SENATOR JONES INTERVIEWED.

What the Nevada Senator has to Say on the General Outlook.

The fortunes which have been made at Leadville during the past two years have led the attention of those who interest themselves in mines to carbonates. The almost fabulous prices which have been paid for property in Leadville, and the fact that so much of it has been negotiated here in New York, renders any authentic and trustworthy information in reference to carbonate deposits peculiar value. Senator J. P. Jones, of Nevada, and J. W. Bailey, of Colorado, were the first two capitalists to visit the Dolores camp. An Evening Mail reporter called at the St. James Hotel and in response a card was shown to the room of Senator Jones, who received him in the cordial manner for which he is noted. In the course of an extended conversation, the Senator expressed himself very encouragingly as to the general mining interest in his own state, Nevada, and in California he found during his recent visit a genuine and general revival of mining interests. The Comstock lode is passing, in his opinion, from a barren to a fruitful zone, and in both the north and south end the leading mines are showing great promise of almost immediate and rich developments. He retains his faith in the great lode, and believes fully in the capacity of the management to continue deep mining to a very much greater depth than has yet been attained. That, too, with great profit. In the Senator's judgment, also, the Pacific slope mining interest is entering into a new and much more encouraging place of business management. The large eastern investments in Colorado, Utah, eastern and southern Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico, has not, to any large extent, reached California and northern Nevada, but there is a growing tendency that way. Every one begins to feel that mining is now becoming recognized as a national interest, and so feeling the activity of eastern capital is welcomed as never before. On Colorado matters the Senator was enthusiastic, and especially so in regard to San Juan. In relation to that section and the Dolores, the Senator said:

One of the best tests as to the value of a camp I conceive to be the universal opinion of the returning tide, and by those who are at all familiar with the Dolores and its prospectors and investors it will be noticed that with scarcely an exception those who have visited the camp report upon it favorably. I believe it will be a great camp. Everybody knows how easily carbonates are worked. Some of the veins are enormous in their proportions, while all have proven to be silver bearing. Without an exception, so far as I know, they have never failed to improve in quality as depth was attained, and while none of the lodes have decreased in quantity, the rule has been that they have increased in size as well as quality on developing. As to the extreme richness of the deposits, that has been established beyond peradventure. In fact, I regard the Dolores as the most promising silver camp I have been in, except Leadville, and from the prospects and what I saw, I believe the mineral area, when developed to the same extent, will prove to be as great as that of Leadville, to which, in fact, it bears many points of resemblance. The veins are not so flat as in that camp, and pitch in to the earth at a sufficient angle to guarantee whoever gets the apex of veins the privilege, under the law, of following them to any depth desired. The country is not broken by rugged peaks and blow-outs, the ranges showing that regularity in formation which insures permanency of deposits wherever found. Now, as to its accessibility: The main line of the Southern Utah railway runs close to it; the Denver & Rio Grande road, in Colorado, is pushing directly towards it; wagon roads are easily constructed; coal banks are near at hand; there is plenty of water to be had. Mr. J. W. Bailey, of Colorado, a successful mining capitalist, who has devoted twenty years of his life to mining, was next called upon at his office and asked to state his views.

Mr. Bailey replied: Senator Jones and myself were the first parties to make large investments there. We went there in August, when but little was known of the camp. As to Rico, I have seen many hundred mining camps in California, Nevada, Utah, and Colorado, and I never saw a camp before showing up as much rich mineral on the same amount of development as the Dolores. I have already invested over $50,000 in the camp, and am investing right along. Q. What have the developments thus far shown?

A. We went there first in August last. At that time very little work had been done, but still enough to prove the existence of many veins of soft carbonates, all of great richness. The developments since have improved the veins both as to richness and extent. I saw Leadville in its infancy. With the same amount of development it did not show as well as the Dolores. The formation is in many respects similar. There is one mine for instance, quite similar in character to the well known Iron Mine. The formation above and below, the character of the ore, and the gangue being the same. The Dolores prospect carries more gold and has a larger and richer deposit. I have seen many hundred mining camps in my life and never saw two bearing stronger resemblance.

Our reporter ascertained the following facts in reference to the extent of recent investments in the region under consideration: The Grand View and Major mines have been stocked for $10,000,000. The Pelican, Yellow Jacket and Phoenix have also been stocked for $10,000,000. The Suydam Mining Company has been organized to develop the Bertha mine, while an other company is being organized to purchase and work the Little Jim, adjoining the Grand View and Alma Mater. All these properties are located on Nigger Baby Hill or Telescope Mountain. One company has ordered a forty-ton smelter to be taken in immediately. It will be freighted on snow sleds. The Suydam Company will construct a smelter, and negotiations are being made for the purchase of two others.—N. Y. Mail.

MURDER BY THE INDIANS AT THE Field of New Discovery.

(From News extra of Sunday, March 7.)
Reliable information is first received at the News Office, that the bodies of the men, Mitchell & Merrick, of whom we made mention in a previous issue, were found by the posse in search, in Arizona, near or in the Blue Mountain country. Merrick's body was literally riddled with bullets, and from all indications it would seem that he had fought nobly to the last. His body was found about three miles from his camp. Mitchell's body showed but one bullet wound, and was found where he and Merrick were encamped. It is feared that the party who started from Rico, Messrs Swickheimer, Ladford, Trumble, Charest, Lacombe and Kane, have met a like fate, as they have not been heard from, and have been absent ten days over their allotted time to return. The latter party were poorly armed, and could not well protect themselves, if attacked.

The Navajos, whose lands are near the field of discovery and murder, say they are acquainted with the circumstances, and proclaim innocence, but accuse the Pi-Utes and White River Utes, fugitives from justice. That the Navajos, Utes, and Pi-Utes are all implicated in this Bloody Crime there is no doubt!
LATER.
Since the above appeared in a News extra, three of the party who left Rico have returned, and report the remainder safe and unhurt. We have from the returning party, facts and information, of which the following is the substance:
The Navajos are implicated for they have agreed to return the arms taken from the deceased.
The Mancos posse narrowly escaped being slaughtered.
The deceased were pioneers in the Indian country, in the vicinity of the mines. Merrick visited the section nine years ago, but was driven away by the Indians, and three years ago ventured in, and was compelled to leave the second time. Not being wholly satisfied with his exploration and dangerous adventures, he has been prospecting and travelling in that section since last fall, sometimes alone, and at times accompanied by others. He gave glowing accounts of his explorations, and of the richness of the mineral found there, to a few of his friends only. Mitchell was a young man, whose nearest relatives were Mitchell's family, residing on the Rio San Juan far from civilization. He was in company with Merrick.
It appears to those who have best learned the particulars, from all facts visible and indicative features regarding the murder, that when the men were attacked, they were fleeing or endeavoring to escape or avoid coming in contact with the Indians, but mistakably met them, or was unexpectedly overtaken by the Indians. Mitchell's body was found near an Indian sheep herd, but was so mutilated and destructed that he could only be recognized by his wearing apparel. The wolves had eaten all the flesh they could get at. The flesh was eaten and gnawed off his bones as far in his boots as the wolves could reach. One bullet hole was found through his body. Merrick's body was found about three miles from that of Mitchell, and it seemed that he had been separated from Mitchell by the attack of the Indians, and had had a running fight with them, as he was shot eight times through the body, and once through the head, which latter shot was doubtless the final, though it is stated that the greater number of the eight, either alone, would have been fatal. He had crawled and dragged himself a distance, in a deep sand arroyo or ravine, and about every twenty or thirty feet, pools of blood—dried up—were found. He had crawled under a large overhanging rock; his watch remained in its pocket, and his hat and smoke-pipe were found near by. Also a lead pencil and some pieces of paper were found near his hands, but no writing had been done. He perhaps intended writing, but lingered too long, awaiting recovery from the stupor caused by loss of blood, died a most horrible death, far from friends, and without any hopes or source of recovery. The sad news will be heart-rending to the relatives and friends of the murdered men. Mothers and sisters, to whom these men wear dear, will think the terrifying thoughts of the lonely and helpless ones, dying a most horrid and dreaded death. The lives of the men, with pale death staring upon them, were less precious, and their last thoughts less terrifying to them than to the dear ones awaiting their return home. Men become hardened to these things, and forget them, unless brave men are assassinated, as in this instance, it is long remembered. They had no surviving comrades, no friends, not a soul to comfort them and speak words of cheer during their last moments. They will mark in our remembrance as martyrs or saviours to the general cause of true western men. Should we in future see that section change from a wilderness of wilds, to one of civilization and cultivation by the white race, will we remember that these men sacrificed their lives in taking the first steps toward opening up and civilizing that section?

Erect or suffice a monument for all who would make the sacrifice. It is honorable, yet not many of us aspire to the honor.

Elgin is becoming a mining center as well as headquarters of other interests. The New Rico Consolidated Mining and Milling company is being rapidly organized, and already numbers among its stockholders twenty of our leading citizens. A $20,000 smelter will be erected by early in the spring at Rico, Col.—Ex.

We have it reliably by private letter, that the above company, in which Mr. F. W. Raymond is largely interested, has closed its subscription books, its stock having been all subscribed, and the machinery will be at Alamosa, April 12th. This company has six splendid locations, the Highland Mary and Lady Elgin, in Horse Gulch, are two valuable properties, either one of which are well worth the entire amount of the capital stock of the company.

CAN THE MASSES BE BOUGHT.

Just now, and especially in Colorado, we hear considerable said about the ability of this man and that man to purchase and corrupt the people. No man has money enough for that. The masses of men are honest. Demagogues preach that all men have their price, that all can be debauched. In every land and during all time, corrupt leaders have found corrupt followers. But a great majority of the fifty millions of American people are honest and will sustain honest leaders in honest courses. Upon its dependence upon and faith in the people hinges the success, and the life of the Republican party. From its nature it must rest upon the prevailing honesty of the masses.

Smooth-tongued demagogues will often mislead the people, and every community and nation that ever existed have suffered from such men, but a misled people is radically different from a corrupt people. In spite of all the tricks of cunning politicians and the frauds of dishonest ones, the people are never long misled. We have noticed that, no matter how poor a man might be, if he stands firm and unflinchingly in defense of the rights of his constituents he will be sustained by the votes and good opinions of all who have at heart their country's good.—Denver Republican.

News is rumored of the killing of two men in the Blue Mountain country.

Spring is opening with beautiful weather, and the farmers are preparing for an early beginning of their work.

A few days ago Mrs. Mary Hartman was thrown from a high spirited riding animal, falling violently to the frozen ground, receiving several bruises, and doubtless permanent injury. But for medical aid rendered immediately a severe bruise on the head would have caused concussion of the brain, and immediate death. Hopes of recovery without lasting injury are entertained. * *

THE TRAIL FROM RICO TO BEAR CREEK NOW OPEN!

The necessary amount of money and sufficient aid was obtained this week, for the purpose of opening the trail from Rico to Bear Creek, and the work was vigorously prosecuted, and the trail is now open, and ready for travel.

The severe cold, snowy and stormy weather being over, the trail will improve every day, and we may now truthfully state that we have a thoroughfare, direct to Animas City, equally as good as that beyond there, on to the terminus of the D. & R. G.

One of the first and most important steps toward the general opening of the district has been taken, and this will enable the people of the outside world, who are desirous of coming to Rico, to come in with little difficulty, and three weeks earlier than under the condition of roads and trails a short time ago.

Parties are already out with pack trains purchasing supplies for the Rico market. And in a few weeks, it is anticipated that there will be an abundance of provision on the market.

Prepare for War in Time of Peace.

In anticipation of a few companies or regiments of "roughs" coming to our midst, in the near future, would it not be well to organize a Protective Association that we may protect the rightful owners of property against the professional looters that come to our midst? Base the principle of the organization of the association upon common law principles.

But in cases of emergency, where the case would be too flagrant to await the action of the common law, it would be a more speedy resort to reinstate rightful owners to the possession of property in a manner stolen. Should we receive an alarming number of the representatives of the rough element of other towns and cities, an association of one hundred strong would put a quietus upon the most detrimental vice practiced upon the industry of any mining town or camp.

We do not believe in hemp shows or rope-pulling bees, only under the most aggravating circumstances, where the community popularly, would not tolerate the action of the would be felon or robber. We feel safe to assert that every citizen, resident of the district, will coincide with us in agitating this matter.

Protect the actual property holder and the best interests of the Carbonate Camp and its citizens, vi et armis, if a more moderate and milder procedure should prove unfruitful. BUT LET HEMP BE THE LAST RESORT, and absolutely unavoidable, before a single tree is ornamented.

RANK OF RICO.—Rico is to have by the first of May next, a general banking house, an institution much needed here. Mr. E. B. Cushing, who has been visiting Rico a few days, and whose business it has been to establish the Bank of Rico, has perfected the purchase of a valuable and most convenient location, and made all arrangements for the erection of a building for the purpose, and starts east to-morrow in the interests of his business.

Mr. C. takes with him some valuable Dolores properties, for disposal to those who wish to invest in mining properties. Space will not permit mention of the several lodes in this issue.

Address Eugene B. Cushing, Room 8, Major Block, 149 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.

OUR BOYS HOME AGAIN.

On Wednesday evening of this week Dave Swickheimer, Paddy Cane and Joe Charest, of the party who left Rico, to go to the new field of discovery in Arizona, and who were supposed to have been killed by the Indians, came home safe and sound, and report that the remainder of their party are safe, out of the Indian country. Dave says there was "nothing smart" about their escape, but "all good luck."

Joe Lacombe was left at Mitchell's, on the San Juan, Lige Ladford in the Montezuma valley, and Joe Tremble went to Animas City.

The party kept guard every night while in the Indian country.

The boys say they feared the Mormons alike the Utes, Navajoes and Pi-Utes, and would have little preference for one or the other, unless it was the Pi-Utes.

They found some mineral, and believe there are valuable mines in that section. But Indians and inaccessibility will keep that section isolated and unopened for many years.

These mines are in Apache county, Arizona, south of Navajo mountain, and about one hundred and fifty miles north of the San Francisco mountains, and about one hundred and seventy miles west of Mitchell's, on the San Juan.

From Rico to Mitchell's, is about 135 miles.

The southwestern country through which the party traveled, is principally of high uplands or mesas, somewhat diversified with deep box canons or gorges, ravines and foothills. They say but for the wilds this wilderness might be reverted to a paradise.

West of the mineral section, they found caves and cliff houses, high up in perpendicular cliffs, cut deep into the solid rock, which caves could not be entered by any human without being suspended by many hundred feet of rope. It is supposed that the ancients had stairways cut in the rocks, as a means of entrance.

As 'tis doubtful centuries since the cliff houses were occupied, the rock being of sandstone nature, and subject to the effect produced by the weather, without repair, crumbled and washed the steps away.

Against Type Monopoly.

We do not know what the sentiments of Hon. Jas. B. Belford or Senator N. P. Hill, are concerning the type tariff or monopoly, but congress shall honor the prayer of the whole newspaperer of the Union. That congress will see that the government is not used to build up monopolies for the benefit of individuals, at the expense of the people is our belief.

Petitions are pouring into congress from all parts, demanding free trade in type, and it is to be hoped that the tariff will be abolished, as some members of congress are doubtless aware that it now requires the capital of a Rothschild to establish a small country paper.

"THE editor of the DOLOROS NEWS fairly astonishes us with his Latin. He can't write a two-line editorial without putting in 16 words that nobody (that is, hardly anybody) but himself can understand."—Ouray Muldoon.

We are neither a Latin, French, German or English scholar, and seldom inflict upon our readers the foreign logotypes in English usage. But sometimes do it, don't you know, if for nothing other than to change the monotony of a single class of English words at our command. Now, Mr. Muldoon, won't you allow a brother co-temporary to use a few logotypes acquired by having been afflicted at the typewriter with the manuscripts of professional pesters? The metropolitan (?) attainment is not wholly essential or necessary to the self or print-shop made country newspaper man of the west, yet, we too, claiming the same relation to "equal rights" that have the "pests," SHALL thus inflict our readers occasionally, for what would be the use of laboring eight or ten years at the printing business, only accomplishing these little sparks of knowledge (?) if we could not give vent to our feelings, when we sorely reflect upon the folly of having missed our calling (LECTURING ON TEMPERANCE?) and becoming associated with a class of disreputable church-mouse wealthy newspapermen. "De nihilo nihil fit."—Latin. Look on page 650, of the Diamond dictionary. Now, if you are so fortunate as we, and can only borrow one—

Respectfully submitting that the muldoon-C miner controversy has been rather personal all around, and concluding that it is "none of our funeral," we have but to hope that all parties to the affair will drop the matter.

JOHN B. CURRY, ESQ., The owner of the La Plata Miner at Silverton, and the Dolores News, at Rico, in the San Juan country, Colorado, will remain in the East a short time. Mr. C. will be in Chicago, St. Louis, New York, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Boston, and other cities in the interest of his publications. We respectfully suggest to capitalists and others, who propose to invest in mining property, about Silverton, Howard's Fork, Rio San Miguel, Rico and the Carbonate Camp, on the Dolores, all in the San Juan; that Mr. Curry, from his long residence in the country, has acquired a knowledge of Southwestern Colorado, its mines, their worth and value, their location and situation and the parties who own some of the best property—that is invaluable. He is a most pleasant affable and courteous gentleman, and will take pleasure in affording all inquirers the fullest information in regard to the vast mineral resources of the country, as well as some of the best gold and silver lodes that may be secured at the most moderate figures. Parties desiring to consult Mr. Curry will address him 87, Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.
