Congressman Walter Rogers Writes About Subsidies

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT:

WHAT IS A SUBSIDY? There is an old saying, "the pot calling the kettle black." This saying is brought to mind quite often when one engages in a detailed study of "subsidy." Webster defines "subsidy" as follows:

"A grant of funds or property from a government, as of the State or a municipal corporation, to a private person or company to assist in the establishment or support of an enterprise deemed advantageous to the public; a subvention. In practice subsidies are chiefly granted in aid of transportation enterprises, as to ship, canal, air-transport, or railroad companies, bounties on sugar being next in importance. A subsidy may be a simple gift or may consist in the payment of an amount in excess of the usual charges for any service, as in carrying the mails, or of funds to aid in establishing or maintaining a service or equipment larger or more powerful than the state of trade would warrant, as the building and keeping in service of vessels designed for use as cruisers and auxiliaries in war. Subsidy is often inexactly used to designate an entire payment for services, as for carrying mail, which, properly speaking, includes compensation for actual services, and a subsidy proper, consisting in the sum paid in excess of the compensation. In ordinary usage subsidy often carries a derogatory implication."

To subsidize is defined by the same dictionary as "to aid or promote, as a private enterprise, with public money; as, to subsidize a steamship line." Funk and Wagnall's "New Standard" Dictionary of the English Language, has a briefer definition of subsidy: "Pecuniary aid directly granted by government to an individual or commercial enterprise deemed productive of public benefit."

Since different groups prefer to place different definitions on "subsidy" in recent years the term has taken on a derogatory meaning. This is primarily due to the fact that many who receive aid and assistance from the government—Federal, State, and Local—have no difficulty in justifying the grants to themselves. However, there has been a tendency by some to bitterly criticize and condemn such assistance or grants going to others. This prompts the question of whether or not "the pot might be calling the kettle black." Numerous studies have been made on all of the subsidies paid by the several governments in this country and especially the Federal government. In order to start from some premise in the study of these matters, proposed guidelines have been laid down as to the elements that should be included in the definition of a subsidy and the following recommendations were made.

"A subsidy is an act by governmental unit involving either (1) a payment, (2) a remission of charges, or (3) supplying commodities or services at less than cost or market price, with the intent of achieving a particular economic objective, most usually the supplying to a general market a product or service which

FARM VALUES INCREASING

The average value per farm in Texas increased from $48,378 to $64,950 between 1959 and 1962, according to C. H. Bates, economist of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

In this same period, the average size of farms increased from 631 to 710 acres. This year the land on the average Texas farm is worth $59,302. Buildings are worth an additional $5,649. The average value for land and buildings is about $91 per acre, he said.

The rate of sales of farm land accelerated some during the last year also. The number of farm title transfers in Texas rose from 51.8 per 1,000 farms in 1960-61 to 58.2 in 1961-62.

A study by USDA's Economic Research Service shows the average value per acre of farm real estate reached a new high of $123 per acre in the U. S. in 1962, 5 percent higher than in the previous year. The average farm has 336 acres, and is worth $41,400. About $32,800 of this is accounted for by land, and the balance, $8,600, by farm buildings, Bates said.

FARMERS UNION PRESIDENT STATES VIEWS

Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman, in written testimony submitted to the family subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee during the hearings on the Committee for Economic Development's (CED) recent recommendation for agriculture policy, said, "Before we move two million human beings off the land into the overcrowded industrial labor markets, we should first examine the motives behind the Committee on Economic Development's recommendations. This group, said Naman, could not make these recommendations on the grounds that they will promote the general welfare by cheapening retail food costs, since the evidence is well documented that the farmer's share of the consumer's dollar is at an all time low and although retail costs of food has actually risen 12 percent since the 1947-49 period, the farm value of the same food is 14 percent less than in the same period."

"Nor can these self-styled 'Researchers' base their recommendations on the desire to reduce federal expenditures since the soil bank program which they recommend was rejected by the House Agriculture Committee for the very reason that if it was adopted to the extent necessary to reduce production, it would incur monstrous costs."

"Apparently the motives which inspired this unrealistic program were the selfish plans of greedy men to alter our system of agriculture to improve their economic positions. These processors of farm products who dominate the board of trustees of the CED are the only ones who can possibly benefit from unlimited production and cheap farm commodities."

COMMUNITY JUNIOR COLLEGES OFFER EDUCATION FOR LESS

During this spring and summer some where in the neighborhood of three millions of students have graduated from high school and their parents hope and expect to send them to college. But according to an authority on the financing of tuition and other academic costs, less than half of these parents have either a definite financial plan for meeting the expense, or realize what it costs today to put a son or daughter through college.

The executive vice-president of a financial institution whose firm offers parents a plan for installment-financing of tuition and other academic fees, says, "When most children reach college age, the parent suddenly discovers that their financial resources are inadequate for the added burden." He further states, "that the expense of securing a college degree has risen about 33 percent since 1955, and that a like raise can be expected during the next five years."

This same executive, an increasing number of thinking and planning parents, along with a host of college presidents, educators, are pointing out daily the one best way to ease the strain on the family budget is to choose the community junior college or the small young college where costs tend to be substantially lower than at many of the older and more prominent 4-year college.

The mistaken idea of a large number of students and parents alike which leads them to believe that if they are seeking a first-class education they must enroll in a "prestige school" is being disproved every day in every way. Too many times such an institution, having high academic standards and rich traditions, may also call for an expensive social life. There are many community junior colleges and young 4-year colleges less famed that offer equally excellent educational facilities, lities, minus the expensive social life at considerably less expense. The Clarendon Junior College stands out in bold belief against all other institutions in the Panhandle, as one which maintains the highest of academic standards, competency of the instructional absence of fads and fees, and strict economy of educational pursuit. The cost of a college degree is one of the major purchases in family life and more important than most. In selecting a college, it will pay every family to examine every possibility. "Select the best college you can possibly afford," advises Dean Abel of the Clarendon Junior College. "But if your financial resources are limited don't confine your selection to the expensive 'prestige' institutions. It's quite possible to get a good education elsewhere. Before you invest, why not investigate the economy of a first-class two years of education at Clarendon Junior College.

REPORTS ON SMALL BUSINESSES NOW AVAILABLE

Copies of the First Progress Report of the White House Committee on Small Business are available at the Lubbock office of the Small Business Administration, located at 212 Federal Office Building, 1616-19th Street, Lubbock, Texas, Jack Teddlie, Acting Branch Manager, announced today.

The Report, which reviews the first year's activities of the Committee, describes Federal actions taken in behalf of small business, recommends additional steps to improve the position of small business, and reviews problems facing the American small Businessman.

In accepting the Committee's report, Preident Kennedy said that his Administration is "determined to insure a strong, diversified foundation of healthy small firms."

To accomplish this objective, the President set these goals:

Preservation of the American system of free and open competition, and Constructive policies and programs in behalf of small business.

The Progress Report was submitted to the President by John E. Horne, Chairman of the Committee and Administrator of the Small Business Administration. Other departments and agencies represented on the Committee are the Departments of Commerce, Defense, Justice, Labor, and Treasury, Bureau of the Budget, Council of Economic Advisers, Federal Trade Commission, General Services Administration and Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The Progress Report is the second report issued by the White House Committee on Small Business. A previous report, issued in May, reviews the contribution of small business to the American economy and the role the Federal Government should play in encouraging and assisting small firms. Copies of the May Report are also available at the local SBA office, Mr. Teddlie said.

TAX ON WAGES FARMERS' RESPONSIBILITY

Farm and ranch operators who hire agricultural workers must deposit Social Security tax funds, when such tax amounts to $100

Farm employers then attach these receipts to their 1962 income tax return as evidence of payment of part of this year's tax obligation.

Bates urges farmers and ranchmen to pay their taxes on hired labor when it is due and avoid the risk of paying a penalty. Good business records can be very helpful in keeping up with wages paid and taxes due, he concludes.

before her marriage and came to West Texas with her family in 1900. The Jaspers had settled near Tulia and Silvertown a year earlier. The Hodges family consisted of three children, a small daughter passed away at the age of one year and a married son Buster passed away, leaving a wife and two children. The other child is Mrs. Harris, where Mrs. Hodges has made her home since she became an invalid in May, 1960.

Mr. Hodges died in 1937 and was buried in the Silvertown Cemetery. Mrs. Hodges made her home at Memphis before coming to live with her daughter in Amarillo. She is survived by one daughter, ten grandchildren, 37-great-grandchildren and 4 great-great-grandchildren. Her brothers and sisters are: Mrs. M. C. Washington of Flomot; Mrs. R. R. Thompson of Memphis; Mrs. C. R. Speer of Tulia; W. H. Jasper of Portales, N. M.; N. S. Jasper of California.

Mrs. Hodges came from a hardy, pioneer family, that was not afraid of work and lived in a day of horse and buggies and could remember when the ox-cart was not just a fairy tale. She would have been 90 years old Oct. 20. Many relatives and friends will cherish the memory of Aunt Betty.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrett and daughters of Plainview were overnight guests in the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Gunn Saturday and spent the day Sunday. Other guests over the week end were Mrs. Nell Gunn of Bovina and Debbie Sue Clarey of Tulia.

would be supplied in as great quantity only at a higher price in the absence of the payment or remission of charges. Government loans made at lower than market rates of interest or at rates below the cost of funds to the Government and Government insurance provided at lower than private insurance premium rates may also appropriately be considered as subsidies.

This definition distinguishes subsidies from the following other types of assistance:

- (a) Aids to foreign governments.
 - (b) Aids to business, or farmers, which are intended to help the businesses in any program of its own choice; in such a case the Government does not determine the program which it wishes to see fulfilled.
 - (c) Purchases or sales made on the Government's own behalf which may prove more profitable to the private seller or buyer than comparable transactions on the open market, except where a primary motive of such transactions is assistance to a particular segment of the economy. Thus some purchases of minerals for stockpiling and of surplus farm commodities could readily be conceived of as subsidies, whereas a Government contract for production of a plane or missile would not normally be considered to involve a subsidy.
 - (d) Grants-in-aid to States and local units.
- One type of benefit that may have a subsidy element but often is not classed as a subsidy is differential tax treatment for particular categories of persons or groups, such as minerals' producers, corporations installing certain defense facilities, cooperatives, or producers of goods protected from foreign competition by tariffs.
- Whatever may be one's personal views as to the general principle of subsidy, it would be very well to weigh the matter carefully before indulging in too harsh criticism of others. The critic might find himself the subject of his own criticism. In other words, he might be both the pot and the kettle.
