HOW TO SOLVE GOLF PROBLEMS

JIMMY DEMARET... NARRATOR "SWWG" *

TAKING IT FROM THE TOP

From the top of the backswing, many average golfers strike at the ball as though they were casting a fishing rod. The right shoulder stays high and the wrists uncock prematurely, dissipating power before the clubhead has reached the hitting area. This tendency can be corrected by returning the right elbow to the side and lowering the right shoulder under the chin on the downswing. Pulling the club straight down, as though you were pulling a window shade by its string, will also help preserve clubhead speed until impact. Maintain the wrists in a cocked position for a powerful, delayed hitting action.

Tomorrow's Challenge Today

By the year 2000, the world's population will be double that of today, or over 6 billion people. All over the world, educated men are concerned with our survival and are facing challenges like these:

My country, Brazil, is a study in contrasts. On one hand, our architects have built the city of tomorrow, Brasilia. On the other hand, we are a nation larger than the continental U. S., but have over 2000 miles of undeveloped jungle and less roads than the state of Maine.

In the United States, our population is growing rapidly, and adequate food will become a challenge by the year 2000. In the Imperial Valley of California, man and industry have combined their talents to build huge underground reservoirs and pumps that turn once desert sands into fertile, productive soil. The Central Valley Project has been so successful that a second, costing 45 million dollars, is now planned.

Here in India, we have too much water. One of our major challenges is harnessing the energy of swollen rivers to bring cities and farms needed electrical power. The massive Sabaragiri Power Station, the Kakki and Pamba Dams, will help move us toward an industrial economy by the 1970's.

The universal need of enough pure drinking water is a fourth concern shared by all the nations of the world. Without drinking water, life cannot exist. Will our efforts today be adequate to insure man's survival by 2000? Today, man and industry are working feverishly to answer these challenges to our survival. Some of their combined efforts are presented in a worldwide, filmed report, by the Allis Chalmers Co., called "The Challenge of Six Billion," which is available on free loan to your local school or organization. To borrow this 16mm sound and color film (1 1/2 hour), write to Sterling Movies, Inc., Dept. C, 375 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022 and give them a preferred and alternate showing date.

Mrs. Scott Bolton visited Mrs. W. W. Ferguson Monday of last week and reports that Mrs. Ferguson was not feeling well at that time. Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bolton attended the funeral service last week in Matador for Mrs. Ida Jameson, and visited friends while there.

Joe Charles Bedwell of Barstow, Texas has been visiting relatives and friends in Quitaque and Turkey during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bolton, Mrs. Joe Woodruff and Mrs. Scott Bolton attended the funeral service for Mrs. Harmon Mills in Lockney on Thursday of last week. Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Mills had been friends for many years, both having lived at Matador at one time.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Royce Bradshaw and children of Floydada and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Beck and family were supper guests of the ladies' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith Christmas Night. On Friday night, Mrs. Smith's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Montgomery of Olney Springs, Colo. and Mrs. Montgomery's brother, Bill James of Boyce City, Okla. came for a visit. Mr. and Mrs.

Roy Smith accompanied their visitors to Floydada Saturday where they were all dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Royce Bradshaw. The Cleo Montgomerys went from there to Lubbock for a visit. Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Montgomery and family of Felt, Okla. came for a visit, remaining until Monday morning.

To climax the Christmas festivities, the Smith's son, Dwayne, called from aboard his ship Sunday night to tell his parents they were sailing for Vietnam, that he was well and wanted them to know he was shipping out.

Gripping Power From A Spray Can

FLINT, MICH. — Drivers stuck on ice or in deep snow this winter can give their tires extra gripping power with a spray on traction improver capable of providing up to three times normal traction. Called AC Liquid Tire Chain, the compound is being distributed by AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors and is available at service stations, auto dealers and other retail outlets handling AC products.

It is offered in four-ounce pressurized cans which contain sufficient traction improver for several applications on each driving tire.

Offering drivers the convenience of push-button tire chains, the compound is a mixture of resins which react with water to form a sticky coating on the tire tread, improving traction on ice or snow. It is not harmful to tires or the car finish.

Drivers stuck on ice or snow should follow four steps for successful use.

First, spray the compound on the exposed tread of each driving tire. About five seconds of spraying time for each tire is adequate.

Second, spin the tires slowly to spread the AC Liquid Tire Chain around the tread and permit it to mix with the water present in snow or ice. Water is required to start the chemical reaction which forms the sticky coating.

Third, wait 60 seconds to be sure the chemical reaction is complete.

Fourth, drive out slowly, trying not to spin the tires.

The traction improver will stay on the tires for several miles when driving on snow covered roads. However, it wears off quickly when traveling on hard-surfaced highways.

Liquid Tire Chain was given limited usage during the 1967-68 winter season, following development of the LIQUID TIRE CHAINS — Mountain roads and deep snow provide the perfect setting for this lovely model to demonstrate the effectiveness of traction improving compound being distributed by AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors. Called AC Liquid Tire Chain, the compound is simply sprayed on the rear tires, providing up to three times normal traction to help free a motorist stuck on ice or in deep snow. It is available from service stations, auto dealers and other retail outlets handling AC products.

compound by Dow Chemical Company. A survey among those drivers who used the traction improver indicates almost universal success.

The compound is effective at temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero, F. In addition to its intended usage of freeing stuck motorists, it also has been used successfully on snow blowers and small snow plows, bicycle tires, snowmobiles and even the bottom of boots and rubbers.

A push-button application system available as an option on most 1969 Chevrolet models permits a motorist to apply the traction improving compound to the auto's rear tires without leaving the driver's seat.

The system includes a control button mounted on the instrument panel and vacuum-powered applicators located in the car trunk over each rear tire. The applicators each contain a four-ounce can. The cans may be replaced when empty but only AC Liquid Tire Chain cans are suitable for replacement use in this push-button application system.

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall!

Milady's magic mirror shows her the lovely hair-do her new hair curler will produce in just minutes, using dry hair.

Do you know the difference between a hair dryer and a hair curler? When do you use each, and what will one do that the other will not? How does a hair curler work?

These are questions manufacturers are asked each day as the new hair curlers become more and more popular.

A hair dryer is used to dry the hair after a shampoo or a shampoo and set. It dries hair by circulating air around and through it. A few hair dryers can be used for quick touch-ups of the hair-do, but not many models have that capability.

Hair curlers, on the other hand, are designed to refresh and perk-up the hair-do between shampoos. Quick touch-ups or complete sets can be done in just minutes on completely dry hair, but the hair curler can't be used for drying wet hair.

A hair curler, since it can be used with dry hair, can be used to touch-up curls of a wig or wiglet, as well as your own hair, making it even more versatile.

How does the hair curler work? Curlers, or rollers, are heated on posts right in the kit. The rollers usually have a signalling device, such as a red dot that turns black, to indicate when they reach the right temperature, and most units are equipped with thermostats to prevent overheating.

Hair is rolled on the curlers and clipped in place with special clips provided with the set. By the time the last curler is in place, the first usually will be done and can be taken out. That's how fast a good unit will operate.

What sort of features should a prospective buyer look for in a hair curler? Here are a few suggestions:

Pick a model with an adequate number of rollers and good assortment of sizes, especially the jumbo units demanded in today's hair-dos. Some units offer four sizes in a single kit, jumbo, large, regular and small.

Some models heat all the rollers, up to 20, at one time, others have fewer posts than rollers and a single heating post has to be used more than one time. The models that heat all the rollers at one time are faster and more efficient.

The unit should have thermostatic controls, of course, and should store all parts, rollers, clips and all, right in the case. Portability is another point: pick a unit with a light weight case and a handle for carrying ease.

A final tip: will you use the unit away from home? If so, pick a model with a mirror in the case to make it usable anywhere there is an electrical outlet and a bit of privacy.

A Lady Sunbeam hair curler unit will help any woman to freshen-up her hair in a jiffy.
