THEN and NOW! Technoculture

by Mark Hamilton

"Have you ever (fill in the blank)?... You will!" Most of you are probably tiring of that refrain endlessly interrupting your favorite television shows. Many of us though are intrigued by the images these commercials present. The thought of strolling on the beach while earning a living is naturally appealing. I think we all would like to see our mother's face when we call her on her birthday. We would like to think that we will someday do all of those things we are promised and more!

At the core of the appeal of these images lies a basic need in all of us, the need to be free. Free of all the mundane tasks that take up so much of our time and give us so little satisfaction. Free from the 8 to 5 grind. Free to make choices that let us live in a fashion that suits us. Free to use our intellect to pursue those things that make life good. That is the promise of technology. Technology will set us free. Or so say the commercials.

While the promise is real, and someday all that technology promises will become as commonplace as the toaster oven, the path from here to there is filled with treacherous potholes, swamps and wrong turns leading to dead ends. There is no doubt though, that these things will come true. After all, the human race is capable of achieving anything it can imagine.

There is though, a nagging thought that surfaces as we watch those commercials. Technology can be frightening. It means we must learn new ways of doing things, we must learn how to master new and seemingly complicated equipment, we must step out of our comfort zones. The fear stems from our doubts about our ability to meet these challenges. Can we master these new gizmos and gadgets? Can we assimilate all that information? What happens if we can't? Will we be left behind as anachronistic roadkill run down by the technology juggernaut?

We've seen it happen to others. Our parents and grandparents are baffled today by seemingly simple things that we take for granted. This is true whether you are 18 or 85. Today, at 34, the thought of trying to master a moving map display integrated with a global positioning system in my new car (I wish), is just as daunting to me as programming our new VCR was to my father in 1980 or adjusting a new television set was to his father in 1955.

The speed at which technology advances is breathtaking, and we all feel at times overwhelmed by it. We can all be comforted though by the thought that with time, effort and education, either self-taught or formal, we will be able to master these things. Just yesterday, I watched my dad program his VCR in a way that stretched the fabric of time itself. As for Granddad, well, he still blames sunspots for the bad picture. I guess he falls into the roadkill category.

We must not fear that technology will become more and more difficult to use. There are forces at work that will ensure that as technology advances, the average person can make full use of it. Why? Because the market will demand it. That is the nature of the market forces that drive technological advances. Technology is great, but if no one can make money from it, you can bet that it will become a dead end. Today's successful technologies and those of the future that reach the masses will be easy to use, customizable and will ultimately allow us to achieve the freedoms that they promise.

Love Quilt Given United Methodists At Turkey

by Ann Coker
 Henry Parmenter and wife Nina of Clovis, NM attended Sunday school and church at United Methodist Church in Turkey last Sunday, and enjoyed visiting and the noon meal.
 The couple had visited Lewis and Mozelle Eudy about two years ago, and expressed to them their desire to have a community love quilt that Henry's mother, Fannie Parmenter, had started here in 1949. Members of the UMW made twenty blocks with 33 names to each block - 660 names are embroidered on the quilt. Nadine Baisedn and Kathleen Green are the only members living, who had a block on the quilt.
 Henry Parmenter mailed the quilt to the Eudys, and they called Henry and Nina to come present the quilt. Henry is the son of Rev. Wayne and Fannie Parmenter. Rev. Parmenter was instrumental in building the upper story of the Methodist Church. The basement had served as the church for twenty years, ever since the church was destroyed by a tornado. Started in 1948, the upper story was finished in 1949, and dedicated in 1950 by Bishop Martin.
 The church as debt-free when completed, and the Parmenters will never be forgotten here, but remembered as loving Christian people, who were civic minded and loved everyone in Turkey. Bro. Parmenter also taught school in Turkey during the war years, and was girls' coach. He died at age 98 in Clovis. Mrs. Parmenter preceded him in death. Both are buried in Throckmorton.
 Plans are being made to display the quilt in the fellowship hall at the United Methodist Church.
 Henry reported that he had written a book which he plans to have published soon: "Behold the Man

Who Takes Away the Sins of the World." If you would like to read the manuscript, call Mozelle Eudy or Les Hall.

Valley Homemakers Have Movie Night

by Sue Hall
The Valley Homemakers went to Plainview for their annual movie night on April 6. The group ate at Pizza Hut for dinner and then went downtown to see Forest Gump. It seems everyone had a good time and enjoyed visiting with one another as much as seeing the movie!

Members in attendance were: Vivian Smith, Whitney Saul, Beth Hall, Karen Allen, Angie Smith, Karla Helms, Sue Hall, Lisa Price and Lacey Shannon.

The next meeting will be April 27, 1995 at 7 p.m. in the Quitaque Bank Room for a Bunko party. All members are urged to attend.

Don't forget the volleyball tournament on May 4-5. This should be a fun way to raise money for the club. Plan to be available the weekend of the tournament to help out! See you at the Bunko party!

Call Susan Young for more information at 455-1125.

Trade In Your Old Habits For New and Healthy Ones

by Ronda Alexander
Have you ever wished that you could just "trade-in" your old and unhealthy habits for new and healthy ones? Well here's a way that you can. Join the Lifestyle Choices-Support Group. The group program is being offered by the Briscoe County Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

As a member of the Lifestyle Choices-Support Group, you will learn how to make healthy eating and fitness choices in order to develop into a healthier person. The support group sessions will give you the encouragement that you need in order to change those bad habits into healthy ones.

There is no charge to join the support group, only a desire to become healthier is needed. The support group will meet on Mondays, at 5 p.m. at the Extension Office, located in the basement of the Courthouse. The sessions were scheduled to begin on Monday, April 10. A Support Group may also be started in Quitaque, please let me know if you are interested.

To find the answers to your questions or to sign-up, please call 823-2131, ext. 12. Make your choice now for "out with the old, bad habits and in with the new, good ones."

Republican Party Re-organized In Briscoe County

Briscoe County Republicans met recently to reorganize the Republican Party in Briscoe County. John Gill, acting as temporary Chairman, administered an oath to those present. John T. Francis was elected county Chairman, with Bennie Reagan vice-Chairman. Precinct chairmen are: Precinct 1 - Sally Grimland; Precinct 2 - Jo Ann Reagan; Precinct 3 - Eldon Oneal; and Precinct 4 - Perry Brunson.

A motion was made to secure the Briscoe County Showbarn for the 1996 primary election polling place.

The Briscoe County Republican Party is committed to run and support county candidates in 1996 elections. Republicans gained a lot of county offices last fall in the general election, and recently a number of Democrats have switched their party affiliation.

Those who serve in county offices are encouraged to consider the political picture of the future, and make your plans for 1996. Anyone considering running for a county office now has a choice of parties.

Herringtons Host Ladies From France

Lex and Dana Herrington of Lubbock recently hosted two ladies from France in their home for a week. They were part of a group of nine in co-ordination with Trinity School where Dana teaches. Only one could speak English fluently while the other only had a small understanding of the English language.

One Sunday afternoon Lex and Dana brought four of the ladies to Quitaque to visit Ross and Patsy Herrington. They brought them down the old dirt Caprock road. The ladies were very impressed by the beauty of the Caprock and took many pictures.

The ladies also attended church, as well as many other places with Lex and Dana. All of the group visited the Carlsbad Caverns.

This was a unique experience for Lex and Dana, one which they will never forget.

DO GOODERS' CLUB SPONSORS HEALTH SCREENING CLINIC

The Do Gooders' Club sponsored the annual all day Health Screening Clinic in Flomot Tuesday, April 4, at the Community Center. The Texas Dept. of Health conducted the medical tests and many took advantage of this free service.

4-H Clothing Project Activities

By Ronda Alexander
Briscoe County 4-H'ers are learning about quilting, comparison shopping and clothing assembly lines as they participate in their 4-H clothing project. The project allows 4-Hers to participate in a variety of activities while learning about textiles, clothing construction, comparison shopping, grooming and poise, and related career choices.

The group began their project with a visit to the Friendship Quilter's Club on April 6. They were able to observe the almost lost art of hand-quilting and the different processes involved. The visit was enjoyed by all and plans were made to visit again during the summer.

The group met again on Saturday morning to continue their activities. Each Member was involved by conducting an activity or learning experience with the other members of the group. The 4-Hers then got to participate in a clothing assembly line to make about 40 potpourri ornaments. The group delivered the ornaments to residents of the Tulia Care Center. 4-Hers also entertained and visited with the residents. The days events concluded with a tour of the fabric department at Alco.

4-Hers participating in these activities were Hannah Boedeker, Scarlett Sperry and Brianna Sperry, of the Valley 4-H Club; and Julie Weaver, Shannon Weaver, Carrie Baird, Kenzie Burson, Molly Brooks and Katy Hester, of the Silvertown 4-H Club. Leaders Robin Boedeker and Bena Hester were also involved.

The 4-Hers will continue their projects through constructing or purchasing a garment and then entering it in the County 4-H Fashion Show which will be held on Monday, April 24th at 7:30 p.m.

Did You Know?

(NAPS)—Home economists at Whirlpool say when shopping for an air conditioner, consider the size of the room to be cooled, which way the windows face and what electric service is available.

To give hair more volume, use Velcro brand Self-Holding Salon Rollers.

For spring and summer, you'll find wool that is sheer and supple and exceptionally "cool."

Stores now carry a new Collector Series of Welch's jam and jelly glasses featuring Looney Tunes characters.

A View of Changing Consumer Attitudes

By Ronda Alexander
National Nutrition Month 1995 is the prime time to share with you some results which were recently published by Food Marketing Institute (FMI) "Trends '94" study of consumer attitudes and behavior about nutrition and diet, which was begun in the early 1970's. After over 2,000 supermarket shoppers were interviewed, the following results were obtained:

- 66% felt diet could be healthier
- 62% were concerned about the nutritional content of food they eat
- 50% since 1986 are more concerned about fat in food
- less concerned about cholesterol, sugar and sodium in foods
- 94% say eating habits to help ensure a healthful diet have changed
- trend of eating more fruits and vegetables to achieve a healthful diet
- 33% eat less fat and oil
- few reported dietary changes of eating more fish and fiber and less salt

What this really tells us about consumers is that they still have desire to improve the nutritional quality of their diets. Many consumers are indeed making dietary changes by increasing fruits and vegetables while decreasing fats and oils. Besides these points, consumers seem to be less concerned and are making fewer changes in their dietary behavior.

So why all the hype and hoopla with healthful foods? Consumers are demanding foods that they perceive to be more healthful, make them feel better and make them look better. These dynamic changes will continue to impact the food system. Like the consumers healthful changes mentioned above, start making some of these changes in your life style and nutrition or eating habits. The time to start is right now, during National Nutrition Month.

The typewriter was invented in 1867.

- TURKEY NEWS THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Things Seen or Heard
by Ann Coker
Tink and Estelle Lane returned last Tuesday to their home after spending ten days in Idabel, OK at the home of their daughter and family Jon and Debbie Maxwell and girls.

Jon and Debbie were in Hot Springs AK to attend a doctor's seminar. The Lanes stayed in Idabel with Emile and Tiffany, the daughters of the Maxwells.

Ginger Morgan and her mother, Frankie Bell were in Childress last Tuesday to do some shopping.

Don Guest of De Sota was in town last week-end visiting with his mother, Vera Guest.

Visitors from Shallowater last week-end were Joe Beth and Dub Smith. They were visiting in the home of their son and family, Stuart, Vivian and children.

Visiting with Virginia Degan last week-end was Lisa McKnight and her children from Amarillo. Mrs. Degan took her guests to the turkey dinner at the Methodist Church on Sunday.

Are we ever going to get our TV dues paid? I paid mine a month ago or more and my TV programs are still being interrupted by these ads. Sure hope our name appears in the Valley Tribune next week in the paid column!

We traveled to Stephenville last Wednesday to visit in the new home of our daughter and family, Linda, Mark, Zach and Josh Hamilton. They are not completely "settled in," but we thoroughly enjoyed our stay. We returned home Sunday evening.

After our arrival Wednesday afternoon, Audra House, a student at Tarleton University, came over to the Hamilton's for a visit. We enjoyed being with her. On Friday night Audra joined us for a Mexican dinner at a local cafe.

On Saturday afternoon we visited an area where several old, old buildings have been brought in to make a tourist attraction. We enjoyed going through some ancient log cabins, an old school and a church that had served the area people many years ago.

Clinton and Vee Lane of Silver City, New Mexico, arrived in Turkey a week ago last Wednesday. They have been spending most of their time in Memphis staying with Clinton's mother, Zona Lane, who is still in the hospital there. They are planning on returning to their home later this week. Zona will probably be in the hospital for several more days, perhaps another week, before returning to her home.

The turkey dinner the Methodist ladies prepared last Sunday was quite successful. They reported they thought they served more than they ever had before. There was plenty of food, and even some left over. J. T. and Tootsie Mullin from Childress and Dub and Jo Beth Smith from Shallowater came to eat with the Sunday diners and they also had a good representation from Quitaque. The ladies were quite thankful of the backers that showed up for the meal. The profit will be used for repairs on the church.

Therma Farley and Ella Shubert were in Plainview Friday for Therma to see the doctor. The ladies also did some shopping.

Therma Farley visited her sister, Esther Butler last Sunday. She remained with her until Tuesday. A good visit and shopping was enjoyed by the two sisters.

Cotton News by Shawn Wade

Producers interested in burning Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) land need to do so soon according to Lubbock based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

PCG officials warn that time is short because of the narrow window available to producers. Winter months provide the best time for burning CRP grassland since the plants are dormant and do not suffer any adverse effects from the practice.

Burning also provides producers with several added benefits in addition to promoting healthier stands. The benefits include control of weeds and control of certain insect pest that can use the accumulated thatch as winter cover.

An example of this is the boll weevil which has been able to effectively use CRP grass for overwintering in some areas of the High Plains. The main reason for the boll weevils successful use of this cover is the recent string of four mild winters on the High Plains. In past years CRP grass has been found to be poor winter habitat for the weevil when normal winter temperatures prevail.

"The recent string of mild winters has allowed the boll weevil to gain a significant foothold on the High Plains and it appears as if it will make further gains since the current winter is shaping up to be the mildest experienced in the last five years," notes PCG Boll Weevil Program Coordinator Roger Haldenby. "What we need is a pipe-busting winter that will not allow the weevil to survive in CRP grass. What we have gotten so far is exactly the opposite."

Haldenby notes that producers can expect to see boll weevils move out of CRP grasses into their 1995 cotton as this years crop gets planted.

Recommendations coming soon from the Boll Weevil Task Force, on which Haldenby serves, will encourage growers to hold off planting where possible until at least May 1.

Growers looking for advice on CRP burning should contact Plains Cotton Growers for a copy of the three page "Guidelines for Boll Weevil Management in the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission, and the United States Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service.

YOUR GARDEN

New Guides Offer Expert Advice

Pictured are Old Garden Roses with annuals and perennials. Experts believe that many gardeners would grow roses if they needed less care. An exciting new series provides in-depth advice on a variety of gardens.

(NAPS)—Questions seem to sprout up at every stage of gardening. Should you choose moonflowers or morning glories? A lush cascade of climbing roses on a trellis or a diminutive hedge of tea roses?

Do marigolds really discourage predatory insects or is this just a gardening myth? What's the best way to prepare soil before planting annuals or deal with invasive plants in an earth friendly way?

Since gardening is an inexact science, learned by observing and by doing, it makes sense to gather all the advice you can. Often the most experienced gardeners develop different but equally effective ways of doing the same thing.

Four brand new guides have been added to Pantheon Books' comprehensive and user-friendly 12-volume series, American Garden Guides, answering some basic and not-so-basic questions about annuals, roses, indoor and dry climate gardening.

Compiled by numerous botanical gardens, the guides are created in consultation with seven other botanical gardens in various regions of the country. Because the books are collaborative efforts, each is checked for accuracy by eight or more garden experts.

Although it is important to learn gardening basics, whatever method works for you is the right way.

Useful tips from the guides' regional experts help readers decide how differing regional and special conditions might affect their garden.

The series, which also features books on herbs, shrubs, perennials and vegetables, favors environmentally responsible gardening techniques and the development of a personal gardening style.

Also stressed are the importance and fun of finding lesser-known, native and heirloom plants. A user-friendly format groups all the information about a plant in the same place.

Information about how to grow and care for your garden is organized around riotously colorful photographs that are an inspiration to look at on non-gardening days.

The detail-rich text is based on the hands-on experience of full-time horticulturalists but it's not difficult to try yourself. Numbered step-by-step black and white photo sequences are easy enough for a beginning gardener to follow.

Each book costs $25. The guides are available at local bookstores or by calling 1-800-793-BOOK.
