she would stay out so late at night she wasn't up in time to fix our breakfast, so we just ate two meals there," Woodfin related.

That was when sugar was rationed and Woodfin added, "I'll never forget how she watched the sugar we used and said, 'Just use a very small amount and stir like hell.'"

Woodfin enrolled at Texas Tech to pursue a business degree, but when he was given a placement test he was told he should pursue a science degree.

Woodfin explained that he would like to, but he had been told a handicapped person could not enroll in agriculture. That was not true, so Woodfin changed his major. In 1942 he received the BS degree in agriculture, with a major in dairy products and a minor in horticulture.

When he received his degree, Woodfin had a job waiting for him at a milk plant in Abilene that supplied dairy products to the military at Camp Barkley. He worked in the laboratory, testing butterfat in milk, cream and butter.

Virgil much prefers outdoor work to indoor. But, he was glad to get the job in Abilene. And after he had been there a while, he liked it even better than he thought he would.

In a short time he would begin another career that has lasted 48 years. He met Lola Faye Nelson who was attending Hardin-Simmons University and working in a defense plant. They were married in 1943.

The couple later came to Wichita Falls and Woodfin went to work for Wilson Manufacturing Co.

After a few months a job was open for a night superintendent at Carnation Milk Co. Virgil applied and was hired for an eight-hour shift. But, he said, they kept adding an hour now and then until it became too much.

Luckily a job opened for a horticulturist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Iowa Park. Woodfin applied and was told by the late Lester Brooks, superintendent, that the job might be temporary because the former horticulturist was in the army and that if he decided to come back to Iowa Park the job would be his.

Woodfin decided to take the chance. The man did not come back and Woodfin fell heir to the job in 1945. He retired Aug. 31, 1977 after 32 years and three months service, the last 10 years as superintendent, after Brooks retired.

At first the couple lived in a small house near the experiment station until their son and daughter came along and they decided they had to have more room. They moved into Iowa Park in the 1960s.

"Before long it looked like I wouldn't be there long anyway," Woodfin said. "There was a movement on to close the station, but a lot of influential people went to the 'top' and explained there were too many experiments at that time to close."

Among the experiments that were just started good were the coastal bermuda experiments on farms in the area.

"When we would encourage farmers to plant certain crops, the farmers would come to me and say, 'sure you can get a good harvest because you have irrigation and everything to work with'," Virgil said.

That was a challenge to him, so he and the county agent worked together and had about 25 varieties of wheat, oats and barley growing in demonstration plots. These were on farms north of Electra, on the road to Burkburnett and four or five in the Thornberry area.

"We would take the experiment station equipment and do all of the work and go back to harvest the crops," Woodfin recounted. "We created a lot of interest with the plots by having farmers out to see what could be done. We did the same with coastal bermuda plots."

While at the experiment station they raised asparagus because it is the first vegetable to mature in the spring and will produce 17 years. It was fertilized with barnyard manure and had to be cut every day.

"That is one of the things I hated about raising asparagus. We had to cut it every day. It was a highly competitive crop, and a back breaking job when you are harvesting a large plot," Woodfin said.

They sold the asparagus to Keith Produce in Wichita Falls. Some of the time one day's cutting would not be enough to take to Keiths so they would place the cut ones in pans of water until they cut the next morning. "Those things would grow two to three inches overnight," he said.

"It was a highly competitive crop, but it required so much time from the other crops that we finally plowed it up."

Woodfin has several crowns of asparagus in his garden. He found out during research on asparagus that the male crowns produce less than the smaller female crowns.

The first year after he retired, Woodfin decided he would put his name down as a substitute teacher. He substituted two years.

While teaching FFA he taught his students how to graft trees, using trees on a 50x100-foot lot across from his home.

He started substituting for coaches and then in grade school where he was doing exercises and shooting goals.

He had a lot of fun, but the kids couldn't imagine how he could do push-ups at his age and with his so-called handicap. Woodfin gave them the good advice that they should do push-ups instead of going to the refrigerator so often.

Although Virgil has retired from working for a regular pay check, he certainly isn't taking to the rocking chair for long at a time. He still is doing things for the community.

People call him to ask what varieties of trees or crops do well in this area and for other information.

His love of the land and growing things has remained constant and he is motivated by a strong desire to help people and share the knowledge he has gained through the years.

Woodfin has a special interest in pecan trees and since retirement he has done a lot of grafting and budding trees for others. He also did some for nurseries in the area.

In past years he would climb a four or five-foot ladder to prune trees, or to spray them, but now he says he mostly stays on the ground and just does budding and grafting. ("Unless he climbs up on the roof to do something," an aside from his wife.)

He has grafted and budded a lot of trees in Iowa Park, as well as spraying and pruning trees and spraying lawns. His wife tells him if something happens to him before it does to her that she can see him if she just gets out and looks at the trees. She knows all of them he has worked on here.

He said, "It got to where I was burning the candle at both ends so I had to quit some of my activity."

Sometimes Woodfin is called to a place where the trees are too small to graft, so he buds them. Last year he went to Scotland and Byars to do some work. He really doesn't seek jobs that far away, but if he is called he will go.

"I don't charge a lot for what I do, but I have already lost out on my first million, and I haven't got started on my second, so I'm not worrying about that. Just as long as I can feel good about what I have done. I have to live with myself. I do have a conscience and I like to sleep at night," Woodfin commented.

Because he is committed to his work, when he does grafting or budding for others he always tries to go back or check with the people and be sure the job was done right.

Woodfin has 22 known varieties of pecans on trees in his yard, 10 varieties on one tree. He does this as an experiment so he can evaluate them and see what does best on the trees in town.

He sells pecans from his trees. In 1990 he sold about 900 pounds from around his house. "We had such a bumper crop in 1990 that 1991 didn't do so good. You can count on a light year following a bumper crop," Woodfin said.

Woodfin is asked when to spray pecan trees. He says of course a lot depends on whether the insects are bad. The only time he regularly sprays his trees is at the first of May.

If the trees are bothered by pecan weevils, he will spray in late August or the first of September. It is not necessary to spray unless the tree has had a problem before. "But, sometimes the pecan weevil infestation is so bad they will eat all of the pecan meat," Woodfin commented.

Some of the pecan varieties that grow better in this area are Kiowa, Cheyenne, Choctaw, Wichita, Apache, and Mohawk. "A lot of people have the Burkett variety and it has been around for a long time, but it isn't one of my favorites," Woodfin said. "I know a lot of people don't agree with me, but I don't believe it bears as well as some of the other varieties," he said with conviction.

Woodfin has produced a new pecan variety that goes only by a number now. It was produced from a tree that was on property that was being taken in by a new roadway. Owner of the property wanted some of the wood to get some started at another place.

Woodfin got some for himself and grafted it on some trees at the experiment station and some on one tree in his yard. He gave it a lot of TLC and came up with a pecan that was first a champion in the County Pecan Show, then the Regional Show and finally came out a state champion.

He has received 10 first place plaques on different varieties of pecans at the county shows, and two firsts at regional shows in addition to the state champion pecan.

Woodfin says the champion is equal to any of the improved name varieties and shells out as high as 62 percent, a high yield. From 10 pounds of pecans, he gets six pounds or more of shelled pecans.

The horticulturist also is a beekeeper. He has been working with bees for about 35 years and thinks they are fascinating insects. He keeps the bees mainly for pollination of his trees, flowers and garden. He also robs them of their honey.

He used to sell quite a bit of honey, especially to people with allergies and on occasion to others.

He remembers that the late C.E. Birk always bought five gallons of honey from him every year to use as sweetener. Woodfin says he and his wife use it mostly for themselves now. He adds that it is a quick energy food and he thinks it is a good product to help keep down colds.

They get about 100 pounds of honey each year from their two hives and put it up in quart jars. Woodfin says the bees are "pretty gentle". In fact, he has been tempted to rob them without gloves or veil, but he hasn't. He has been stung a few times and he keeps an antihistamine handy, just in case.

He recalled that it is a lot different robbing bees now than when he was small and his daddy robbed his. He had to wrap himself in canvas and then cut the honey out with a knife. "Now, I just take out the frames when the honey is capped over."

Woodfin says the best time to rob bees is mid-morning or mid-afternoon. He adds that mesquite, white blossom clover along the highway, and alfalfa, or other vetch crops make the best honey.

The Woodfins have fruit trees and in their garden they raise sweet corn, peas, okra and other vegetables and freeze them.

"I just like to see things grow and see how they produce and then how I can make them produce better," Woodfin said.

He used to use his own chemical and sprayer to spray vacant lots in Iowa Park and some of the alleys and other spots, just to make the town a more attractive place. Down town he would spray the grass around the curbs and weeds in the cracks of the sidewalks.

"I would do it as much for other people as for myself," Woodfin said. "I just enjoy doing things that will benefit others and sharing with others. I guess I learned that from my

Baptist Women begin review

The review of "No Small Sacrifice," a 1992 Home Mission Study which deals with church starting in urban America, was started Monday by Mrs. Eleanor Bell for the Toluca South Baptist Women of First Baptist Church.

She introduced the review with "New Traditions of Sacrifice - The Challenge of America" by Larry Lewis. It stressed how Southern Baptists are challenged to break down the barriers of traditions to witness to the masses of non-Christians that live in the largest cities of the United States.

The first chapter featured the ministry of Tim Townsend who broke the tradition to reach people who most people considered unreachable in the Washington/Ft. Tarrant area. He helped unite a sleepy congregation at the First Baptist Church in Charleston, Va., three miles west of the White House, to recognize their potential growth in church starting.

Since 1986, the church has developed a creative strategic plan that articulates in priorities in evangelism, discipleship, worship, community service, language/culture groups, homeless people, young professionals and senior adults under the most difficult circumstances.

The meeting was held in the fellowship hall of the church where Mrs. Carl McKinon was hostess and 12 members attended.

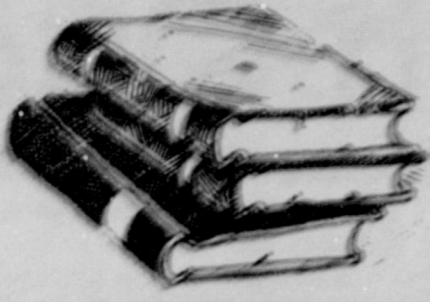

Mrs. V.I. Woodfin presided during the business meeting which was opened with the missionary birthday calendar of prayer by Mrs. Roy Smith.

During the meeting, a love offering was taken to help defray expenses of several international students at Midwestern State Univ. to attend a Baptist Student Union Easter retreat at a Texas camp. Members also voted to furnish cakes for the BSU luncheon at the university April 8.

Gilmore gives Garden Club program

A video program, "Decorations for All Seasons," was given by Denise Gilmore to members of the Iowa Park Garden Club who met Friday at the Recreational Activities Center.

The writer demonstrated how to use handcraft wire wreath forms when making wreaths from fresh grocery, dry material, fabric, pinecones, grapevine, and using artificial material.

Each member answered roll call with the name of a natural material that she has used in a craft, and Drama Roden was introduced as a special guest.

Bernice Compton gave the thought for the day entitled "The Things I Prize," by Henry Van Dike.

For the horticulture display, Marie Wooten showed a basket filled with calladiums, and told about conditions needed to grow them in this area.

Vickie Gilmore displayed glass soda pop bottles and gave a conservation report on recycling glass.

During the business session, conducted by Louise Clapp, members planned the garage sale they will have on April 4, and Frances George, community service chairman, announced that members will be planting spring flowers in the flower bed around the rock at Kidwell Elementary School. Maintaining the flower bed at Kidwell is a continuing project that the club does each year as a memorial to Ethyle Kidwell, former Garden Club member and former principal of Kidwell Elementary.

Jo Gilben and Kay Cole reported on the District III Spring Convention which was held earlier in the week. Those attending from here included, Gilbert, Cole, Gladys James and Bernice Compton. The Iowa Park

Garden Club received show awards which included: Scrapbook, 3rd place; Yearbook, 2nd place; President's Book, 100%; President's Report, honorable mention; Director's Citation for Landscaping at the RAC, and recognition for a monetary contribution to the National Wildflower Research Center.

Hostesses for the meeting were Kay Cole and Frances George, and their centerpiece on the serving table was a silk arrangement of pink tulips.

Club has progressive dinner

Members of Epsilon Eta chapter of ESA had a Progressive Dinner for their monthly social.

They first gathered at the home of Dee Dee Forney for salad, then progressed to Lela Mercer's home for the main course. When they arrived at Denise Henderson's home for dessert, a surprise baby shower was given for Mrs. Forney. A cake, decorated for the shower, was served.

It was announced that the members would meet on March 30 for a demonstration of water exercises, and the next meeting would be April 7, in the home of Cyndy Dickerson.

The group will participate in the Great Texas Trash Off on April 4, and Iowa Park's Clean Up Week, March 30 thru April 4.

As I See It... By Bob Hamilton

What do Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis and Wichita County Treasurer-elect Monette Pemberton have in common?

They believe consolidating small entities into big ones are better and cheaper.

They also are wrong!

Lewis, who is on his way out as Speaker, made known his idea of consolidating the state's 1,066 school districts into 188 districts.

He apparently feels that the current County Education Districts, which have been declared unconstitutional, would make fine consolidated school districts. And he likes the idea of having nine-member school boards.

Lewis said the massive consolidation would save some $422 million a year because of reduced administrative costs and duplication.

Consider one thing. Lewis is from one of the largest cities in Texas, Fort Worth. Something like that possibly could work in Tarrant County.

But how many administrators actually would be saved? How many vice superintendents would have to be named at each of the individual districts? Is all the work load of testing and reports mandated by the legislature going to be cut, which is the primary reason so many administrators are now in the existing districts?

And there's another bottom line to be considered, offsetting the savings Lewis claims.

If and when smaller community schools are closed, because the larger communities have schools that offer all the courses not offered at the smaller campuses, aren't the people going to move with the children?

And when the families move, those businesses still existing in towns such as Megargel, Byers, Guthrie, and so on, are going to close. Because they won't have those people to serve.

When those businesses in the hundreds of small towns in which small schools are located are closed, what is going to be the effect on taxes contributed to state government? Or to the county school districts?

The idea of consolidating all school districts into one county school district is not new. It was first, to my knowledge, proposed by members of the legislature in the mid 1960s.

At that time, we had the paper in Kress, a community of 500. I polled the four retail stores there, and each told me they would be closed within two years after parents quit recognizing the Kress school as their center of activity other than their respective churches.

Consolidating all five school districts in Wichita County into one would play into the hands of the power-hungry circle who live in Wichita Falls.

It would be devastating to Iowa Park, Electra and Burkburnett.

Jealousy would run rampant. Those of us in the smaller towns would feel, and likely so, that all innovations in training and facilities would wind up on the campuses in the larger city.

Sorry, Speaker Lewis. But your idea to consolidate the current CEDs into county school districts smells of an over-stocked pig pen on a 100-degree day after a half-inch rain.

And, immediately after last week's Democratic Primary results were announced, Pemberton, who has no Republican candidate opposing her in the November general election, came out with the statement that one of her goals is to consolidate all tax collections in Wichita County.

Like Lewis' proposal, consolidated tax collections in Wichita County also is not new. It came up a few years ago, and was never found acceptable by most of the taxing entities outside Wichita Falls.

Frankly, the county tax office is not a textbook-run operation, as demonstrated.

Mailing out all tax bills in one envelope from one office is a savings. That fact cannot be denied.

But the mailing of the annual tax bills at a time when the individual cities and schools want them mailed is something only those individual entities can control.

They would lose that control as soon as the responsibility was delegated to an office over which they had no control.

City and school governments like the idea of daily deposits of tax receipts in their respective bank accounts. They produce additional income from interest.

Deposits from the county likely would not be made directly to the local bank account. Thus, interest would be lost.

But, should those points be discounted, or even proven wrong, there's another issue. And it may be even more important.

Wichita Falls is located in the very extreme southeast corner of Wichita County, which covers 606 square miles.

When one of our citizens has a question about his taxes, why should he have to travel all the way to Wichita Falls, instead of here in Iowa Park to get answers?

As far as our city and school are concerned, possibly passing up a few dollars in savings on sending out bills would not offset efficiency of operation and convenience to those who pay for the service.

There may be a point where consolidation might be effective. But as far as our school districts and our tax operations are concerned... we're not there yet.

Thieves wanting mowers

Unsecured lawn mowers became the objects of thieves Sunday night, according to entries in the police blotter.

Police received complaints from two mower owners in less than an hour's time Monday morning.

The first was from a resident in the 900 block of Park Plaza, who said he had left his mower under a tree when he finished his work the day before. The thief had left the grass-catching bag, however.

A self-propelled mower and a full, two-gallon gasoline can were taken from a residence in the 200 block of West Texas from a doorless garage.

Two other thefts also were reported. A man told police Wednesday of last week that someone had taken the motor from his boat he had left unattended at Lake Buffalo.

Because the theft took place outside the city limits, the case was referred to the county sheriff's office. Details of the incident were not available.

A .303 rifle was reported Monday as having been stolen from a residence in the 400 block of West Ruby.

Police and Emergency Medical Technicians were summoned to a home in the 1000 block of east Ruby at 10:21 p.m. Friday, where an adult female had reportedly taken a non-fatal overdose of pills.

She was transported by ambulance to a Wichita Falls hospital, according to the blotter entry.

Worth Quoting

Much has been made in the national press over the past few weeks about our President's performance at a recent gathering of grocers. As George Bush ambled through the displays at the trade show, he stopped and examined the latest in check out counters.

It was loaded with all kinds of electronic marvels. Laser bar code reader, electronic scales, a scanner to detect hot checks and a number of other innovations were featured in the display. The President seemed amazed that that was how groceries were purchased in a modern store.

Immediately, the critics, that hound the President like a bad cold, jumped into action. They claim that the lack of recognition by Mr. Bush of the new grocery store technology showed how out of touch he was with the average American. Lived in a gold plated cocoon, they said.

Balderdash! He was just expressing part of the Masculine Mystique.

The average American male does not spend much time at the grocery store. Mainly because he is not interested in the time consuming task of checking prices, making menus and all the other things that are involved in major shopping expeditions.

Ask the average male the price of milk and not only will he not know, but think the question is sort of strange. If you need milk, you buy it. If you don't, you don't.

Now if you asked the President about the best fishing holes off the coast of Kinneybunkport, he could hold forth for hours about the fish he has caught, the ones that got away and the best places for both. He could also discuss the differences between the type of tackle to use, relative merits of boats, the performance characteristics of outboard motors and any number of things related to the sport.

Being an avid golfer, George could probably talk for hours about the proper swing, the best type of golf ball to use and the relative value of different types of clubs. It is all in the point of view.

Now the average woman would consider all of the above information under one classification -- useless. That is filed in the major category of boring.

If a female candidate for office walked into a sporting goods show and commented, upon seeing a full bass fishing rig, "Oh, that's how you catch fish!" She would be thought of as cute and interested in the sport.

All the grocery store incident proved is that Mr. Bush is as interested in grocery store shopping as the average man. Instead of being out of touch with the rest of society, he is right in step.

Carry on George. Baffle them with the Masculine Mystique.

Council to meet Monday

The city council is to hear Monday night a briefing on the status of the proposed county multi-purpose events center, and consider two lease agreements.

The meeting is to begin at 7 p.m. in council chambers.

Aldermen were informed that Kay Yager is to give the council an updating on the proposed events center, which is being considered jointly by Wichita County, the City of Wichita Falls, and several activities organizations.

Two lease agreements to be considered are with the Faith Baptist Church and prospective buyers of 101 S. Colorado.

Other topics appearing on the meeting agenda are a proclamation setting March 30-April 5 as "Clean-up and Fix-Up" Week in Iowa Park; recognizing the employee of the month, and a report on a study of residents who are currently using septic tanks inside the city and desiring to receive sewer service.

Mrs. Paul Tigrett

Susan (Mrs. Paul) Tigrett, the daughter of Delbert and Noralene Catlin, is a life-long resident of Iowa Park. She and her husband Paul, who is service director at Patterson Auto Center in Wichita Falls, are both graduates of Iowa Park High School.

Their son, Stan, is a 16-year-old sophomore at Iowa Park High School, and 12-year-old daughter, Randi, is in the seventh grade.

Stan plays football and is on the high school track team, and Randi is a cheerleader and participates in basketball and track at the junior high school.

Susan is a full-time student at Midwestern State Univ. and will be classified as a senior at the end of this semester. With a major in English and a minor in Spanish, Susan wants to be a secondary education teacher after she graduates.

The Tigrett's are kept busy with the activities their children are involved in, and are members of the Hawk Athletic Boosters and Band Boosters.

Susan likes to play tennis, snow ski and walk with her husband.

About a year ago, it was found that Stan has a hereditary heart problem, and it is being treated through diet and exercise.

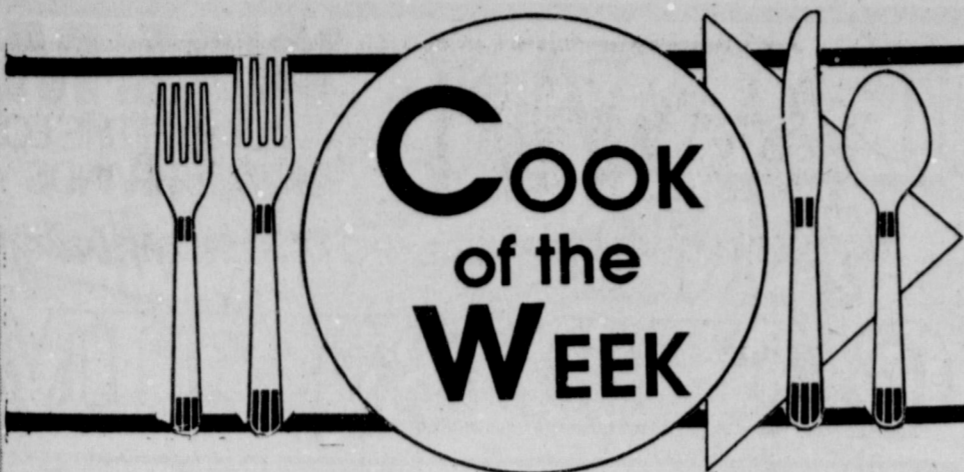

Now Susan uses recipes that are low in fat and cholesterol, and said "if it can't be baked, broiled or grilled, we don't have it."

Big Batch Cinnamon Rolls

1 pkg. yellow cake mix (without pudding)
2 pkgs. rapid rise yeast
6 1/2 to 7 cups all-purpose flour, divided
1 tsp. salt
2 1/2 cups warm water (120 to 130 degrees)
3 eggs, beaten (or equivalent egg substitute)
1/3 cup vegetable or canola oil
1/4 cup softened margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
Combine cake mix, yeast, 1 cup flour, and salt in a large bowl. Stir in water, eggs and oil. Beat at medium speed in an electric mixer 2 minutes. Gradually add enough remaining flour to make a soft dough.

Turn dough out onto a well-floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic (about 5 minutes). Cover dough and let rest 10 minutes.

Divide dough in half; roll each half to a 15x14-inch rectangle and spread each with 2 tablespoons margarine. Combine sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle half of mixture over each rectangle of dough. Roll up each rectangle, jelly roll fashion, starting at lone side; moisten edges with water and pinch to seal. Cut each roll into 1-inch slices; place slices, cut side down, on 2 greased 13x9x2 pans.

COOK of the WEEK

Cover and let rise in a warm, draft-free place for about 45 minutes. (Rolls will not double in bulk). Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

Glaze

Mix together 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, 1/2 cup milk and 1 tsp. vanilla and drizzle over warm rolls. Yield: 30 rolls.

Chicken for the Grill

Cut 4 boneless chicken breasts into large cubes. Alternate chicken with large pieces of green pepper and chunks of fresh pineapple on skewers.

Marinade:

1/3 cup Heinz 57 sauce
1/3 cup honey
1/3 cup pineapple juice
Brush on before and during grilling.

Shark Steaks

Marinate shark steaks in Golden Dipt Cajun style Seafood Barbecue Sauce. Grill over a medium fire 10 minutes on each side.

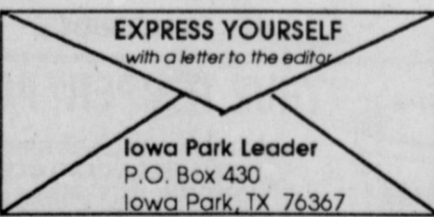

Vegetable Dip

8 oz. light cream cheese
1/4 cup fat-free mayonnaise
3/4 tsp. horseradish
Hormel bacon bits
Pepper, onion salt, garlic salt to taste
Mix first four ingredients until creamy, then add seasonings. Serve with fresh vegetables or chips.

Brown Bag Caramel Corn

Pop 6 quarts popcorn and place in a large brown paper sack. Set aside.
Stir over medium heat:
1 stick margarine
1/4 cup white corn syrup
1 cup brown sugar
Boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add 1 tsp. baking soda. Stir well. Pour hot caramel mixture over popcorn in the sack. Roll top down and shake well.

Place in microwave and cook on high for 1 1/2 minutes. Remove and shake again. Microwave on high for another 1 1/2 minutes. Shake again and pour caramel corn onto a large cookie sheet. Cool completely and store in air-tight container.

Chicken in a Basket

1 can cream of mushroom soup
1/2 pkg. Lipton onion soup mix.
1 cup skim milk
Mix together and then stir in 1 cup Minute Rice. Pour into a 13x9x2 casserole dish.

Top with 6 uncooked boneless chicken breasts. Set aside

Mix Stove Top Stuffing (chicken flavor) according to package directions. Place stuffing mixture over chicken. Cover with tight fitting lid or foil. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees or until chicken is done. Remove lid or foil the last 5 minutes to brown stuffing. Serves 6.

PARENTS FOR THE DEFENSE!

Paul stated, "let us not lose heart in doing good; for in due time we shall reap if we do not grow weary." (Galatians 6:9). I am concerned about many of the youth in this country. I am deeply concerned that many parents oppose this concern in school as well as in church. I have visited with educators from our area as well as with many folks actively involved in church work and whenever one of the youth misbehaves or has some type of difficulty you always hear parents defending their children's actions, regardless of the deed that was done or a complete refusal to believe their "little darling" would do such a thing. I know I am joined by many who are tired of this type of nonsense.

Many parents are always determined to defend their children, whether guilty or innocent. These are the same parents who become upset if their child is asked to leave the classroom whether at worship or in the school room. These are the children who grow up to become adults who continue to justify their behavior and are never able to acknowledge any of the blame for their actions. They are still able to remember Mom and Dad blaming everyone but them. These folks have ignored the biblical warning, "do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, this will he also reap." (Galatians 6:7).

How much should we expect from youth? What should parents expect from their children? Many parents are actually doing a disservice to their children! When the time does come to reap what has been sown, the real tragedy is that the children are the main victims of this terrible harvest! When it comes time for them to face the real world, they will not be prepared, but even worse, they will not be prepared for eternity.

Lady Hawks winners in Tiger Track Meet

Despite being picked second in a photo-finish of the 1600-meter relay, the Lady Hawks captured the trophy of Saturday's Electric Tiger Relays.

Coach John Hoelter's view of the finish had fourth-leg runner Christie Welch edging out Vernon. But the pickers chose Vernon, and the Lady Lions were timed in 4:23.66 and Iowa Park 4:23.67.

Welch's contributions for the day helped the Lady Hawks accumulate 109 1/4 points to Vernon's 102 1/4. Childress was third with 98.

Besides being a member of two second-place relays, the 1600 and 800, Welch earned points in a couple of individual events, winning the 800-meter race in 2:32.77, and placing fifth in the high jump, 4-6.

Mandy Threet won the 100-meter hurdles, 17.40, placed third in the long jump, 15-11, and ran a leg on the fifth-place 400-meter relay.

Doc Ann Warren won the 400-meter dash in 63.51, and also ran on the 1600 and 400 relays.

Earning first place in the discus, 100-11, and fifth in the shot putt, 31-2, was Jennifer Ricks.

The other first place winner for the Lady Hawks was Brandi Catlin, who topped the field in the 3200-meter run with a 13:47.06 clocking.

Gina Inman was third in the 100-meter hurdles, 17.91, and fifth in the 300-meter hurdles, 55.40.

Fifth-place points were gathered by Nikki Williams, 100-meter dash, 29.10, and Jaynie Roberts, 100-meter hurdles, 18.86.

Lychelle Monday and Cheri Halady ran legs on all three of the relays, and Roberts was the fourth member of the 800-meter relay team.

Shawn Green was the only Hawk to place in the top three of the varsity competition. He ran a 2:09.69 for third place in the 800-meter run.

In junior varsity competition, Iowa Park placed second with 93 points, behind Holliday's 143 1/2. Electra had 74 and Bowie 68.

Next meet for the teams is Mar. 28 at Otis.

Powerlifting Coach Steve Stewart will take nine members of the Hawk team to the regional meet Saturday at Kermit. Qualifiers will advance to the state meet.

5-3 Hawks enter Burk tournament

The Baseball Hawks will carry a 5-3 record into the first round of play today at the Burk Burnett Tournament.

They are to face Lawton Ike at 11 a.m.

A two-run homer in the eighth inning broke a 13-13 tie Friday, giving host Childress a 15-13 win.

Actually, it was another home run that provided the Bobcats most of their runs. That was a grand slam earlier off pitcher Chuck Thompson.

J-Bill Merrick had gone in to relieve Thompson and gave up the deciding score.

Going to Burk Burnett for that school's three-day tournament today won't be the last the Hawks will see of the Bulldogs. Burk is scheduled to come here for a 4 p.m. start Tuesday.

The following Friday, Iowa Park will host Wichita Falls Hirsch.

The Hawk JV is slated to host Burk's JV Monday, also at 4.

8th Grade girls 3rd at Burk

The Eighth Grade Lady Hawks placed third among eight teams Wednesday of last week at Burk Burnett.

The team earned 98 points to trail only Lawton MacArthur, 109, and host Burk Burnett, 107.

Two athletes, Julia Ricks and Dorei Welch, won firsts in two field events apiece.

Ricks had a 96-5 in the discus and 93-7 1/2 in the shot putt. Welch won the high jump, 4-6, and long jump, 13-9 1/2.

Penny Bradberry was third in both the discus and shot putt, 72-1 and 26-3. And Karen Taylor was second in the long jump, 13-6 1/2.

The relay team composed of Collins, Taylor, Marchand and Welch placed second in the 800 and sixth in the 400, with times of 2:01.48 and 57.34, respectively. Earning fifth place in the 1600-meter relay event with a 5:12.29 were Marchand, Thomas, Atchley and Thompson.

Other individual results included: 200m Hurdles - 2. Welch, 33.33; 200m dash - Karen Taylor, 29.40.

Earning points in the Seventh Grade division were: 1200m Run - 6. Jodi Henderson, 5:17.66; 1600m Relay - 6. (Osborne, Terry, Scobee, Tigrett), 5:25.79; Discus - 4. Lori Wiggins, 63-4; Triple Jump - 6. Randi Tigrett, 24-8.

Next competition for the teams will be when they host their own meet in Hawk Stadium on Friday, Mar. 27.

Melissa Logan is recipient

Two different honors have been awarded 1987 Iowa Park High School graduate Melissa Logan, currently a student at Midwestern State Univ.

She has been informed that the MSU Division of Education faculty has selected her as this year's recipient of the Travis and Evalyn White Student Teaching Award - Spring 1992 Outstanding Secondary Student Teacher. Secondly, she was notified by the Emory University Graduate School of Education as having been chosen for a $9,000 scholarship. Miss Logan has been doing part of her student teaching at McNeil Junior High in Wichita Falls, and, after spring break, is to do the same at Bradford Elementary.

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Gov. Ann Richards will likely call lawmakers into a mid-May special session for a fourth try at reforming public school finance.

Some think she will unveil her own plan for legislators to adopt; three previous tries were all ruled unconstitutional, a puzzling phenomenon since lawyer-lawmakers dominated the bill-writing process.

In May, the political heat on lawmakers should be at the lowest point, since Texas held its primaries this week and the general election won't be held until November.

By then, politicians hope, voters will be so enmeshed in the presidential fury they will have forgotten whatever grudge may arise - probably higher taxes - from the coming special session.

Workers Comp Appeal The Texas 4th Court of Appeals opened hearings to decide whether a lower court judge erred in declaring unconstitutional the 1989 Texas workers compensation insurance reform.

Judge Ray Perez of Maverick County struck down the law last year as restricting workers' access to courts; a pro-business group is suing to reinstate the reform which they contend is equitable and less expensive.

House Speaker Gifts House Transportation Committee chairman David Cain, D-Dallas, has received more political contributions, over $250,000, than any other candidate for House speaker.

Other top gift leaders are Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, with almost $134,000; James Hury, D-Galveston, $106,000; and Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, with $85,000.

Five other Democrat hats are also in the ring, but veteran lawmakers caution that despite the money, the real race may not shape up until after November, when Republicans tally their membership.

Term Limits Boosted Regarding Texas House issues, citizens group Texans for Term Limitations released its poll showing one-third of incumbent state representatives want term limitations for state officials.

More telling, about three-fourths of challengers for House seats support limiting terms of office for politicians.

On a different front, state Rep. Dan Kubiak said 85 percent of current House members plan to support his proposed amendment seeking to limit terms of the House speaker only.

Kubiak also wants to cap speaker campaign expenditures at $15,000, or twice the amount of legislators' annual salary.

Morales, Megatons, Ministry Attorney General Dan Morales said he opposes the Department of Energy plan to build a nuclear waste dump near Amarillo, calling it a potential environmental disaster.

The feds plan to dismantle 2,000 nuclear warheads a year at Pantex Plant and store about 100,000 pounds of plutonium there until a permanent site is found.

Television evangelist Robert Tilton, seeking a federal court injunction against Morales' probe of his Word of Faith church in Dallas, accused Morales of waging media attacks on his ministry.

Tilton said Morales faxed copies of the probe's lawsuit to the media before serving it to the church. Morales started the probe for fraud last year and was temporarily restrained by the judge last month.

Other Highlights

State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchinson said the Texas Legislature's "budget creep" and high state taxes were taking their toll on business expansion and consumer spending.

She warned that as state legislatures nationwide restructure their tax bases, "only those that bit the bullet instead of dodging it will survive these tough times."
