Souvenir Papers Still On Sale Here

At this time of year most people are eager to buy "on sale" reduced prices and a "bargain." A good bargain now is the Quitaque souvenir newspapers which were published and sold last August. The original price was $5.00 and the papers have now been marked down to $3.50 and they are well worth the price. The papers are available at Farley's, B.J's Beauty Shop and First National Bank.

Eight Die in Mobile Home Fire Near Silverton

By Jimmie Taylor
Briscoe Co. Sheriff Dick Roehr and fire department officials are investigating the cause of a mobile home fire that took the lives of eight persons Monday night. Six of the seven members of the Francisco Palacio family, and two members of the Samuel Davila family died in the tragic blaze, which occurred 8 miles south of Silverton, in the rural mobile-home. Roehr said the fire was reported about 12 midnight, and it was 2 a.m. before it could be contained enough to bring out the bodies of Mrs. Palacio and five of her children, aged 5 months to 7 years old; and Mrs. Davila and her 3 year-old daughter.

Government Commodities Distribution Schedule Set

The government program of free commodities will be distributed in Turkey at the Sr. Citizens Room on Thursday, February 11, at 9 a.m. The Quitaque distribution will be at the City Hall in the afternoon February 9th and all day February 10th. It will be necessary for all participants to re-apply for the year of 1988. You must bring verification of income with you, such as check, deposit slip, check stub, income tax statement, Social Security statement or statement from employer. Types of income that you must report are: gross wages, Social Security benefits, Veteran's benefits, worker's compensation benefits, regular insurance payments, military allotments, child support payments, net self-employment income, regular monthly cash contributions or allowances that help the household meet its usual living expenses, unemployment compensation, income from rental property and net farm income.

When they arrived at the scene, Roehr said the trailer was engulfed in flames, and it was 2 a.m. before it could be contained enough to bring out the bodies of Mrs. Palacio and five of her children, aged 5 months to 7 years old; and Mrs. Davila and her 3 year-old daughter.

County Agent To Speak At Quitaque

"Changing Family Roles and Relationships" will be the topic covered by Lynda Fogerson, Briscoe County Extension Agent, when "We the Women" meet for a noon luncheon at the Methodist Church Tuesday, Feb. 9.

The major project for "We the Women" this year is to try to secure a building to be used for a museum in Quitaque with space to display the trophies which belonged to the former Quitaque Panthers along with other memorabilia and pictures. This will be a big step and will need to have the help of many interested people. It is a project that has been "talked about" for several years but nothing has been done. We feel that the time is right to get started -- great things can be accomplished, but the first step must be taken.

The sheriff said the regulator on an outside propane tank may have frozen up, causing the furnace to explode. The mobile home, and one occupied by another family were parked near an empty farm house, two miles from the nearest neighbor.

Lockwood McCracken prepares the noon meal for the group and a nursery is provided. We encourage you to become a part of We the Women for a time of informative programs, a good time of fellowship and working toward a better community.

Cemetery Dues For Upkeep Needed Badly

The Quitaque Cemetery dues cards have been sent out by the Cemetery Association. Dues can be paid at the First National Bank or to Johnnie Morrison. Remember the Cemetery Association uses this money to pay for mowing and upkeep of the grounds.

DID PETE THE PRAIRIE DOG see his shadow Tuesday? It is doubtful whether he (or his counterpart, the groundhog) did. Hopefully, a prairie dog's prediction will be as good as the real thing, and spring is on its way! Now, what else can you expect in West Texas?!

All the figures we read in the newspapers indicate most people living in the cities would prefer to move to the rural towns to raise their children. To the slower pace of life. To leave your doors unlocked type of place. They want to be able to let their children walk down to the corner store. To sit out in their yard and know everybody that drives or walks by. To be able to actually hear the birds singing in the trees. To see just how bright the stars really shine at night. To know their friends will correct their children if needed, in their absence, or buy them a coke if they run short of money.

We, that have all these wonderful things wish we lived closer to the city, the shops, the malls, and other businesses. The kids want to live in the cities, they think. How many times after a long day of shopping or running errands do they hurry you along so they can get home to go to Allsup's?

Even though we sometimes wish we were closer, do we really? Not me. I wouldn't trade it for anything, so what if everyone does know everything everybody is doing, that may be what keeps some of us in line. I'd rather have my neighbors know my business than to not even know my name.

People here are so dear, so quick to share the good time, but most especially to share the sad times. So maybe those city folks DO know what they're missing. I guess all those figures we read about are correct. I know I'll make the two hour drive any day over living there.

Your Energy Dollars Could Be Going Up In Smoke!

Fireplaces are built to draw. Even when there's no fire, this massive column is drawing air from inside your home — air you have paid to heat.

Closing the damper in your fireplace when it's not in use keeps winter heat from escaping up your chimney. This reduces the natural draft created by warm air inside the house as it rises. It also prevents any down drafts.

A glass fireplace cover can also help save you energy and money by decreasing the amount of inside air going up the chimney. When selecting glass door covers check for the following: air tightness, glass thickness (3/16" to 1/4"), frame strength, frame insulation and be sure they are heat tempered.

THE DIET CONFUSION

The Role Of Sugar And Sugar Substitutes

Today, one of the most common nutrition questions focuses on the role of sweeteners—sugar and sugar substitutes—in diets. Dr. Cathy Kapica Cyborski, a registered dietitian and certified home economist, and president of CMK Consultants in Arlington Hts., IL, discusses this topic.

"We are born with a preference for sweet tasting foods. Yet most sugar in our diets provides empty calories; that is, calories that the body can burn as fuel, or put on as fat, with almost no essential nutrients such as vitamins, minerals, protein and fiber. With obesity being a serious problem in America today, it is important that we obtain the amount of nutrients our body needs in the least amount of calories. Low-calorie sugar substitutes can help us to achieve reduced caloric intake while satisfying our cravings for sweets."

However, there has been some publicity surrounding a recent study which suggested that using sugar substitutes can actually cause weight gain. Dr. Cyborski was asked if this were true. "There is no scientific data showing that sugar substitutes cause people to gain weight. The study you mention was seriously flawed and not designed to study this issue. What the scientific evidence does show is that substituting a lower-calorie version of a food for a higher-calorie one can decrease overall caloric intake. If this lower-calorie version has the same satisfying taste, then the diet will be more tolerable."

Some people have said that using sugar substitutes can make you hungrier. Dr. Cyborski responds: "While sugar substitutes may satisfy your sweet tooth, there is no evidence that they make you hungrier. Low-calorie sugar substitutes currently used in the U.S., such as aspartame (NutraSweet®), have been studied in this regard. Well-conducted research shows no increase in appetite with these sweeteners."

Even with all the weight loss advice that abounds in today's society, it is still difficult to attain our healthy body weight. Dr. Cyborski was asked: Why can't I lose weight in spite of dieting? "The possibilities are numerous and you may want to consult a dietitian or physician for help. But consider that you might be falling into the trap of counting 'saved' calories—after drinking a diet soda you figure you can eat a piece of cake. To lose weight, you must lower your total caloric intake. Also, studies now suggest that dieting, especially crash dieting, can actually lead to metabolic changes in your body which make it easier to regain weight. The best way to lose weight and keep it off is to change your eating habits—cut down on fat and sugar in your diet, and consume more fruits, vegetables, and whole grains—while you engage in a regular exercise program."

Wedding vows will be exchanged March 5 in Park Avenue Church of Christ by Tonya Deneen Savage and Douglas Wayne Setliff, both of Canyon.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Freddie and Tommie Savage of Route 5, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Cathryn Setliff of Turkey and the late David Setliff.

Miss Savage graduated from Hereford High School in 1982 and from South Plains College in Levelland. She also graduated from West Texas State University in May of 1987 and is presently employed in the office of the WTSU president.

Good News Department

The good things you've always wanted to believe about sugar are true, according to the latest government reports. The Food and Drug Administration confirms that sugar is not the cause of obesity or nutrient deficiencies, nor does it have an adverse effect on normal human behavior or contribute to diseases such as diabetes.

Sugar is an important source of carbohydrate—the body's primary energy source.

Setliff, a 1983 graduate of Valley High School in Turkey, graduated from WTSU in August of 1987 where he received a B.S. degree in secondary education. He is working toward his masters degree in education.

CHILD DAY CARE
Those who care for other people's children in their home become part of the children's extended family. They are like another parent or grandparent and care for the children almost like their own.

For this reason, child day care is one of the most critical concerns of employed parents. With the trend of more mothers in the work force in rural and urban communities, there is increasing emphasis on the need for reliable, responsible and well-trained persons to provide this quality care outside the home.

People used to believe that it was relatively unimportant what happened to a child in its early years of life. But we now know that the first months and years profoundly affect the kinds of people they grow up to be.

To help operators of licensed and registered child care facilities and others who keep children in their homes provide the best possible care and strengthen their business, a one-day workshop will be held in Lubbock on Saturday, March 26. The workshop is being sponsored by the Extension home economists in the South Plains district.

Training will include sessions on marketing your business, scheduling a child's day, arts and crafts for children, record keeping, discipline, communication and conflict management, cooking with kids, looking great and feeling terrific, and the balancing act of keeping kids in your home.

Cost is $7.50 and includes lunch. I will be assisting with this workshop. Please mark your calendar early for this date and plan to attend if you keep children or would like to start a child care business.

Historic Texas Forts

Forts in Texas have been common since the 17th century when the Spanish first built them as protection against Indian attacks. Later, forts were used by the French, the Mexicans, the Republic of Texas, the Confederacy, the United States and several private citizens on the frontier who wanted to protect their property from raiding Indians.

Below are just some of the forts that are intact and open to the public.

Fort Bliss - Established opposite El Paso del Norte (Juarez) in 1848, this fort guarded lands gained from Mexico and fended off Indian attacks. Troops were removed in 1851, but returned in 1853 after 23 Indian raids. From here, soldiers fought Apache Chief Geronimo. Two remaining adobe structures, privately owned, are national historic places.

From the current site, Gen. John Pershing's troops chased Pancho Villa into Mexico. A replica on post of the original adobe fort is a frontier military museum, open daily from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Located five miles northeast of El Paso off U.S. Hwy. 54, on Pershing Drive. Free admission.

Fort Brown - Zachary Taylor and U.S. troops held Texas' boundary at the Rio Grande during the Mexican War, but a permanent post was not built until 1848. When troops were removed, the notorious Juan Cortinas occupied the fort in 1859 and took over Brownsville. U.S. troops returned and skirmished with Cortinas through the 1870s. The work of William C. Gorgas, later U.S. Army Surgeon General, during a yellow fever epidemic in 1882 led to control of the disease. Texas Southmost College now occupies the fort's picturesque brick buildings. Located in Brownsville at the south end of Elizabeth Street, near the International Bridge. Brownsville Chamber of Commerce: 512/546-3721.

Fort Concho - Established in 1867 at the junction of the south and main Concho rivers, Fort Concho's troops guarded stagecoaches, wagon trains and the U.S. mail. The City of San Angelo now owns the fort and calls it the largest restored Indian Wars fort in the nation with the most original structures. Twenty original and three reconstructed buildings staffed by docents are open Mondays-Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Located in downtown San Angelo at Oakes and Avenue D. 915/657-4441.

There are many books in libraries and stores that offer concise information on Texas forts. For a free listing of Texas forts open to the public, write the Tourism Division, Texas Department of Commerce, P.O. Box 12008, Austin, TX 78711 or call 512/462-9191.

Cancer Service To Offer HOPELINE

Cancer patients and their families now have a new resource that is only a phone call away.

From 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Friday, the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo will offer HOPELINE, a toll-free telephone information service. By dialing 1-800-274-HOPE, callers will access the service which links residents of the Texas Panhandle and surrounding states with information and resources on cancer care.

After 4 p.m., an answering machine will record caller inquiries during other hours.

Kelly Hilton, cancer information specialist, will direct HOPELINE and answer most of the inquiries personally.

Hilton said the HOPELINE will also answer questions about advances in cancer treatment, research updates, cancer prevention and early detection. The service is tied to national information sources.

Literature from the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society is provided free of charge. The focus of HOPELINE however, is on resources available locally.

"The HOPELINE will bring a greater awareness of where cancer information is available. So many times cancer patients don't know where to go for help, especially if they have just been diagnosed," said Hilton, cancer information specialist.

"Above and beyond cancer information, the HOPELINE also provides resources in the local and outlying areas for a number of needs the cancer patient or family may have."

Hilton has spent months gathering resource information locally and throughout the region which may assist cancer patients and their families. Any organization or group which has not been contacted, but has services available, is urged to contact Hilton at the HOPELINE.

"The real strength of HOPELINE is support from staff and physicians at the Cancer Center. Because the staff is involved, callers get the most current information," said Hilton.

Small Towns Get Clues to Economic Survival

Small towns involved in the "Search for Solutions" to their economic development problems note that thriving rural communities share certain characteristics.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International, employees, sales representatives and community leaders learned the clues to rural economic survival at a "Search for Solutions-Rural Economic Development" session sponsored by the Des Moines (Iowa) company. Speakers Milan Wall and Vicki Luther, Ph.D., co-directors of the Heartland Center for Leadership Development (Lincoln, Neb.), studied successful small towns and found that they showed evidence of 20 special traits. Among them are:

1. Community Pride. Pride shows up in community festivals and events that celebrate the community, its history and heritage.
2. Emphasis on Quality in Business and Community Life. People believe that something worth doing is worth doing right. Facilities are built to last, as are homes and other improvements.
3. Participatory Approach to Community Decision-Making. Authoritarian models don't exist. Even the most powerful opinion leaders work through formal and informal systems to build consensus.
4. Realistic Appraisal of Future Opportunities. Realizing that they are unlikely to land a giant industry, and that too much reliance on one industry is unhealthy, successful towns build on their own inherent strengths.

5. Active Economic Development Program. An organized, active approach to economic development involves both public and private sector initiatives, often working together.

Milan Wall & Vicki Luther, Ph.D.

6. Deliberate Transition of Power to a Younger Generation of Leaders. People under 40 often hold key positions in both civic and business affairs.

7. Acceptance of Women in Leadership Roles. Women are elected mayors and presidents of chambers of commerce, and are hired to manage health care facilities and develop entrepreneurial ventures.

8. Strong Belief in and Support for Education. Good schools are a point of pride, as well as a stable employment force.

9. Sound and Well-Maintained Infrastructure. Successful rural communities work hard to maintain and improve streets and sidewalks, water systems and sewage treatment facilities.

10. Conviction that, "In The Long Run, You Have To Do It Yourself." Although outside help is sought when appropriate, thriving small towns believe their destiny is in their own hands.

In addressing the nationally represented gathering, Wall and Luther explained, "The towns we studied were not hoping someone else would save them, nor did they believe that 'things would turn out' if they just sat back and waited."

Another expert, Jeffrey H. Schiff, executive director of the National Association of Towns and Townships, told the Pioneer audience that economic solutions must be customized to fit individual communities. "Successful communities capitalize on their own resources," he said. "For instance, senior citizen volunteers can be tapped to staff a new restaurant; proximity to a state park can help define a town as a center of tourism."

Thomas N. Urban, president and chairman of Pioneer, stressed that a positive attitude is key to overcoming economic problems. "If a town really wants to live, it will," he said. "We at Pioneer want to help provide rural residents with the tools for survival through our three-year 'Search for Solutions' program."

Search for Solutions addresses issues in rural economic development, rural health care and rural education.

Treasury Department Urges Bond Redemption

Persons holding Series E U.S. Savings Bonds, issued in 1948, should redeem or exchange them for Series HH Bonds since they reach final maturity in 1988 and stop earning interest.

Anyone holding 40-year-old Series E Bonds have two options; cash them in and declare the interest on their 1988 tax return or exchange them for Series HH Bonds and defer Federal taxes for another 10 years. An example: A $1,000.00 Series E Bond issued in January 1948 with a purchase price of $750.00 will cease earning interest in January 1988 with a net total value of $5,256.40. This Bond has $4,506.40 of accrued interest which must be reported as income on the 1988 tax return unless it is exchanged for a Series HH Bond and this interest deferred.

Owners are encouraged to roll these 40 year old Series E Bonds over into Series HH Bonds. This roll-over option must be accomplished within twelve months of final maturity of the Series E. Roll-over will tax-defer the $4,506.40 interest for an additional 10 years while providing the owner with current income from the Series HH Bond at a rate of 6.0 percent.

The Department of the Treasury urges all holders of Series E Bonds which are 40 years old to redeem them or exchange them for Series HH Bonds.

Cooking Corner

- Alpine Ham and Swiss Stacks
- 4 slices (1/4-inch thick) Eckrich or Swift Premium Honey Cured Ham
 - Dijon-style mustard
 - 4 slices (3-1/2 x 3-1/2 x 1/8-inches) Swiss cheese
 - 35 round buttery crackers, crushed (1-1/2 cups)
 - 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
 - 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 2 large eggs
 - 1/2 cup flour
 - 1/4 cup unsalted butter, melted

Place 2 ham slices on cutting board. Spread one side of each with mustard. Top each ham slice with 2 slices cheese, cutting to fit. Spread one side of remaining 2 ham slices with mustard; place mustard side down on top of cheese-covered slices. Cut each stack in half; cut into 3/4-inch wide strips. Cover and chill several hours or overnight. Combine cracker crumbs, parsley and nutmeg in shallow dish. Beat eggs in second shallow dish. Dip each ham stack into flour, then into egg, then into crumb mixture to coat completely. Transfer to lightly greased baking sheet. Cover and refrigerate until ready to bake. Drizzle with butter. Bake at 425°F. for 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Drain briefly on paper towels. Serve hot with additional mustard for dipping. Makes 30 appetizers/snacks.
