1993 Aggie Muster Scheduled Here Wednesday

Former students of Texas A&M University will assemble in Muleshoe on Wednesday, April 21 for the annual Texas Aggie Muster, said Barry Cowart, Muster Chairman.

The Muster activities consisting of a dinner and program will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Carousel of Good Food Restaurant in Muleshoe. Muster is open to all former students and their families, parents of students, and friends of Texas A&M.

Texas A&M is in its "Second Century of Greatness." Since 1876, Texas A&M has grown from a small Land Grant College to one of the leading research and educational institutions in the world, now holding the distinction of sea and space grants as well.

The Muster tradition is over 100 years old. More than 400 Musters will be held around the world this year, Cowart said, "wherever Texas A&M former students live or work."

During wars, Aggies mustered in foxholes, on the battlefield, aboard ships, in airplanes and in medical hospitals. In World War II, a Muster was held on Corregidor Island shortly before the Japanese captured it in 1942.

"Every Muster ceremony is the same," Cowart reported. "Texas Aggies pay their respects to all those who are absent because of death since the last Muster. When the names of the honored dead are called from the Muster Roll, a friend of the deceased answers, "Here."

HUNGARIAN VIRTUOSI ORCHESTRA

Hereford Community Concert Upcoming Season Planned

Subscriptions are being taken for the 1993-94 Hereford Community Concert series. There are three concerts being featured this year which are costing much more than any other concert season in the history of the Association. However, the cost to the public is remaining the same as in the past. That is $15 for the season for adults, $7.50 for students, and $40 for a family membership. This also includes reciprocal membership to Plainview, Pampa, Dumas, and Borger, besides the three Hereford concerts. There are usually a number of different concerts at the other towns.

The drive for taking these subscriptions will be over April 25th. If you are interested in buying season tickets, please contact one of these local persons: Elaine Damron 272-4641; Myrt Feagley 272-4869; Marilyn Young 272-4808; Becky Conklin 925-6413; or Coralyn Jarmon 965-2340.

The Hungarian Virtuosi Orchestra was founded in 1988 by graduates of the world-famous Liszt Ferenc Academy of Music. As a result of their highly successful debut concert in Hunarv, the ensemble received invitations for debut concert tours in Austria, France, and Italy. Hungarian Television showed the orchestra in a monthly music program and their first record was released by Hungaroton in 1989. The orchestra makes its debut North American tour in the 1993-94 season, with Israeli pianist Ory Shihor as guest soloist.

The artistic director of the orchestra is Miklos Szentehelyi, a violinist whose international career has taken him throughout Europe, and to Japan, Brazil, Austria, Canada and the United States. He has been a teacher at the Liszt Ferenc Academy of Music since 1973 and released ten recordings, eight of which appeared on the Hungaroton label and two which were released on the Capriccio label. In 1986, he was awarded the coveted Liszt Prize by the government of Hungary.

The drive for taking subscriptions will be over April 25th. If you are interested in buying season tickets, please contact one of these local persons: Elaine Damron 272-4641; Myrt Feagley; 272-4869 Marilyn Young 272-4808; Becky Conklin 925-6413; or Coralyn Jarmon 965-2340.

In Fashion

Many of the handbags shown feature a heavy saddle stitch. Some are roomy totes that are compartmentalized combining style with practicality. These totes are brightly lined with fabric to compliment the texture of the bag.

Handbags come in many fabrics. For casual use there's leather and cotton twill. Evening bags are made of satin and velvet. One satin bag resembles a shopping bag but it's scaled down to a small evening bag.

Every child should have his chores whether the family be rich or poor.

Attending State Meeting

"FHA/HERO: A Circus of the Stars" is the theme of the 1993 meeting which will be held in the George R. Brown Convention Center, Houston, Texas, April 16-17, 1993.

Members will motivate individuals to swing into action by developing skills for life through character development, creative and critical thinking, family communications, practical knowledge, and vocational preparation. Dynamic keynote speakers and presentation by members will highlight the two day conference. Interest sessions on leadership skills, time management, positive self image, self defense, communications, sexually transmitted diseases and other critical teen issues will be held for members to attend.

Lisa Galaviz, Raquel Guzman, Jo Le Weaver and Marsha Mendoza will be participating in STAR events. They advanced to state after placing 6th at the regional meeting in the Parliamentary procedure.

Springtime Vacation Option

With the arrival of spring, many people are beginning to wonder what to do for vacation. The Greater Amarillo Chapter of the American Red Cross may have an option.

The Red Cross is offering its first ever Multi-Day School from May 30 through June 5. It is a week long variety of day and night courses, ranging from classes designed for the general public to instructors.

The school will be located at the Girl Scout Camp Kiwanis, five miles west of Amarillo and just north of Interstate 40. Students can choose to camp out at the facilities or commute each day.

Courses that will be offered for the community are Basic Lifeguarding, Preventing Disease Transmission, Back Injury Prevention, and Standard First Aid. These courses are designed to train citizens to help in emergency situations either at home or in the workplace.

For people interested in being able to teach American Red Cross courses, courses such as Water Safety Instructor, Lifeguarding Instructor, and First Aid and CPR Instructor courses will be offered. These courses give an individual the opportunity to become trained to teach in their own community.

Emergency Response is a new course for those whose job requires them to act in an emergency. Fire fighters, law enforcement personnel, ski patrollers, athletic trainers, and lifeguards are some examples of those who could benefit from this course. CEU's are provided to certain categories of students, such as EMT's.

Total cost for a camper is $190.00, and includes all meals, lodging, and course materials. Total cost for a commuter is $165.00, and includes everything except lodging.

This is the only Red Cross Multi-Day School offered within a two hundred mile radius of Amarillo. Deadline for enrollment is May 21. For a free brochure or more information, call the Greater-Amarillo Chapter of the American Red Cross at (806) 376-6309.

"Productivity appraisal" may lower the property taxes on your farm, ranch or timberland!

Texas law allows farmers, ranchers and timber growers to pay property taxes based upon the "production value" of their land rather than on its market value. This "productivity appraisal" means qualified land is taxed based on its ability to produce crops, livestock or timber - not on its value on the real estate market. And it can mean substantial property tax savings.

When is the application deadline?

If your land has never had a productivity appraisal, you must apply to your local appraisal district by April 30th to take advantage of this benefit on your 1993 property taxes. You may get up to 60 extra days if you have a good reason and ask for it by April 30. If you miss this deadline, you may still be able to apply, but you will pay a penalty. Check with your appraisal district office.

Do you need to reapply annually?

If your land already receives agricultural or timber productivity appraisal, you normally don't need to reapply unless the chief appraiser requires you to. If a new application is required, the appraisal district will notify you by mail.

Lone Star Ballet's Season Finale, "Cinderella"

Fort Worth's "Cinderella", Artistic Director, Paul Mejia's loving and lovely balletic version of the classic, cleanly told and shrewdly festooned with an irresistible menagerie of children, will close the LSB 1992-93 season. Mejia's version has proven popular in Ft. Worth, Chicago, and San Antonio because of its straightforward simplicity, telling a children's story with plenty of dance magic for adults, in choreography honest and reverent in its reflection of Sergi Prokofiev's score. Cinderella has lost none of her charm, from the gorgeousness of Mejia's keen does for Cinderella and her adoring Prince to the 100 plus LSB young dancers who will appear as bees, beetles, ladybug's, mushrooms, strawberries, and fireflies, the latter boasting unforgettable, illuminated derrieres.

Sixty-Fifth Pioneer Round-Up Is Scheduled For May 15

The sixty-fifth Pioneer Round-Up, scheduled for Saturday, May 15, will for the thirty-fourth year, honor a pioneer woman of this area.

Deadline for nominations for the "Pioneer Woman of the Plains" has been set for May 1st, according to Nelda Barbain, chairman of the Program Committee. The Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club is the sponsoring organization of the Pioneer Round-Up.

Entry blanks for the "Pioneer Woman of the Plains" are available to civic clubs, individuals, women's clubs and organizations in Plainview and surrounding areas and may be secured from Mrs. Barbain. All entries must be signed by the organization or individual who is submitting the nomination and must state whether or not she would be able to attend the Round-Up, if selected. The nominee must have been a pioneer resident of the High Plains and be at least 80 years of age. Of most importance, this woman should be one of the early settlers to make her home on the Plains and have a true "pioneer" spirit. A short biography of the nominee must be submitted, including her outstanding contributions to the home, church, community and general welfare of her fellowman.

A panel of judges will select the winner based on information submitted. The number of times a person is nominated will have no effect on the selection of the honoree. All entries must be postmarked no later than May 1, 1993. Entry blanks and additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Barbain, 293-3635 or 296-2585.

Announcement of the "Pioneer Woman of the Plains" will be made at the evening activities of the 65th Pioneer Round-Up during the program beginning at 8:00 p.m. at the Ollie Liner Center.

Nancy Fowler, president of the Plainview BPW Club, said other events of this year's Round-Up include the reception beginning at 10:00 a.m. honoring all pioneers; parade at 2:30 p.m.; the supper beginning at 6:00 p.m.; the program at 8:00 p.m. and the square dance following at 9:00 p.m., all in the Ollie Liner Center on the south edge of Plainview on Highway 87.

Karoleen Inman-Artist of the Month

Muleshoe Art Association's Artist Of The Month Named

Karoleen Inman began painting in 1972. Most of her work has been done since retiring from teaching for fourteen years in Farwell schools.

She is a graduate of Muleshoe High School; Hardin-Simmons University, B.S.; Eastern New Mexico University, Med.; and also studied at Clovis Community College, attaining a minor in art.

She began studies with Mary Lee Garrett, and has done many workshops with Jean Green, Blanche Lenderson, J.D. Keel and others, also studying calligraphy with Julie Puzey and marbling paper with Polly Fox and Sylvia Renne in Taos, NM.

Karoleen prefers painting in oils, making paper, sewing and decorating clothing.

She and her husband, Marlon, do many wood projects together, spending much time in Carson National Forest looking for the right dead tree branches to make Santa Clauses. After making a Santa ornament for the 1991 New Mexico Christmas Tree in Washington, D.C., they have made over 200 Santas ranging from tree ornament size to several 4 to 5 feet tall to greet you at the front door. These Santas were in stores from Sipapu Ski Resort, NM; Enchanted Express, Clovis; to San Angelo, Marble Falls, Nacogdoches and Gladewater, TX this past year.

They have attended several Arts and Crafts shows each year, both members of Hobbies Industries of America.

Karoleen is a member of the Muleshoe Art Association; Pintaes Art League, Clovis; organist at First Baptist Church, Clovis; and Chairman of Christian Women's Club, Clovis.

Paintings, calligraphy and crafts are shown at the Crafters Mall, 321 Main in Clovis.

Her paintings will be on display at the library this month.

Muleshoe Volunteer Firemen To Attend Convention In Amarillo

For the last four weeks, Muleshoe Firemen have been getting ready for the annual Panhandle Firemen and Fire Marshall's Association Convention in Amarillo, where they will participate in the game's May 15 and 16.

The six man pump team is where six men lay 100 feet of 2 1/2 hose off of a pump truck and pump water. Sounds easy, but it's not. The six man team consists of: Tony Scolley-nozzle; Brent Hall-2 1/2 connector; Benny Parker-hydrant; Gary Clark-2 1/2 connector; Mickey Tosh-team captain; John McCutchen-sideman hardsuction and Shane Kirk-hydrant hardsuction. Charles Lorange and Jo Parker are training and safety officers.

The Three Man Hose Lay and Water Polo are not set to a single team as of yet, but the Ladies' Auxiliary will participate in this game with Sondra Scolley, Lisa Hall, Brenda Clark, and Cacie McCutchen.

The tug of war team will be Gary Howard-team captain; Benny Parker-team captain, Gary Clark-puller; Brent Hall-puller, and Gerald Ambries-anchor.

Since Jack Dunham is second vice president this year, the Muleshoe Fire Department will be well represented as an active department of the P.F.F.M.A. (Panhandle Firemen's and Fire Marshall's Association). Tony Sculley was nominated as fireman of the year and Chris Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brent Hall, will be running for mascot.

The annual Fireman's Ball tickets are on sale and set for April 17, plus many of the firemen are selling candy bars for a dollar a bar.

These activities are to help fund this and the Muleshoe Fire Department needs your help. Mickey Tosh See You At The Dance!

Rural Land Values Should Increase

According to information released recently by an agricultural economist with Texas A&M University, Texas rural land values rose slightly in 1992 and should continue to do so throughout the decade.

"Although the figures aren't yet final, indications are that statewide median prices rose," said Dr. Charles E. Gilliland, a visiting assistant professor or agricultural economics at Texas A&M and a member of the school's Real Estate Center.

The price rise follows a slight drop in land values in 1991, and reverses what had been a downward trend through the 1980s. Prices should stay stable or rise for irrigated cropland, improved pasture, native range, orchards or vineyards timberland, and urban fringe areas, although not across all regions of Texas for all land types, he said.

Gilliland will have final estimates for the year by April 20, when he will be among six speakers at the third Annual Outlook for Texas Rural Land Markets Conference in College Station. Among his findings are that most Texans observes forecast steadily improving rural land values after declines in the 1980s and early 1990s.

"However, experiences have varied substantially both geographically and by type of land," he said. "Those areas that resisted early downward trends have now suffered through price adjustments, and two of the real stories for 1991 are in the Texas Hill Country and in the Rice Belt."

"The Hill County seems to be stabilized and there's a great deal of selling going on at prices below what the peak was," he said. "In the Rice Belt, sales are infrequent and prices are weak because producers seem more interested in leasing land than purchasing it. An awful lot of rice we produced was not sent to Iraq, and since the Gulf War conditions have not been good for rice farmers.

Rural land in the Dallas-Fort Worth area also dropped slightly in 1992, but many observers believe that region has stabilized as well, he said.

Despite damaging weather early in 1992, there is a shortage of quality irrigated cropland for sale in parts of the Panhandle, Gilliland said. Producers there reacted quickly to crop damage with alternative crops and received enough insurance to keep their operations viable, he said.

Another interesting development, he said, is an indication by a private source that the insurance industry may be ready to lend money to ranching operations again.

Agricultural production has been the leading reason for purchase, and demand for agricultural products should be steady during the decade, helping prices, Gilliland said.

Runningwater Draw Care Center Now Open

The Runningwater Draw Care Center is now open and accepting residents. Developing quiet a history, the center has been a project that the entire community has been involved in, even the school age children.

Ground breaking was held on November 27, 1991, and the facility opened in January of this year.

An open house and dedication ceremony was held on March 28 with approximately 300 visitors attending.

The 65 bed skilled nursing facility became Medicaid/Medicare certified, effective February 9. This facility has accommodations for short term or permanent residence for the post-operative, rehabilitative, or chronically ill resident. It also provides temporary care for elderly relatives whose families may be out of town for a short period of time, on vacation or emergency trips.

Runningwater Draw Care Center provides for the physical, emotional and spiritual supportive care for the residents and their families. Individual therapy programs will be prescribed by the resident's physician and adhered to by a qualified therapist. There is a variety of activities designed to develop social and physical needs.

According to Rita Walker, the staff has been carefully selected with the objective of meeting the needs of the residents. Special nurse aide training classes and other staff orientation has been in effect for six months.

Rita Walker told the Journal that the administrative staff welcomes the public to go by and tour the facility any time.

April Designated National Child Abuse Month

EDITORS NOTE: The following proclamation was signed Friday morning by Mayor Robert Montgomery.

Our children deserve the best we have within us. They look to us to be their protectors, role models, heroes and heroines.

Children who are loved and nurtured grow up to love and nurture others. They give back to their own families, their neighborhoods, and the entire nation the good that was bestowed on them. When we show we care, they can show they care. And so the chain continues. Or should continue.

The frightening reality is that nearly one million children each year are abused and neglected. Every year, over 1,000 of these children die from their injuries. The rest live on, but they may carry the burden of their maltreatment into adulthood. Children who were abused are more likely to suffer from substance abuse, depression, learning disabilities, school failure, emotional and behavioral disorders, criminal activity and an inability to foster healthy relationships. Child maltreatment knows no social or economic boundaries. It occurs in every neighborhood in America. We must dedicate our energies to eliminate child abuse, sexual abuse and neglect and their terrible legacy.

I encourage the citizens of this great city to show they care by committing themselves to fighting child abuse and neglect. In our homes, businesses, schools, fraternal organizations. Let us all accept the responsibility of assuring a safe environment for all children. The problems that far too many of our nation's children can be met if each one of us determines to make a difference.

Therefore, I, Mayor Robert Montgomery, declare that April, 1993 and every April hereafter be designated as "Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention Month" across this city. We pledge to create communities that care enough to protect our children.

Few friends come through when the majority is on the other side.

There's no way to accurately predict what people will do.

Obey the rules of the road if you want to live longer.

Everyone is happy when everyone is making money.

There has never been anything cuter than your child.

Nutritionist Sees Genetic Dietary Plans In The Future

Nutritionists of the future will use genetic fingerprinting to customize diet plans precisely to the health needs of the individual, rather than rely on today's general nutrition recommendations.

"A number of years from now we will be able to genetically fingerprint people--based on background and genetic history," said Dr. Joanne Lupton, associate professor of nutrition in animal science at Texas A&M University. "We will be able to tell whether it would be to a person's advantage to increase or decrease a particular nutrient."

People would not have to follow recommendations that do not pertain to them, she said. Yet, on the other hand, populations that are more susceptible to certain diseases can be targeted.

"The major gain that nutrition has made in the last 10 years is to move into this whole area of disease prevention," Lupton said. "This is a major milestone."

"Although much is still uncertain about how dietary patterns protect or harm human health, enough has been learned about the overall health impact of society's prevalent dietary patterns to recommend significant changes," said Dr. Dymple Cooksey, nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Research findings support a strong correlation between coronary heart disease, some types of cancer, obesity, diabetes, stroke and hypertension."

Nutrition is a very large component in each one of these disease areas, Lupton said.

"Educating the public about the dietary choices most conducive to prevention and control of certain chronic diseases is essential," Cooksey said. "Children in primary grades and in secondary schools should be taught the principles of a healthy diet that is lower in fat, especially saturated fat, cholesterol, and sodium, but high in complex carbohydrates and fiber."

The importance of exercise also must be stressed, Cooksey said. Principles outlined in the Dietary Guidelines for Americans should be promoted throughout each stage of life.

Today, the whole thrust of nutrition inquiry is basic research, much like research in genetics and toxicology, Lupton said. "Without a real understanding of the basic science, we don't know about the specific applications."

"If you are in nutrition you are at the center of what is going on with human medicine," Lupton said. "I see a bridge between human medicine and agriculture."

"People are not saying they want more food or less expensive food, but more nutritious food," she said.

Food science, nutrition, and genetics are combining efforts with human medicine, she said. For example, researchers are working to find out what substances are contained in carrots or onions that are protective against colon cancer. Once the discovery is made, "scientists can re-orchestrate these vegetables genetically" to produce more of that protective agent.

"A second aspect may be that some of our old techniques have failed--waiting until you get heart disease or waiting until you get cancer to do something about it," Lupton said. "Perhaps we have been focusing too little attention on prevention. The National Institute of Health and other health organizations are moving in this direction."

All the technology available still will not amount to much, unless consumers understand the vital issue of food safety and preparation, she warned.

"You can get very good lean meat, deep fry it or put a lot of fat on it and undo all the good you've done by purchasing the lean meat in the first place," she said. "We forgot about that. We can go through the whole chemistry we've built for nutritious foods, but if the average person isn't preparing the food safely, we've lost it all."

Population Growth; What Does It Mean To Higher Education?

Funding education and other critical programs may become a serious problem if Texas doubles its population by the year 2030, as some experts believe it will.

The 1993 population of Texas is around 17 million. This includes 3.8 million students in public schools and almost 900,000 in state colleges and universities. By 2030, these numbers, like the general population, are expected to almost double. What this will mean to students and taxpayers is a question both citizens and their legislators are beginning to ponder.

"Texas would have to build about two new schools a week for the next 30-plus years just to keep up with that enrollment," says Dudley Poston, Texas A&M sociologist and co-author of the study, Thirty Million Texans. At the same time, his study indicates that Texas would need to increase the number of state colleges and universities by one-third and create many new community junior colleges.

Finding a way to build these necessary facilities and pay the other costs of educating this burgeoning student population is a dilemma that can't wait.

But is "Thirty Million Texans" an accurate forecast of things to come? Some experts say the numbers won't be as high as this study indicates. For example, State Comptroller John Sharp's estimate of population growth is some 4 million less than the number predicted by Poston and his fellow researcher, Leon Bouvier, of the Center for Immigration Studies in Washington.

All agree, however, that while all predictions are necessarily inexact, Texas is in for decades of spiraling population increases in the foreseeable future. Where are all these people coming from?

For one thing, Texans are living longer. And birth rates for Hispanics and Asians are continuing to rise, more than offsetting the decline in birth rates among Anglos and African-Americans. Immigration also is a major factor: Some 130,000 newcomers arrive in the state each year -- 80,000 of them foreigners. These immigrants alone will add nearly 5 million to the population between now and the year 2030.

Housing these people, assuring them jobs and medical care, building new highways for an additional 15 million vehicles they are expected to drive, and providing other services already are giving state officials concern. A special worry is higher education.

Mandated expenditures in one of Texas' budget problems. Much of its income (84 cents out of every dollar) from taxes and other sources is mandated to be spent according to formulas, court orders, federal requirements, etc. A large portion of its income are revenues dedicated to specific programs. As a result, the Legislature has only about 16 percent of the state's income to appropriate as it sees fit -- and higher education gets about two-thirds of that.

Nevertheless the state recognizes that an educated work force is vital to the future economy since petroleum no longer provides that base. An opportunity for every Texan to acquire an adequate education has been both a goal and an obligation since statehood.

Will unprecedented population growth affect the quality of education in Texas? Tom Plant, chief economist for the State Comptroller, doesn't think so.

"The entire history of Texas has been based on new revenue coming in from the outside," Plant says. Thus he sees no reason to be unduly concerned as the state is off on what may be the greatest growth period ever.

While population growth will require more secondary schools and expanded new institutions of higher education, Dr. William Mobley, president of Texas A&M, sees these as a sound investment in the future.

"Education is not a funding problem...it is the solution to the major problems of state and nation -- problems such as crime, welfare, unemployment and an under-educated work force in the emerging knowledge-based society.

"If we continue to view education as other than an investment and a solution, we run the risk of shortchanging our prospects for the future."

Most Texans -- natives and newcomers -- agree.

The Sound Of Music --- Music students at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos now can learn the mechanics of getting their melodies on records as they work toward a degree.

The school has purchased a $650,000 recording studio that serves commercial artists and also provides a laboratory for students. Officials say it's the only degree program of its kind offered anywhere in Texas or the Southwest.

Designed to give students a working knowledge of the burgeoning music recording business, students take courses in music, music theory, concert promotion, venue management, calculus and others.

Mark Erickson, directory of recording arts at SWTSU, says that less than a dozen schools in the United States offer a similar major.

Best Wishes -- Sept. 1 will be a red letter day in the history of Laredo State University. On that day it becomes a four-year university. It also assumes a new name -- Texas A&M International University. The name change was recently endorsed by regents of the Texas A&M System, which the school joined in 1989.

There were two reasons for the change in names. Since the University is located on the border, it aspires to be an international university. If it had been named Texas A&M University at Laredo, its acronym would have TAML.

State Senator Judith Zaffirini of Laredo, sponsor of the bill that gave the school four-year status, was, among others, fearful that TAML might be nicknamed "Tamale Tech."

Will Your Faith Outlive You?

"No man is an island," John Donne writes, "every man is a piece of the Continent, a part of the main; if a Clod be washed away by the Sea, Europe is the less Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; It tolls for thee."

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

We may not often realize just how "involved in mankind" we really are, how dependent we are even on the men and women of our pasts who are long since dead and mostly forgotten. A story V. Gilbert Beers recounted in a recent issue of Christianity Today well illustrates this truth. It is the true story of his eight-times-great grandmother, Catharine DuBois.

One day in 1663 the Minnisink Indians swept down from the Catskill Mountains and raided the little settlement of New Paltz, New York. Several of the townspeople were killed, and what was often worse, several were taken captive, including Catharine DuBois and her baby, Sara.

Ten weeks passed. Search parties combed the forest but, it seemed, to no avail. Finally, the captors, for whatever reason, decided to burn Catharine DuBois and her little child. The logs were piled high. The torch was lit.

But Catharine didn't die. She sang. "She burst into song," Beers writes, "turning the foreboding Catskill forest into a cathedral of praise." She sang a French hymn taken from Psalm 137. "There our captors asked us for songs, ... they said, 'Sing us one of the songs of Zion!' " She sang. And as she sang her husband and his search party rushed into the camp, saved Catharine and her baby, and, by the way, all of her descendants.

"No man is an Island." No Woman, either! "Like individuals," Beers comments, "generations do not stand alone, ..." but "bequeath their legacy to generations to come." Catharine DuBois' faith touched generations yet unborn. So does yours.

National Donor Awareness Week Is April 19-23

A teenage boy led Patti Hickerson out of the shadow of death. She didn't know his name, or what he looked like.

But every day Patti feels his strong heart beating inside her chest. Then she wonders what would have happened had this dead boy not entered her life.

She would not have seen her son Christopher grow to be a healthy, active four-year-old. She would not have had the chance to return to college. She would have been cheated out of years with her husband.

On August 15, 1987, doctors at the Methodist Hospital in Houston transplanted the heart of a 13 year old Louisiana boy into Patti Hickerson. The boy's heart not only rescued her life but changed it forever.

Hickerson moves easily through the halls of the hospital where she received her heart. "After my operation one of the doctors told me, 'Patti, go out among the living and go back to your life,'" she says. "But I can't do that. I am a miracle, and I have to let other people know about it."

So she visits patients about to receive transplants and keeps in touch with those who recover from surgery and go on with their lives. She also travels around the state speaking about organ donation.

The accidental death of a teenage boy set into motion a cycle of survival and hope. That was always the promise of organ transplantation: the potential to defeat disease and extend life.

Approximately 22,000 Americans are waiting for the transplant of a heart, liver, kidney, pancreas, or lung. Even more seek a tissue transplant--bone marrow, skin, or a cornea. A third of these people will die waiting for an organ to become available.

"There is a crisis in this country," says Michael DeBakey, MD, executive director of the Multi-Organ Transplant Center of The Methodist Hospital and Baylor College of Medicine.

"It is a crisis because many more people could be saved from a number of diseases if we only had the organs available to save them."

Although many Americans are willing to donate organs, very few actually do because they do not understand the process of organ donation.

The Methodist Hospital, 6565 Fannin, will sponsor a donor and transplant awareness open house, April 23 from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Hospital's Dunn Tower conference rooms A and B. Stop by and learn about becoming an organ donor or transplant recipient.

For further information about organ transplantation call Methodist's Multi-Organ Transplant Center at (713) 790-2501.

High Blood Pressure: A Controllable Enemy

Most African Americans know someone with high blood pressure or hypertension, its medical name. Most do not know that this common disease is a major cause of death and debilitation in the African-American community. Blacks are twice as likely to have the disease compared to other Americans and are more likely to suffer the medical complications associated with high blood pressure. Many people with high blood pressure who have not suffered these complications remain at risk.

Beyond the individual tragedy inflicted by this disease, the African-American community as a whole suffers the lost contributions that these individuals would have otherwise made. This makes high blood pressure an enemy to be faced by the entire community. The encouraging news is that this menace can be controlled and its devastating effects reduced.

High blood pressure usually causes no symptoms until damage to the body is severe. Many hypertensives "feel okay" and so do not take proper steps to control the disease, leading to slow, irreversible damage to body tissues. High blood pressure, even when mild, causes strokes and heart attacks, and is associated with kidney failure. Proper control of high blood pressure reduces the incidence of all three. It is important for all persons, particularly African Americans, to have their blood pressure checked to take action, if necessary.

Everyone with hypertension should be under a physician's care. Once the physician recommends a strategy for blood pressure control, patients should ask questions in order to understand the plan of action and be aware of potential problems. Patients should stay under a doctor's care who will follow their progress and determine whether adjustments in the plan are needed.

Remember, except in rare cases, high blood pressure is a life-long disease that cannot be cured but can be controlled to reduce the chance for its potential complications.

Exciting new information gathered in recent years demonstrates that blood pressure can be lowered in individuals with hypertension by lifestyle changes. These modifications can control high blood pressure in some individuals without medications and reduce the necessary dosage or number of medications in others. They include reducing salt in the diet, stopping tobacco and alcohol use, weight loss in obese individuals, and increased exercise. These non-drug strategies are exciting because they hold the potential to lower the incidence of hypertension when employed community-wide. Such a strategy could be carried out at the "grass roots" level and aimed at not just the individual hypertensive but at an entire community. Such community "empowerment" would not only reduce hypertension, but would improve the health of the African-American community as a whole.

Area Farmers Work On Ways To Protect Soil, Profits

Area wheat farmers are looking for ways to keep the soil on the ground and more money in the bank.

"Farmers are looking for ways to reduce tillage either for economic reasons or to meet conservation compliance," explains Wayne Schumacher, DuPont cereals manager.

"Farmers who have Highly Erodible Land, for example, are in need of tools to keep their stubble cleaner so they can keep the crop residue intact to meet compliance. If they don't, they stand to lose all farm program benefits."

The Environmental Protection Agency has approved an expanded label for DuPont Finesse herbicides that gives farmers more flexibility in their weed control programs to reduce tillage and maximize yield potential.

Under the new label, Finesse can be used for fallow weed control under either a wheat-fallow-wheat or ecofallow program. This will aid farmers who are reducing their tillage practices to save costs and erosion, and especially those who must meet federally-mandated conservation compliance requirements by the end of next year, Schumacher says.

Finesse can also be applied with low rates of Lexone in a spring weed-and-feed program for grasses and broadleaves.

What's important is that farmers now have more flexibility in matching their weed control programs to their specific needs, Schumacher says.

In fallow, farmers can use a tank mix program using Roundup, Bidex, atarzine or paraquat to control both broadleaves and grasses in one trip. That saves the cost of multiple chem fallow applications and grasses in one trip.

In ecofallow, farmers should use a short or non-residual sulfonylurea herbicide in the wheat crop to prevent carryover problems, and then Finesse in the corn or sorgham stubble.

Cancer Prevention Dependent Upon Exercise and Lifestyle

Cancer is a topic that surfaces in the news media everyday. From causes to prevention, we hear about everything including diet, activity levels, tobacco and alcohol use, sun exposure and even our thoughts and feelings. Despite the multiple messages one thing is clear our lifestyles have an obvious impact on the causes and prevention of this life-threatening disease. In fact, some scientists have estimated that 80 percent of all cancer cases are related to these factors.

Although it has not been proven conclusively that exercise prevents cancer, many recent studies concluded that physically active people are less likely to get certain types of cancer than those who do no exercise regularly. Researchers have found that moderate amounts of exercise may strengthen the immune system, improving its ability to destroy circulating cancer cells. This evidence even led the American Cancer Society to recommend exercise as a possible way to reduce the risk of cancer.

I-Min Lee, co-author of a study published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, said, "The message is to go out and exercise. Exercise seems to be good for almost everything--heart disease, diabetes and cancer."

Lee and two co-authors studied the health and exercise patterns of 17,148 men enrolled in the Harvard Alumni Health Study. The men, ages 30-79, have been participants in the program since 1962. The study compared the rate of colon and rectal cancers among the alumni who were physically inactive to those who were either active or highly active. According to Lee, "We found that if they were moderately high or highly active, they had about half the risk of colon cancer compared to those who were inactive."

Regular exercise may be the best health, wellness and positive lifestyle promoter there is. There is some evidence that exercise may exert a protective effect by preventing certain types of cancer such as those of the colon and breast. Those who exercise are less likely to have certain lifestyle factors such as obesity that are associated with increased cancer risk. These people also have more nutritious diets and have less body fat--two factors associated with lower risks of several types of cancers.

Since cancer is actually many diseases, exercise will influence different types of cancer differently. The likely mechanism behind the apparent protective effect of exercise on colon cancer is the most straightforward, cancer-causing substances, or carcinogens, in fecal waste tend to promote colon cancer. For physical and possibly chemical reasons, exercise speeds water through the colon. The less time waste spends in the colon the less likely it is to cause cancer.

The more estrogen in a woman's body, the greater her risk of breast cancer. For example, women who begin menstruating at a later age or who reach menopause earlier than usual--and thus have a lower lifetime level of estrogen--tend to have a lower risk of breast cancer. Some researchers believe that regular exercise may also lower the risk of the disease by decreasing estrogen levels. Women who exercise generally have more lean muscle tissue and less fat tissue than women who don't exercise, and leaner women tend to produce less estrogen.

Research suggest that higher levels of the male hormone testosterone may contribute to the development of prostate cancer. Since physical activity may lower testosterone levels, that could explain why very active men may have a reduced risk of prostate cancer.

The National Exercise For Life Institute, a non-profit organization that promotes the benefits of regular exercise, recommends implementing a program of regular aerobic exercise into daily routines a minimum of three days a week for only twenty minutes. A more frequent regimen may be necessary for optimum results. "No matter what type of exercise you do, the evidence suggest that regular aerobic exercise can be an important deterrent to some forms of cancer" said Jeff Zwiefel, director of The National Exercise For Life Institute.

The Minnesota-based National Exercise For Life Institute (NEFLI) is dedicated to providing current and relevant information on fitness, exercise and health. For more information on exercise and cancer prevention contact NEFLI at 1-800-358-3636.

The Carpenter's FRIEND

To build... one must have plans, and plans give exact measurements. The carpenter who makes careful measurements finds that the work is made easier. Careful measuring prevents waste... waste of time and materials. Therefore the measuring device is truly a friend to the carpenter.

The church wants to be your friend, and help you to a easier and better way of life. The Bible clearly gives us a way to measure life. Through many centuries man has found no better rules than those given in the Bible.

Attend church and receive the friendly welcome that awaits you.

Rh Babies Still In Danger

Women with Rh disease may have more successful pregnancies if their immune systems can be "selectively disarmed," according to researchers at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Rh Disease, which affects approximately one in 1,000 births, results from a blood mismatch between a pregnant woman and her baby. A woman without the Rh factor can be sensitized to the factor in her baby's blood and develop antibodies to it. These antibodies can attack a baby's blood, causing disease or death while the baby is still in the womb.

Dr. Kenneth J. Moise Jr., associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Baylor, and colleagues at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston are focusing on the cells that make the Rh antibodies.

The researchers are developing new strategies to disarm the mother's immune system and prevent an attack on a baby in her womb. The goal, Moise said, is to neutralize the cells in the mother's immune system that make the Rh antibodies.

Although a treatment is available to prevent a woman who lacks the Rh factor from being sensitized, Moise said many women never receive it and it sometimes fails, leaving a mother with Rh disease for her subsequent pregnancies.

Doctors also can use intrauterine blood transfusions to help the damage caused by the mother's attacking antibodies when Rh disease affects a pregnancy. "However, despite our experience in treating these babies, we still lose 15 to 19 percent of them," Moise said.

"Contrary to what many people think, Rh Disease has not gone away. It will not go away. We are still going to see mothers who are sensitized and whose babies are very sick. New therapies developed through our research are needed."

Microwave Tips
Canadian bacon can be cooked in a microwave in a minute. Since it's precooked, cover with waxed paper (on a plate) and, on Power level 10, cook two slices 1 minute or slightly more. If cooking four slices, cook 2 to 2 1/2 minutes and rotate once. It will be too dry for most if cooked until brown

When defrosting fruit, use temperature chart and remove it from the microwave when it's still firm and slightly icy. Use casserole and remove any foil paper. Add no water, which dilutes flavor. Another reason to avoid adding water is that the water absorbs some of the nutrients, such as vitamin C. Break up fruit with fork after partial defrosting.

Why is it that so many ignorant people know everything?

The hard work of some people often explains their success.

What the world needs today are millions of honest, average citizens.
