Briscoe County Workers Needed For 1990 Census

The U. S. Census Bureau has issued a call for Briscoe County residents to apply for temporary jobs.

Census work will last between two and eight weeks for most workers. They will receive $5 an hour plus mileage for any official use of a private vehicle.

Applicants for the temporary positions must be 18 years old or over, a U. S. Citizen, have a valid drivers license, a social security card and take a written test.

The work consists of driving or walking in designated areas of the county to follow up on addresses that do not respond to the census questionnaire. Office jobs that will be filled are those of Data Transcriber and Clerks.

The Census benefits all Americans. Reapportionment of the U. S. House of Representatives and redrawing of Legislative district boundaries are based on census figures, while census numbers are used to distribute federal, state and local government funds to provide assistance to

Area Happenings

Hoop Shoot To Be Held By Elks

The Plainview Elks Club will sponsor an area Hoop Shoot Free Throw Contest at Coronado Jr. High School in Plainview Saturday, January 27, 1990, beginning at 12 noon.

The competition is open to all children ages 8 to 13 (7 year olds are eligible if they will be 8 by April 1, 1990.) The cost is free. The nationwide program gives participants an opportunity to test their free throwing abilities against others in their age group. Last year over 3 million youngsters from all 50 states chose to compete. Local winners will advance to district, state, regional and national competition, at absolutely no cost to them or their families.

Six national champions will be named, one boy and one girl from each age group. Each will receive a trophy, and their names will be inscribed on a plaque at the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts. Families of finalists at district, state, regional and national levels attend the competitions as guests of the Elks.

There will be two divisions, boys and girls, and three categories in each division. Age groups are: 8-9; 10-11 and 12-13 years of age. Youngsters are asked to wear tennis (or basketball) shoes.

Boys and girls in the 8-9 age group will shoot four feet in front of the regulation foul line.

For more information, contact Mr. Shutt in Plainview at 293-3137.

County Banquet Set For Monday

J. B. Wheeler, Chairman Emeritus of Hale County State Bank in Plainview, will be the keynote speaker at the annual Extension Banquet Monday, January 29, at 7 p.m. in the Silverton School Cafeteria.

Mr. Wheeler, a long-time civic leader in Plainview, recently received the Industrial Developer of the Year Award from the Plainview-Hale County Industrial Foundation. He will address economic development in rural areas and how communities can promote themselves in economic development efforts.

An Extension Supporter of the Year will be recognized, and certificates presented to members retiring from the Extension Program Council Executive Board.

County Judge Jimmy Burson will provide musical entertainment at the banquet.

The public is invited and all members of the Extension Ag Industries Committee, Home Economics Committee, 4-H and Youth Committee, Executive Board and their families are encouraged to attend.

A meal of soft tacos and dessert will be served at a cost of $3 per person. Reservations are required. Call the County Extension Office by Friday, January 26, and indicate the number planning to attend.

Items Needed For More Window Displays

The corner windows at Texas Horse Pads will soon be the location for a new display of military articles from any of the American wars.

Some of the items needed for this exhibit are: Uniforms from various branches of the service, medals, guns, hand grenade, newspapers, war ration book, articles purchased overseas, V mail stationery, mess kits, discharge papers, dog tags, rifle cleaning kit, shells, goggles, maps or any interesting memorabilia relating to the service. An American flag bearing 48 stars is also needed for the display.

Any item loaned will be carefully marked and a record kept of who each thing belongs to. Contact in the next few days, Johnine Morrison, Delene Tyler or Mary Stark to let them know what you have available.

The museum windows have become a real focal point in Quitaque but there is still much work to be done and new items to be added to existing displays.

Family Cook-Out Turns To Tragedy

Michael Davis, 8 year old son of Gene and Jackie Lynn Davis of Fritch, received first and second degree burns Wednesday, January 13, 1990, at his home, as his family prepared supper on an outdoor grill. He was taken to High Plains Hospital in Amarillo for treatment, and is currently receiving therapy at the Amarillo Burn Center as an outpatient.

According to a relative, Mrs. Rusty Matthews of Turkey, the Davis' were cooking on an outdoor bar-beque grill and had gone inside along with their other son. Michael remained outside. Thinking the fire was going out, he picked up a container of gasoline and poured it on the grill.

The flash fire burned the youth about the neck and chest area, and on one arm. He received one burned place on his face (from the zipper) as his burning jacket was being removed from his body.

Michael is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Starkey of Flomot.

As I See It!

By Thelma Gafford

Could you believe last Thursday morning's weather? Especially after the beautiful day on Wednesday. We awoke to the sights and sounds of thunder and lightning, which turned to sleet in the moments to follow, which turned to snow minutes later, then back to thunder with snow showers, then rain, and back to sleet and snow mixed with some lightning, then back to snow. Whew! No wonder we stay in a state of confusion. My days are usually like that anyway, but normally Mother Nature stays out of it. The much needed moisture was really nice, though. We all know how the weather is around here, but can't you just imagine what went through the minds of tourists passing through the area that day? They probably thought they were passing through the Twilight Zone.

The Stock Show and Sale is set for Saturday in Silverton. I'd like to wish all the participants good luck. I hope they all continue on to the B-I-G Show in Houston.

CARD OF THANKS

We are saying Thank You: To our many friends for your countless acts of kindness, love and concern shown us during E. L.'s illness. Each phone call, card, visit, and words of encouragement has been so strengthening.

To Steve Ulrey for patiently waiting with us at the hospital.

To Jerry Bob, Don and Steve for the ambulance run.

To all of you for the generous Love Fund established at our Bank.

Most of all we thank you for your prayers for us. We value your love and concern more than words can express.

May God bless each of you in our prayer.

Love,
Bonnie and E.L. Hill
34-1tc

CARD OF THANKS

Please except the "heartfelt" apology for the inconvenience to many who were unable to obtain tickets to the Hall County Centennial Style Show held at the Community Center in Memphis, Texas January 20, 1990.

The pre-sale tickets had been available for the past several weeks, however, the Committee was unable to sell many until a very late date, then realized the show was over sold for the limited capacity of the Center.

The decision by the members was made at the last minute to seat those who had bought tickets early, then if places were available, additional tickets would be sold.

We regret some had traveled quite a distance and could not be seated. We had no idea the response would be so overwhelming.

To those who were turned away, we pray you will understand our position and will plan to attend the events we have planned throughout the Centennial year.

We need and appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
The Hall County Centennial Committee,
Florida Branigan, spokesperson

I would like to thank everyone for all their concern during my stay in the hospital and since my return home.

The cards, calls, visits, and prayers, especially the Prayer Chain of the Baptist and Methodist Churches were the direct reasoning for my recovery.

God bless each and every one of you.

CAPROCK COMMENTS

Wouldn't it be nice if all these scientific health experts would get their act together? They have now come up with the fact that Oat Bran is no better than anything else in controlling cholesterol. You might as well eat wheat, barley, milo, crabgrass or Russian Thistles. They're all the same according to the "extensive studies and research" over a period of time. They do recommend, that if you have a stock of Oat Bran, keep it. It makes excellent grout for laying tile.

And, another; in the last couple of years, they've tried and almost succeeded in changing everybody over to decaffeinated coffee and now they tell us that it loads us up on the bad kind of cholesterol and that we would be better off drinking the real stuff.

Now they also say that bacon and eggs ain't so bad. That the lack of nourishment they provide, the body can ill afford to be without, and they haven't come up with anything for a substitute that comes anywhere near the value of good ole' ham or bacon and eggs with red/eye gravy and hot biscuits and butter. It's a wonder that all these folks who have lived for 90 to 100 years, who never ate anything else, ever got old enough to vote. About all they have done with all this dietary stuff is put us at the mercy of the advertisers who ballyhoo everything doctors mention to the point of extremity...Us po-dumb folks could almost starve to death, just waiting for them come up with something fit to eat. It seems that you are about as well off to back-your-ears and eat whatever tastes good and if it don't hurt you, do it again! More people starve to death than poor eatin' habits!

Now, you're supposed to take an aspirin every day to keep your blood thin and circulating, but according to the health experts, there are several things better than aspirin, and if you don't need anything at all, and ain't hurting, why on God's green Earth is it necessary to take anything? Doctors ain't all that smart about everything anyhow. Remember those 100 that were marooned on an island and 65 percent of them asked for aspirin above everything else? Why didn't some of them ask for a rescue ship to get them off that cotton-pickin' island!

While we're on the soapbox, we might as well take a crack at those egotistical, self-important people who call you on the phone and then hang up on the third ring, just about the time you sprint 60 feet to answer. They must think that everybody sits within arms reach of the telephone, sitting and waiting for their call. Although, they are intruding on your time, they blow their top if you don't answer on the first buzz. Common telephone courtesy recommends that you not hang up for at least seven rings. That allows the answering person 30 seconds to get to the phone. Who knows, they might have their arm caught in the wringer! Phones are about the biggest nuisance of any convenience we have anyhow!

But, with over an inch of rain, snow and sleet, we're supposed to be satisfied with everything!

Wouldn't it be nice to be strong enough to rip open those plastic bags off the grocery shelf?!

Don't you just cherish the grammar, punctuation and spelling in this column. Hope the English teacher don't take it to heart!

The Head of the Bankrupt Lincoln Savings and Loan outfit says, of his giving $1.4 million dollars to Senators, "To live outside the law, you must be honest!"

Father to mother about four-year old son, "Talk, talk, talk...That's all I hear from this kid." Thank heavens he will be a teenager someday and we won't be able to communicate with him at all!

That's -30- for this time, remember, politicians are like ships. The more fog they're in, the more they toot their horns!

The Old "F" Ranch

First In A Series

Editor's Note:
The following article by Joe Heflin Smith is a reprint from the Cattleman, dated October 1952. Mr. Smith is a retired school teacher living in California.

First of a series
The story of the old "F" Ranch, often called the Quitaque, began in 1877 when a the herd of George Baker arrived in the Panhandle country below the caprock, a few miles southwest of present day Quitaque, Texas.

George Baker was a San Saba County rancher who had moved his cattle to Cimarron, New Mexico in 1872, but for unknown reasons, left the Cimarron and landed at the headwaters of Quitaque Creek. Fred Scott, nearing ninety, of Canyon, Texas, who went to work on the "F" Ranch in 1881 said that it was the best cattle country that ever lay outdoors. And Dick Walsh, popular manager of the JA Ranch for many years, put it this way: "Goodnight and Adair certainly knew what they were doing when they bought the Quitaques."

It was a big raw country, matted with rich buffalo grass studded with scattered mesquite, and dominated by Quitaque Peaks that loomed on the southern horizon.

George Baker was not bothered with neighbors as his lead animal waded out in sparkling twisting Quitaque Creek for a drink after a long drive from the Palo Duro. It was a year before H. H. Campbell got the Matadors underway at Hallard Springs, a thirty-mile horseback ride to the south, and Charles Goodnight had only recently established the JA headquarters, some sixty miles to the northwest, and already had his eyes on the Quitaque country. A man had elbow room.

Baker cowboys tunneled a red bank on the north side of Quitaque Creek, a dozen miles from its source, and fashioned three rude half dug-outs and called them "headquarters."

This writer has failed to learn of any detailed operations of George Baker following his entry into the Quitaque section, but some place along the line, he took on a partner because history records transactions of George Baker and O. J. Wiren, known as the Baker-Wiren outfit.

It is safe to assume that cattle got fat, that cowboys rode hard after the "F" cattle and thrilled at the sleek herds of antelope that bounded easily through the fine grass.

Also, two other men moved into the spotlight of "F" Ranch history, Kellogg and McCoy, who had, perhaps, only a financial interest in the "F" herd.

If George Baker asserted any claim to the land along the Quitaque Creek, records fail to disclose it. Probably he made no claim whatever, merely grazing and controlling it by the statutes of the lonely, and it's likely that Baker and Goodnight had an agreement that they would leave each other's country alone.

Alone about 1880, Charles Goodnight, realizing that ranchers must own their own land in view of coming civilization, convinced his associate, John Adair, that the JA must mass more land--much more land--if it was to maintain its prestige as a fast growing ranch. With that in mind, Goodnight started looking for more land and cattle. Naturally, he grazed toward the Quitaque.

Sometime in 1880, Goodnight closed the deal for the "F" cattle, negotiating, according to some historians, with Wiren, Kellogg, and McCoy. Baker's name was not mentioned; however, a biography of early day cattlemen in Texas, published in 1895 in a recent interview with George Baker recites that he sold direct to Goodnight. At any rate, Baker faded from the West Texas cattle scene, and Charles Goodnight and John Adair loomed larger on the beef horizon than ever before.

Charles Goodnight, acting for the Adairs, bought close to twenty-five hundred head of cattle bearing the "F" brand--often called the "Lazy F"--on the left side and hip, and close to one hundred twenty-five thousand acres of rich Panhandle grass. Goodnight bought railroad land and as the purchased sections were joined by State sections, which he used by lease, the ranch was doubled in size and was located in Floyd, Motley, Briscoe and Hall Counties.

Goodnight paid all the way from twenty cents per acre upward for the grass. In 1883, records say that he paid Gunter and Munson one dollar per acre for a good sized spread in Floyd County and, a few years later, went as high as eight hundred fifty dollars per section. However, Panhandle land was still cheap and hard to sell. Once, John Pope, owner of the Shoe Bar Ranch, cornered Hiram Sweeney and tried to sell him a few sections of land. "If you'll contract to buy this land," Pope said, "you won't have to put up a single penny, and I'll make the first note come due the day after your funeral."

As soon as the deal for the Quitaque Ranch was closed, Goodnight placed John Farrington, veteran cattleman, in charge, and within a short time moved down the creek a few miles and built new headquarters. Fred Scott recalls that headquarters then consisted of four half dug-outs with a small round corral for penning saddle horses. However, it was not long until a frame house was completed with a set of typical "Goodnight" corrals that stood for half a century against the ravages of West Texas weather. Recently the old house was replaced with a modern structure.

Oscar Stroup, well known rancher of Quitaque, who came to the ranch in '98 with Hank Cresswell and Tony Day, had pictures made of the house before it was replaced. "I couldn't stand to see that house torn down without getting pictures," Stroup said. "I had such good times there and it was my only home for several years."

Joe Horn, said by all the timers to be as good a cowman as ever pulled on a pair of tight boots, was among the first wagon bosses for Goodnight on the Quitaque. Horn was only a young man when he entered the cattle country, spending his twenty-first birthday, according to Hiram Sweeney, in Pole Canyon, near the foot of Quitaque Peaks.

Reach for your thermostat to help save on your winter energy bills.

- Set the thermostat at 68° and reach for a sweater instead of raising the thermostat.
- Caulk and weatherstrip around windows and doors to help prevent excessive heat loss.
- Check your attic for adequate insulation; 11-12 inches is recommended.
- Tightly close the damper in the fireplace when not in use to keep your heated air from escaping up the chimney.
- Open drapes and blinds during the day to let in sunlight and close them at night to hold warm air in.
- Install gaskets behind cover plate outlets and switches to help keep warm air in and cold out.

S.A.F.E. Reveal Hard Facts About Alcohol

Cold, hard facts about alcohol. *Alcoholism is one of the most serious public health problems in the United States. Among the 18.3 million adult "heavier drinkers" (those consuming more than 14 drinks per week), 12.1 million have one or more symptoms of alcoholism, an increase of 8.2 percent since 1980. *Alcohol is the most widely used -- and abused -- drug in America. *The cost to the nation resulting from alcohol abuse and alcoholism in 1983 (the latest figures available) was $116.7 billion. The economic impact in 1980 (current dollars) was $89.5 billion. *One out of three American adults -- 56 million Americans -- has had problems because of alcohol abuse in the family. *Chronic brain injury caused by alcohol is second only to Alzheimer's disease as a known cause of mental deterioration in adults. *Children of alcoholics have a four-times greater risk of developing alcoholism than children of nonalcoholics. *Fetal Alcohol Syndrome is the third leading cause of birth defects with accompanying mental retardation, and the only preventable one among the top three. *About 65 out of every 100 people in the United States will be in an alcohol-related crash in their lifetimes. *Alcoholics are 10 times more likely to die from fires than nonalcoholics, five to 13 times more likely to die from falls, and commit suicide from six to 15 times more frequently than the general population. Statistics compiled by the National Council on Alcoholism Inc.
